Theſe Noble Men before-mentioned obſerved that ancient and charitable Cuſtom, of liberal Relief of the Poor at their Gates: as all Prelates, Noblemen, or Men of Honour and Worſhip their Predeceſſors had done before them; whereof ſomewhat to note for Example: Venerable Bede writeth, that Prelates of his time, having peradventure but Wooden Churches, had (notwithſtanding) on their Board at their Meals one Alms Diſh, into the which was carved ſome good Portion of Meat out of every other Diſh brought to their Table. All which was given to the Poor, beſides the Fragments left; inſomuch as in a hard time, a poor Prelate wanting Victuals, hath cauſed his Alms Diſh, being Silver, to be divided amongſt the Poor, therewith to ſhift as they could, till God ſhould ſend him better Store.

Biſhop of Wincheſter's Saying touching the Relief of the Poor.

Such a Prelate was Ethelwald, Biſhop of Wincheſter, in the Reign of K. Edgar, about the Year of Chriſt 963. He in a great Famine ſold away all the Sacred Veſſels of his Church for to relieve the almoſt ſtarved People, ſaying, That there was no reaſon that the ſenſleſs Temples of God ſhould abound in Riches, and lively Temples of the Holy Ghoſt to lack it.

Biſhop of Norwich ſold his Plate.

Walter de Suffilde, Biſhop of Norwich, was of the like Mind, about the Year 1245. In a time of great Dearth he ſold all his Plate, and diſtributed it to the Poor, every Pennyworth.

Archbiſhop of Canterbury's Charity.

Robert Winchelſey, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, about the Year 1093, beſides the daily Fragments of his Houſe, gave every Friday and Sunday to every Beggar that came to his Gate, a Loaf of Bread ſufficient for that Day; and there were uſually every ſuch Alms Day in time of Dearth to the Number of 5000, and otherwiſe 4000, at the leaſt. More, he uſed every great Feſtival to give 150 Pence to ſo many poor People, and ſent daily Meat, Bread, and Drink, to ſuch as by Age, or Sickneſs, were not able to fetch his Alms, and did ſend Meat, Money, and Apparel, to ſuch as he thought needed it.

Pater de Joham.

Ten thouſand poor People daily fed and ſuſtained by Henry II.

I read in 1171, that Henry the Second, after his Return into England, did Penance for the Slaughter of Thomas à Becket. By whom (a ſore Dearth then increaſing) Ten Thouſand Perſons, from the firſt of April till new Corn was inned, were daily fed and ſuſtained.

Record of the Tower.

Henry III. fed 6000 poor People in one Day.

More I find recorded, that in the Year 1236, the 20th of Henry the Third, William de Haverhall, the King's Treaſurer, was commanded, that upon the Day of the Circumciſion of our Lord, 6000 poor People ſhould be fed at Weſtminſter, for the State of the King, Queen, and their Children. The like Commandment the ſaid King Henry gave to Hugh Gifford, and William Brown, that upon Friday next, after the Epiphany, they ſhould cauſe to be fed in the great Hall at Windſor, at a good Fire, all the poor and needy Children that could be found; and the King's Children being weighed and meaſured, their Weight and Meaſure to be diſtributed for their good Eſtates. Theſe few Examples for Charity of Kings may ſuffice.

Richard de Berry, Biſhop of Durham.

I read in the Reign of Edward the Third, that Richard de Berry, Biſhop of Durham, did Weekly beſtow for Relief of the Poor, Eight Quarters of Wheat made into Bread, beſides his Alms Diſh, Fragments of his Houſe, and great Sums of Money given to the Poor, when he journied. And that theſe Alms Diſhes were as well uſed at the Tables of Noblemen, as of the Prelates, one Note may ſuffice in this Place.

I read in the Year 1452, that Richard Duke of York then claiming the Crown, the Lord Rivers ſhould have paſſed the Sea about the King's Buſineſs, but ſtaying at Plymouth till his Money was ſpent, Duke of Glouceſter's Alms-Diſh.

ſpent, and then ſending for more, the Duke of Somerſet ſent him the Image of St. George in Silver and Gold, to be ſold with the Alms Diſh of the Duke of Glouceſter, which was alſo of great Price, for Coin had they none.

Tho. Cromwell at the great Muſter.

But let Men call to mind Sir Thomas Cromwell, then Lord Privy Seal, and Vicar general, lying in the City of London, he bare his Charges to the great Muſter [there [Anno 1599.] conſiſting of 15000. beſides Whifflers and other Waiters, all in bright Harneſs, with Coats of white Silk or Cloth, and Chains of Gold in three great Battels.

He ſent his Men (in great Number) to the Miles end, and after them their Armour in Carrs, with their Coats of white Cloth, and the Arms of this City, to wit, a red Croſs and a Sword on the Breaſt and Back, which Armour and Coats they wear amongſt the Citizens, without any difference, and marched thorough the City to Weſtminſter.

The great Exceſs at Maiors and Sheriffs Tables. J. S.

But now in the Concluſion, to return to the Houſe-keeping in the City.

The Expences of the Maiors and Sheriffs, and other publick Feaſting in the City on ſolemn Days, were ſo great in former Times, that an Act of Common Council was made, 1 and 2 Phil. and Mar. for retrenching them, and other Charges in Attendants and Liveries. And theſe Expences continuing to our Times, it was reprinted Anno 1680, and recommended to the preſent Obſervation.

Retrenched by an old Act of Common Council.

The Preamble ſet forth the Reaſon, that our ancient wiſe Foreſathers had many times attempted the Redreſs and Amendment of the great Exceſs in Fare and other Things, in Maiors and Sheriffs Houſes, viz. the Dearth of Victuals, and the Charges of theſe Offices, which were ſo huge, that almoſt all good Citizens fled and refuſed to ſerve in this Honourable City; only becauſe of the great Exceſs, and chargeable Fare and Diet in the ſaid Offices. Hence it was Enacted, That no Maior or Sheriff ſhould have at their Table at Dinner or Supper any more Courſes than one. And no more ſundry Diſhes at one Courſe, upon the Sunday or other Feſtival Day, being a Fleſh Day, than Six, whether the ſame be hot or cold. Every Holy Day, being a Fiſh Day, Seven Diſhes of Meat, and not above. And every Working Day, being a Fleſh Day, Five Diſhes. And Fiſh Days, Six Diſhes of ſeveral Meats; Provided, that neither Brawn, Collops with Eggs, Sallads, Pottage, Butter, Cheeſe, Eggs, Herrings, Sprats, Shrimps, or any Shellfiſh, nor no kind of Fruit unhaſhed, ſhall be accounted for any of the ſaid Number of Diſhes of Meat aboveſaid. And that the Maior may at his pleaſure have, at the ſaid one Courſe, one Diſh of Meat, either Fiſh or Fleſh more than before limited.

That neither the Serjeants, nor other Officers of the Lord Maior's Houſe; nor the Serjeants Yeomen, or other Officers of the Sheriffs Houſes, ſhall have more ſundry Diſhes, either at Dinner or Supper, upon the Fleſh Days, than Three, and upon Fiſh Days than Four.

None of the Aldermen or Commoners of this City to exceed or paſs the Number of Diſhes of Meat, above limited and appointed for the Sheriffs in their own proper Manſion Houſes, Brawn, Sallads, and other Things as aforeſaid, excepted.

Nor in any of the Halls or Companies at any Feaſt or Time. Nor that there be any Swan, Crane, or Buſtard, which were wont to be called Head Pools, to be ſpent at any Feaſt in any of the Halls or Companies, upon pain of Forfeiture of 40*s. toties quoties.*

And for the eaſe of the Aged Perſons, and for the avoiding of great Uneaſineſs, that often happens at Feaſts, a certain convenient Number of the Cloathing [i. e. Livery] as well of the principal Crafts, as of the meaner Companies, which were accuſtomed to dine at the Maiors Feaſt, ſhall be abated. And ſuch a certain Number of every Company as hath been accuſtomed to dine at the ſaid Feaſt, the Number to be Yearly appointed by the Lord Maior and his Brethren the Aldermen; and they to be ſerved but with one Courſe, and the ſame Number of Diſhes, viz. of Six or Seven.

Provided, That when any Ambaſſador, or any of the Privy Council ſhall be at the ſaid Feaſt, then for their Board only to be amended and ordered by the Diſcretion of the ſaid Maior and Sheriffs. And no Banquet after Dinner except Ipocras and Wafers, as in time paſt hath been uſed.

The Feſtival Days, that were wont to be kept by the Maior and Sheriffs in their Houſes; that is to ſay, the three Holidays after Whitſunday, and the Dinners kept at Bartholomewtide, from henceforth to be left and laid down. And the Feaſts of Chriſtmas and Eaſter, with the Holy Days next after, to be uſed and kept by the Maior and Sheriffs, as heretofore hath been accuſtomed, and to keep the Order as is foreſaid.

The Sheriffs of this City from henceforth ſhall have but Fourteen Serjeants, and Fourteen Yeomen apiece. The Sheriffs to give to every of their Serjeants and Yeomen two Crowns at the time accuſtomed, and no other Liveries. And to every other, Clerks of the Counters, and ſuch as have been accuſtomed to have had Gowns at Chriſtmas, to have only one Livery Gown, and no more.

That from henceforth there ſhall be no WYTH fetcht home at the Maior's or Sheriffs Houſes. Neither ſhall they keep any Lord of Miſrule in any of their Houſes.

And foraſmuch, as the Lord Maior and Sheriffs, ſhortly after their Entrance into their ſeveral Offices and Rooms, be Yearly at great and exceeding Expences, by reaſon of the ſumptuous Feaſts, which they for the Honour and Renown of the ſame do keep and make in Guildhall, called The Maior and Sheriffs Feaſts, as well to and for ſuch Noblemen of the Kings and Queens moſt Honourable Council, Ambaſſadors of foreign Realms and Potentates, as are bidden and deſired to come unto the ſame; and alſo to and for the Aldermen, and Worſhipful Commons and Citizens; Therefore it was Ordained and Enacted, That the ſaid Maior and Sheriffs ſhould Yearly thenceforth, at the time of the making their ſaid Feaſts, have, of the Free Gift of the City out of the Chamber, of the common Store and Treaſure of the City there, towards the Relief of their ſaid Charge and Expence, the Sum of an 100*l.* This preſent Act to be a ſufficient Warrant and Diſcharge unto the Chamberlain for the Yearly Payment of the ſaid 100*l.*

This Act of Common Council was Printed again in the Year 1680, with Reaſons added; as therein is ſhewed, that the Fifth Part of the Charge of a Shrievalty is in the Wine.

The Modern Feaſts now, viz. the Checker and Spittal Feaſts; the firſt coſteth in Wine 80*l.* The latter coſteth above 300*l.* to each Sheriff.]

And thus I end touching Orders and Cuſtoms of this City.

Sports and Paſtimes of old Time uſed in this City.

* Of Sports & Paſtimes in this City. Every thing hath his Time, a Time to weep, a Time to laugh, a Time to mourn, and a Time to dance. Eccleſ. 3.

* Let us now (ſaith Fitzſtephen) come to the Sports and Paſtimes, ſeeing it is fit that a City ſhould not only be commodious and ſerious, but alſo merry and

Tu pro me navem liquiſti, ſuſcipe clavem.

You left the Ship for me, take you the Key.

And on the other ſide was a City, and this Inſcription on it, Aurea Roma. Likewiſe to the Praiſe of Auguſtus Cæſar and the City, in reſpect of the Shews and Sports, was written,

Nocte pluit tota, redeunt ſpectacula mane, &c.

All Night it Rains, and Shows

And Cæſar with almighty Jove hath matcht an equal Reign.

Stage Plays.

But London for the Shows upon Theaters, and Comical Paſtimes, hath holy Plays, Repreſentations of Miracles, which holy Confeſſors have wrought ; or Repeſentations of Torments, wherein the Conſtancy of Martyrs appeared.

Every Year alſo on Shrove Tueſday, (that we may begin with Childrens Sports, ſeeing we all have been Children) the School Boys do bring Cocks of the Game to their Maſter, and all the Forenoon they delight themſelves in Cock-fighting. After dinner, all the Youths go into the Fields to play at the Ball.

Cockfighting. Ball play.

The Scholars of every School have their Ball, or Baſtion in their Hands. The Antient and wealthy Men of the City come forth on horſeback, to ſee the Sport of the Young Men, and to take Part of the Pleaſure, in beholding their Agility.

Exerciſes of warlike Seats on horſeback with diſarmed Lances.

Every Friday in Lent, a freſh Company of Young Men comes into the Field on Horſeback, and the beſt Horſemen conduct the reſt. Then march forth the Citizens Sons, and other Young Men with diſarmed Lances and Shields, and there they practice Feats of War.

Many Courtiers likewiſe, when the King lyeth near, and Attendants on Noblemen, do repair to theſe Exerciſes ; and while the hope of Victory doth inflame their Minds, they ſhew good Proof how ſerviceable they would be in martial Affairs.

Battel on the Water.

In Eaſter Holydays, they fight Battels on the Water. A Shield is hanged on a Pole, fixed in the midſt of the Stream ; a Boat is prepared without Oars, to be carried by violence of the Water, and in the forepart thereof ſtandeth a Young Man, ready to give charge upon the Shield with his Launce. If ſo be he break his Launce againſt the Shield and doth not fall, he is thought to have performed a worthy Deed. If ſo be without breaking his Launce, he runneth ſtrongly againſt the Shield, down he falleth into the Water ; for the Boat is violenlty forced with the Tide ; but on each ſide of the Shield ride two Boats, furniſhed with Young Men, which recover him that falleth, as ſoon as they may. Upon the Bridge, Wharfs and Houſes by the River ſide, ſtand great Numbers to ſee, and laugh thereat.

Fighting of Bores and Bulls.

In the Holydays all the Summer, the Youths are exerciſed in leaping, dancing, ſhooting, wreſtling, caſting the Stone, and practiſing their Shields. The Maidens trip with their Timbrels, and dance as long as they can well ſee. In Winter, every Holiday before dinner, the Boars prepared for Brawn are ſet to fight, or elſe Bulls or Bears are baited.

When the great Fenn or Moor, which watereth the Walls of the City on the North ſide, is frozen, many Young Men play upon the Ice ; ſome ſtriding as wide as they may, doe ſlide ſwiftly : others make themſelves Seats of Ice, as great as Milſtones. One ſits down, many (Hand in Hand) do draw him, and one ſlipping on a ſudden, all fall together. Some tye Bones to their Feet, and under their Heels, and ſhoving themſelves by a little picked Staff, do ſlide as ſwiftly as a Bird flyeth in the Air, or an Arrow out of a Croſs-Bow. Sometimes two run together with Poles, and hitting one the other, either one or both do fall, not without Hurt ; ſome break their Arms, ſome their Legs : but Youth (deſirous of Glory) in this ſort exerciſeth it ſelf againſt the Time of War. Many of the Citizens do delight themſelves in Hawks and Hounds. For they have liberty of hunting in Middleſex, Hertfordſhire, all Chiltron, and in Kent to the Water of Cray. Thus far Fitzſtephen of Sports.

Hawking and Hunting.

Theſe or the like Exerciſes, have been continued till our Time, namely in Stage Plays, whereof we may read, in Anno 1391. a Play to be played by the Pariſh Clarks of London at the Skinners Well beſides Smithfield ; which Play continued three Days together, the King, Queen, and Nobles of the Realm being preſent. And of another played in the Year, 1409. which laſted Eight Days, and was of Matter from the Creation of the World. Whereat was preſent moſt part of the Nobility and Gentry of England, &c.

A Stage Play that continued 3 Days.

A Stage Play that laſted 8 Days.

Of late Time, inſtead of thoſe Stage Plays, have been uſed Comedies, Tragedies, Interludes and Hiſtories, both true and fained. For the acting whereof, certain publick Places, as the Theatre, the Curtein, &c. have been erected. [They played alſo at Inns, as the Croſskeys, &c.]

Comedies Tragedies of later Time.

This which was once a Recreation, and uſed therefore now and then occaſionally, afterwards by Abuſe became a Trade and Calling, and ſo remains to this Day. In thoſe former Days, ingenious Tradeſmen and Gentlemens Servants would ſometimes gather a Company of themſelves, and learn Interludes, to expoſe Vice, or to repreſent the Noble Actions of our Anceſtors in former Times : And there they played at certain Feſtival Times, and in private Houſes at Weddings, or other ſplendid Entertainments, for their own Profit ; acted before ſuch as were minded to divert themſelves with them. But in proceſs of Time it became an Occupation ; and many there were that followed it for a Livelihood. And which was worſe, it became the Occaſion of much Sin and Evil ; great Multitudes of People, eſpecially Youth, in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, reſorting to theſe Plays ; and being commonly acted on Sundays and Feſtivals, the Churches were forſaken, and the Playhouſes thronged. And great Diſorders and Inconveniences were found to enſue to the City thereby. It occaſioned Frays and evil Practices of Incontinency. Great Inns were uſed for this Purpoſe, which had ſecret Chambers and Places, as well as open Stages and Galleries. Here Maids, eſpecially Orphans and good Citizens Children under Age, were inveigled and allured to privy and unmeet Contracts. Here were publiſhed unchaſt, uncomely and unſhamefac'd Speeches and Doings. There was an unthrifty Waſte of the Money of the Poor ; Sundry Robberies by picking and cutting of Purſes ; uttering of popular and Seditious Matters : Many Corruptions of Youth, and other Enormities ; beſides ſundry Slaughters, and Maimings of the Queen's Subjects, by Ruins of Scaffolds, Frames and Stages, and by Engines, Weapons, and Powder, uſed in the Plays. And in Time of God's Viſitation by the Plague, ſuch Aſſemblies of the People in Throngs and Preſſes were very dangerous for ſpreading the Infection.

Acting Plays became a Trade.
J. S.

The Conſideration of theſe Things occaſioned the expreſs Prohibition of Plays by the Queen and the Lord Maior. And Sir James Hawes Maior, in the Year 1574. by an Act of Common Plays regulated by Common Council.

Council regulated theſe Plays; leſt the People, upon God's gracious withdrawing of the Sickneſs, ſhould with ſudden forgetting of the Viſitation, without fear of God's Wrath, and without ſome reſpect of thoſe good and politick Means (as the Words of the Act ran) that he had ordained for the Preſervation of the Commonwealth and People in Health and good Order, return to the undue Uſe of ſuch Enormities. Therefore for the lawful, honeſt, comely Uſe of Plays, Paſtimes and Recreations in good ſort permitted, by the Authority of the Common Council, it was enacted,
That no Play ſhould be openly played within
1. the Liberty of the City, wherein ſhould be uttered any Words, Examples, or Doings of any Unchaſtity, Sedition, or ſuch like unfit and uncomely Matter, upon pain of Impriſonment by the ſpace of 14 Days, and 5 l. for every ſuch Offence.
And that no Innkeeper, Tavernkeeper, or other
2. Perſon whatſoever, within the Liberties of the City, ſhew or play, or cauſe to be ſhewed or played within his Houſe or Yard, any Play, which ſhall not firſt be peruſed and allowed by the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermens Order.
And no Perſon ſhall ſuffer any Plays to be played
3. in his Houſe or Yard, whereof he then ſhall have Rule, but only ſuch Perſons, and in ſuch Places as upon good Conſideration, ſhall be thereunto permitted and allowed by the Lord Maior and Aldermen. Nor ſhall take and uſe any ſuch
4. Benefit or Advantage of ſuch Permiſſion, until ſuch Perſon be bound to the Chamberlain of London in certain Sums, for the keeping of good Order, and avoiding of Diſcords and Inconveniences. Neither ſhall uſe or exerciſe ſuch Li-
5. cence or Permiſſion at any Time, in which the ſame ſhall be by the Lord Maior and Aldermen reſtrained, or commanded to ſtay and ceaſe, in any uſual Time of Divine Service on the Sunday or Holiday, or receive any to that Purpoſe in Time of Service, to the ſame, upon Pain to forfeit for every Offence 5 l. And every Perſon
6. to be licenſed, ſhall, during the Time of ſuch
Continuance of ſuch Licenſe, pay to the Uſe of the Poor in Hoſpitals of the City, or of the Poor viſited with Sickneſs, ſuch Sums and Payments, as between the Maior and Aldermen and the Perſon to be licenſed ſhall be agreed upon;
upon pain that on the Want of every ſuch Payment, ſuch Licence ſhall be utterly Void. All
7. Sums and Forfeitures to be incurred for any Offence againſt this Act, and all Forfeitures of Bonds, ſhall be employed to the Relief of the Poor of the Hoſpitals, or of the Poor infected or diſeaſed in the City. And the Chamberlain in his own Name ſhall have and recover the ſame to the Purpoſes aforeſaid, in the Court of the Utter Chamber of Guildhall London, called the Maiors Court.

Provided, that this Act ſhall not extend to Plays ſhewed in private Houſes, Lodgings of a Nobleman, Citizen or Gentleman, which ſhall have the ſame then played in his Preſence, for the Feſtivity of any Mariage, Aſſembly of Friends, or other like Cauſe, without publick, or common Collection of Mony of the Auditors or Beholders.

Another Act of common Council puts down Plays.

But theſe good Laws and Orders concerning Players were not ſo well obſerved as they ſhould have been. For after this, the lewd Matters of Plays increaſed: And in the Hands of them were found many Dangers for Religion, the State, Honeſty of Manners, Unthriftineſs of the Poor, for Infection, &c. And the Preachers daily exclaimed againſt them to the Maior and Aldermen. Therefore in an Act of Common Council for Relief of the Poor, no Interludes were allowed in London, in open ſpectacle, but in private Houſes only, at Marriages, or ſuch like. And Suit was made, that they might be likewiſe baniſhed from all Places adjoining to the City.

The Lords forbid them on Sundays.

Since which Time, and upon the Ruin at Paris-Garden, Suit was made to the Lords, to baniſh Plays wholly in the Places near London. And Letters were obtained of the Lords to baniſh them on the Sabbath Days.

The Queen's Players petition the Lords for playing in London.

Upon theſe Orders againſt the Players, the Queen's Players petitioned the Lords of the Council, That whereas the Time of their Service drew very near, ſo that of neceſſity they muſt needs have Exerciſe to enable them the better for the ſame, and alſo for their better help and relief in their poor Livings, the Seaſon of the Year being paſt to play at any of the Houſes without the City; Their humble Petition was, that the Lords would vouchſafe to read a few Articles annexed to their Supplication, and in Conſideration, the Matters contained the very Stay and State of their Living, to grant unto them the Confirmation of the ſame; or of as many as ſhould be to their Honours good liking; and withal, their favourable Letters to the Lord Maior, to permit them to Exerciſe within the City; and that their Letters might contain ſome Orders to the Juſtices of Middleſex in their Behalf. But there were ſome that preſently anſwered both their Supplication and Articles.

Remedies for the Players.

In fine, the Buſineſs of the Players at laſt came to this Iſſue: and they were permitted on theſe Conditions; which were ſo many Remedies of their former Exorbitancies, viz. That they hold them content with playing in private Houſes at Weddings, &c. without publick Aſſemblies. That if it were thought good they ſhould be tolerated, that, then they be reſtrained to the Order in the Act of Common Council made in the Time of Hawes Maior. That they play not openly till the whole Deaths have been by twenty Days under 50 a Week, nor longer than ſhall ſo continue. That no Plays be on the Sabbath. That no Plays be on Holydays but after Evening Prayer; nor any received into the Auditory, till after Evening Prayer. That no Playing be in the Dark, nor continue any ſuch Time, but as any of the Auditors may return to their dwellings in London before Sun ſet, or at leaſt before it be dark. That the Queen's Players only be tolerated: and of them their Number and certain Names to be notified in the Lord Treaſurer's Letters to the Lord Maior and to the Juſtices of Middleſex and Surrey: And thoſe her Players not to divide themſelves into ſeveral Companies. And that for breaking any of theſe Orders their Toleration ceaſe.

Players often complained of, and reſtrained.

But all theſe Preſcriptions were not ſufficient to keep them within due Order, but their Plays, ſo abuſive oftentimes of Virtue; or particular Perſons, gave great Offence, and occaſioned Diſturbances. Whence they were now and then ſtopt and prohibited. So in the Year 1589. Hart Maior, Complaint was made of them to the Lord Treaſurer: who ſignified the ſame to the Maior. And he ſent for all the Players in Town, (and there were ſome Companies of them then, as one belonging to the Lord Admiral, and another to the Lord Strange) and charged them to forbear till further Order.

Theſe Collections concerning the State of Stage Plays in former Times may not be amiſs to be inſerted here.

Many Playhouſes built.

In ſhort, the Citizens of later Times ſeemed mightily to be delighted with Interludes and Plays, acted upon the Stage, repreſenting viſibly the Hiſtories of former Times, or the Manners of Men, ſo that as beforetime Stage Players uſed to go about the Country to Noblemens Houſes, and at ſome ſet Times only, to act their Plays; now Houſes were built or bought, or hired, and ſet apart only for that Purpoſe. And no leſs than Seventeen common Play Houſes were built in and about London within Threeſcore Years, (as an Hiſtorian that was alive 1629, obſerved) the laſt whereof was built the ſaid Year, near White Fryars. Five Inns or common Oſteries were turned to Play Houſes; one Cockpit: St. Paul's Singing School: the Globe on the Bankſide: the Fortune near Golding-Lane: One in Black-Fryars, one in White-Fryars, &c. Beſides the new built Bear-Garden, built as well for Plays, as Fencers, Prizes, and Bull baiting. Before the Space of the ſaid Threeſcore Years, ſcarce any ſuch Theatres were heard of. And this ſort of Recreations hath continued to this Day; tho' the Houſes not ſo many; yet greatly complained of for the corrupting of Youth, and for the inſtilling looſe and Atheiſtical Principles into the Spectators Minds.

E. Howes.

Juſts and Torneaments was a Court Recreation in former Days at ſolemn Times: and laſted to the beginning of Q. Elizabeth's Reign. In the Month of April, 1560. were great Juſts at Weſtminſter, and running at the Tilt. There rode the Trumpeters blowing their Trumpets with Scarfs of White and Black Sarcenet: Alſo the two Kings of Arms, and the Haralds, Somerſet, Lancaſter, Richmond, York, Rouge Dragon, and more of them, having Scarfs of White and Black Sarcenet, about their Necks. And the Sevennight after were the like Juſtings at Court. The Earl of Suſſex, Lord Robert Dudley and three more, againſt the Earl of Northumberland, the Lord Ambroſe Dudley, and the Lord Hunſdon, and Mr. Cornwallys. Many Staves were broken. There ſtood in the ſtanding as Judges, Lord Marqueſs Northampton, Lord of Rutland, and Lord of Pembroke, and the French Ambaſſador. And by the Chance of the breaking of a Staff, a Piece flew up where the Judges ſat, and hit my Lord of Pembroke.]

Cockfight.

Alſo, Cocks of the Game are yet cheriſhed by divers Men for their Pleaſures; much Money being laid on their Heads, when they fight in Pits: whereof ſome be coſtly, made for that Purpoſe.

The Ball at Tennis play.

The Ball is uſed by Noblemen and Gentlemen in Tennis Courts, and by People of meaner ſort in the open Fields and Streets.

The Youths of this City, and other Young Men Time out of Mind, have left off to Practiſe the diſarmed Launce and Shield on Horſe back, in the Fields, Man againſt Man; but in their City they have uſed on Horſe back, to run at a dead Mark called a Quinten.

Running at the Quinten, for Prizes. Mat. Paris.

For note whereof, I read, that in the Year of Chriſt 1253. the 38 of Hen. 3. the Youthful Citizens, for an Exerciſe of their Activity, ſet forth a Game to run at the Quinten, and whoſoever did beſt, ſhould have a Peacock, which they had prepared as a Prize.

The Kings Servants deriding the Citizens, were ſore beaten, but the Citizens were fined by the King.

Certain of the King's Servants, becauſe the Court lay then at Weſtminſter, came, as it were, in deſpite of the Citizens, to that Game, and giving reproachful Names to the Londoners, which for the dignity of the City, and the ancient Priviledge which they ought to have enjoyed, were called Barons: the ſaid Londoners being wrongfully abuſed, fell upon the King's Servants, and beat them ſhrewdly, ſo that upon complaint made to the King, he fined the City to pay a Thouſand Marks. This Exerciſe of running at the Quinten, was practiſed by the Youthful Citizens, as well in Summer as in Winter; namely, in the Feaſt of Chriſtmas. I have ſeen a Quinten ſet upon Cornhill, by the Leaden Hall, where the Attendants on the Lords of merry Diſports have run, and made great paſtime: for he that hit not the broad End of the Quinten, was of all Men laughed to ſcorn; and he that hit it full, if he rode not the faſter, had a ſound blow in his Neck with a Bag full of Sand, hanged on the other end.

Quinten upon Cornhill.

This Sport was called alſo Quintane, or Quintain, from the Latin Quintus, becauſe as Minſhew fancies, it was one of the ancient Sports uſed every Fifth Year among the Olympian Games.

A Roman Exerciſe. J. S.

It was alſo corruptly called Whintane and Quintal. It is ſuppoſed by ſome to be a Roman Exerciſe, and left here in this Iſland ever ſince their Time. The learned Dr. Kennet, (now Ld. Bp. of Peterburgh) in his Parochial Antiquities from Dr. Plot, deſcribes this thus: 'That they ſet up a Poſt perpendicularly into the Ground, and then placed a ſlender piece of Timber on the Top of it on a Spindle, with a Board nailed to it on one end, and a Bag of Sand on the other. Againſt this Board they anciently rode with Spears. Dr. Plot writes, that he ſaw it at Deddington in Oxfordſhire: where only ſtrong Staves were uſed. Which violently bringing about the Bag of Sand, if they made not good ſpeed away, it ſtruck them on the Neck and Shoulders, and ſometimes perhaps knocked them off their Horſes. The great Deſign of this Sport was to try the Agility both of Horſe and Man, and to break the Board. Which whoſoever did was for that Time accounted Princeps Juventutis; i. e. the Prince, or Chief of the Youth. This Cuſtom is uſed to this Day at a Village called Blackthorn; which the ſaid Dr. Kennet concludes they had from the Romans, (through which Village the Roman Way lay) being uſual at their Weddings on the Common Green with much Solemnity and Mirth.

When Q. Elizabeth was at Kenelworth Caſtle in Warwickſhire, the Earl of Leiceſters Seat, among other Sports for her Entertainment, was ſhewn a ſolemn Country Bridal: when in the Caſtle Yard was pight a comely Quintane, for Feats at Armes. Where, in a great Company of Young Men and Laſſes, the Bridegroom had the firſt courſe at the firſt Quintane, brake his Spear treshardiment. But his Mare in his Manage did a little ſtumble, that much adoe had his Manhood to ſit in his Saddle. But after the Bridegroom had made his Courſe, ran the reſt of the Band a while in ſome Order: but ſoon after Tag and Rag, Cut and long Tail. Where the ſpecialty of the Sport was to ſee, how ſome for his ſlackneſs had a good Bob with the Bag: and ſome for his haſt to topple down right, and come tumbling to the Poſt. Some put forth with Spurs, would run his Race-byas among the thickeſt of the Throng, that down came they together Hand over Head. Another, while he directed his Courſe to the Quintane, his jument would carry him to a Mare among the People. Another would run, and miſs the Quintain with his Staff: and hit the Board with his Head. As it is related merrily in a little Tract, by way of Letter: giving a Relation of this Entertainment by the Earl of Leiceſter.]

The Exerciſe of Shooting. J. S.

This Shooting in the long Bow, as it formerly was an Exerciſe of War, ſo afterwards it became an Exerciſe of Recreation alſo. And the Citizens uſed to go out into the Fields bordering upon the City with their Bows, where divers Butts and Marks ſtood for the Purpoſe. And being ſo uſeful and healthful an Exerciſe, it had the Countenance and Encouragement of ſeveral Princes, viz. King Henry VIII. King James I. and King Charles I.

King Henry's Patent for a Fraternity of Shooting.

King Henry VIII. Anno Regni 29°. granted by Patent to Sir Chriſtopher Morris, Maſter of his Ordinance, Anthony Knevyt and Peter Mewtas, Gentlemen of his Privy Chamber (who were Overſeers of the Fraternity or Guild of St. George) that they ſhould be Overſeers of the Science of Artillery, that is, for long Bows, Croſs Bows, and Hand Guns: and others were appointed to be Maſters and Rulers of the ſaid Science. And for the Continuance of the ſame, he granted that the ſaid Maſters and Rulers, and their Succeſſors, Maſters and Rulers, might begin, found and eſtabliſh a perpetual Fraternity of St. George, and full Power to admit into the Fraternity all honeſt Perſons, whoſoever they were; and to be a Body Corporate. And for the better Increaſe and Maintenance of this Science, they might for their Diſport and Paſtime, from Time to Time, uſe and exerciſe ſhooting at all Manner of Marks and Butts, and at the Game of the Propinjay, and other Games; as at Fowl and Fowls, as well in the City as Suburbs, and in all other Places. And there was one remarkable Paſſage in this Charter, that in Caſe any Perſon were ſhot and ſlain in theſe Sports, by ſome Arrow ſhot by any of theſe Archers, he was not to be ſued nor moleſted, if he had immediately before he ſhot uſed that common Word, FAST.

Fraternity of St. George.

A ſpecial Privilege.

King James I. his Commiſſion in Favour of the Archers.

King James I. in the Eighth, of his Reign granted a Commiſſion to a great many Perſons of Quality, in behalf of the Archers: mentioning divers good Statutes, Ordinances, Proviſions and Proclamations made by Kings on their behalf. This Commiſſion was to ſtop a Practice then begun to be uſed, of encloſing the Ground formerly uſed for this Exerciſe, by making of Banks and Hedges in ſuch Fields and Cloſes, as Time out of Mind were allowed to be ſhot in; and by plucking up the old Marks of ancient Time ſtanding in the ſaid Cloſes: or where the Banks and Hedges being of indifferent Heighth, the Ditches were made ſo broad and deep, that wanting Bridges the Archers were much hindred thereby. The Commiſſioners therefore were empowered to go upon theſe Places, and to view and ſurvey, in ſuch Grounds next adjoyning to the City of London, and the Suburbs within two Miles Compaſs: And the ſame to reduce in ſuch Order and State for the Archers, as they were in in the Beginning of the Reign of King Henry VIII. and to cauſe the Banks, Ditches and Quickleſs to be made plain, and reformed.

King Charles I. his Commiſſion.

There was alſo another Patent of King Charles I. to certain Commiſſioners, concerning Archery, to the ſame Import with the former.

Shooting at Mile End.

In King Henry VIII. his Time, the Citizens uſed to exerciſe their Sport of Shooting at Mile-End. The chief of theſe Archers was called Prince Arthur, and the reſt of them his Knights. The Exerciſe whereof was ſo manly and uſeful, that as that King uſed it himſelf, ſo he diſdained not ſometimes to come to Mile-End, and ſee and commend it.

The Captain of the Archers of London called Duke of Shoreditch.

And another Time, at a ſhooting Match at Windſor, the King was preſent: and the Game being well nigh finiſhed, and the Upſhot thought to be given, one Barlo, a Citizen and Inhabitant of Shoreditch, ſhot and won them all. Whereat the King greatly rejoyced, and told him he ſhould be named The Duke of Shoreditch. On which account the Captain of the Company of Archers of London, for a long Time after, was ſtiled by that Name.

The Show of the Archers Septem. 17. 1583.

In the Year 1583. on the 17*th* of September, the Citizens ſet forth at their great Charge a ſhooting Match with much State, the Duke of Shoreditch and all his Nobility and Officers marching through the City of London to the ſhooting Place. And firſt, he gave a Summons to all his Marquiſſes, Earls and Barons, with all their Trains of Archery in and about the City of London, to be in a readineſs to accompany him into the Field, every one with a long Bow and Four Shafts, on the aforeſaid Day, to meet him in Smithfield. And ſo they did. The Duke with his Company ſet forth from Merchant Taylors Hall. There repaired unto him all thoſe that were appointed for conducting of his Perſon to the Place of Meeting; as his Barons, and a multitude of good Archers in their Habits, under his own Enſign: Who with Sound of Trumpet, Drums, and other Inſtruments, paſt along Broadſtreet (where the Duke dwelt) through Merefields to Finsberry, and from thence to Smithfield. There was alſo the Marqueſs Barlo, and the Marqueſs of Clerkenwell, with Hunters, who wound their Horn; and the Earl of Pancridge, and the Marqueſs of Iſlington, and the Marqueſs of Hogsden, and the Marqueſs of Shakelwel, and other ſuch Nobility, with all their Trains, making a ſurprizing Show. For they marched in very great Pomp odly habited, through ſeveral Places and chief Streets of London. The Number of Archers that now ſhot were 3000. The Number of them that accompanied the Archers, as Whifflers, and thoſe that guarded them with Bills, was 4000, beſides Pages and Hencemen. Their Attyre was very gorgeous, a great many wearing Chains of Gold; the Number of theſe Chains were 942. But he that will have the Deſcription of the whole Show, muſt read it in an old Book, intitled the Bowman's Glory, reprinted 1682.

King Edward 3*d.* to the Sheriffs of London, concerning Shooting in the Bow.

But tho' the Engliſh Nation were ſuch Maſters in Archery, yet it was as much as ever Kings and Laws could do to make that Exerciſe prevail. For even in the Reign of King Edward the Third, who got ſuch Victories over France by his Bows; yet in the Progreſs of his Reign, the Exerciſe grew much into Diſuſe, and in the Room thereof Hurling of Stones, and Wood and Iron, and Hand-Ball, Foot-Ball, Bandy Ball, Cockfighting and other Sports, came altogether into requeſt; Inſomuch, that the ſaid King ſent a Command to the Sheriff of London, to forbid the Citizens all other Sports but that. And the like Letters were ſent to all the Sheriffs of England. The Letter was to this Tenor:

The King to the Sheriffs of London, Greeting. Becauſe the People of our Realm, as well of good Quality as mean, have commonly in their Sports, before theſe Times, exerciſed the Skil of Shooting Arrows, whence it is well known, that Honour and Profit have accrued to our whole Realm ; and to us, by the Help of God, no ſmall Aſſiſtance in our Warlike Acts. And now the ſaid Skil being as it were wholly layed aſide, the ſame People pleaſe themſelves in hurling of Stones and Wood and Iron ; and ſome in Hand-Ball, Foot-Ball, Bandy-Ball, and in Cambuck*, and Cock-fighting ; and ſome alſo apply themſelves to other diſhoneſt Games, and leſs profitable or uſeful ; whereby the ſaid Realm is likely in a ſhort Time to become deſtitute of Archers :

* Qu.

We willing to apply a ſeaſonable Remedy to this, command you, that in Places in the foreſaid City, as well within the Liberties as without, where you ſhall ſee it expedient, you cauſe publick Proclamation to be made, that every one of the ſaid City, ſtrong in Body, at leiſure Times on Holydays, uſe, in their Recreations, Bows and Arrows, or Pellets or Bolts, and learn and exerciſe the Art of Shooting ; forbidding all and ſingular on our behalf, that they do not after any manner apply themſelves to the Throwing of Stones, Wood, Iron, Hand-Ball, Foot-Ball, Bandy-Ball, Cambuck or Cock-fighting, or ſuch other like vain Plays, which have no profit in them ; or concern themſelves therein, under pain of Impriſonment. Witneſs the King at Weſtminſter, the 12 Day of June.

The like Letters were ſent to all the Sheriffs in England.]

Games of Defence.

And for defence and uſe of the Weapon, there is a ſpecial Profeſſion of Men that teach it. You may read in mine Annals, how that in the Year 1222. [and the 6. of King Henry the 3. on Saint James's Day,] the Citizens kept Games of defence and wreſtlings near to the Hoſpital of Matilda, at St. Giles in the Field, where they challenged and had the Maſtery of the Men in the Suburbs, and other Commoers, &c.

A Game at Weſtminſter on Lammas Day. A. M.

The Bailliff of Weſtminſter deviſing to be revenged, proclaimed a Game to be at Weſtminſter upon Lammas Day ; whereunto the Citizens willingly repaired.

When they had played a while, the Bailliff, with the Men of the Suburbs, harneſſed themſelves treacherouſly, and fell to ſuch fighting, that the Citizens (being ſore wounded) were forced to run into the City, where they rung the common Bell, and aſſembled the Citizens in great Number. When the Matter was declared, every Man wiſhed to revenge the Fact : but the Lord Maior of the City, being a wiſe and quiet Man, willed them firſt to move the Abbot of Weſtminſter in the Matter, and if he would promiſe to ſee amends made, it was ſufficient. But a certain Citizen, named Conſtantine Fitz Arnulit, willed that all the Houſes of the Abbot and Bailliff ſhould be pulled down. Which deſperate Words were no ſooner ſpoken, but the common People (as unadviſedly) iſſued forth of the City without any Order, and fought a cruel Battel, Conſtantine pulling down divers houſes ; and the People (as praiſing Conſtantine) cryed, The joy of the Mountain, the joy of the Mountain ; God help, and the Lord Lodowike.

The Advice of the Lord Maior.

The bad Council of Conſtanoine Fitz Arnutil as bad followed.

A few Days after this Tumult, the Abbot of Weſtminſter came to London, to Philip Dawbeny, one of the King's Council, to complain of the Injuries done to him : The Londoners perceiving it, beſet the Houſe about, and took by violence twelve of the Abbot's Horſes away, cruelly beating his Men, &c.

Chron. Don. The Abbot of Weſtminiſter put to his Shifts.

But whilſt the ſaid Dawbeny laboured to pacify the uprore, the Abbot got out at the back Door of the Houſe, and ſo, by a Boat on the Thames, hardly eſcaped ; the Citizens throwing Stones after him in great abundance.

Theſe Things being thus done, Hubert de Burge, chief Juſtice of England, with a great Army of Men, came to the Tower of London, and ſent for the Maior and Aldermen, of whom he enquired for the Principal Authors of this Faction. Conſtantine, being conſtant in the Sedition, was more conſtant in the Anſwer ; affirming, that he had done it, and that he had done much leſs than he meant to have done.

The Lord Chief Juſtice entred the City of London with an Army.

The Juſtice took him, and two other with him, and that Morning ſent him to Faulcatius by Water, with a great Number of armed Men, who brought Conſtantine to the Gallows.

But when he ſaw the Rope about his Neck, he offered for his Life Fifteen Thouſand Marks, yet it would not ſeem to ſave him: ſo he was hanged, with Conſtantine his Nephew, and Galfrid that proclaimed his Proclamation, on the 16*th* of Auguſt.]

Conſtantine and others hanged.

Alſo in the Year 1453. of a Tumult made againſt the Maior, at the wreſtling beſides Clerks Well, &c. Which is ſufficent to prove, that (of old Time) the exerciſing of wreſtling, and ſuch like, hath been much more uſed than of latter Years.

Wreſtling.

The Youths of this City alſo have uſed, on Holidays, after Evening Prayer, at their Maſters Doors, to exerciſe their Waſters and Bucklers : and the Maidens, one of them playing on a Timbrel, in ſight of their Maſters and Dames, to dance for Garlands, hanged thwart the Streets. Which open Paſtimes in my Youth being now ſuppreſſed, worſer Practices within Doors are to be feared.

As for the baiting of Bulls and Bears, they are till this Day much frequented, namely in Bear Gardens on the Bank ſide, wherein be prepared Scaffolds for Beholders to ſtand upon.

Sliding on the Ice is now but Childrens Play : but in Hawking and Hunting many grave Citizens at this preſent have great delight, and do rather want leiſure than good will to follow it.

Of Triumphant Shows made by the Citizens of London, ye may read in the Year 1236, the twentieth of Henry the Third, Andrew Bockrel then being Maior, how Helianor, Daughter to Reymond Earl of Provence, riding thorow the City toward Weſtminſter, there to be Crowned Queen of England, the City was adorned with Silks,

Mat. Paris. Shews for Triumphs.

Silks, and in the Night with Lamps, Creſſets, and other Lights, without Number; beſides many Pageants, and ſtrange Devices there preſented. The Citizens alſo rode to meet the King and Queen, clothed in long Garments embroidered about with Gold, and Silks of divers Colours, their Horſes gallantly trapped, to the Number of 360; every Man bearing a Cup of Gold or Silver in his Hand, and the King's Trumpeters before them. Theſe Citizens did miniſter Wine, as Bottelers, which is their Service at the Coronation.

The Citizens rode.

Imbroidered Garments.

The Citizens Bottelers at Coronations.

More in the Year 1298, for Victory obtained by Edward the firſt againſt the Scots, every Citizen, according to their ſeveral Trade, made their ſeveral Shew, but eſpecially the Fiſhmongers, which in a ſolemn Proceſſion paſſed thorough the City; having amongſt other Pageants and Shows Four Sturgeons gilt, carried on Four Horſes; then Four Salmons of Silver on Four Horſes; and after them Six and Forty Armed Knights riding on Horſes, made like Sluices of the Sea, and then one repreſenting St. Magnus, becauſe it was upon St. Magnus Day, with a Thouſand Horſemen, &c.

Fiſhmongers Proceſſion for triumph of Victory, more than 1000 Horſemen.

Of one other Shew, you may read in the Year 1377, made by the Citizens for diſport of the young Prince Richard, Son to the Black Prince, in the Feaſt of Chriſtmas: and in this manner.

On the Sunday before Candlemas, in the Night, One Hundred and Thirty Citizens, diſguiſed and well Horſed, in a Mummery, with Sound of Trumpets, Sackbuts, Cornets, Shalms, and other Minſtrels, and innumerable Torch Lights of Wax, rode from Newgate thorough Cheap, over the Bridge, through Southwark, and ſo to Kennington beſides Lambeth; where the young Prince remained with his Mother, and the Duke of Lancaſter his Uncle, the Earls of Cambridge, Hertford, Warwick and Suffolk, with divers other Lords.

A Shew by Torch Light, being a Mummery of more than 100 Men on Horſeback.

In the firſt Rank did ride 48 in the Likeneſs and Habit of Eſquires, two and two together, cloathed in red Coats, and Gowns of Say or Sandall, with comely Vizors on their Faces.

After them came riding 48 Knights in the ſame Livery of Colour and Stuff.

Then followed one richly Arrayed like an Emperor; and after him at ſome diſtance, one ſtately tyred like a Pope; whom followed 24 Cardinals, and after them Eight or Ten with black Vizors, not amiable, as if they had been Legates from ſome foreign Princes.

Theſe Maskers, after they had entred the Manor of Kennington, alighted from their Horſes, and entred the Hall on Foot; which done, the Prince, his Mother, and the Lords, came out of the Chamber into the Hall, whom the ſaid Mummers did ſalute; ſhewing by a Pair of Dice on the Table, their deſire to play with the Prince; which they ſo handled that the Prince did always win when he caſt them.

Then the Mummers ſet to the Prince Three Jewels one after another; which were a Bowl of Gold, a Cup of Gold, and a Ring of Gold; which the Prince won at Three Caſts.

The Prince did win three Jewels of the Maskers.

Then they ſet to the Prince's Mother, the Duke, the Earls, and other Lords, to every one a Ring of Gold; which they did alſo win. After which they were feaſted, and the Muſick ſounded, the Prince and Lords danced on the one part with the Mummers, who did alſo dance. Which Jollity being ended, they were again made to drink, and then departed in Order as they came.

The like was to Henry IV. in the Second of his Reign, he then keeping his Chriſtmas at Eltham, twelve Aldermen of London and their Sons rode in a Mumming, and had great Thanks.

Thus much for ſportful Shows in Triumphs may ſuffice.

Of other Shows for Sports and Paſtimes yearly uſed.

Firſt, In the Feaſt of Chriſtmas there was in the King's Houſe, whereſoever he was lodged, a Lord of Miſrule, or Maſter of merry Diſports; and the like had ye in the Houſe of every Nobleman of Honour, or good Worſhip, were he Spiritual or Temporal. Among the which, the Maior of London, and either of the Sheriffs, had their ſeveral Lords of Miſrule, ever contending, without Quarrel or Offence, who ſhould make the rareſt Paſtimes to delight the Beholders. Theſe Lords beginning their Rule at Alhallond Eve, continued the ſame till the Morrow after the Feaſt of the Purification, commonly called Candlemas Day: In all which Space, there were fine and ſubtle Diſguiſings, Masks, and Mummeries, with playing at Cards for Counters, Nails, and Points; more for Paſtimes than for Gain.

Lord of Miſrule at Chriſtmas.

[Againſt the Feaſt of Chriſtmas, every Man's Houſe, as alſo their Pariſh Churches, were decked with Holm, Ivie, Bays, and whatſoever the Seaſon of the Year afforded to be Green. The Conduits and Standards in the Streets were likewiſe garniſhed. Among the which, I read, that in the Year 1444, by Tempeſt of Thunder and Lightning, on the Firſt of February at Night, Paul's Steeple was fired, but with great Labour quenched; and towards the Morning of Candlemas Day, at the Leaden Hall in Cornhill, a Standard of Tree being ſet up in the midſt of the Pavement, faſt in the Ground, nailed full of Holme and Ivie, for Diſport of Chriſtmas to the People, was torn up, and caſt down by the malignant Spirit (as was thought) and the Stones of the Pavement all about, were caſt in the Streets, and into divers Houſes, ſo that the People were ſore agaſt at the great Tempeſts.

Tempeſts of Lightning and Thunder fire Paul's Steeple, overthrew the Standard at Leadenhall, and threw Stones of the Pavement into Mens Houſes.

In the Week before Eaſter, had ye great Shows made, for the fetching in of a twiſted Tree, or With, as they termed it, out of the Woods, into the Kings Houſe; and the like into every Man's Houſe of Honour or Worſhip.

Twiſted Trees fetched from the Woods.

In the Month of May, namely on May Day, in the Morning, every Man, except Impediment, would walk into the ſweet Meadows and green Woods, there to rejoice their Spirits with the Beauty and Savour of ſweet Flowers, and with the Noiſe of Birds, praiſing God in their Kind. And for more notable Example hereof, Edward Hall hath noted, that King Henry the Eighth, as in the Third of his Reign, and divers other Years, ſo namely in the Seventh of his Reign, on May Day in the Morning, with Queen Katharine his Wife, accompanied with many Lords and Ladies, rode a Maying from Greenwich to the high Ground of Shooters Hill; where as they paſſed by the Way they eſpied a Company of tall Yeomen, clothed all in Green, with green Hoods, and with Bows and Arrows to the Number of 200. One, being their Chieftain, was called Robin Hood, who required the King and all his Company to ſtay and ſee his Men ſhoot, whereunto the King granting, Robin Hood whiſtled, and all the 200 Arches ſhot off, loſing all at once; and when he whiſtled again they likewiſe ſhot again; their Arrows whiſtled by Craft of the Head, ſo that the Noiſe was ſtrange and loud, which greatly delighted the King, Queen, and their Company.

Maygames.

Edward Hall.

Robin Hood and his Men ſhoot before the King.

Moreover, this Robin Hood deſired the King and Queen, with their Retinue to enter the green Wood, where, in Arbors made with Boughs, and decked with Flowers, they were ſet and ſerved plentifully with Veniſon and Wine, by Robin Hood and his Men, to their great Contentment, and had other Pageants and Paſtimes, as ye may read in my ſaid Author.

I find alſo, that in the Month of May, the Citizens of London (of all Eſtates) lightly in every Pariſh, or ſometime two or three Pariſhes joining together, had their ſeveral Mayings, and did fetch in Maypoles, with divers Warlike Shews, with good Archers, Morice Dancers, and other Devices for Paſtime all the Day long ; and towards the Evening they had Stage Plays, and Bonefires in the Streets.

Of theſe Mayings, we read in the Reign of Henry the Sixth, that the Aldermen and Sheriffs of London, being on May Day at the Biſhop of London's Wood in the Pariſh of Stebunheath, and having there a worſhipful Dinner for themſelves and other Comers, Lydgate the Poet that was a Monk of Bury, ſent to them by a Purſuivant a joyful Commendation of that Seaſon, containing Sixteen Staves in Metre Royal, beginning thus :

The pleaſant Month of May commended.

Mighty Flora, Goddeſs of freſh Flowers,
Which cloathed hath the Soil in luſty green,
Made Buds ſpring, with her ſweet Showers,
By influence of the Sunſhine,
To do pleaſance of intent full clean,
Unto the States which now ſit here,

The Number of Strangers in London miſliked.

John Lincolne, a Broker, Beginner of the Inſurrection.

A Bill offered by Lincolne to Doctor Standiſh.

About the Ninth Year of the Reign of King Henry the Eighth, a great Heart-burning and malicious Grudge grew amongſt the Engliſhmen of the City of London againſt Strangers ; and namely, the Artificers found themſelves much agrieved , becauſe ſuch Number of Strangers were permitted to reſort hither with their Wares, and to exerciſe Handicrafts, to the great hindrance and impoveriſhing of the King's Liege People. Which Malice grew to ſuch a Point, that one John Lincolne a Broker, buſied himſelf ſo far in the Matter, that about Palm Sunday, or the Fifth of April, he came to one Doctor Henry Standiſh with theſe Words ; ‘ Sir, I underſtand, that you ſhall preach at the ‘ Spittal on Monday in Eaſter Week ; and ſo it is, ‘ that Engliſhmen, both Merchants and others are ‘ undone by Strangers, who have more liberty in ‘ this Land than they ; which is againſt Reaſon, ‘ and alſo againſt the Commonweal of this Realm ; ‘ I beſeech you therefore, to declare this in your ‘ Sermon, and in ſo doing you ſhall deſerve great ‘ Thanks of my Lord Maior, and of all his Bre- ‘ thren. And herewith he offered unto the ſaid Doctor a Bill, containing the Matter more at large. But Doctor Standiſh wiſely conſidering, that there might more Inconvenience ariſe thereof than he would wiſh, if he ſhould deal in ſuch a Sort, both refuſed the Bill, and told Lincoln plainly, that he meant not to meddle with any ſuch Matter in his Sermon.

Doctor Bell undertook to read Lincoln's Bill in the Pulpit.

The Bill contained much ſeditious Matter.

Whereupon the ſaid Lincolne went unto one Doctor Bell, a Canon of the foreſaid Spittal, that was appointed likewiſe to preach upon Tueſday in Eaſter Week at the ſame Spittal, whom he perſwaded to read his ſaid Bill in the Pulpit. Which Bill contained (in effect) the Griefs that many found with Strangers, for taking the Livings away from Artificers, and the Intercourſe from Merchants, the redreſs whereof muſt come from the Commons knit in one. For as the Hurt touched all Men ſo muſt all ſet to their helping Hands. Which Letter he read, or the chiefeſt Part thereof, comprehending much ſeditious Matter. And then he began with this Sentence ; Cælum cæli Domino, terram autem dedit filiis hominum. i. e. ‘ The Hea- ‘ ven to the Lord of Heaven, but the Earth he ‘ hath given to the Children of Men”. And upon this Text he intreated, how this Land was given to Engliſhmen, and as Birds defend their Neſts, ſo ought Engliſhmen to cheriſh and maintain themſelves, and to hurt and grieve Aliens for reſpect of their Commonwealth. And on this Text, Pugna pro Patria, i. e. ‘ Fight for your Couutry”, he brought in, how (by God's Law) it was lawful to fight for their Country ; and thus he ſubtilly moved the People to rebel againſt Strangers. By this Sermon, many a light headed Perſon took Courage, and openly ſpake againſt Strangers. And by divers miſhaps, there had been divers evil Parts of late plaid by Strangers, in and about the City of London ; which kindled the Peoples Rancor the more furiouſly againſt them.

Quarrels urged to Strangers as they were in the Streets.

The Twenty Eighth Day of April, divers young Men of the City picked Quarrels with certain Strangers, as they paſſed along the Streets ; ſome they ſmote and buffetted, and ſome they threw in the Channel ; for which the Lord Maior ſent ſome of the Engliſhmen to Priſon ; as Stephen Studley, Skinner, Stevenſon, Bets, and others.

Evil Mayday.

Then ſuddenly roſe a ſecret Rumour, and no Man could tell how it began, that on Mayday next following the City would ſlay all the Aliens ; inſomuch that divers Strangers fled out of the City.

This Rumour came to the Knowledge of the King's Council ; whereupon the Lord Cardinal ſent for the Maior, and other of the Council of the City, giving them to underſtand what he had heard.

The Lord Maior (as one ignorant of the Matter) told the Cardinal, that he doubted not ſo to govern the City, but that Peace ſhould be obſerved.

The Cardinal willed him ſo to do, and to take good heed, that if any riotous Attempt were intended he ſhould by good Policy prevent it.

The Recorder, and Sir Thomas More ſent to the Cardinal.

The Maior coming from the Cardinal's Houſe, about Four of the Clock in the Afternoon on May Eve, ſent for his Brethren to the Guildhall, yet was it almoſt Seven of the Clock before the Aſſembly was ſet. Upon Conference had of the Matter, ſome thought it neceſſary, that a ſubſtantial Watch ſhould be ſet of honeſt Citizens, which might withſtand the evil Doers, if they went about any Miſrule. Other were of contrary Opinion, as rather thinking it beſt, that every Man ſhould be commanded to ſhut in his Doors, and to keep his Servants within. Before Eight of the Clock, Maſter Recorder was ſent to the Cardinal with theſe Opinions, who hearing the ſame allowed the latter : And then the Recorder, and Sir Thomas More, late Under Sheriff of London, and now of the King's Council, came back again to the Guildhall, half an Hour before Nine of the Clock, and there ſhewed the Pleaſure of the King's Council ; whereupon every Alderman ſent to his Ward, that no Man (after Nine of the Clock) ſhould ſtir out of his Houſe, but keep his Doors ſhut, and his Servants within, until Nine of the Clock in the Morning.

An Alderman reſiſted, and put to flight.

After this Commandment was given in the Evening, as Sir John Mundy, Alderman, came from his Ward, he found two young Men in Cheap playing at the Bucklers, and a great many of young Men looking on them ; for the Command ſeemed to be ſcarcely publiſhed, he commanded them to leave off. And becauſe one of them asked him Why, he would have him ſent to the Counter. But the Prentices reſiſted the Alderman, taking the Young Man from him, and cryed, Prentices, Prentices, Clubs, Clubs ; then out at every Door came Clubs and other Weapons, ſo that the Alderman was forced to flight. Then more People aroſe out of every Quarter, and forth came Servingmen, Watermen, Courtiers, and others. So that by Eleven of the Clock there were in Cheap

Six or Seven Hundred; and out of St. Paul's Church-Yard came about 300. From all Places they gathered together, and brake up the Counter, took out the Priſoners which had been committed thither by the Lord Maior for hurting the Strangers; alſo they went to Newgate, and took out Studley and Bets, committed thither for the like Cauſe. The Maior and Sheriffs were preſent, and made Proclamation in the King's Name, but nothing was obeyed.

Sir Thomas More laboured to pacify the rude multitude.

Being thus gathered into ſeveral Heaps, they ran thorough St. Nicholas Shambles, and at St. Martins Gate there met with them Sir Thomas More, and others, deſiring them to go to their Lodgings.

Nicholas Dennis, a Serjeant at Arms ſore hurt.

Mewtas a Piccard.

As they were thus intreating, and had almoſt perſwaded the People to depart, they within St. Martins threw out Stones and Bats, ſo that they hurt divers honeſt Perſons which were with Sir Thomas More, perſwading the rebellious Rout to ceaſe. Inſomuch as at length, one Nicholas Dennis, a Serjeant at Arms, being there ſore hurt, cryed in a fury, Down with them; and then all the unruly Perſons ran to the Doors and Windows of the Houſes within St. Martins, and ſpoiled all that they found. After that they ran into Cornhill, and ſo on to a Houſe Eaſt of Leadenhall, called the Green Gate, where dwelt one Mewtas, a Piccard or Frenchman, within whoſe Houſe dwelled divers Frenchmen. Whom they likewiſe ſpoiled; and if they had found Mewtas, they would have ſtricken off his Head.

The Strangers Houſes broken up at Blanchapleton.

Some ran to Blanchapleton, and there brake up the Strangers Houſes, and ſpoiled them. Thus they continued till three a Clock in the Morning, at which time they began to withdraw; but by the way they were taken by the Maior and other, and ſent to the Tower, Newgate, and Counters, to the Number of 300.

The King ſendeth to know the State of the City.

The Lords came with Power to London.

The Cardinal was advertiſed by Sir Thomas Parre, whom in all haſte he ſent to Richmond to inform the King; who immediately ſent to underſtand the State of the City and was truly informed. Sir Roger Cholmeley, Lieutenant of the Tower, during the time of this Buſineſs, ſhot off certain Pieces of Ordnance againſt the City, but did no great hurt. About Five of the Clock in the Morning, the Earls of Shrewsbury, and Surrey, Thomas Dockery, Lord Prior of Saint Johns, George Nevill, Lord Abergaveny, and others, came to London with ſuch Powers as they could make: ſo did the Inns of Court. But before they came the Buſineſs was done, as ye have heard.

Doctor Bell ſent to the Tower for his Sermon.

Then were the Priſoners examined, and the Sermon of Doctor Bell called to remembrance, and he ſent to the Tower. A Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer was directed to the Duke of Norfolk, and other Lords, for puniſhment of this Inſurrection. The Second of May, the Commiſſioners, with the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Juſtices, went to the Guildhall, where many of the Offenders were indicted; whereupon they were Arraigned, and pleaded, Not Guilty, having Day given them till the 4th of May.

The Duke of Norfolke entred London with 1300 Men.

Ten Pair of Gallows ſet up in divers Streets of London.

On which Day, the Lord Maior, the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl of Surrey, and others, came to ſit in the Guildhall. The Duke of Norfolk entred the City with one Thouſand three Hundred Men, and the Priſoners were brought through the Streets tyed in Ropes; ſome Men, ſome Lads but of Thirteen or Fourteen Years old, to the Number of 278 Perſons. That Day, John Lincoln, and divers others were indicted, and the next Day Thirteen were adjudged to be Drawn, Hanged, and Quartered; for Execution whereof Ten Pair of Gallows were ſet up in divers Places of the City; as at Aldgate, Blanchapleton, Graſſtreet, Leadenhall, before either of the Counters; at Newgate, St. Martins, at Alderſgate and Biſhopſgate. And theſe Gallows were ſet upon Wheels to be removed from Street to Street, and from Door to Door, whereas the Priſoners were to be executed.

John Lincolne the Broker executed, but the reſt reſpited by the King.

On the Seventh of May John Lincolne, one Shirwin, and two Brethren, named Betts, with divers others were adjudged to dye. They were on the Hurdles drawn to the Standard in Cheape, and firſt was Lincolne executed; and as the other had the Ropes about their Necks, there came a Commandment from the King to reſpite the Execution; and then were the Priſoners ſent again to Priſon, and the Armed Men ſent away out of the City.

The Priſoners were brought before the King at Weſtminſter Hall.

On the Thirteenth of May the King came to Weſtminſter Hall, and with him the Lord Cardinal, the Dukes of Norfolk and Suffolk, the Earls of Shrewsbury, Eſſex, Wiltſhire, and Surry, with many Lords and other of the Kings Council; the Lord Maior of London, Aldermen, and other chief Citizens were then in their beſt Liveries by Nine of the Clock in the Morning. Then came in the Priſoners bound in Ropes in a Rank one after another, in their Shirts, and every one had a Halter about his Neck, being in Number 400 Men, and 11 Women.

The King graciouſly pardoned all the Priſoners.

When they were thus come before the King's Preſence, the Cardinal laid ſore to the Maior and Aldermen their Negligence, and to the Priſoners he declared, how juſtly they had deſerved to dye. Then all the Priſoners together cryed to the King for Mercy. And therewith the Lords beſought his Grace of Pardon; at whoſe Requeſt the King pardoned them all. The general Pardon being pronounced, all the Priſoners ſhouted at once, and caſt their Halters towards the Roof of the Hall. The Priſoners being diſmiſſed, the Gallows were taken down, and the Citizens took more heed to their Servants, keeping (for ever after) as on that Night, a ſtrong Watch in Armour, in remembrance of Evil Mayday.]

Theſe great Mayings and Maygames, made by the Governors and Maſters of this City, with the Triumphant ſetting up of the great Shaft (a principal May Pole in Cornhill, before the Pariſh Church of St. Andrew (therefore called Underſhaft) by means of that Inſurrection of Youths againſt Aliens on Mayday, 1517, the Ninth of Henry the Eight, have not been ſo freely uſed as before. And therefore I leave them, and will ſomewhat touch of Watches, as alſo of Shows in the Night.

Of WATCHES in this City, and other Matters commanded; and the Cauſe why.

Curfew Bell at 8. of the Clock, commanded Fire and Candle to be quenched.

WILLIAM Conqueror commanded, that in every Town and Village, a Bell ſhould be nightly rung at eight of the Clock, and that all People ſhould then put out their Fire, and Candle, and take their reſt. Which Order was obſerved through this Realm during his Reign, and the Reign of William Rufus: But Henry the firſt, reſtoring to his Subjects the Uſe of Fire or Lights, as afore, it followeth (by reaſon of Warrs within the Realm) that many Men alſo gave themſelves to Robbery and Murders in the Night: for Example whereof in this City, Roger Hoveden writeth thus:

Roger Hoveden, Manuſcript.

> 'In the Year 1175. a Council was kept at Nottingham. In Time of which Council, a Brother of the Earl Ferrers, being in the Night privily ſlain at London, and thrown out of his Inn into the dirty Street, when the King underſtood thereof, he ſware, that he would be revenged on the Citizens. For it was then (ſaith mine Author) a common Practice in this City, that a Hundred or more in a Company, Young and Old, would make nightly Invaſions upon Houſes of the Wealthy, to the intent to rob them, and if they found any Man ſtirring in the City within the Night, that were not of their Night-walkers murthered all they met.

their Crew, they would preſently murder him: inſomuch that when Night was come, no Man durſt adventure to walk in the Streets. When this had continued long, it fortuned, that as a crew of Young and wealthy Citizens aſſembling together in the Night, aſſaulted a Stone Houſe of a certain Rich Man, and breaking through the Wall, the good Man of that Houſe, having prepared himſelf with other in a Corner, when he perceived one of the Thieves, named Andrew Bucqnint, to lead the Way, with a burning brand in the one Hand, and a Pot of Coles in the other, which he aſſaied to kindle with the Brand, he flew upon him, and ſmote off his right Hand, and then with a loud Voice cried Thieves. At the hearing whereof, the Thieves took their flight, all ſaving he that had loſt his Hand, whom the good Man (in the next Morning) delivered to Richard de Lucie the King's Juſtice. This Thief, upon warrant of his Life, appeached his Confederates, of whom many were taken, and many were fled. Among the reſt that were apprehended, a certain Citizen of great Countenance, Credit, and Wealth, named John Senex, who for as much he could not acquit himſelf by the Water Doom (as that Law was then termed) he offered to the King five Hundred Pounds of Silver for his Life. But foraſmuch as he was condemned by judgment of the Water, the King would not take the Offer, but commanded him to be hanged on the Gallows, which was done, and then the City became more quiet for a long Time after.

Rich Thieves moſt worthy to be hanged.

Mutinies in the City. J. S.

Theſe Uproars and Mutinies have often happened in the City, raiſed by the more ordinary ſort of Tradeſmen, upon ſome Diſguſts taken either at Strangers, whom they thought obſtructed their Benefit by their Trades, or upon Dearth of Proviſions, or ſome Impoſitions put upon them by the Governours, or for the Reſcue of ſome of their Members impriſoned. They have got into great Numbers with Arms, and ſoon joyned with Ruffians, Serving Men, and other looſe Perſons; who in the old Records were called Malefactors, or Evildoers: that were the chief Miſchief-makers. And in theſe Tumults they have broken open Citizens Houſes, ſpoyled their Goods, impriſoned their Perſons, and ſome they have wounded and ſlew. Such a dangerous Inſurrection happened in the begining of King Edward the Third his Reign, (and had laſted for ſome Time) of the Bakers, Tavern-keepers, Millers, Cooks, Poulters, Fiſhmongers, Butchers, Brewers, Cornchandlers and of divers other Trades and Myſteries; together with that looſe Sort of People called Malefactors. For the ſuppreſſing and puniſhing of them, the King ſent his Letters to the Maior and Sheriffs. In which Letters their Miſdemeanors are thus deſcribed: ‘That they went through the City by Night and by Day, with Swords and Bucklers, and other Arms, either by the Inſtigation of others, or their own Malice; and ſome they beat and miſuſed, and committed other Wickedneſſes, and manifold Enormities againſt the King's Peace, to the no ſmall Damage and Grievance of his faithful Subjects.

Record. Turr. Pat. 2. Ed. 3. p. 2. m. 11.

There was yet another Letter near the ſame Time wrote by the King to the Maior and Sheriffs, for ſtrict Care to be taken by them for the more effectual ſeizing of theſe Lawleſs Malefactors, and bringing them to condign Puniſhment: Whereby may be further ſeen their Violences.

The King's Letter for the ſeizing of the Diſturbers of the Citizens.

Rex Majori & Vicecomitibus London, Salutem &c. i. e. The King to the Maior and Sheriffs of London, Greeting. Whereas it is given to us to underſtand, that very many Evildoers and Diſturbers of our Peace have made divers Knots, Confederacies, and unlawful Conventicles within the foreſaid City and Suburbs of the ſame, ſince we have taken the Government of our Realm, and do wander about and run here and there, beating, wounding and miſuſiing the People, and wickedly killing ſome of them, and ſpoiling others of their Goods and Poſſeſſions; and taking and impriſoning others, as well of the City and Suburbs, as thoſe that come to the ſaid City and Suburbs about their Buſineſs; and detaining them in Priſon until, they have made them give Fines and Redemptions; and committing other Miſdemeanors; and not deſiſting daily to commit them; to the Breach of our Peace, and the terror of our People in thoſe Parts, and manifeſtly tending to Commotion: WE, willing to have ſuch Malefactors puniſhed, and the Tranquillity of our People to be inviolably kept; as we are bound to do by our Oath, Command you that, by the Oath of honeſt Men of your Bailiffwick, ye diligently enquire of the Names of the foreſaid Melefactors, and of them that knowingly receive and maintain them, and find out the Truth concerning other Articles more fully touching the Premiſes. And all thoſe whom thereupon it ſhall happen to be judged, and alſo thoſe whom ye ſhall find doing ſuch Things as are premiſed, ye cauſe without Delay to be taken, and to be ſafely kept in our Priſon, until ye ſhall have ſome further Command from us hereupon. And that ye ſo behave your ſelves in this behalf, that the Damages and Lewdneſſes aforeſaid may not happen there any more. Whereby we might take it heavily of you, as of them to whom we have committed the Cuſtody of the ſaid City, under the Danger that is incumbent. In Witneſs whereof, &c.

It may not be amiſs to ſee the further Progreſs of this Buſineſs. The Maior and Sheriffs had, according to the aforeſaid Letters, taken up many of theſe diſorderly ſeditious People. And now the King iſſued forth other Letters for the Proſecution of them; directed to his Judges, and the Maior, Sheriffs and Aldermen: According to the a late Charter granted to the City, whereby the Maior, in all Places of Judgment within the Liberties, was to ſit as Judge, nay as Chief Judge; and the Aldermen that had been Maiors, to be Juſtices of the Peace within London and Middleſex. Theſe Letters were as enſueth.

And for the judging of them. Pat. 2. E. 3. p. 2. m. 11. dorſo.

Olivero de Ingham, &c. i. e. ‘To Oliver de Ingham, to John Matravers, John de Stoner, Robert de Malberthorp, and John de Grantham; to the Maior, &c. Foraſmuch as our City of London is our Chamber; and on that Accout the Men of the ſaid City of London are more firmly obliged to the Defence of our Perſon, and Conſervation of our Rights; We more heavily bearing the Premiſes, and willing that they be puniſhed, as it is fit, have commanded you our ſaid Maior and Sheriffs of London, that ye ſhould enquire diligently of the Premiſes, and ſhould take thoſe whom ye ſhould find culpable by the ſame Inquiſition, and keep them ſafe, until ye ſhould have ſome further Command thereupon from us. And becauſe the Premiſes do ſpecially touch us and the State of our Crown, willing to determine the ſaid Inquiſitions, and all other Things touching the Premiſes according to the Exigence of Law, We have aſſigned you our Juſtices to hear and determine the Inquiſitions and Indictments made by the ſame Inquiſitions, &c.

Malefactors in the City ſtill.

Theſe Riots of Ruffians going in Armour and uſing Violences in the City, could not yet be quelled by theſe Proceedings by the King's ſpecial Command againſt them. For I find the ſame King Edward III. iſſuing forth Letters againſt theſe Malefactors in the tenth Year of his Reign, himſelf being then in Scotland, to the Maior, Sheriffs and Aldermen, ‘ Concerning many Male-‘ factors in the City and Diſturbers of the Peace,

‘ as well of the City, as elſewhere, that made ‘ mutual Confederacies, Aſſemblies and unlawful ‘ Conventicles, as well by Day as by Night;
‘ going armed, and carrying Arms, and leading
‘ an armed Power, and procuring them to be led,
‘ wandred and ran about, beating and wounding
‘ Men, and depriving ſome of their Limbs, and ‘ ſpoiling others of their Goods and Properties;
‘ and taking others and detaining them in Pri-
‘ ſon privily; until they ſhould make certain
‘ Fines and Redemptions according to their Wills;
‘ and wreſting from ſome, by Threats and Fear of ‘ Death, and other ſuch like Hardſhips, great Sums
‘ of Money. The King therefore commanded
‘ the Maior, &c. to remedy theſe Tranſgreſſions.
‘ And if it were more than they could do, to cer‘ tify his Council under the common Seal of
‘ the City. Witneſs the King at St. John's Town.]

Rot. Scotic, An. 10. E. 3. m. 14. dorſo.

But for a full Remedy of Enormities in the Night, I read, that in the Year of Chriſt 1253, Henry the Third commanded Watches in Cities, and Borough Towns to be kept, for the better obſerving of Peace and Quietneſs amongſt his People.

And further, by the Advice of them of Savoy, he ordained, that if any Man chanced to be robbed, or by any Means damnified, by any Thief or Robber; he to whom the Charge of keeping that Country, City or Borough, chiefly appertained, where the Robbery was done, ſhould competently reſtore the Loſs. And this was after the uſe of Savoy; but yet thought more hard to to be obſerved here, than in thoſe Parts. And therefore leaving thoſe laborious Watches, I will ſpeak of our Pleaſures and Paſtimes in watching by Night.

Bonefires and banqueting in the Streets.

In the Months of June and July, on the Vigils of Feſtival Days, and on the ſame Feſtival Days in the Evenings, after the Sun-ſetting, there were uſually made Bonefires in the Streets, every Man beſtowing Wood or Labour towards them. The wealthier ſort alſo before their Doors, near to the ſaid Bonefires would ſet out Tables on the Vigils, furniſhed with ſweet Bread, and good Drink; and on the Feſtival Days, with Meat and Drink plentifully; whereunto they would invite their Neighbours and Paſſengers alſo to ſit and be merry with them in great familiarity, praiſing God for his Benefits beſtowed on them. Theſe were called Bonefires, as well of good Amity amongſt Neighbours, that being before at Controverſie, were there by the labour of others reconciled, and made of bitter Enemies loving Friends; as alſo for the Virtue that a great Fire hath, to purge the Infection of the Air. On the Vigil of Saint John Baptiſt, and on Saint Peter and Paul the Apoſtles, every Man's Door being ſhadowed with green Birch, long Fennel, St. Johns Wort, Orpin, white Lillies, and ſuch like, garniſhed upon with beautiful Flowers, had alſo Lamps of Glaſs, with Oyl burning in them all the Night. Some hung out Branches of Iron curiouſly wrought, containg hundreds of Lamps lighted at once; which made a goodly Shew, namely in new Fiſhſtreet, Thames-ſtreet, &c.

Standing Watch at Midſummer.

Garniſhing of Mens Doors, and furniſhing them out.

A Marching Watch.

Beſides the ſtanding Watches, all in bright Harneſs, in every Ward and Street in this City and Suburbs, there was alſo a marching Watch, that paſſed through the principal Streets thereof; to wit, from the little Conduit by Paul's Gate, through Weſt Cheap, by the Stocks, through Cornhill, by Leaden-Hall to Aldgate; then back down Fenchurchſtreet, by Graſſe Church, about Graſſe Church Conduit, and up Graſſe Churchſtreet into Cornhill, and through into Weſt Cheap again, and ſo broke up. The whole Way ordered for this marching Watch extended to 3200 Taylors Yards of Aſſize. For the furniture whereof with Lights, there were appointed 700 Creſſets, 500 of them being found by the Companies, the other 200 by the Chamber of London. Beſides the which Lights, every Conſtable in London, in number more than 240 had his Creſſet: the Charge of every Creſſet was in light two Shillings Four Pence; and every Creſſet had two Men, one to bear or hold it, another to bear a Bag with Light, and to ſerve it: ſo that the Poor Men pertaining to the Creſſets taking Wages, beſides that every one had a ſtrawen Hat, with a Badge painted, and his breakfaſt, amounted in number to almoſt 2000. The marching Watch contained in number about 2000 Men; part of them being old Soldiers, of ſkill to be Captains, Lieutenants, Serjeants, Corporals, &c. Whifflers, Drummers, and Fifes, Standard and Enſign Bearers, Demilaunces on great Horſes, Gunners with hand Guns, or half Hakes, Archers in Coats of White Fuſtian, ſigned on the breaſt and back with the Arms of the City, their Bows bent in their Hands, with Sheafs of Arrows by their Sides; Pike Men in bright Corſlets, Burganets, &c. Halbards, the like the Billmen in Almain Rivets, and Aprons of Mail in great Number.

Almoſt 1000 Creſſets light, for the Watch at Midſummer.

More than 240 Conſtables in London, the one half of them each Night went in the marching Watch, the other half kept their ſtanding Watch in every Street and Lane.

There were alſo divers Pageants, Morris Dancers, Conſtables; the one half which was 120, on St. John's Eve, the other half on Saint Peter's Eve, in bright Harneſs, ſome over Gilt, and every one a Jornet of Scarlet thereupon, and a Chain of Gold, his Hench Man following him, his Minſtrels before him, and his Creſſet Light paſſing by him: the Waits of the City, the Maiors Officers, for his Guard before him, all in a Livery of Wooſted or Sea Jackets, party coloured; the Maior himſelf well mounted on Horſeback, the Sword Bearer before him in fair Armour, well mounted alſo; the Maiors Foot Men, and the like Torch Bearers about him; Hench Men twain, upon great ſtirring Horſes following him. The Sheriffs Watches came one after the other in like Order, but not ſo large in Number as the Maiors: for where the Maior had, beſides his Giant, three Pageants, each of the Sheriffs had beſides their Giants, but two Pageants; each their Morris Dance, and one Hench Man, their Officers in Jackets of Wooſted, or Sea party coloured, differing from the Maiors, and each from other, but having harneſſed Men a great many, &c,

The Maior on the Watch.

Sheriffs Watches.

This Midſummer Watch was thus accuſtomed Yearly, time out of Mind, until the Year 1539, the 31ſt of Henry the Eighth; in which Year, on the 8th of May, a great Muſter was made by the Citizens at the Miles End, all in bright Harneſs, with Coats of White Silk or Cloth, and Chains of Gold, in three great Battels to the Number of 15000; which paſſed thorough London to Weſtminſter, and ſo through the Sanctuary, and round about the Park of St. James, and returned home through Oldborn.

A great Muſter at London.

Midſummer Watch renewed.

King Henry then conſidering the great Charges of the Citizens, for the Furniture of this unuſual Muſter, forbad the marching Watch provided for at Midſummer for that Year; which being once laid down; was not raiſed again till the Year 1548, the Second of Edward the Sixth, Sir John Greſham then being Maior, who cauſed the Marching Watch, both on the Eve of St. John Baptiſt, and of St. Peter the Apoſtle, to be revived and ſet forth, in as comely order as it had been accuſtomed; Which Watch was alſo Beautified by the Number of more than 300 Demilances and light Horſemen, prepared by the Citizens to be ſent into

Scotland, for the reſcue of the Town of Haddington, and others, kept by the Engliſhmen ſince the Maiors Time.

Endeavour to ſuperſede this Watch, An. 1569. J. S.

This Watch affording a great Cavalcade and ſplendid Show, brought Abundance of all Degrees of People together, and not a few of the lighter Sort; ſuch as Rogues, Pickpurſes, Quarrellers, Whoremongers and Drunkards. Which was found to have much Inconvenience. Therefore in the Year 1569, Sir Thomas Row Maior, with the univerſal Conſent of the Aldermen, agreed to lay it aſide, for that Year at leaſt: and in the Room thereof to have a ſubſtanrial Standing Watch for the Safety and Preſervation of the City. And that chiefly as was pretended, to prevent the diſperſing of the Plague into the Country; which might happen, if ſome of thoſe Companies that ſhould come out thence, ſhould gather Infection in the City, that at this Time was not free of it: and likewiſe increaſe it in the City. And the Armourers (who got Money by theſe marching Watches) ſhould have no reaſon to complain, ſince they had very lately a good Market and were well ſet on Work by the Muſters but a little before performed. The Maior himſelf alſo being at this Time ſo weak that he could not go in his own Perſon: The Recorder acquainted the Queen and Council with this Reſolution. But it was ſignified back that the Queen diſliked it, and that it was her Pleaſure to have a going Watch. Whereupon the Maior ſent the Recorder to Sir William Cecyll the Secretary. earneſtly deſiring his Intereſt with the Lords, that this Order might at leaſt that Year take Place upon the weighty Reaſons aforeſaid. And from henceforth it began to be laid aſide.]

John Montgomery.

The like marching Watch in this City hath not been uſed, though ſome Attempts have been made thereunto, as in the Year 1585. a Book was drawn by a grave Citizen, and by him dedicated to Sir Tho. Pulliſon, then Lord Maior, and his Brethren the Aldermen, containing the Manner and Order of a marching Watch in the City upon the Evens accuſtomed; in commendations whereof, namely, in Times of Peace to be uſed, he hath Words to this Effect:

Commodities of the Watch at Midſummer, in the Time of Peace.

The Artificers of ſundry Sorts were thereby well ſet awork, none but Rich Men charged, Poor Men helped, old Soldiers, Trumpeters, Drummers, Fifes, and Enſign-bearers, with ſuch like Men, meet for the Princes Service, kept in ure, wherein the ſafety and defence of every Common-weal conſiſteth. Armour and Weapons being Tearly occupied in this wiſe, the Citizens had of their own readily prepared for any need; whereas by intermiſſion hereof, Armorers are out of Work, Soldiers out of ure, Weapons overgrown with foulneſs, few or none good being provided, &c. But to return to the Sports.

Wreſtling at Skinners Well, near unto Clerks Well before the Maior.

In the Month of Auguſt, about the Feaſt of Saint Bartholomew the Apoſtle, before the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Sheriffs of London, placed in a large Tent near unto Clarkenwell, of old Time were divers Days ſpent in the Paſtime of wreſtling; where the Officers of the City, namely the Sheriffs, Serjeants, and Yeomen, the Porters of the Kings Beam, or Weigh Houſe, (now no ſuch Men) and other of the City, were Challengers of all Men in the Suburbs, to wreſtle for Games appointed. And on other Days, before the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs, in Fenſbury field, to ſhoot the Standard, broad Arrow and flight, for Games. But now of late Years, the wreſtling is only practiſed on Bartholomew Day in the Afternoon; and the ſhooting ſome three or four Days after, in one Afternoon, and no more. What ſhould I ſpeak of the ancient daily Exerciſes in the long Bow by Citizens of this Ciy, now almoſt cleanly left off and forſaken? I over paſs it. For by the Means of cloſing in of Common Grounds, our Archers, for want of Room to ſhoot abroad, creep into Bowling Alleys, and ordinary Dicing Houſes, near Home: where they have Room enough to hazard their Money at unlawful Games; where I leave them to take their Pleaſures.

Shooting the Standard, broad Arrow and flight, before the Maior. Shooting in the long Bow ſuppreſſed. Bowling Alleys erected and frequented.

Taverns and Alehouſes plenty in ancient Time. J. S.

This was one of the great Uſes of publick Houſes in former Time, namely, for Game and Exerciſe rather than for drinking exceſſively. For Plenty of Alehouſes and Taverns in London was no ſtrange thing even in King Harries Days; as appears from a facetious Paſſage in an Old Book printed 1536. called A remedy for Sedition. Where the Author hath this pretty Conceit, in reference to the Multitude of theſe publick Houſes: 'I make this offer to you, Blindfold me, and after carry me to what place you will, I will little fail to tell you where you ſet me, and before whoſe Door. They that know not my Cunning will ſcarce believe me. I pray you, can you ſet me in any Place, but I may ſay, and ly little, I am now before a Tavern, or an Alehouſe. Fail I may, but far I cannot fail. But now of a long while the Pleaſure and Paſtime of theſe Houſes is chiefly Fuddling, and devouring vaſt Quantities of Wine and Ale, and Stout and Brandy.]

Now a Days the Recreations of the Citizens, beſides Drinking, are Cockfighting, Bowling Greens, Tables, Cards, Dice, Billiard Tables, Muſick Entertainments, Dancing, Maſks, Balls, Stage Plays, Club Meetings in Evenings, Riding out on Horſeback, Hunting with my Lord Maiors Pack of Dogs, when the Common Hunt (one of the Maiors Officers) goes out: the Citizens having Privilege by their Charter to hunt in Middleſex, Hertfordſhire, in the Chilterns and in Kent as far as Gray Water. The more common ſort divert themſelves at Foot ball, Wreſtling, Cudgels, Ninepins, Shovelboard, Cricket, Stowball, Ringing of Bells, Quoits, pitching the Bar, Bull and Bear baiting, throwing at Cocks, and lying at Alehouſes.]

Cuſtomary Puniſhments. J. S.

To the cuſtomary Sports uſed in the City, we may ſubjoyn ſome of their cuſtomary Puniſhments in former Times, of Shame or Pain, or both, for divers Sorts of Crimes and Miſdeameanours: Such were Pillorizing, Carting, Riding, Whipping. ## CHAP. XXX.

A Rehearſal of many Honourable Acts of the City and Citizens.

The Generoſity of Citizens.

J. S.

FROM theſe old Cuſtoms of the City we proceed to a particular Remembrance of ſome Honourable and Worthy old Citizens, who have made themſelves famous to Poſterity, not only for their great Riches, but for the liberal Erogation and Diſtribution of them, either for the Service of their Prince and Country, or the adorning of the City, or the Relief of the Poor, or the furthering of Religion and Learning.]

The modeſt Matrons that have been, and ought to be.

‘ This City (ſaith Fitzſtephen) is glorious in Manhood, furniſhed with Munitions, populous with Inhabitants. Inſomuch, that in the troubleſome time of King Stephen, it hath ſhewed at a Muſter 20000 Armed Horſemen, and 60000 Footmen, ſerviceable for the Wars. Moreover (ſaith he) the Citizens of London, whereſoever they be come, are notable before all other Citizens, in Civility of Manners, Attire, Table, and Talk. The Matrons of this City are the very modeſt Sabine Ladies of Italy. The Londoners, ſometime called Trinobantes, repelled Cæſar, who always made his Paſſage by ſhedding Blood; whereupon Lucan ſung,

Territa quæſitis oſtendit terga Britannis.

Worthineſs of Men, Citizens of London.

Conſtantine the Emperor born in London.

Tho. Becket.

J. S.

‘ The City of London hath bred ſome, which have ſubdued many Kingdoms, and alſo the Roman Empire. It hath alſo brought forth many others, whom Virtue and Valour hath highly advanced, according to Apollo in his Oracle to Brute, ſub occaſu Solis, &c. In the time of Chriſtianity it brought forth that Noble Emperor Conſtantine, which gave the City of Rome, and all the Imperial Enſigns, to God, St. Peter, and Pope Sylveſter, to whom he performed the Office of a Soldier, chuſing rather to be called a Defender of the Church than an Emperor. And leſt the Peace of the Pope might be violated by occaſion of his ſecular Preſence, he retired from Rome, and built the City of Bizantium, called from him Conſtantinople. London alſo in later times hath brought forth Kings, Illuſtrious and Noble Perſons, viz. Kings, Maud the Empreſs, King Henry Son to Henry the Second, and St. Thomas the Archbiſhop, the glorious Martyr of Chriſt, than whom a more innocent one it never bare, nor by whom any could be more bound for all the good Things of the whole Latin World”. [Such Language as this in the Praiſe of Thomas Becket is now long ſince out of Date, known to be a Traitor and not a Saint. But it is no wonder that this ſhould fall from the Pen of a devout Monk of Canterbury, where, in thoſe Days he was worſhipped, and had a Shrine.]

A Sheriffs Clerk of London became Chancellor of England, and Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

Honourable Actions done by the worthy Citizens of London.

Ambroſe Nicholas, Salter, Maior 1576, founded Twelve Almſhouſes in Monkswell Street, near unto Cripplegate; wherein he placed Twelve Poor People, having each of them 7*d.* the Week, and once every Year Five Sacks of Coals, and one Quarter of a Hundred Faggots; all of his Gift for ever.

W. Lambe, Citizen and Clothworker of London.

William Lambe, Eſq; (ſometime a Gentleman of the Chapel to K. Henry the Eighth, and in great Favour with him) was alſo a Free Brother of the Worſhipful Company of Clothworkers, and a kind, loving Citizen to the City of London.

He builded a Conduit at Oldborn Croſs, to his Charge of Fifteen Hundred Pound: And did many other charitable Acts; as in my Summary. Viz.

A free Grammar School at Sutton Valens in Kent.

Out of his Love to Learning and Scholars, in the Town of Sutton Valens in Kent, where he was born, at his own proper Coſt and Charges, he erected a Free Grammar School, for the Education and Inſtruction of Youth, in the Fear of God, good Manners, Knowledge and Underſtanding: Allowing yearly to the Maſter Twenty Pounds, and Ten Pounds yearly to the Uſher, from Time to Time, as either Place ſhall be ſupplied by Succeſſion, and for their yearly Stipends or perpetual Penſions.

Almſhouſes at Sutton for the Poor.

In the ſame Town of Sutton alſo, for the Relief of poor People, he cauſed to be builded Six Almſhouſes; having an Orchard and Gardens, and the Sum of Ten Pounds yearly paid them.

Free School at Maidſtone.

At Maidſtone likewiſe, in Kent, he hath given Ten Pounds yearly to the Free School for ever, with this ſpecial Caution, That needy Mens Children may be preferred only to the enjoying of this Benefit.

His Relief to poor Clothiers in divers Places.

The Gentleman foreſeeing, in his Lifetime, the Decay of ſundry Trades and Occupations, to the utter undoing of very many, eſpecially poor Clothiers, whoſe Impoveriſhing deſerved greatly to be pitied; freely gave to the poor Clothiers in Suffolk, in Bridgnorth, and in Ludlow in Shropſhire, 300*l.* to be paid by even Portions: To each ſeveral Town of the ſaid Counties, One Hundred Pounds apiece, for their Supportation and Maintenance at their Work or Occupation.

His building of the Conduit near to Oldborn, and the Standard at Oldborn-bridge.

And as his Charity extended it ſelf thus liberally abroad in the Country, ſo did the City of London likewiſe taſte thereof not ſparingly. For near unto Holborn he founded a fair Conduit, and a Standard with a Cock at Holborn Bridge, to convey thence the Waſte. Theſe were begun the Six and twentieth Day of March, 1577, and the Water carried along in Pipes of Lead, more than Two Thouſand Yards, all at his own Coſt and Charges, amounting to the Sum of Fifteen Hundred Pounds; and the Work fully finiſhed the Four and twentieth of Auguſt, in the ſame Year.

Poor Women benefited by the Conduit.

Moreover, he gave to poor Women, ſuch as were willing to take pains, 120 Pails, therewith to carry and ſerve Water.

Being a Member (as I have already ſaid) of the Clothworkers Company, and to ſhew that he was not unmindful of them, he gave them his Dwelling Houſe in London, with other Lands and Tenements, to the Value of Thirty Pound yearly; beſides Four Pounds more alſo yearly; by them to be thus beſtowed: To wit, For the Hiring of a Miniſter, to read Divine Service thrice every Week; as, Sunday, Wedneſday and Friday, throughout the Year, in the Chapel or Church belonging to his Houſe, called by the Name of St. James in the Wall, by Cripplegate; and for Four Sermons there to be preached, a competent Allowance for each. And alſo out of the Thirty Pounds yearly, it is provided, That a Deduction be made by the ſaid Clothworkers, for apparelling of Twelve Men, and as many Women; in Form as followeth.

Allowance for four yearly Sermons.

Every poor Man and poor Woman, a Shirt, a Smock and a Gown, and a Pair of Shoes, &c.

To every of the Twelve Men a Frize Gown, one Lockram Shirt, and a good ſtrong Pair of Winter Shoes.

To the Twelve Women likewiſe, a Frize Gown, a Lockram Smock, and a good Pair of Winter Shoes; all ready made for their wearing.

Always remembred, that they be Perſons both poor and honeſt, to whom this Charitable Deed is to be extended. And this is yearly done on the Firſt of October.

To the Pariſh Church of St. Giles without Cripplegate, he gave Fifteen Pound to the Bells and Chime; intending a further Liberality thereto, if they had taken due Time.

His Intent to the Savoy.

An Hundred Pounds he intended to the Hoſpital called the Savoy: But by reaſon that ſuch Agreements could not be made as he thought convenient, his Contribution that way (much againſt his Mind) went not forward.

His Relief for poor Priſoners.

For the Relief of poor Priſoners in the two Compters, Newgate, Ludgate, the Marſhalſea, the King's Bench, and the White Lion, he dealt very bountifully and diſcreetly; giving unto the two Compters Six Pound apiece; and to be paid unto them by Twenty Shillings each Month. To the other Priſons forementioned, ſix Mattreſſes apiece: The whole Number being two Dozen and an half.

Marriage Money for poor Maids.

He was not unmindful of poor Maids Marriages; but gave Twenty Pounds to be equally divided among Forty, by equal Portions of Ten Shillings apiece. Yet with this Proviſo, that thoſe poor Maids to be married, ſhould be of good Name and Fame.

His Love and Liberality to his Servants.

His Love and Bounty to his Servants, as alſo the Hundred and Eight Frize Gowns ready made, which he bequeathed at his Funeral to poor Men and Women, with diſperſing the Remnant of all his Goods after his Burial, where Need and Reaſon required, I am contented to paſs over; referring what elſe is further to be ſaid of him, till I come to ſpeak of the Place where he lieth buried.

A. M.

Divers Men yet Living, have been and ſtill are moſt bountiful Benefactors to the Poor, and many other Religious Uſes.

Here I could enter into a further Relation, concerning ſome Men yet Living, whoſe liberal Bounty, and moſt Chriſtian Charity, doth deſerve no mean Commendation, and is very little inferior to many of them already Named.

But becauſe they account it Honour enough to them, that divers poor People (in private) ſhould rather ſufficiently find it, than the World (in Publick) know it, I am content to ſpare their Nomination; as knowing very well, that they who have been ſo liberal in their Life-time, have (no doubt) ſet down extraordinary Determinations, which neither Death, nor any deceiving Executors, can or ſhall fruſtrate and diſappoint.

The Teſtimony of a good and godly Conſcience indeed.

A living Benefactor unknown.

Let me commend that truly Religious Man, who perceiving the heavy want of divers honeſt Houſholders, laboriouſly endeavouring (Night and Day) to maintain their Charge; but that the World's Extremity frowned too fiercely upon them. I know the Man, and oftentimes in Tears hath he ſaid to me; here is true Poverty indeed, too modeſtly Silent in ſpeaking their mighty Need and Miſery, and therefore juſtly deſerving Pity. To Two, Three, Four, and many times more of theſe, hath he been, and is, a liberal Benefactor (Weekly) with his own Hands; yet not in his own Name, or as coming from himſelf, (he being ſo meanly Diſguiſed at ſuch Times of his coming to them, and ſo ſudden alſo in departing from them, that they were not able to diſtinguiſh him;) but alledging, that the Relief was ſent them from ſome, who underſtood their Need (almoſt) as well as themſelves, and willed them to be thankful only to God for it.

Oh that London had a Park near adjoining to it, ſtored with many ſuch choice Deer; as doubtleſs it hath, though not eaſily known. For ſome build Almſhouſes, Free Schools, Cawſeys, and Bridges, in very needful Places: Yea, and repair old ruined Churches, relieving Hoſpitals alſo in very bountiful Manner, and are Weekly Benefactors to Priſons: Yet performed by ſuch Agents faithfully, that the true Beſtowers are not noted, though vehemently ſuſpected; and the Glory they ſhun here, will (for ever) ſhine on them elſewhere. But God ſtir up the Minds of many more to imitate them in this Tongueleſs Liberality.

He gave alſo 500 l. towards the new Glazing of the decayed Windows in the upper Part of St. Paul's Church: And the ſame to be done on rich Coloured Glaſs, with Effigies, and Holy Stories, as it had been formerly Glazed and Adorned. The firſt Window whereof being new made, was prepared and appointed to be ſet up on the North Side of the Choir, in the Month of June, 1618. And much of the old Glaſs repaired; being the Decays of divers broken Windows.

Edw. Brown, his Servant, publiſhes theſe Lagacies. And why.

Theſe Legacies were, ſoon after his Death, ſet forth in Print by his Servant, Edward Browne, Ironmonger, whoſe Name is among the Legatees. The Reaſon of his ſo doing, was to prevent the withdrawing of any Part of theſe Legacies by the Executors, and dividing them among themſelves; as there was a Whiſpering (though perhaps unjuſtly) that there was: And that they intended every one to take a Third Part of the 10000*l.* to their own proper Uſe. He was employed under the Executors, being a good Clark, to receive Monies, and pay the Legacies. And ſome there were that perſuaded the Lady Cambell, Widow of the ſaid Sir James Cambell, to diſcharge him her Service. For the preventing whereof, and for the continuing him in his ſaid Employment; in order to the more punctual and faithful Payment of theſe Legacies, he put up a Petition to the King, to interpoſe his Royal Commandmant to the Worſhipful Executors of his late Maſter, Sir James Cambell's laſt Will and Teſtament, to continue the Petitioner's Endeavours, in receiving Monies, and paying Legacies, as formerly he had done; till the Will of the Teſtator were really performed. And then to recompence his Labour according to Equity. The King accordingly granted his Petition, in theſe Words underwritten, Soit Droit, comme eſt deſire: That is, Let Right be done, as is deſired.

And before this Royal Grant of his Petition, many of the Aldermen, and other Perſons of Quality in the City, gave their Teſtimonials under their Hands to the Executors, of Brown's Sufficiency, with their Deſires to them to continue him in the ſaid Office: In theſe Words: “In the mean Time, we deſire the Worſhipful “Executors of his Maſter's laſt Will and Teſta“ment, to make Uſe of his honeſt Endeavours, “as formerly they have, except they conceive “juſt Cauſe to the contrary. Dated the 24th of “November, 1642.

George Clark.

Mr. John Kendrick, Draper, who departed December the 3d, 1674. His moſt extenſive Benefactions may be read in his Will, ſpecified at Length in Broadſtreet Ward. Being buried in St. Chriſtopher's. Summarily, To the Town of Reading, 7500 l. in Truſt; for employing the Poor. Mr. John Kendrick.

Mr. Henry Smith, Alderman; who died 1627. He gave Legacies, amounting to the Sum of 75000 l. to ſeveral Towns, to buy Lands, for the Relief of the Poor, and for ſetting them on Work, and for Redemption of Captives in Turkiſh Slavery. And beſides bequeathed much more, according as his Eſtate would bear it, towards the ſame Uſes. See his Monument in Wanſworth Church.

Mr. Sutton.

Richard Croſhawe, Goldſmith; an Account of his Benefactions, the Inſcription upon his Monument in the Church of All Saints, Derby, will declare: From the Viſitation Book of Derbyſhire, by Sir William Dugdale, Knight, viz. Upon a large Monument, erected for Richard Croſhawe, a Wealthy Goldſmith in London: Who was a Smith's Son at Marketon juxta Derbie.

Richard Croſhawe.

“ To the Glory of God. RICHARD “ CROSHAWE, of London, Eſquire, ſome- “ time Maſter of the Right Worſhipful Company “ of Goldſmiths, and Deputy of Broadſtreet Ward: “ A Man pious and liberal to the Poor in the “ great Plague, 1625. Neglecting his own Safe- “ ty, abode in the City, to provide for their “ Relief. Did many Pious and Charitable Acts “ in his Lifetime: And by his Will, left above “ 4000 l. to the Maintenance of Lectures, Re- “ lief of Poor, and other Pious Uſes.

“ Since his Death, his Executors have added “ out of his Eſtate 900 l. He dwelt, and lyeth “ buried in his Pariſh of St. Bartholomew, by “ the Exchange; where he lived Thirty One “ Years: And being Seventy Years Old, de- “ parted this Life the 2d of June, 1631. Ha- “ ving done much Good to this Town, and “ this his Native Country, his Executors have “ erected his Monument in this Place, to encou- “ rage others of great Eſtate to imitate his Piety “ and Charity, 1636.

Sir John Morden, a Citizen Born, a Turkey Merchant, founded lately a moſt Noble College (which goes by his Name) upon Blackheath, for ſuch a Number of poor honeſt Merchants, being Fifty Years of Age, decayed, by reaſon of Loſſes, and Misfortunes in their Trades, as the Eſtate he left, Real and Perſonal, might maintain, allowing each of them 20 l. a Year; which in a Codicil to his Will, for certain Cauſes, he reduced to 15 l. a Year. Out of which a Common Table, Coals, and other Neceſſaries, were to be provided. There belong to the ſaid College a Chaplain, a Treaſurer, and other Officers, each allowed competent Salaries. The Overſight and Care of it, and all the Repairs, and other Affairs belonging to it, are committed for ever to Seven Merchants of the Turky Company: Who are to Viſit it once a Year, or oftner, if they ſee Occaſion: And to take Account from the Treaſurer, of all the Rents and Revenues ſettled upon it. Which upon the Deceaſe of the Lady Morden, his Widow, may amount to 1000 l. a Year, or more.

Sir John Morden's College.

The ſaid Sir John Morden gave alſo by his laſt Will, 200 l. to Chriſt's Church Hoſpital, 100 l. to St. Thomas's Hoſpital. And for the Delivery of poor Debtors out of the Priſons in London and Southwark, 200 l. And 100 l. to be diſtributed to poor Blind Perſons. Whereof a double Share to ſuch of them as were born Blind.]

Thus much for famous Citizens have I noted, concerning their charitable Actions, for the moſt Part done by them in their Lifetime. The Reſidue left in Truſt to their Executors, I have known ſome of them hardly (or never) performed. Wherefore I wiſh Men to make their own Hands their Executors, and their Eyes their Overſeers; not forgetting the Old Epitaph;

Women be forgetful,
Children be unkind;
Executors be covetous,
And take what they find.

If any body aſk where
The Dead's Goods became?

They Anſwer:

So God me help, and Holydom,
He died a poor Man.

Among the more modern Citizens, there have not been a few Renowned, as for their Learning, Wiſdom, Piety, Loyalty, as well as generous Liberality: In this Rank we place Sir Thomas Adams, Baronet; Sir William Turner, Knight; Sir Robert Jeffreys, Knight; Sir John Moor, Knight; Sir Robert Clayton, Knight, Aldermen; —— Aſk, Eſquire; Sir John Morden, Baronet; Nathaniel Tench, Eſquire, &c.

Worthy Citizens of theſe Modern Times.

Of Sir Thomas Adams, who as he was largely Charitable, Founder of a Free School in Shropſhire, and of an Arabick Lecture in Cambridge, and a great Benefactor to the Clothworkers Company; ſo he was Learned, Pious, Hoſpitable, and a Sufferer for his unſhaken Loyalty to King Charles the Firſt. For a laſting Memorial of him, there was an Epicedium elegantly compoſed in Latin by one Mr. Faldo, of Gray's Inn, Dedicated unto the Maior and Aldermen, which hangeth up in a Table in the Gallery at Guild-Hall; and is as followeth:

Sir THOMAS ADAMS, Baronet, his Epitaph, hanging up in a TABLE in the Gallery at Guild Hall:

Avice Gibſon founded a Chapel, a Free School, and Almſhouſes at Ratcliff.

The Government of which Free School and Almſhouſes, ſhe left in Confidence to the Coopers of London.

Curſed is he that removeth his Neighbour's Mark, have I read.

This virtuous Gentlewoman was afterwards joined in Marriage with Sir Anthony Knevet, Kt. and ſo called the Lady Knevet. A fair painted Table of her Picture was placed in the Chapel which ſhe had built there; but of late removed thence by the like Reaſon as the Grocers Arms (fixed on the outer Wall of the Schoolhouſe) are pulled down, and the Coopers ſet in place.

A worthy Example, and well deſerving Imitation.

And here let me tell you, that the Charity of this Virtuous and Religious Woman deſerveth the more to be remembred, and commended alſo to Poſterity; becauſe ſhe made her own Eyes the Witneſſes to all, or the greater Part of the ſeveral Sums firſt mentioned, and given in her Lifetime.

And yet at the Time of her Death, of Children, and Childrens Children, ſhe had no leſs than Two and twenty. A Motive very able to hinder Charity, eſpecially in a worldly and covetous Mind.

Nevertheleſs, looking on all the Parts diſpoſed to her Children, and the other Dividends beſide, ſhe ſelected out ſo bountiful a Portion for thoſe poor Members of Chriſt, that (even to the World's End) may ſucceſſively remember her Good done to them, and juſtly term her their liberal and merciful Mother.

One Thing (above the reſt) I may not forget; becauſe in Deliverances from any Dangers, we owe a more ſpecial Duty and Gratitude to God.

A great Danger ſhe eſcaped in her Childhood.

This worthy Woman being born at Iſlington, in the Time of her Childhood ſhe happened there to eſcape a great Danger, by means of an Arrow ſhot at random in the Field, where ſhe was then ſporting among other Children; the Arrow miſſing all the other, pierced quite through the Hat on her Head, and (God be praiſed for it) did not touch her with any other Harm. Whereupon, in the Town of her Birth, and where ſhe eſcaped ſuch an unexpected Peril, ſhe made choice to expreſs her Thankfulneſs to God, upon the Altar of her charitable Almſhouſes and School.

The Reaſon of erecting her Almſhouſes.

To all theſe London Ladies, ſo exemplary for their Charity, let one more (long before them all) be added; namely, Leofriva, that lived in the Days of King Edward the Saxon, Anno 1060. She is called in the Ancient Writings, Fœmina Lundonica, i. e. a Woman of London.

The Lady Leofriva's Charity.

J. S.

By her laſt Will, ſhe gave the Town of Fiſherton to the Abbey of Peterburgh. Afterward Edryd, the foreſaid Edward's Queen, claimed the ſaid Village, pretending Leofriva decreed it for her. So there was a Conteſt about it; and the Abbey gave the Queen Forty Marks of Gold, and Forty Marks more in the Ornaments of the Church.

Hiſt. of Peterb.

This pious London Lady died in her way to Jeruſalem; whither, it ſeems, ſhe undertook a Journey for Devotion. ]

John Lidgate in Praiſe of Londoners of his Time.

Thus much for the Worthineſs of Citizens (both Men and Women) in this City; touching whom, John Lidgate, a Monk of Bury, in the Reign of King Henry the Sixth, made (amongſt other) theſe Verſes following:

> Of Seven Things I praiſe this City:
> Of true Meaning, and faithful Obſervance;
> Of Righteouſueſs, Truth and Equity;
> Of Stableneſs aye kept in Legiance,
> And for of Virtue thou haſt ſuffiſance:

The Worth of Citizens. Supply their Princes Occaſions for preſent Money. Citizens called upon to receive Knighthood. Citizens of Wealth and Honour. Sir Thomas Greſham. Sir Baptiſt Hicks. *Several worthy Maiors formerly. Valor of Citizens. Their Loyalty. Their Wiſdom. Extraordinary Honours done to the City by Kings and Nobles. The City's Honour by their Citizens. J. S.

A Great deal hath been ſpoken (and yet all but very imperfect Collections) of the Noble Liberality and Charity of the Citizens from Time to Time: Whence Honour and Reputation hath deſervedly been derived to the City.

But the Citizens of London have had divers other commendable Qualifications, which have contributed alſo to the Ennobling thereof: As, namely, Their vaſt Wealth, and Generous Employment of it; their Loyalty and their Valour, together with their Wiſdom and Learning.

To give ſome ſcattering Hints of each.

Wealth of Citizens, and their Employment of it commendable.

The City, by the Benefit of its Trade, hath always been very opulent; and many of its Members have arrived to overgrown Eſtates: Which they have made uſe of very commendably, either for the preſent Supplies and Aſſiſtances of their Princes, (which they have often done) or for ſome other Publick Good.

K. Edward III. borrows of the City.

When King Edward the Third was reſolved upon an Expedition to France, with an Intent to recover his Right there, in the 13th of that King, the Parliament gave him a Tax: But the Citizens ſupplied him with preſent Money; he borrowing of them 20000 Marks, to be repaid of the Money coming of the foreſaid Grant. Which Money was levied of every Ward in the City. Fabian ſhews what every Ward was ceſſed at; ſome more, ſome leſs. And I obſerve theſe Men of Note for the chiefeſt Wealth:

The reſt of the Wards are mentioned; but no particular Names of wealthy Perſons contributing largely, as theſe beforementioned did.

K. Edw. III. requires the Citizens to take Knighthood.

The Wealth of the Citizens had made them once like to have filled the City with Knights: This ſame warlike King Edward the Third, Anno 1344, requiring all them who had 40 l. per Annum, to take Knighthood upon them, within about ſix Weeks after. And of this, Publick Proclamation was made in London, by the Sheriffs, that ſuch as were concerned ſhould take notice of it.

And this the King required, either for the Honour of the City, or perhaps to get Money out of the wealthier Sort: who, as it appeared by the Sequel, had no Inclination to this Honour, nor the Conſequences of it.

This Command of the King was grounded upon a Statute made in the firſt Year of King Edward II. whereby it was ordered, That all ſuch as ought to be Knights, that is, that had 20 l. yearly in Fee, or for Term of Life, ſhould take the Arms of the Knight upon him.

The ſaid King's Brief to the Sheriffs of London, for this Purpoſe, was as followeth.

EDWARDUS, &c. Vicecomitibus, &c.

i. e. " EDWARD, &c. to the Sheriffs of " London, Greeting.

" WE Command, firmly enjoining you, That " in the City aforeſaid, when you ſhall think " convenient, ye cauſe it publickly to be pro" claimed, That all who have 40 l. of Land or " Rent, as they have Revenue by Year, and " have held them for Three whole Years, and " are not Knights, take upon them the Order of " Knighthood, about the Feaſt of St.* Laurence " next, or at moſt on the Feaſt, upon Danger " which followeth. And that ye diligently en" quire of the Names of thoſe who have 40 l. of " Land or Rents per Ann. in the ſaid City: And " that ye certify Us of thoſe Names, in our " Chancery, before the foreſaid Feaſt. And by " no means omit ye this.

" Witneſs my ſelf at Weſtminſter, the 30th " Day of June; in the Year of our Reign " over England the 18th; but of our Reign " over France, the 5th.

* Auguſt 10.

To which Brief, the Sheriffs returned this Anſwer.

Proclamari fecimus, &c.

i. e. " We have cauſed to be proclaimed " throughout our whole Bailiffwick, all the Ar" ticles contained in the Brief, as it is com" manded in the ſame. We have cauſed alſo In" quiſition to be made, by the Oath of honeſt " and lawful Men of our ſaid Bailiffwick, if any " have 40 l. of Land or Rent, by Year, in our " ſaid Bailiffwick, and have held them for Three " whole Years; and of thoſe that hold a Part in " our Bailiffwick, and a Part elſewhere, of the " ſaid Value. By whoſe Oath we find, that all " the Lands and Rents in the ſaid City are held " of the Lord the King in Capite, as Free Burgage " in Fee Farm. Nor is there any that hath 40 l. " of Land or Rent in the ſame by the Year cer" tain. Becauſe the Lands in the ſaid City, " ſome are let for more, ſome for leſs; and often " ſtand empty, and are not let: Yet frequently " have divers Burthens, and require Repairs and " Amendments. And for thoſe Cauſes, and the " Burning of Houſes, and divers other Dangers " happening, the Certainty of the true Value of " them cannot be known. And as to the Lands " and Rents which the Citizens have out of our " Bailiffwick, the Sworn Men ſay, That they " know nothing of the Value of them by Year, " nor can enquire.

Theſe Diminutions and Abatements of the Eſtates of the Citizens, were given in (as it ſeems) with reſpect to the Exceptions in the foreſaid Statute of 1 Edward II. Wherein ſuch were excuſed from Knighthood, that had held their Lands but a ſmall Time; or that were bounden in certain Debts in the Exchequer, to be paid yearly out of their Lands; and that held in Manors in Ancient Demeſn of the Crown, as a Sokeman; and that muſt give Tallage, when the King's Demeſnes were tallied: And ſuch as held Burgage Lands, altho' they did amount to 20 l. yearly.

Such another Writ came from that King, about Twelve Years after, to the Sheriffs, Walter Forſter, and Thomas de Brandon, the Firſt of Auguſt, the 30th of that King's Reign over England, but of France the 17th. And the Sheriffs Return was the ſame.

In the Year 1544, Anno 36 Hen. VIII. the Citizens, Members of the Twelve Companies, lent that King, upon Lands mortgaged to them, the Sum of 21263 l. 6 s. 8 d.

And theſe Aldermen, not then knighted; tho' divers of them afterwards were.

The City bound for Monies borrowed by K. Edw. VI. at Antwerp.

And it hath been from Time to Time the Practice of the Kings of England to borrow Money, for their preſent Neceſſities, of the City; and the Cuſtom of the City accordingly to ſupply their Kings: And likewiſe ſometimes to be Security for Monies borrowed by the King abroad.

Warr. Book of K. Edward

King Edward VI. borrowed Money of Anthony Fugger, and his Nephews; who were vaſtly rich German Merchants, and Bankers at Antwerp. And the City was bound with the King for Payment. As I find Anno 1551, in the Month of April,

April, a Recognizance made from the King to Sir Andrew Jud, Lord Maior of the City, and the Commonalty of the ſame, that the King ſhall diſcharge them, their Succeſſors, Lands, Poſſeſſions, and Goods whatſoever, as well beyond the Sea, as on this Side, from the Payment of certain Sums of Money Flemiſh, which they ſtood bound for to the ſaid Anthony Fugger, and his Nephews, to be paid at Antwerp.

The Queen leaves off taking Money Abroad, and takes it up of her own Merchants.

About the 10th or 11th of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, ſhe thought of laying aſide this Cuſtom of taking up Money from Foreign Merchants, and Bankers, and concluded it better to borrow of her own Subjects, that they might have the Benefit of the Intereſt of the Money ſo lent her, rather than Strangers. And there was ſome Neceſſity now of taking this Reſolution, ſince in the Year 1569, the Correſpondence was ſtopp'd by Duke D'Alva with Antwerp, whence the Monies uſed to come. This Counſel that famous Citizen Sir Thomas Greſham, her Agent, gave her; that for the making of ſome Payments to Creditors at Hamburgh, ſhe ſhould take up Money of her own Merchants, whereby they might enjoy the Benefit of the Loan. But this Motion found ſome Stop with the Merchants at this critical Time eſpecially, of a miſunderſtanding with Spain. For when the ſaid Greſham came to the Company of Merchant-Adventurers to borrow for the Queen, they firſt made dilatory Anſwers to him, ſometimes of Appearance of liking it; and yet in the End made an open Queſtion in the Common Hall, with a peremptory Refuſal, by holding up of their Hands: Though the Queen, to encourrge them to lend, had ordered Greſham to make Overtures of Payment beforehand, of certain Sums of Money at London, for their Commodity, and greater Surety: So as they would afterwards, upon Sale of their Commodities, make Payment of the ſame according to the Value of Exchange.

Sir Tho. Greſham's Advice.

Some Merchants refuſe at firſt to lend the Queen Money. Reſented.

But this Refuſal the Queen's Council reſented much, and cauſed the Secretary to ſend a Letter to the Merchants, importing, “How this Offer of the Queens was a Matter of great Grace and Favour, not much uſed before this Time, by any Prince; and therefore in Right to have been very thankfully received. That this Practice of theirs looked as though they were utterly careleſs of the Queen's Honour, to make a Hall-Matter of it: And undiſcreetly Deviſed, contrary to all former Uſage, to make an open Queſtion in their Common Hall, with a peremptory Refuſal by holding up of their Hands, without firſt giving a probable Cauſe of their ſo doing: A Uſage unmeet for the Princes Cauſe: And the good Offer of her Majeſty generally rejected, not only by the Youth, (whom they the Elders were commonly wont to blame to the Council, for all Diſorders in their Aſſemblies,) but by themſelves alſo the Heads. The Council added, “That they muſt not think that ſuch a Dealing would be paſt over, as percaſe they had thought. But before they meant to diſcloſe the ſame to the Queen, they thought good to impart thus much unto them. Not that they cared for their Payment of any Money there [at Hamburgh] for her Majeſty; but that they [the Council] would firſt know, how they could anſwer the ſame: And then they would proceed to ſuch Remedy, as ſhould ſeem meet to them, and give them Cauſe hereafter to think that they could, and muſt for her Majeſty, be anſwerable to all manner of Perſons, according as they ſhould deſerve, well or ill, in the Service of her Majeſty, and the Realm. Finally, that the Matter was ſuch, that they could not overpaſs without imparting to them, either to lay before them their great Overſight, or to require, for Diminution of their Conceit] againſt them, ſome Declaration of their Doings to be otherwiſe than they appeared: Where heretofore they had many times dutifully made Payment of Sums of Money for her Majeſty on the other Side of the Seas: Which had alſo been readily and juſtly repaid them. And ſo doing they did but the Duty of honeſt Subjects. And yet were always both thanked and favoured for the ſame. This Letter from the Council having ſome peculiar Paſſages in it, as to the Princes Borrowing, and the City's voluntary lending Money to them, I thought fit and worthy the inſerting in this Place.

They lend her Money, An. 1569.

The Iſſue of this was, that in the Months of November and December, 1569, divers of the Merchants and Aldermen lent the Queen Money for Six Months, and to pay Six per Cent for thoſe Six Months. The Lenders, and Sums Lent, were theſe:

|---|---|
| Sir William Garrard, | 1000 l. |
| Sir Roger Martin, | 1000 l. |
| Lionel Ducket, | 2000 l. |
| William Bond, Alderman, | 1000 l. |
| Thomas Ramſey, Alderman, | 1000 l. |
| Benedict Spinola, | 2000 l. |
| Nicholas Fountain, and Peter du Buſquel, | 1000 l. |
| James Harvey, | 1000 l. |
| Sir Thomas Lee, | 1000 l. |
| Rowland Haward, Alderman, | 1000 l. |
| John Rivers, Alderman, | 1000 l. |
| William Allyn, Alderman, | 1000 l. |
| Lady Joan Laxton, (Wife as it ſeems to Laxton, ſometime Sheriff,) | 1000 l. |
| Francis Barnham, Alderman, | 1000 l. |
| | 16000 l. |

The Queen gave Bonds to each of theſe, and other accuſtomed Bonds, to diſcharge them of the Statute of Uſury. The Six Months being expired, ſhe prolonged the Payment for Six Months more, paying Six per Cent again, and Brokage. And the Loans went on more currently afterwards. For,

She borrows again, Anno 1588.

Again, in that famous Year 1588, the Queen in that Juncture wanted Money, and made Uſe of a Loan from the City. Then in the Month of Auguſt, the City, and chiefly the Members of the Twelve Companies, raiſed Fifty One Thouſand Nine Hundred Pounds. Theſe following lent One Thouſand Pounds apiece, Sir Thomas Ramſey, Sir Wolſtan Dixy, Thomas Smith, Cuſtomer, and John Spencer, Alderman; the reſt ſubſcribed, ſome Five Hundred Pounds; ſome Three, ſome Two; none under One Hundred Pounds. Then the Strangers, Traders in London, lent Four Thouſand Nine Hundred Pounds.

Another Loan Anno 1589.

And again, another Loan there was the next Year, viz. 1589, if I miſtake not, of Fifteen Thouſand Pounds: For which the Queen paid Ten per Cent. And from theſe Supplies of Money afforded from the City, it ſeems to have truly the Denomination of the Chamber of the Kings of England. And thus from its inexhauſtible Wealth, and the good Service and Uſe her Princes have made of it, her Citizens have received great Honour.

Loans from the City to their Prince upon Occaſions.

So that one good Service of the City to their Princes, was lending them Money upon ſome extraordinary Emergence: As it did this Queen ſometimes, who had great and dangerous Enemies to Encounter, and watch againſt. To enlarge a little here. In that Critical Year 1588, She ſent to the Maior and Aldermen, and they raiſed her a great Sum of Money of the wealthier Citizens, Collected in every Company by a Loan. In one Payment whereof in Part, they ſent in Seventeen Thouſand Nine Hundred Fifty Two Pounds, Ten Shillings. Some indeed there were that endeavoured to ſhift it off, by going into the Country, or leaving the City, or abſenting themſelves for the preſent. But that ſuch alſo might bear their Proportion, the Lord Maior, (who was Sir Martin Calthorp) was fain to crave Help from above to deal with them. Whoſe Letter to the Lord Treaſurer (who had called upon him for this Loan) I ſhall ſet down, as worth preſerving: Viz.

The Maior's Letter of a Loan of the Companies to Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1588.

‘That it might pleaſe him to be advertiſed, that according to his Lordſhips laſt Direction, for the ſpeedy Payment of ſuch Money, as the Companies did ſtand Taxed by way of Loan for her Majeſty's Service, he [the Maior] had proceeded for the effecting of the ſame by all good Ways and Means: Whereby it was then brought in, and paid into her Majeſty's Receipt, upon the Second Payment, the Sum of Seventeen Thouſand Nine Hundred Fifty Two Pounds Ten Shillings. And that he was in good Hope it would have been made Twenty Thouſand Pounds. But that he ſaw then it would very hardly be accompliſhed, unleſs his Lordſhip would be pleaſed to take ſome Courſe, that ſuch Citizens as did wilfully abſent themſelves, and others that had left the City, and betaken themſelves into the Country, might likewiſe be compelled to contribute unto the ſaid Loan. Whoſe Names, and Dwelling Places, together with a Particular of ſuch Sums as they ſtood charged with, he ſent unto his Lordſhip by his Brother, Sir George Bond, [an Alderman.] And that he could well inform his Lordſhip, how effectually this Buſineſs had been travailed in. He added, that he was very ſorry that he ſhould be occaſioned by the Backwardneſs of ſome, to give ſo hard an Information unto his Lordſhip againſt any one, that would be accounted a good Citizen. But in reſpect of his Duty, he could do no leſs, but lay the Fault and Blame on ſuch as committed the ſame. And ſo beſeeching his good Lordſhip to receive in good Part, what his good Will and dutiful Pains had accompliſhed herein, he humbly took his Leave. Dated at London, the 15th of November, 1588.

An Alderman impriſoned about it.

Not long after I find one of the Aldermen, viz. Alderman Skinner, in Hold for Diſobedience to an Order of the Queen's Council, whom I ſuſpect to be one of thoſe that upon Retirement out of the City, or ſome other Cauſe, refuſed to contribute what was allotted him to this Loan. The reſt of his Brethren the Aldermen, had laboured with him to comply, but without Succeſs; till now in September, 1589, they joined together in their Supplication to the Privy Council, to order his Enlargement, upon his giving Security for his Forth-coming, whenſoever the Privy Council ſhould call for him; and that becauſe his Wife lay at that Time very much indiſpoſed; they hoping that by this gentle Uſage they ſhould at length prevail with him. To which Supplicatory Letter the Maior, and Twelve more, ſubſcribed their Names. After this manner ſhewing their Deference to the Queen, as well as Interceſſion for their Brother.

The Maior and Aldermen to the Council for his Enlargement.

‘Right Honourable, our very good Lords: How acceptable a Thing it might be unto us, by any good Means to reduce our Brother, Alderman Skinner, to conform himſelf unto your Honour's Proceedings, it may be your Lordſhips by our often and humble Motions, might rightly judge. And yet in that we are perſuaded, nothing may ſo ſoon inform him in the Conſideration of his Obedience, proceeding from your Lordſhips in the Time of this his reſtrained Liberty: We have therefore thought good, preſuming upon your Honourable Favours, and tendring the Good of our ſaid Brother, to become humble Suitors unto your good Lordſhips. Beſeeching the ſame to be ſo graciouſly pleaſed, as upon Security and Pledges for his Forthcoming, he may be enlarged out of Priſon for ſome convenient Time, to your Lordſhips thought Good. And the rather we are to beſeech and intreat the ſame, in that the Gentlewoman, his ſorrowful Wife, overcharged with inward Grief, is at this preſent very Sick; and in what Peril, we know not. To whom the Preſence of her Huſband would be, no doubt, a ſingular Comfort and Relief. Howbeit, if upon this ſo great, and more than ordinary a Favour granted by your Lordſhips, at our humble Suit, he may not be won to that Obedience and Conformity by us his Brethren, and other good Friends, as may ſtand with Regard to his Duty to her Majeſty and your Lordſhips, then to yield and ſubmit himſelf Priſoner again at your Lordſhip's Command. But we are in good Hopes ſo to prevail with him by our good Perſuaſions and Endeavours, as to win him to that Submiſſion, as the Conſideration of the preſent Caſe doth require. And thus beſeeching your Honours to tender and pardon this our great Boldneſs, we humbly betake your Lordſhips to the moſt Gracious Protection and Providence of God. At London, the 13th of September, 1589.

The Aldermen and Merchants borrow Bullion of the Queen.

And as the Queen borrowed of her loving Citizens, upon urgent Occaſions, ſo her Citizens would ſometimes borrow of her; ſuch was the good Underſtanding between her Majeſty and them. Such a Requeſt Alderman Martyn made to the Lord Treaſurer, in the Name of himſelf, and other Aldermen and Merchants trading to Turkey, in the Year 1584, for a conſiderable Weight of Bullion in the Tower, their Ships being now ready to Sail. Which Requeſt they ſeconded with their Letter to the ſaid Lord, writ in February. ‘That he would pleaſe to underſtand, that Mr. Alderman Martyn had been an humble Suiter unto his Lordſhip, in Behalf of the Company of the Turky Merchants, to be Mean unto her Majeſty for the Loan of Ten Thouſand Pound Weight of Bullion for certain Years, for the better Maintenance of their Trade, ‘they being charged divers Ways, as his Lordſhip well underſtood: And for that they had at that preſent Time, Ships ready to go forth for thoſe Parts, they humbly beſeeched his Lordſhip to procure her Majeſty's Reſolution therein, before the ſame Ships departed, for the better Direction of their Affairs there. And ſo humbly beſeeching him to ſtand their good Lord herein, and craving Pardon for this their Boldneſs, they humbly took their Leaves.

A Supply granted to K. James I. for Ireland.

E. How's Abridgment.

King James the Firſt, near the beginning of his Reign, was apprehenſive of a Rebellion in the North of Ireland; when the Citizens of London ſeaſonably ſupplied him with Twenty Thouſand Pounds for his Iriſh Affairs. It was in the Month of July, 1609, or 1610, that that King offered the Lord Maior and Citizens a Poſſeſſion and Plantation of Engliſhmen, in the Province of Ulſter. Accordingly they adviſed themſelves therein. And in Auguſt they ſent Four expert and diſcreet Perſons, accompanied and directed by Sir Thomas Philips, (as the Lords of the Council had appointed) to Survey that Province, and to obſerve the Profits, with the State and Condition thereof, and to report what Ruins were to be Repaired; and what Cities, Caſtles, and Towns, were preſently to be Builded. When theſe Four Surveyors were returned, they certified the true State thereof, and of the Commodities, Honour and Credit, that was likely thereby to accrue to the City. And ſo they reſolved to agree to the King's Offer, and Levied the foreſaid Sum. And by Virtue of an Act of Common Council, they conſtituted Twenty Four Committees, conſiſting of Six Aldermen, and Eighteen Commoners; the Two Chief were called the Governor and Deputy: All which to be choſen every Year: And to have all Power and Authority to order and diſpoſe all Matters, for Plantation, Traffick, Rule and Government, in that Northern Part of Ireland. On the 14th of February, they made Publication thereof; ſignifying unto all Handicrafts Men that would go thither, that they ſhould have preſent Entertainment and Employment in this Expedition, and their full Wages, with their Dwelling Houſes, and other good Means, for the Maintenance of themſelves and their Families. Upon Knowledge whereof, there came about Three Hundred Perſons: Who were preſently fitted and furniſhed with all Things neceſſary; and with all convenient Speed were ſent to Ulſter. And ſo this Expedition proved Proſperous: Alderman Cockain being the firſt Governor.

The Iriſh Company.

The Succeſs of the Cities Plantation in Ireland.

But to give ſome further Account, how this weighty Buſineſs proceeded. There were ſoon after, many Neglects and Abuſes about this Plantation. Which the King, taking Notice of in the Year 1613, intimated at Greenwich unto the Governor, and divers Aldermen and Citizens, being of the Committees. And at a great Common Council upon Midſummer Day, Sir Henry Mountague, the King's Serjeant at Law, came unto them from the King, and declared unto them the Errors in the due Proſecution of this purpoſed Plantation. And that it was his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould forthwith ſend over ſome of themſelves, and ordain a better and more ſpeedy Courſe in this Plantation; that is, for Planting, Fortifying, Conſtituting, Governing and Building: And to take exact Survey of all Places, and all Perſons and Expences, to be employed in this weighty Buſineſs. Upon this Meſſage from the King, the Lord Maior, and Citizens, ſent over thither one Alderman, (viz. George Smithes) and one Commoner: and the Governor and Committees ſent alſo, to aid them in their Negotiation, Captain Panton, a Citizen, an excellent Soldier, to give his Direction in Fortification, and one Soutles, a Skilful Man for a Surveyer of the Buildings, and one Moſſe, a Sollicitor of London, to be their Secretary. Theſe embarked for Ireland, and arrived at Dublin. And thence went to the Province of Ulſter. Where they Surveyed the chief Cities belonging to their Plantation, viz. the Cities of London-Derry and Coleraine, with the Situation, and Fortifications thereof; and examined what Offices and Officers had been formerly Conſtituted; and which were fit to be continued or changed; and to ſettle the beſt Courſe for Commerce with good Government in Peace and War. And having ſpent Three Months in theſe Parts, they returned; having eſtabliſhed their Towns, Lands, and Buildings, in the beſt Manner the Time would permit. And made Report by Writing unto the Governor and Committees very exactly, anſwering Forty Four Articles of Inſtructions given them in Charge by the Committees: And alſo they delivered to the Common Council, a Relation in Writing of the whole Matter of their Proceeding in this Buſineſs; and their Advices for the Proceedings hereafter. Which the ſaid Common Council accepted and approved.

E. Howes.

Further, in the Year 1616, by a ſpecial Commiſſion from the King, and from the City of London, Peter Proby, Alderman, and Governor of the new Plantation of the Province of Ulſter, in Ireland, accompanied with other Citizens appointed, went thither and miniſtred the Oath unto all Officers, and others, for the well Government, and making true Accounts. And he carried over with him Two rich Swords. Whereof one he delivered to Sir John Vaughan, Knight, Maior of London-Derry; and the other to Triſtram Berisford, Eſq; Maior of Colerain, for the Time being: To be born before them and their Succeſſors for ever. There was alſo ſent unto the Maior of London-Derry, a great guilded Mace, being ſent him from the Governor and Aſſiſtants of the Plantation. And after Mr. Proby had ſtayed about a Quarter of a Year in thoſe Parts, and ordered Matters, he returned back with his Company to London again.

Citizens of great Wealth and Honour.

It would be endleſs, and indeed impoſſible, to give a particular Enumeration of the Citizens of moſt Note for Wealth; let it ſuffice to take Notice of a few; who were not only Wealthy, but employed by their Princes, and advanced to great Honour.

Sir Michael de la Pole.

Sir Michael de la Pole, created by King Richard the IId Earl of Suffolk, and conſtituted Lord Chancellor of England, was the Son of a Merchant of London.

Sir William Fitz-Williams.

Sir William Fitz-Williams, a Merchant Taylor, ſometime Sheriff of London, was preferred firſt to Cardinal Wolſey's Houſhold, and afterwards Privy Counſellor to King Henry the VIIIth, Treaſurer of his Houſhold, and Lord Admiral of England:

England: and advanced to the Title of Earl of Southampton.

Sir John Allen.

Sir John Allen, Lord Maior of the City, a Man of great Wiſdom: The ſame King Henry the VIIIth made one of his Privy Council.

Sir Thomas Greſham.

The Queen's Agent at Antwerp.

Sir Thomas Greſham, Mercer, famous and well known to Poſterity, for that Noble Uſe he made of his great Riches in building the Royal Exchange, and founding a College out of his own Houſe, for profeſſing the liberal Arts and Sciences. This Man King Edward VI. Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth, employed as their Agent Abroad; eſpecially at Antwerp, where he had been a Merchant. But chiefly he was Queen Elizabeth's Factor unto the Year 1570. In the Year 1566, in the Month of Auguſt, he was ſent over to Antwerp, to take up Money for the Queen; and took up Fourteen Thouſand Six Hundred Sixty Seven Pounds Six Shillings and Eightpence Flemiſh, payable at Antwerp, the 20th of February following. And there was prolonged from the 20th of Auguſt, the Sum of Thirty Four Thouſand Three Hundred Eighty Five Pounds Thirteen Shillings and Fourpence Flemiſh, due then from the Queen, and payable the 20th of February. Which Sums together in the whole, were about Forty Nine Thouſand, Fifty Three Pounds. And in December, the ſame Year, there was another Debt of the Queens prolonged, being the Sum of Eight Thouſand Five Hundred Thirty Two Pounds Flemiſh, for Six Months.

And whereas the Queen had for a good while followed the Practice of taking up Money Abroad of Strangers, (as King Edward and Queen Mary had done before her) he perſuaded her to take up the Money ſhe needed of her own Merchants, which would be both for her Honour, and for the Benefit of them, while ſhe allowed them the ſame Conſideration ſhe had done Strangers before.

His excellent Counſel to the Queen for taking up Money.

Hamburgh Merchants.

And Greſham's Honour will always remain, for this excellent Counſel, and for another Advice, in the Year 1569, when the Queen, and her Treaſurer, were in a great Plunge, when ſhe owed much Money, and had need of more, and knew not whence to have it, but from the Rich Bankers of Antwerp: And all Correſpondence with that City was now broke off by Duke D' Alva's Governance of the Low-Countries. The Engliſh therefore were now carrying away their Effects and Trade to Hamburgh. Secretary Cecyl, (who now managed the Exchequer) feared, that the Merchants ſhould not have Money enough to carry on the Trade, as they would have had, if all were open with Antwerp: And the Queen owing much Money to the Merchants, and to her Creditors Abroad, ſhe intended out of the Cuſtoms of Cloth to have repaid them. Which ſhe feared therefore would fall ſhort, the Trade being removed to a new Place. Theſe Doubts the Secretary imparted to Sir Thomas Greſham. Who knowing well the State of Trade, and of the Merchants, told the Secretary, that in his Opinion he needed not to make any Doubt of that ſeeming Difficulty, viz. of the Queen's Payment of her Creditors, if ſhe ſaw her Merchants well paid in London their firſt Payment, which was half of her Debt to them. For by that Time the other Money ſhould be payable here to her ſaid Merchants, they ſhould have both Plenty of Money at Hamburgh, and here. He aſſured him, the Goods that our Merchants had ſhipped from Hamburgh hither, were well worth One Hundred Thouſand Pounds, and better. And the Shipping that they made now hence with our Commodities, was richly worth Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds, and better. For that there would be above Thirty Thouſand Pounds Worth of Cloaths. The Cuſtom whereof would be worth to the Queen, at the leaſt, Ten Thouſand Pounds; which would diſcharge, he ſaid, that Debt, if the Queen pleaſed. And whereas the Secretaries greateſt Care was, that our Merchants ſhould not have Money enough for to buy up our Commodities, Greſham told him, he needed not doubt of it, conſidering the great Vent they had at Hamburgh already, and were like to have.

Therefore he humbly beſeeched the Secretary, for the Stay and Advancing of the Queen's Credit, that this ſmall Payment, agreed upon already at Hamburgh, might be paid, conſidering that he had written before to the ſaid Creditors, that they ſhould have a Payment made there now this Auguſt. Which Payment, he ſaid, would not a little advance her Highneſs's Honour and Credit. And how much her Highneſſes Credit had ſtood her in Stead beyond the Seas for ready Money, it was now too tedious and long a Matter to trouble him withal. But that if he were able to perſuade the Queen's Majeſty, and him, the Secretary, he would have that Matter, above all other Things, cared for: Aſſuring him that he did know for certain, that the Duke D' Alva was more troubled with the Queen's great Credit, and with the Vent of her Commodities at Hamburgh, than he was with any Thing elſe, and quaked for Fear, as Greſham expreſs'd it. Which, as he ſaid, was one of the chiefeſt Things that let and hindred, that the Duke could not come by the Tenth Penny that he then demanded, for the Sale of all Goods any kind of way in the Low Countries; which, Greſham believed, would be his utter undoing. He adviſed therefore, that the Queen would in this Time uſe no Strangers, but her own Subjects; whereby he, and all other Princes might ſee, what a Prince of Power ſhe was. And by this Means there was no Doubt, but that her Highneſs ſhould cauſe the Duke of Alva to know himſelf, and to make that End with the Low Countries, that her Majeſty would her ſelf, what Bruit ſoever was there ſpread Abroad to the contrary.

And ſeeing he was entred ſo far, (as he proceeded with the Secretary) concerning the Queen's Credit beyond the Seas, wherein he had travailed this Twenty Years, he added, that by Experience in uſing our own Merchants, he found great Honour accrued to the Prince, and alſo great Profit to the Merchants, and to the whole Realm, whatſoever ſome of the Merchants ſaid to the contrary. For when our Prince ought her own mere Merchants Sixty or Eighty Thouſand Pounds, then they knew themſelves, and were daily ready to ſerve as good Cheap, as Strangers did: Which he would wiſh again in ſuch Time of Extremity to be uſed. For that he knew our Merchants were able to do it. Becauſe the Debt is divided into many Mens Hands, and by no Means can hinder them, having Intereſt. This was the wiſe Policy and Advice Sir Thomas Greſham once gave the Queen, at a very critical Juncto, as any happened in her Reign. And meeting with ſuch a choice Remain of this brave London Merchant, I could not but, for his laſting Honour, publiſh it in this Place, though ſomewhat Long.

And having ſaid all this, let me ſay a little more of this eminent Merchant, in regard of his Counſel to the Queen for procuring Money, and keeping up her Credit among the Kingdoms and Princes of the World; and his own Aſſiſtance of her with conſiderable Treaſure; with reſpect to this critical Year, 1569; when the Queen ſeemed to be in a very great Plunge for Money.

One Regio, a Genoeſe Merchant, had now in the Queen's Hand in the Tower, Twenty or Thirty Thouſand Duckets, and much more with other of his Friends in London. This Greſham knowing, perſuaded the Secretary, that this Money pertaining to Merchants, ſhould be put to the Uſe of ſome Profit : as to Mint it into her own Coin ; whereby ſhe would be a Gainer Three or Four Thouſand Pound, and enrich her Realm with ſo much fine Silver. And for the Repair thereof, ſhe might pay it by the way of Exchange, or otherwiſe, to her great Profit. As alſo ſhe might take it up of the ſaid Merchanrs upon Intereſt, upon the Bonds accuſtomed, for a Year or two : Which he thought they would be right glad of. And ſo, with the ſaid Money, ſhe might pay her Debts both here and in Flanders ; to her great Honour and Credit throughout all Chriſtendom.

He ſends five Sacks of Spaniſh Ryals to be coined for the Queen.

And for his own particular Supply of the Queen, at this Time of Need, in September, he ordered Hugh Clowghe, his Servant, to deliver by Weight, Five Sacks of new Spaniſh Ryals at the Tower, to Mr. Stanley of the Mint ; to be coined for the Uſe of the Queen : And to be done at Seven a Clock in the Morning, for the more Secrecy. Which Five Sacks weighed Nine Hundred ſeventy two Pound, eleven Ounces ; at Four Shillings, Ten-pence Farthing the Ounce.

His Wiſdom and Uſefulneſs to the Publick. Offspring of the Houſe of Ottoman : By Hugh Gage.

The great Deſerts of this worthy Citizen, are thus ſhewn and ſet forth by one, who dedicated a Book in theſe Times to him ; not only for that magnificent and uſeful Structure, the Exchange ; but alſo for his Wiſdom and Uſefulneſs in his publick Service and Counſel, for the Queen's Honour, and Safety of the Realm.

'That many had been beneficent to England, 'their native Country. Some, of a zealous Mind, 'had beſtowed their Sage Counſel, and Politick 'Devices, for Defence of the ſame. Others, of 'a favourable Affection, had given their Labours to the procuring in Readineſs of ſuch neceſſary Inſtruments, as in Time of Peace might 'ceaſe our doubtful Minds from Carefulneſs thereof ; and in perilous Seaſons of War, defend us 'from our daily imminent Adverſaries. The 'reſt, not being many in Number, had, of a 'godly and voluntary Will, wholly applied their 'Riches or Money, joined together, and laid out 'their Treaſures to the Erecting ſuch Noble Buildings, as might be for a Publick Commodity 'unto the Inhabitants of this worthy Iſle of 'Britain.

And then coming to apply this to the ſingle Perſon of Sir Thomas Greſham, he proceeded ; 'But alas ! too few have been furniſhed, in whom 'all theſe commendable Qualities have reigned ; 'both to be beneficial to their Country by ſage 'Counſil, procuring of Safeguard for Protection 'of the ſame, and beſtowing of their Subſtance 'to the building of ſuch Famous and Magnificent Works, as might ſerve for common Utility unto all Men. And by the Diſcretion of 'thoſe Men that be learned and wiſe, if ever 'any Subject hath enjoyed them, they attribute 'it unto you.

'For who is he that is ignorant of the Policies 'and Travels, which your Worſhip hath uſed and 'ſuſtained, for to get Safeguard and requiſite Furniture to the Realm ; beſides the infinite Riches 'given to the building of that Princely Work, 'commonly called The Burſe ; which already 'declareth, and in London is openly to be ſeen, 'what Commodity generally it will bring to the 'Citizens thereof ?

'Theſe Noble Exploits, as indeed they are not 'a little by all Men praiſed, cannot be highly 'enough commended.

Then this Writer ſhewed, how it was by ſome compared to the Tower of Babylon, to the Pyramids in Egypt, and other monſtrous Piles erected in other Parts of the World : And how this was preferred above them ; ſince they were built for a vain Oſtentation, without any profitable Uſe ; or of Envy, becauſe the Founders would not leave much Store of worldly Treaſure unto their Succeſſors.

He praiſed Sir Thomas alſo for his Temper, Courteſy, Gentleneſs, Friendſhip, and Liberality towards all Men ; yea, and towards the unknown and Strangers ; as divers had experienced.

Sir B. Hickes, Mercer.

To this rich and uſeful Commoner, in the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Time, a Mercer, I will aſſociate another wealthy Commoner, towards the End of her Time, and in the Beginning of K. James I. ; namely, Sir Baptiſt Hickes, Son of Robert Hickes, a Mercer alſo, keeping a Shop in Cheapſide, (of whom ſome mention was made before) at Soper Lane End, at the White Bear ; and of Juliana, Daughter and Heireſs of Arthur de Clapham in Comitat. Somerſet.

This Baptiſt, upon K. James's coming in, was ſworn his Servant, Anno 1603, and ſoon Knighted ; and before his Death was created Viſcount Campden. He ſupplied the Court with Silks, and rich Mercery Wares, when King James, with his bare Scotch Nobility and Gentry, came in : By which means he got a great Eſtate.

He was one of the firſt Citizens, that after Knighthood kept their Shops. But being charged with it by ſome of the Aldermen, he gave this Anſwer for it : That his Servants kept the Shop ; tho' He had a Regard to the ſpecial Credit thereof. And that He did not live altogether upon Intereſt, as moſt of the Aldermen Knights did, laying aſide their Trade after Knighthood. And that had Two of his Servants kept their Promiſe, and Articles concluded between them and him, he had been free of his Shop two Years paſt ; and did then but ſeek a fit Opportunity to leave the ſame.

This was in the Year 1607.

He had a Conteſt with the Aldermen of the City knighted, for Precedency ; ſtanding upon his Ancienty of Knighthood. And the Matter came at laſt to the Court Marſhal of England, to be decided.

He had two Daughters, Heireſſes ; who, as is reported, were worth 100000 l. apiece.

One married Noel Viſcount Campden, and was Lady Campden ; and died not many Years ago, living to a great Age, in great Splendor and good Report, for her Virtues, Charity and Hoſpitality, in Rutlandſhire.

The other Daughter, Mary, married Sir Charles Moriſon, of Hertfordſhire. And from an Heireſs of that Family, the Eſtate is now come into the Honourable Houſe of the Capels.

His Monument remains in the Church of Campden, in Glouceſterſhire, (that gave him his Title) with his Ladies, who erected the ſame : Which ſpecifying his Riſe, and his good Deeds, in the Epitaph, may deſerve a Place here.

To the Memory of her Deareſt and Deceaſed Huſband, BAPTIST Lord HICKES, Viſcount Campden ; Born of a worthy Family in the City of London. Who, by the Bleſſing of GOD on his ingenuous Endeavours, aroſe to an ample Eſtate, and to the foreſaid Degrees of Ho-

One

Sir John Cutler.

J. S.

One of the wealthieſt Citizens of later Times, and a great Benefactor to the Publick, (particularly his Buildings in Grocers Hall, and the College of Phyſicians ſince the great Fire) was Sir John Cutler, Knight, Grocer. The Earl of Radnor married his only Daughter. He died Anno 1693. Edmund Boulter, Eſq; being his Kinſman and Executor: Who paid the Earl (according to a printed Vindication of himſelf, and the Truſt repoſed in him) 39000 l. and upwards; being one Half of the Perſonal Eſtate, which devolved on the Counteſs as her Cuſtomary Part. The ſaid Boulter, in Funeral Expences, laid out above 7660 l. A Moiety of which belonged to the Earl to allow out of his Moiety. Beſides which, the Earl enjoyed the Profit of Lands, with his Counteſs, ſince her Father's Death, amounting to 14000 l.

Relations concerning ſome good Maiors.

And here, while I am mentioning particular worthy and wealthy Members of the City, I ſhall relate a few Acts and Paſſages of ſome Maiors in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, that ſhewed them both wiſe and good, or ſtout, or publick-ſpirited Citizens and Magiſtrates.

Sir T. Lodge his Behaviour upon ſome Threatnings from the Court.

Sir Thomas Lodge was Maior 1563; who ſhewed himſelf a Magiſtrate of good Courage, by this Paſſage which happened to him in his Maioralty.

One Edward Skeggs, an unworthy Citizen, (who for ſome Miſdemeanor loſt his Freedom of the City, but upon Submiſſion obtained it again) afterwards got to be a Purveyor for the Queen: And thinking, as it ſeems, to offer ſome Affront to the City, to make it the more publick, ſeized upon certain of the Maior's Proviſions; and out of Twenty two Capons for the Maior's Table, took Twelve for the Queen; and that with much ſawcy Language, not fit for the Chief Magiſtrate of the City to receive. Sir Thomas made him reſtore Six of the Twelve he had taken; and threatned him with the biggeſt Pair of Bolts in Newgate. But away goes Skeggs to the L. Steward, then the Earl of Arundel, thinking he had Tale enough now againſt the City. And the ſaid L. Steward, and Sir Edward Rogers, the Comptroller of the Houſhold, gave too much Ear to an ill Man's Complaint; and preſently wrote a very angry, threatning Letter to the Maior, compoſed in ſuch a Stile, that I believe ſeldom, or never, the like had been ſent to ſo great and eminent a Magiſtrate, and ſo immediate under the Crown.

It began, and proceeded in this Tenor.

The Letter from thence to him.

‘We be advertiſed that you have much miſuſed Edward Skeggs, Purveyor for the Queen's Mouth, in making Proviſion for her Highneſs own Perſon: As, in denying him of taking of Twelve Capons of Two and twenty. And of the Twelve, delivered you Six again. And for his ſo doing, you gave him ill Words, and threatning him to Newgate; and gave Commandment, the biggeſt Pair of Bolts in Newgate ſhould be ſet on his Heels: And ſaid, the Lord Steward, neither the ſaid Skeggs, ſhould have none of you for the Queen's Majeſty. And further ſaid to him, If he took your Capons any more, you would ſend him to Newgate, and ſet on him ſo many Irons as his Body could bear; calling him Villain.

‘For the which your Miſdemeanors, for that it is now a contagious Time of Sickneſs, we now forbear to do that, which hereafter we ſhall not forget to execute for her Majeſties better Service, and your better Knowledge of your bounden Duty. Charging you in the mean Time, to permit him, and all others her Majeſties Officers, for the Proviſion of her Majeſties moſt Honourable Houſhold, to do their Duties for the ſame. And if any of them ſhall do otherwiſe than to their Duties appertaineth; advertiſe us thereof, and we ſhall hear what may be ſaid therein. And the Matter proved, cauſe Reformation and condign Puniſhment of the Party offending.

‘From the Court at Greenwich, the Nineteenth of July.

ARUNDEL.

E. ROGERS.

The Maior being prudent, as well as ſenſible of his own Quality, and ſeeing this Storm hanging over him, made what Friends he could at the Court. And the Plague being then in the City, he durſt not come himſelf to the Court, to juſtify himſelf; but wrote his Letters to Two of his Friends, the Lord Robert Dudley, and Secretary Cecyl, to acquaint them with the Matter. That to the latter was to this Purport:

“That upon an untrue Report by the ſaid Skeggs, the Lord Steward and Mr. Comptroller had conceived great Diſpleaſure againſt him. But he aſſured the Secretary, that Skeggs his Reports were moſt untrue, and his Demeanor ſo intolerable, that if the ſame were duly examined, he would be judged an unfit Man for the Place where he ſerved; as, if the contagious Time were not ſuch but that he might repair to his Anſwer, it ſhould well appear. And that if He, and ſuch like, were more to be credited than He [the Maior] was, he thought himſelf a far unmeet Man for the Place wherein he ſerved. Yet he had ſufficient Witneſſes both of that Man's intolerable Compariſons and Demeanors, and of his [the Maior's] Dealings with him. That he had not ſeen, for his Time, that the Maior of London had been ſo dealt with. He prayed the Secretary to have Conſideration of this his Grief, as it might come in queſtion thereafter; for their Threatning portended a Diſpleaſure to come, What they meant thereby, he knew not. But that it ſeemed very ſtrange, to be ſo threatned upon the falſe Report of ſo ſlender a Perſon: And eſpecially he being of the City, ſo to be born with againſt the State of the ſame; whereat he kicked to his ſimple Power: Becauſe for his unjuſt Dealing (before he was retained in the Queen's Service) he was diſfranchiſed; and afterward, upon Suit made, reſtored again.

So warily, and yet with ſuch a Reſpect to the Honour of his Office, did Sir Thomas Lodge behave himſelf.

Sir Lionel Ducket.

Dearth of Proviſions.

In the Year 1573, there was a Dearth of Proviſions in the City, and in the whole Nation: Sir Lionel Ducket, Maior, out of his Care of both City and Nation, wrote to the Lord Treaſurer of England what the Occaſion thereof was: Namely, That this Scarcity of Butter, Victuals and Grain, was through the ſecret Tranſporting of them beyond Sea, both to France and the Low Countries; where they were then very dear; and that occaſioned by their Civil Diſſenſions at this Time: Whence it came to paſs, that there was neither ſuch Tillage uſed, nor ſuch further Proviſion made for themſelves as heretofore. Which, he ſaid, would cauſe a further Scarcity, and ſtill raiſe the Prizes higher. He informed the Treaſurer further, That many tranſported Grain out of ſundry Creeks and Havens of the Realm. And becauſe it waxed both ſcarce and dear about ſome of the Coaſts, ſome came up higher into the Land to buy Grain: And, as he was informed, that about Royſton, Malt roſe Three Shillings in a Quarter, and more, of late; and that chiefly by the Kentiſh Men, who came thither to buy it. And in fine, he ſuggeſted to the ſaid great Miniſter, that unleſs his Lordſhip, with the reſt of the Queen's Council, would ſee Redreſs in Time, it would be an Occaſion of making a Scarcity among them too.

This ſhews him both a careful and diſcreet Magiſtrate.

Sir James Harvey.

A Standard for Weights.

In the Year 1581, Sir James Harvey was Maior. In his Time were great Deceits, by reaſon of falſe Weights; and that not only within the City of London, but in other Cities and Places within the Realm. The Reaſon whereof was, becauſe the true Standard, made according to the Statute for the Sizing of all Weights, could not be found. This was heretofore complained of to the Lord Treaſurer; who took ſome Care for the Reformation thereof: But yet the Abuſe continued. This Maior therefore wrote to the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, to this Purport: "That, for that he was this Year charged in Conſcience, by reaſon of his Office and Oath taken, to ſee that Falſhood and Deceit puniſhed; he thought it his Duty, not only to remember his Lordſhip thereof, but to beſeech him, that he would give him his favourable Help and Advice, what Order or Courſe to take in the City, for the Reformation thereof.

Sir T. Blanke.

A Plague in his Year.

Let me alſo leave this good Remembrance of Sir Thomas Blanke, a Merchant, and Citizen born; Maior the next Year, viz. 1582. Which being a Year of Plague in the City, the Lord Treaſurer had ſent an Order to the ſaid Maior, to make a Catalogue of all the Victualling Houſes in London that were infected: Which Catalogue was to be ſet up, publickly to be read, to the end that all Strangers, that reſorted to London about their Occaſions, might avoid Setting up or Lodging at thoſe Houſes, to prevent their carrying Infection into the Country. And ſo to do it, from Two Months to Two Months. This Sir Thomas Blanke diligently did: And employing an expert Perſon to draw up this Catalogue, he had ſpecial Regard to two Things: The one, To give ſuch plain Deſcriptions and Notes of the Streets and Places, as might ſerve for eaſy Notice to ſuch as repaired to the City. The other; This Liſt to be ſo brief and contracted, as it might be brought into leſs than one Side of a Sheet, to be fixed in Places convenient.

The Maior prayed the ſaid Lord, to conſider of the proper Places which he thought good to note; having reſpect to Weſtminſter, and the way thereto out of the Liberties, and the Entrance all ways into the City.

The Maior put him alſo in mind, How in Term Time, uſually, all the Houſes in Fleetſtreet, and the Streets and Lanes adjoining, as alſo without Temple Bar, did uſe Lodging, Victualling, and Letting out of Chambers: Leaving to his Lordſhip's Conſideration, whether ſuch Houſes, tho' they were not Victuallers, ſhould not be likewiſe noted, if they had been infected within the Space of two Months.

Then he thanked his Lordſhip for his Honourable and Loving Care of the City, in the Matter of the Infection, and the Repair of the Queen's Subjects thither. And for his own Part, he promiſed, he would not fail in Diligence, according to his Direction.

The Slaughter at Paris Garden, which happened on a Sunday.

And whereas upon a Lord's Day, a great Number of People, being met for Sport at Paris Garden, all the Scaffolds fell down at once, to the ſlaying and wounding of a great many People; this Maior piouſly looked upon it as a Judgment of God, for Breach of the Lord's Day; and wrote to the Lord Treaſurer to this Tenor: "That it gave great Occaſion to acknowledge the Hand of God, for ſuch Abuſe of his Sabbath Day; and moved him in Conſcience to beſeech his Lordſhip, to give Order for Redreſs of ſuch Contempt of God's Service. And that he had for that End treated with ſome Juſtices of Peace of that County, who ſhewed themſelves to have very good Zeal, but alledged want of Commiſſion; which they humbly referred to his Honourable Wiſdom.

The Queen's Beam, and Weights.

In his Maioralty, he, with his Brethren the Aldermen, and Common Council, entred upon the Buſineſs of Eſtabliſhing of Orders, for the true and upright Uſe of her Majeſties Beam, with the Weights thereto belonging. Which, upon Continuance, did daily wear, and needed to be renewed and ſized from Time to Time. And for this End, they were humble Suitors to him, to have in Remembrance the great Want the City and the whole Realm found, for Lack of Order to ſize Weights; whereby the Commonweal, as he wrote, took Detriment, and private Men preſumed (without Order) to ſell and uſe unlawful Weights, both in the City and in the Country, that were accuſtomed to their Aſſizing from London. And this Opportunity the ſaid Maior took; becauſe the latter Verdict, touching Weights, was long ſince delivered before the Treaſurer, and the reſt of the Court of Exchequer.

This Sir Thomas Blanke was commonly called The Good Knight. He died Anno 1588. His Epitaph, and his Ladies, are preſerved in this Book, in Billingſgate Ward.

In the Year 1588, Sir Martin Calthorp was Maior. Then the Queen had a Loan from the City; by reaſon, I ſuppoſe of her extraordinary Charges ſhe had been at in Preparation againſt the Spaniard, who attempted the Invaſion of England this Year. Every Company was taxed new by way of Loan, according to a Direction from the Lord Treaſurer to the Lord Maior.

In November was paid into the Queen's Receipt hereupon, 17952 l. 10 s. But many of the Citizens wilfully abſented themſelves; and many had wholly left the City, and betaken themſelves into the Country: whereby the Loan amounted not to the Sum of 20000 l. Which the commendable Zeal of the Maior for the Queen, and for the City's Credit, did endeavour to raiſe it unto. He, and Sir George Bond, Alderman, ſent the ſeveral Sums that each ſtood charged with unto the ſaid Loan, with their Names and Dwellings; and acquainted the Treaſurer how effectually this Buſineſs had been travailed in. And he wrote, That he was very ſorry that he ſhould be occaſioned, by the Backwardneſs of ſome, to give ſo hard an Information unto his Lordſhip, againſt any that would be accounted good Citizens: But in reſpect of his Duty, he ſaid, He could do no leſs, but to lay the Fault and Blame on ſuch as committed the ſame. And ſo left it to his Lordſhip, to take ſome Courſe with thoſe Citizens.

Sir Richard Martyn.

Sir Richard Martin, who was Maior 1589, was a very Wealthy, as well as wiſe Citizen. He was a Goldſmith, and had the Care of the Queen's Mint, being Warden thereof, and made her Plate, and bought her Jewels: Whereby very great Sums became due to him from her and the Court: Being Maior, he gave up to the Lord Treaſurer, an Account of the Debts owing to him, and other of his Expences: And prayed him for his honourable Help herein, eſpecially at that Time, becauſe of his preſent Charges, and Care of the Cities Affairs. And theſe were ſome of the Particulars brought in by him.

That particular Expence above-mentioned, which he brought in for Balances and Weights, refer to a very good Motion he made to the Treaſurer the laſt Year. There were Three Matters of publick Concern, which he propounded in February, Anno 1588, to the Conſideration of the Lord Treaſurer, in Relation hereunto.

Conſiderations propounded by Sir Richard Martyn to the Treaſurer, about Weights and Meaſures.

The Firſt was, the great Inconvenience that grew to the Queen's Subjects, and the whole Realm, by reaſon that the Treaſures of Gold and Silver paſſed then without weighing, contrary to her expreſs Proclamation in that Behalf: Which, he ſaid, was the Occaſion of bringing in, by Merchant Strangers, of much Light, falſe and counterfeited Gold Monies, and of the counterfeiting of much within the Realm; beſides Clipping, Sealing, and Waſhing; as lately had been done in Weſtminſter, where Four Shillings of the Pound was taken away by Clipping; and yet the Gold ſo clipped, uttered at the ordinary Value, as good and lawful. And alſo the Merchant Strangers perceiving a great Advantage in it to themſelves, to the intolerable Loſs of the Realm, did uſe (upon the Coining and Delivery of all heavy and fine Gold from her Majeſties Mint) to get the greateſt Part of it into their Hands, and Tranſport it out of the Realm; and inſtead thereof, bring in again that which was either Light, or elſe Falſe and Counterfeit. And beſides, the Clippers, Sealers, and Waſhers, and ſuch like Practiſers, choſe and weighed-out a great Part of the heavieſt, to make their Gains thereof by their unlawful Practices, to the Hindrance of the Commonweal. And albeit her Majeſties Proclamation, publiſhed for the Redreſs of thoſe Abuſes, did expreſly forbid the Taking and Delivery in Payment, of any Counterfeit Gold, or any Piece of Gold embaſed, or lacking of the juſt Weight, over the Remedies ſet down by the Proclamation: And albeit, as Warden of the Mint, according to the Queen's Commandment, and the Proclamation, he had made ready a convenient Number of Balances and Weights, (having diſburſed above Six Hundred Pounds for the ſame) as well of every Piece of Lawful Gold, as of the Remedies and Abatements, and ſtricken them with an E. Crowned; having ever ſince the Proclamation had them ready, to be delivered at thoſe Prices, which the Lord Treaſurer had Rated and Publiſhed, as the Proclamation appointed: And albeit alſo, her Majeſty by the Proclamation had appointed the chief Officers of every good Town, to have one Pair of the ſaid Ballances and Weights at his (the Wardens) Hands, marked, as aforeſaid, for every of their Towns, and had forbidden the Uſe of any other Weights for Gold, amongſt any of her Subjects, than only thoſe of the making and ſizing of him, the ſaid Warden of her Majeſties Mint, or his Deputies.

Yet notwithſtanding the ſaid Balances and Weights, that he had thus Made, Sized and Marked, remained, and lay in his Hands; and only a very few had been fetched away by thoſe Officers, and other Subjects. But the Coins of Gold ſtill paſſed in Payment without weighing, to the great Prejudice of the whole Realm.

For the Remedy of theſe Abuſes, he judged it convenient, that ſome Proviſion and Law were ſet down at the Parliament then in Being, for the effecting of the Proclamation. And, foraſmuch as Laws, without Overſeers to ſee them kept, were to ſmall, or no Effect, that therefore the Warden of the Mints within London, and the Suburbs, ſhould have Authority to Overſee, that the ſame be kept and obſerved there: And that all other Weights and Grains, uſed againſt the Meaning of the Proclamation, ſhould be rejected and forfeited; and the Offenders puniſhed by Impriſonment, and Penalty limited. And alſo, that the ſaid Warden, and ſuch of the Mint, and his Deputies, as he ſhould think meet, ſhould have Authority to enquire, examine, ſearch and find out the Offenders, in tranſporting her Majeſties Coin and Bullion of Gold and Silver out of the Realm; and to cauſe the Laws in that Behalf to be executed upon them; and the Forfeitures growing thereof, to redound to the ſaid Warden, and Officers, for their Pains.

The Second Matter propounded to the Treaſurer by Sir Richard Martyn, to be conſidered and remembred, was, that whereas her Majeſty had ſet forth a Proclamation for the eſtabliſhing of the Standard preſented to him by the late Jury; the one for the Troy Weights, which were to be uſed only for weighing of Gold, Silver, Bread, and Electuaries; and the other for the Avoir de Poiz Weights, uſed for the weighing of Spices, and all other Things vendible by Weight: Both the which Sorts of Weights were juſtly Sized, and marked with diſtinct Marks, according to that Proclamation, and remained in the Exchequer of Weſtminſter, as her Majeſties approved Standards, to Size and reform all other Weights by: And by the Proclamation, the Mint, the Clerk of the Market, and the Chief of every Town, named in the Statute for Weights, enacted in the Eleventh Year of King Henry the VIIth, were appointed to provide and fetch Standards, conformable to thoſe out of the Exchequer: And thereby to cauſe the like to be uſed in every good Town of England and Wales; and either to deſtroy all other varying from them, or to reform them to theſe: The which Standards had been delivered out to the Mint in the Tower of London, to the Chamber of London, the Clerk of the Market, and other appointed Places: So that there ought to be no other Weights uſed, than according to theſe Standards:

Now foraſmuch as it was greatly to be feared, and moſt certain, that for want of good Overſight to the Obſervation of the Proclamation, divers Perſons uſed hard Conſcience in uſing the old Weights unreformed; becauſe the old Standard and Weights of Troy being lighter than the new, they kept the old Standard thereof to ſell by, and the new, being the heavier, to buy by: And the old Standard and Weights of the Avoir de Peiz, being much heavier than the New, they kept the Old thereof to buy by, and the New to ſell by; and ſo fraudulently bought by one, and ſold by another; to the manifeſt Robbery of the Subjects, and to the great Gain of the Offenders, againſt God's Law, and the manifeſt Intent of her Majeſty's Proclamation.

Therefore, for the Exerciſe of juſt Weights, agreeable to her Majeſties approved Standards, and aboliſhing of all others, he thought it convenient, that ſome Law or Order might be ſet down, for the receiving and uſing theſe approved Standards; as in a like Caſe was made in the Eleventh Year of King Henry the VIIth. And that the Warden of the Mint by himſelf, or his Deputies, might have Authority in London, and thereabouts, to ſearch and puniſh the Offenders, and take as Forfeit, all Weights uſed contrary to the Law. And the Clerk of the Market, as to his Office appertaineth, and ſome other, to whom it may appertain, to have the like Charge in other Places.

The Third Matter was this, that there was a falſe Weight uſed in the Realm, to the great Loſs of the Nobility and Subjects, that uſed all Kinds of Gold Lace, Gold Wyer, and divers other the like: the which was made by the Goldbeaters, whoſe Ounce weighed not above Three Quarters of an Ounce of Troy Weight; and the Pound Weight not above Nine Ounces. Which was a meer Deceit for their private Gain, and for the Advantage of the Strangers, that brought the ſame out of Foreign Countries. A Matter in his Judgment wanting Reformation. Such a Care was there in this Magiſtrate of the publick Good.

Sir John Allot appoints Butchers in Lent.

In the Year 1590, Sir John Allot was Maior: A Man ſo juſt and honeſt in all his Actions, and who had ever been of ſo unblemiſhed a Reputation, that he would not endure to have the leaſt Reflection made upon him: And eſpecially being Maior, his Care was, that not any Evil Surmiſes ſhould be ſpread of him. Which made him once complain and appeal to the Lords of the Council, upon a falſe Report raiſed on him by one Mr. Aſhely, a Courtier. The Caſe was this. The Lords directed their Letters to the ſaid Maior, for the appointing of Six Butchers within the City for the next Lent; and another, in Favour of the ſaid Aſhely, to appoint Four of them. So there was left but Two for the Maior to appoint. And the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Lord Buckhurſt, the Lord Cobham, the Earl of Eſſex, the Earl of Ormond, Sir Thomas Heneage, and others, had ſeverally written to him in Favour of divers meet Men for that Purpoſe: Whoſe Requeſts he promiſed to accompliſh to his Power. It appears hence, that the Maior had a hard Game to play, viz. for him to ſatisfy all theſe Noblemen, in appointing as many Butchers as they recommended, and yet having but Two at his own Diſpoſe. Therefore he thought to ſtay Proceedings therein, before he had made the Lords privy thereto. But upon his Advertiſement of it, the Lords nevertheleſs continued their Minds towards Mr. Aſhley, for his Appointment of Four of the Six; whoſe Pleaſure the Lord Maior ſubmitted to. But Aſhley, (though he had his Will, yet) upon ſome Diſpleaſure conceived hereby, or ſome other ill Purpoſe toward the Maior, had, in the Preſence of the Lords, in a ſlanderous Manner, conſtantly affirmed that he had received Thirty Pounds for the Admittance of one Butcher; and that he had cauſed ſome Butchers, by whom he meant to make his Profit, to procure ſome Noblemen to write to him in that Behalf. Theſe Reports, as they were moſt falſe, he being a Perſon ever of great Integrity, could not bear: But petitioned the Lords; and ſaid, that this Report being moſt untrue and ſlanderous, he was unwilling to bear; conſidering that Place of Service, wherein it had pleaſed God to place him, and the good Opinion and Favour their Honours had ever, he truſted, conceived of his plain and upright Dealing; and that Shame that ſhould grow to him in the City where he had lived all his Life an honeſt Man. His humble Suit therefore unto the Lords was, that in regard of his Innocency in this Matter, they would cauſe, by ſome way as ſhould ſeem good to them, the ſaid ſlanderous Reports to be examined, that his Innocency might appear to their Lordſhips, and his good Name be ſomewhat reſtored, to his Credit and Comfort. Thus he, like a good and ſtout Magiſtrate and Citizen, ſo valued himſelf for his Integrity, that he required a Vindication of his good Name before the moſt Honourable Privy Council, where he had been traduced.

Sir John Hart ſtops a Patent for 12 d. a Chaldron on Seacoals.

One William Harris, in this Year 1590, endeavoured to get a Patent for the Search and Allowance of all the Seacoal that was to paſs out of the Realm. Sir John Hart, Maior immediately before Allot, above-ſaid, apprehended this to be of little Uſe, and meerly for the ſaid Harris's own Ends. For he was to have Twelve Pence a Chaldron. Whereupon, like a Publick-ſpirited Magiſtrate, he ſeaſonably applied himſelf to the Lord Treaſurer to ſtop the Patent. The Suit was commended under divers Pretences of a publick Benefit, but the End was nothing elſe, as appeared by the Patent, but a new Impoſition of Twelve Pence upon every Chaldron of Coals that ſhould be tranſported, for a private Man's Advantage. For the Inconvenience that would ariſe hence to the City, and others whom it might concern, he prayed the Treaſurer to make Stay of this Patent, and to inform her Highneſs of the Inconveniences, as to his Lordſhip ſhould ſeem meet.]

Valour and Faithfulneſs of Citizens.

J. S.

Now beſides the Wealth and Honour many Aldermen and other Citizens have attained to, the City hath juſtly acquired Luſtre and Glory from other Accompliſhments of her Members: Namely, ſuch as have given notable Teſtimonies of Bravery and Valour, or of their Loyalty and Fidelity to their Princes.

Sir William Walworth.

Sir William Walworth's Valour is well known in arreſting Wat Tyler, the Traitor, at the Head of ſome Thouſand of Rebels.

Ralph Baſſet.

Ralph Baſſet, Alderman, in King Edward the IVth's Time, when the City was Beſieged by the Baſtard Fauconbridge, and the Beſiegers had well near broke through Algate, and a Fight was there maintained dubiouſly between the Citizens and the Baſtard, this Alderman Baſſet, and Urſwic, the Recorder, being both well Armed, commanded the Portcullis, which was hitherto ſhut down, to be taken up. Which being done, they ruſhed forth upon the Enemies, and forced them back as far as Algate Church: And then by other Help utterly routed them.

Ralph Joſſelyn.

Raſe Joſſelyn, another Alderman of the City, that guarded the Bridge, where another Aſſault was made by the Baſtard, and who had ſet the Bridge on Fire; ſuch was his Manhood, that he ſallied out upon him and his Men, and followed them in Chaſe along the Waterſide, till they were beyond Ratcliffe, and ſlew and took many of them.

In the Twelfth Year of King Edward the IIId, the King being gone into Flanders, the French and Genoeſe, with Fifty Gallies, as Pyrates, came upon divers of the Coaſts of England, to ſack, burn and deſtroy the chief Maritime Towns. So they ſerved Southampton: They attempted the ſame at the Iſle of Wight, Haſtings, Thanet, the Havens of Cornwal, Dover, Harwich, Sailing about the Coaſts, from their Ships, and doing great Miſchief. The Tidings whereof was brought to the King, lying then in Brabant, that divers Ports in England were ſpoiled by thoſe Pirates: Which made him the ſpeedier in taking Revenge upon France. This put the City of London, no doubt, into a Conſternation, and put them upon defending themſelves; and the Maior, being now, in the King's Abſence, the Chief Magiſtrate, (and to whom the King had eſpecially committed the Care of the City,) made an extraordinary Preparation, by ſtopping up the Thames, to hinder the Enemies Ships from coming up to annoy the City. For that Purpoſe, beſides a ſtrong Fortification, he fixed Palliſadoes quite through the River, at a Place called, The Pengales, or rather Petty Galeis. Of which we have this Record:

A Lord Maior defends the City by Stakes ſet through the Thames.

London. Maior, audito Rumore quod alienie gena Hoſtes, cum galeis, [Gallies] &c. ad Civitat. Lond. veniſſe, ordinabat quandum Domum Bretagiatum, & ad ſumptus proprios in Loco vocat. Pengales (potius legend. Pettegaleis) de novo conſtruxit, & palos ex ea tranſverſo Aquæ Thames, figi fecit. Et nunc habet Licentiam dict. Domum proſternere, & amoliend. poſt pacem factam.

The Citizens Loyalty to Queen Elizabeth.

From their Valour we might come to their Loyalty. The City hath loved their Princes. Of their Love to Queen Elizabeth, I will give ſome Inſtances. September the 7th, 1586, being her Birth Day, in the Morning, all the Bells of London rang for Joy; and there was great Feaſting, eſpecially at Supper, the Citizens concluding the Day with all the Gladneſs imaginable. And the rather, for that this Year 1586, was diſcovered a very deſperate Plot againſt her Life and Government, by Bigotted Papiſts, wherein Mary Queen of Scots was concerned. And as many of the Nobility and Gentry had the Year before entred into a voluntary Aſſociation under their Hands and Seals, to revenge the Queen's Death, ſo this Year theſe Matters made the Parliament confirm it by Act. Which in a Speech to the Parliament, ſhe took particular Notice of: Looking upon it as a Miracle, that after Twenty Eight Years Reign, her Subjects good Will and Affection to her was the ſame, if not greater than at firſt. At this very Time ſeveral Traitors were to be tried, as Babington, and others, about the Scots Queen. The Attorney General ſent his Man to the Recorder, to ſet his Hand and Seal unto a Warrant, to ſummon a Queſt of Enquiry, to appear the next Day at Weſtminſter Hall. Whereupon the ſaid Recorder wrote in a Letter to the Court, that when the Citizens ſhould hear of it, they would like of it very well, for all their Cry was unanimous, that Juſtice might be done upon theſe Traitors.

The Recorder's Speech to the Queen in her Praiſe, Anno 1582.

And when Thomas Blank was to be ſworn Maior, which was in the Year 1582, the Citizens minding to take this Opportunity to expreſs their Love and Loyalty towards their Queen, when the Maior Elect was preſented to her in a great Appearance of Aldermen, and other Citizens, Fleetwood, the Recorder, as their Mouth, made an eloquent Speech to her, abounding in her Praiſes, but chiefly for her Care of Religion, ſo much undermined by Papiſts. This Speech, ſhe anſwered, that ſhe took in very good Part, only, ſhe ſaid, that he had given her more Praiſes than ſhe deſerved. Though indeed he had ſaid nothing but truly and juſtly, and as it was indeed; as he ſeriouſly told a Friend, upon Occaſion of theſe modeſt Words ſpoken by the Queen. She commanded her Lord Chamberlain to Knight the Maior, who kiſſed her Hand; and ſo they departed with mutual Satisfactions. And obſerving her wonderfully pleaſed in all Things, the Maior, and his Brethren, took great Delight thereat. Only it was obſerved, that ſome young Gentlemen, being more bold than well Mannered, ſtood upon the Carpet of the Cloth of State, and did almoſt lean upon the Cuſhions. Whereat the Queen found Fault with the Chamberlain, and Vice-chamberlain, and with the Gentlemen Uſhers, for ſuffering it.

Her Anſwer.

The Cities Supply, Anno 1588.

In the Year 1588, that Critical Year, when all the Popiſh Powers reſolved upon an Invaſion of England, the City gave a ſignal Mark of their Fidelity and Generoſity. For when the Queen's Council had aſked, what they would do in their Princes and Countries Right, at this dangerous Juncture, Sir George Bond, Maior, and the Aldermen, his Brethren, humbly beſought their Honours to ſet down what their Wiſdoms held requiſite in ſuch a Caſe: Whereat the Lords demanded Five Thouſand Men, and Fifteen Ships. The City craved Two Days Reſpit for giving in their Anſwer. Which being granted them, when the Day of their Anſwer was come, they moſt generouſly and nobly granted Double to what was deſired: Entreating their Lordſhips, in Token of their perfect Love, and Loyalty to their Prince and Country, to accept Ten Thouſand Men, and Thirty Ships amply furniſhed.

Their Entertainment of King Charles I. 1641.

The City gave a moſt Splendid and Magnificent Entertainment to King Charles the Firſt, November the 25th, 1641, upon his ſafe and happy Return from Scotland, when he Dined at Guild Hall. The Triumphant Manner, and Order whereof, and the Lord Maiors, meeting and receiving his Majeſty, for an Honourable Remembrance of the Cities Loyalty, was as follows.

The Right Honourable the Lord Maior, Sir Richard Gurney, and the reſt of the grave Senate of the City of London, the Aldermen his Brethren, being Advertiſed, that his Majeſty, in his happy Return from Scotland, would graciouſly condeſcend to paſs through the City, with his Royal Conſort, the Queen, the Prince, and other of the Princely Iſſue; at a Court among themſelves, took into their Conſideration, how to give Entertainment fit for his Majeſties Gracious Acceptance. And thereupon they ſelected a Committee of Six Aldermen, and Twelve Commoners: Who ſhould meet, conſult and order, what they in their Diſcretions ſhould think fit to conduce to the Honour of the City, and the Acceptance of his Majeſty. Yet before theſe Committees ſhould effect any Thing, it was thought neceſſary to Aſſemble a Common Council, as well to underſtand the Affection of the Commons, as to confirm thoſe Committees choſen.

The Matter, being propounded there, was entertained with an unanimous Conſent, and general Approbation, and the before-mentioned Committees were by the Court confirmed. Who thereupon met Daily, bending all their Thoughts how to ſatisfy the Truſt impoſed on them. And calling before them the Officers of the City, directed them what they ſhould do; charging them to leave nothing undone, which either Art, Labour or Coſt, in ſo ſhort a Time, could Compaſs.

The Preparations.

More particularly in the Firſt Place, their eſpecial Care was to give Order, as well to the Steward, Cook, Butler, and Confectioner, to make ſpeedy Proviſion of all Things, fit for the Royal Feaſting of their Majeſties, and their Princely Train; as to the Officers of the City Works, that the Guild Hall might be prepared, and made ready for the due and reſpective Receiving of them.

The next was, that Precepts might be ſpeedily directed to the ſeveral Societies and Companies of the City, that againſt the Day their Majeſties ſhould come, there ſhould be ſome of the prime Men choſen out of the Liveries, that ſhould be in Readineſs to attend the Lord Maior and Aldermen, in their beſt Array (either Velvet, Pluſh, or Sattin) and Chains of Gold, upon good Horſes, well appointed; and each Rider to have a Footman to attend him; to meet their Majeſties, and to conduct them, firſt to Guild Hall, and afterwards to his Majeſty's Royal Palace of White Hall. As alſo, that out of the Reſidue of their Companies, ſome ſhould be appointed to wait in their ſeveral Standings in their Liveries, from their Majeſties Entrance into the City, to Temple Bar. To which Purpoſe the Committee gave Order and Directions, where every ſeveral Companies Standings ſhould be ſet up. And laſtly, that others ſhould be nominated to attend in the Guild Hall upon their Majeſties, in their Liveries and Foins likewiſe, from the Time of their coming thither, to their Departure thence.

Another Care of the Committee was, that (the way from Kingſland to Shoreditch being impaſſable for their Majeſties, in regard of the Depth and Foulneſs of it) a Way might be prepared from thence to that Place of the City, where their Majeſties ſhould enter, as might not only be fair and clean, but as pleaſant alſo, and delightful, as the Seaſon of the Year would permit: And that the Streets, all the way they ſhould paſs, might be Paved, where Need was, and made ſweet and clean.

And becauſe ſome ſeditious Libels were at that Time diſperſed, (which bred a Panique Fear in ſome) Order was likewiſe taken, that there ſhould be Two Companies of the Cities Train Bands, placed in ſeveral Parts of the City, upon that Day: as alſo, that at every Door, a Man ſhould be placed, ſufficiently appointed, to be ready upon all Occaſions, to appeaſe any Diſorders.

Laſtly, Out of the ſaid Committee, Two of the City Captains were deſigned, as chief Marſhals for the Day; to have the Command over the other Three Marſhals, that were Officers of the Chamber: And to Order, Direct and Marſhal the Horſemen. And alſo Four other of the Committee were appointed, as Comptrollers of the Houſe. To whom all inferior Officers ſhould have Recourſe upon any Occaſion, and to direct and order the Liveries, which were to attend upon their Majeſties Service: And generally to diſpoſe all other Things, conducing to the Entertainment.

The Entertainment.

Now for the Entertainment it ſelf. Upon Thurſday, the ſaid November 25. the Knights of the Gray Cloak, Mr. Recorder, and the reſt of the Aldermen, the City Counſel, and Chief Officers, as Town Clerk, Common Serjeant, and Remembrancer, attended the Lord Maior, at his Lordſhip's Houſe in the Old Jury, by Eight of the Clock in the Morning. From whence they advanced through the City to Moregate, in this Manner.

Lord Maior ſets out; the Manner of it.

The Lord Maior, having the Sword-Bearer, and Two Mace-bearers before him, on Horſeback, and on Foot-Cloths, and Two Footmen in Black Velvet Coats, on each Side One, his Lordſhip wearing a Gown of Crimſon Velvet, and a Collar of SS. rode in the Front, the Knights aforenamed, Mr. Recorder, and the Aldermen following: according to their Seniority, Two by Two, in Scarlet Gowns, attended by Two Foomen apiece, Suited in the City Colours; each of which Footmen being appointed to carry a Truncheon in his Hand for the Forenoon, and Two Torches for the Afternoon. Next to them followed the City Counſil, and Chief Officers in Black Gowns upon Foot Cloths; each of them having a Footman going by them, ſuited and fitted as aforeſaid.

Five Hundred Horſemen of the Liveries, accompany the Lord Maior.

In this Equipage they paſſed through the City, from his Lordſhip's Houſe to Morefields: Where there waited in a Readineſs to attend his Lordſhip, and the Service, about Five Hundred Horſemen, ſelected out of the Liveries of the ſeveral Companies of the City, being Maſters, Wardens, and prime Men of each Company, in Velvet or Pluſh Coats and Suits, with Chains of Gold, and being well Horſed, and gallantly Furniſhed. Every Company having a Horſeman in the Front, carrying a Pendent with that Companies Arms, to which he did belong, (for Diſtinction Sake) and a Footman to attend each Horſeman of the Livery, with Truncheons, and Torches, as before: Both Horſemen with the Pendents, and Footmen, being ſuited Cap a pee, with the Companies Colours on which they waited. There were alſo Fourteen Trumpeters, with Trumpets, Banners and Scarfs: Who were placed Two between every Hundred of the Horſe, and Four at the Head of the Troop.

The Lord Maior, being thus attended, rode on with the Knights, Mr. Recorder, the Aldermen, City Counſil, and Chief Officers, as before; and after them the Five Hundred Horſemen, according to the ſeveral Ranks of the Companies: The Lord Maior's Company, (viz. the Clothworkers) being foremoſt; then the Mercers, and the reſt according to their Order.

The Lord Maior's Tent at Kingſland.

They all advanced, in comely Manner, through the Fields, (the Banks being caſt down, and Bridges of Fourteen Foot wide, being made over the Ditches, for better and more ſecure Paſſage) till they came beyond Balmes, (a retiring Houſe of Sir George Whitmore's) in the Fields next adjoining to Kingſland. The Night before being Rainy, and the Morning Gloomy and Cloudy, the Lord Maior commanded his Tent to be pitched in the Field, where his Lordſhip, the Knights, Mr. Recorder, and the Aldermen, were to attend their Majeſties. In the Tent were Seats and Forms; where his Lordſhip, and ſome of the Nobility repoſed themſelves, till their Majeſties came.

The Sheriffs wait at Stamford Hill.

In the mean Time, the Two Sheriffs of London and Middleſex, (George Garret, and George Clark) attended by Seventy Two Men in Scarlet Cloaks, trimmed with Silver Lace, (the Colours of the City) with Javelins and Feathers, and Four Trumpeters, rode as far as Stamford Hill, between Newington and Tottenham, (where they lay the Night before.) Who, after they had done their reſpective Duties, and kiſſed their Majeſties Hands, conducted them to the Field, where the Lord Maior, the Nobility and Aldermen, waited for them.

The Manner of the King's Coming.

His Majeſty came into the Field about Ten of the Clock, in a Coach, he ſitting on the Right Side of it, and her Majeſty on his Right Hand, the Prince, the Duke of York, and the Princeſs Mary, being within the Coach, and the Prince Elector Palatine, and the Dutcheſs of Richmond,

Richmond, ſitting on the other ſide: Their Majeſties being attended by divers Honourable Lords and Ladies.

When the Coach came againſt the Lord Maior's Tent, his Majeſty cauſed it to ſtay: Where divers of the Nobility, that had attended his Coming thither, preſented themſelves to his Majeſty, and Joying in his ſafe Return, kiſſed both their Majeſties Hands.

The L. Maior meets the King.

After which, the Lord Maior, Knights, Mr. Recorder and Aldermen, preſented themſelves likewiſe in humble manner to his Majeſty. The Lord Maior tendred the City Sword and Sceptre to him: Who redelivered them to his Lordſhip. Where kneeling (together with Mr. Recorder) by the Coach ſide, Mr. Recorder made a grave, pithy and ſhort Speech to his Majeſty, as followeth:

May it pleaſe your Majeſty!

The Recorder's Speech to the King.

‘This is a Day of exceeding great Joy to your Citizens of London; Joy exalted to the higheſt Degree, to ſee you return in Safety, after a long Abſence; and to ſee this happy Meeting with your deareſt Conſort, our good and gracious QUEEN; and with thoſe bleſſed Children, that are the Fruits of your Loves, and Pledges to us of a fruitful and hopeful Succeſſion.

‘I can truly ſay this from the Repreſentative Body of your City, from whence I have my Warrant: They meet your Majeſty with as much Love and Affection, as ever Citizens of London met with any of your Royal Progenitors, King or Queen of this Kingdom; and with as hearty a Deſire to ſhew it ſelf fully. Pardon their Failures, where you meet with any.

‘We tender unto you no ſmall Preſent. It would but leſſen us. I am ſure, whatever it were, it would be far ſhort of our Meaning.

‘We preſent unto you our Hearts and Affections: Hearts of true Subjects, full of Loyalty to you, our King and Sovereign.

‘'Tis true, in this we offer your Majeſty but your own. They were by juſt Right Yours before. But upon this new Enlivening and Expreſſion, be pleaſed to take them as a New Gift. We offer them Chearfully; Vouchſafe to accept them Graciouſly; and with the Influence of thoſe Excellent and Princely Virtues, which we know, by great Aſſurance, to be eminent in your Royal Perſon, the Defence of our Eſtabliſhed Religion, and the clear Current of your Juſtice, from the Fountain through the Streams; be pleaſed to cheriſh them.

‘Vouchſafe likewiſe to uphold and countenance that ancient Form and Frame of Government, which hath been long eſtabliſhed in the City; that Power and Authority of Yours, which you have committed to your Lord Maior, your true and faithful Subject and Servant; and the fit Reverence and Reſpect, due to the Aldermen, his Brethren; who are to aſſiſt him in his Government. We ſhall be thereby the better enabled to ſerve your Majeſty, and conſtantly to render to you the Fruits of a true Obedience; and (as our Duty binds us) we ſhall never ceaſe to bleſs you, and pray for you, and your deareſt Conſort, our Gracious Queen, and for this your Royal and Princely Offſpring; for your Majeſty's long Life, and proſperous Reign over us, in Peace and Glory, and with full Contentment. And I doubt not, but every true Subject will join with us in this, and ſay Amen.

‘Theſe Expreſſions of Joy, of Love, of Loyalty, and theſe hearty Wiſhes and Deſires, which I have mentioned, I meet with every where from your Citizens of London. They are the ſoft and ſtill Muſick, prepared for your Majeſty's Welcome, the Entertainment this Day. The joyful Acclamations of your People, upon the Sight of your Royal Perſon, will make it louder. And all chearfully bearing their agreeing Parts together, ſhall, I hope, this Day make up to your Majeſty a full and pleaſing Harmony.

To which his Majeſty made this Gracious Anſwer.

The King's Anſwer to the Recorder.

‘Maſter Recorder,

‘I muſt deſire you, (becauſe my Voice cannot reach to all thoſe that I deſire ſhould hear me) to give moſt hearty Thanks to all the good Citizens of London, for their hearty Expreſſions of their Love this Day to me. And indeed I cannot expreſs the Contentment I have received therein. For now I ſee, that all theſe former Tumults and Diſorders have only riſen from the meaner ſort of People; and that the Affections of the better and main Part of the City, have been ever Loyal and Affectionate to my Perſon and Government.

‘And likewiſe, it comforts me to ſee, that all theſe Miſreports, that have been made of me in my Abſence, have not the leaſt Power to do me prejudice in your Opinions: As may be eaſily ſeen by this Day's Expreſſion of Joy.

‘And now I think it fit for me to aſſure you, that I am returned with as hearty and kind Affection to my People in general, and to this City in particular, as can be deſired by Loving Subjects. The Firſt I ſhall expreſs, by governing you all according to the Laws of this Kingdom, and in maintaining you in your full Liberties: but chiefly, in maintaining and protecting the true Proteſtant Religion, according as it hath been eſtabliſhed in my Two famous Predeceſſors Times, Queen Elizabeth, and my Father. And this I will do (if need be) to the Hazard of my Life, and all that is dear unto me.

‘As for the City in particular, I ſhall ſtudy by all means their Proſperity. And I aſſure you, I willingly grant thoſe few reaſonable Demands you have now made unto me, in the Name of the City. Likewiſe, I ſhall ſtudy to re-eſtabliſh that flouriſhing Trade, which now is in ſome Diſorder among you. Which I doubt not to effect, with the good Aſſiſtance of the Parliament.

Londonderry.

‘One Thing I have thought of, as a particular Teſtimony of my Affection to you; which is, To give back unto you freely that Part of Londonderry, which heretofore was wreſted from you. This, I confeſs, as that Kingdom is now, is no great Gift. But I intend, firſt to recover it, and then to give it you whole and entirely. And for the Legal Part of this, I command you, Mr. Recorder, to wait upon me, to ſee it punctually performed.

‘I will end as I began, to deſire you, Mr. Recorder, to give all the City Thanks, in better Expreſſions than I can make. Tho' I muſt tell you, it will be far ſhort of that real Contentment I find in my Heart, for this real and ſeaſonable Demonſtration of their Affections to me.

The King makes the L. Maior and Recorder Knights with the City Sword.

His Majeſty having ended this gracious Speech, was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon the Lord Maior and Mr. Recorder, with the City Sword: Both their Majeſties graciouſly giving their Hands to kiſs, to them; as alſo to the Knights, Aldermen, City Counſil, and Officers.

After theſe Things done, his Majeſty and the Prince alighted from the Coach, and took their Horſes: The Queen, Duke of York, Princeſs Mary, Prince Elector, and the Dutcheſs of Richmond remaining ſtill in the Coach.

They ſet forward, and conduct the King towards the City.

In the mean Time, by the Care and Pains of the Two Captains of the Committee, and of the Three Marſhals that were appointed for this Day's Service, the Five Hundred Horſemen of the Liveries, and their Attendance, were brought into a Body, and ſet in Order, as before. And facing about, the whole Company ſet forward, to conduct their Majeſties into London; the Sheriffs Men, being placed in the Front, and the inferior Companies following them; and the reſt of the Companies after them: The Lord Maior's Company being next to the Aldermen. And advancing in a ſeemly Order, they made ſuch a gallant Shew, that their Majeſties and the Princes took great Delight and Content to behold them.

The Nobility, and others of his Majeſties Train, were marſhalled by the Officers of Arms. So that the whole Order was in this manner:

The Earl of Salisbury, Captain of the Penſioners.

The Gentlemen Penſioners with their Poleaxes; all mounted with Piſtols at their Saddles.

The Earl of Holland, Lord General beyond Trent.

And after him,

Viſcount Grandiſon, with many other principal Commanders in the late Northern Expedition.

After them, divers Ladies, and other Great Perſonages of Note.

The Yeomen of the Guard.

The King enters the City at Moorgate.

They all entred the City at Moorgate. Where their Majeſties were welcomed with a Noiſe of Trumpets, appointed to attend there to that Purpoſe.

From which Place they proceeded to Biſhopſgate: and ſo through Cornhill, to St. Laurence Lane End in Cheapſide.

The Companies in Liveries ſtood on the Left Hand, as their Majeſties paſſed by: The Rails of the Standings being covered with blue Cloth; and the Standings themſelves being richly adorned with Banners, Enſigns and Pendents, of the Arms of each Company reſpectively. Nine Companies of the Twelve ſtanding in the Morning: The Lord Maior's Company beginning againſt St. Laurence Lane End; and the other Eight, in their Order, towards Biſhopſgate. The reſt of the way where they left, to Moorgate, being ſupplied by ſome of the inferior Companies.

The Outſide of the Houſes, all the way their Majeſties paſſed, being beautified with rich Tapeſtry.

On the North ſide of the Street, (Four Foot diſtant from the Houſes) were Rails placed; to regulate and keep the People in good Order, from Biſhopſgate to Cornhill; and ſo to Temple Bar. At the Beginning of which Rails, (viz. at Biſhopſgate) by the Diſcretion of the Two Captains and Three Marſhals, the firſt Horſemen of the Liveries begun to make a Stand : The firſt Rank of them placing themſelves ſingle, faced to the Liveries that were in the Standings ; and the reſt, paſſing along, placed themſelves in the ſame Order. The Trumpets and Pendents in each Company ſtanding in the Front ; and then the Companies themſelves : The youngeſt being next to the Pendent ; and ſo upwards, by Seniority, to the Maſter of the Company, who took his Place laſt. Then began the Pendent, and youngeſt of the next Company, to make their Stand, as the former, till they came to St. Laurence Lane End : There being five Foot Diſtance from one Horſe to another. In which Space ſtood each Horſeman's Footman, with a Truncheon in his Hand : Making by this means a Guard for their Majeſties, and the reſt of their Train.

And it fell out, that moſt of the Companies of Horſe were placed right againſt their own Companies in the Standings.

The People that were Spectators in the Streets, were beſtowed, Part behind the Horſe, and Part behind the Liveries.

And by this good Order, their Majeſties and the Train paſſed quietly without Interruption.

Their Majeſties coming along Cornhill, ſeveral Trumpeters, that were placed in the Clock-Houſe of the Exchange, gave them their Second Welcome into the City. And as they went, the Conduit in Cornhill, and the great Conduit in Cheapſide, ran with Claret Wine ; to expreſs the Freedom of the City for the Joy of that Day.

Being come to St. Laurence Lane End, the Paſſage being ſtreight, neither Horſe nor Foot could be planted there. So that only the Sheriffs Officers, the City Counſil and Officers, the Sheriffs, Aldermen, and the Lord Maior, conducted their Majeſties, and their Train, to Guildhall.

heir Majeſties Entrance o Guildhall.

At their Entrance there, divers Honourable Lords and Ladies, that had not given their Attendance abroad, preſented themſelves to his Majeſty, and conducted him and the Queen up to the new and old Counſil Chambers ; being appointed for their Repoſe, till Dinner might be ſerved to the Table : The Four Comptrollers for the Day, and about Eighty comely and grave Citizens, in Foins and Liveries, ſtanding, and making a Lane on both Sides their Paſſage. To whom their Majeſties ſhewed gracious Reſpects : The Muſick of the City giving them their next Welcome.

The King dines at the Huſtings.

Their Majeſties being no ſooner repoſed, but Word was given for Serving up of Dinner, to their Table. The Place appointed for it was the Huſtings, at the Eaſt End of the Hall : Which was raiſed almoſt two Yards from the Ground ; the Floor being covered with Turky Carpets ; and all the Hall, (as all the other Rooms of the Guildhall) was hanged, and adorned with rich Tapeſtry.

In the Middle of the Place where their Majeſties dined, was hung up a Cloth of Eſtate ; and two Chairs of Eſtate were ſet under it. Before which was placed a Table of Six Yards long. At the South End whereof, (two Yards diſtant from the Table) was a Table of Garniſh, of three Yards ſquare. And at the North End, was a Room erected for Muſick of all ſorts ; for the better Entertainment and Delight of their Majeſties, while they ſhould be at Dinner.

And four or five Steps under the Place, where their Majeſties dined, was a Frame of Timber erected, and floored with Deals, a Yard from the Ground ; which extended almoſt to the Hall Door : Upon each ſide whereof was a Table ſet, from the upper to the lower End of it. At which two Tables, the Lords and Ladies that attended their Majeſties were to dine. Between which was a ſpacious way left, covered with green Bays, whereon their Majeſties were to paſs to the Place where they ſhould dine.

And in the Weſt Part of the Hall, below the Gate, on the South ſide, was a long Table placed for his Majeſty's Penſioners. And in all other Rooms, that were not for their Majeſties Privacy, were likewiſe Tables prepared for ſeveral Sorts of their Majeſties Attendants.

The Dinner was ſerved up in this manner.

The Manner of Serving up Dinner.

From their Majeſties Table to the Dreſſer, (which was at the Weſt End of the Hall) ſtood the Eighty Livery Men, before mentioned, in two Ranks, about two Yards diſtant from each other, Face to Face : One Rank of them receiving from the Dreſſer the King's Meat, and the other the Prince's, at one and the ſame Time. They never ſtirring, or removing from their Places ; but delivering Diſh after Diſh, from one to another, till it came to the Sewers : Who placed it upon the Table.

Four Services for the King : The Firſt of 50 Diſhes.

Their Majeſties Meat was proportioned into Four Services. The Firſt conſiſting of Fifty Diſhes of cold Meats ; as, Brawn, Fiſh, and cold baked Meats, planted upon the Garniſh, or Side-Table. The other Three Services were of all Sorts of hot Fleſh and Fiſh, boiled, roaſted, and baked ; to the Number of One Hundred and twenty Diſhes. After which was ſerved up a curious and well-ordered Banquet.

At the High Table dined his Majeſty, his Royal Conſort the Queen, the Prince, the Duke of York, the Princeſs Mary, and the Prince Elector Palatine, in this Order :

The King ſat under the Cloth of Eſtate, and her Majeſty cloſe to him, on his Left Hand. On his Majeſty's Right Hand, (about a Yard diſtant) ſat the Prince : And about the ſame Diſtance from his Highneſs, ſat the Prince Elector.

At her Majeſty's Left Hand (about a Yard's Space from her) was placed the Princeſs Mary ; And not far from her, the Duke of York.

The Service for the Tables of the Lords and Ladies was thus ordered :

The Service for the Lords and Ladies Tables.

The Liveries, before mentioned, (after the Meat was placed on the High Table) ſerved up the Dinner to thoſe Tables ; but in another Poſture. For whereas before they ſtood in two Ranks, Face to Face ; they now turned Back to Back. The Reaſon was, becauſe (the Meat being ſerved up to both Tables together) the one Rank of them might face to one Table, and the other to the other.

To theſe Two Tables were appointed Ten Meſſes, conſiſting of Five Hundred Diſhes.

Theſe Two Tables being likewiſe furniſhed, Care was taken for the reſt of the Train, that were thought fit to be entertained within the Hall : Who were all ſerved ſo plentifully, that not a Man was heard to go diſcontented away.

And becauſe it was conceived beforehand by the Committees, that there might come more Company with their Majeſties than could be conveniently provided for within the Hall ; large Proviſion was made abroad for the Guard, Footmen, Coachmen, and the like : Where there dined about One Hundred and fifty Perſons of all ſorts.

His Majeſty received ſuch Content, as well in the Freedom of the Entertainment, as in the well-ordering thereof ; that he was pleaſed by Words to expreſs his Royal Thoughts, as well at Dinner as afterwards, (ſo did the Queen, Princes and Nobility) how great Content and Satisfaction he received from the City by it.

The King makes a Knight.

His Majeſty alſo, after Dinner, ſent for Mr. John Pettus, a Gentleman of an ancient Family in the County of Suffolk, who had married the Lord Maior's Daughter; and beſtowed the Honour of Knighthood upon him: Knowing, that whatſoever in this kind he ſhould do to his Lordſhip, or his, muſt neceſſarily reſult to the Honour of the City, and be an Expreſſion of his Grace and Favour to it.

The King departs towards Weſtminſter.

Their Majeſties having repoſed themſelves a while after Dinner, (the Days being ſhort) the Word was given for their Departure. And by this Time, the Three Companies of the Twelve, and the reſt of the inferior Companies, that had not waited in the Morning, had taken their Standings from St. Laurence Lane End Weſtward, towards Temple Bar.

The Two Captains alſo, with the Three Marſhals, had ordered the Horſemen after this manner:

They firſt drew up the Sheriffs Men in the Front, by two and two. Then they cauſed the Rear of the Horſemen, that had made the firſt Stand at Biſhopſgate in the Morning, to paſs through the reſt of the Companies, after the Sheriffs Men: And ſo the reſt according to their former Order; till the whole Number of Five Hundred were ranked again, by two and two, as in the Morning: And ſo paſſed through Cheapſide; till the Rear of the firſt Company (which was the Lord Maior's) came even with St. Laurence Lane End. And in this Order they ſtayed, till their Majeſties were ready to come out of Guildhall; which was about Four of the Clock in the Afternoon.

The Lord Maior carrying the Sword before his Majeſty, as in the Morning; and the reſt that conducted him from Cheapſide to Guildhall, led his Majeſty thither again: Where the Word was given for the Horſe to advance. Which they did; and every one fell into the ſame Order which they had in the Morning: The greateſt Difference being, That whereas in the Forenoon the Footmen carried Truncheons in their Hands, they now went with lighted Torches: Which gave ſo great a Light, as that the Night ſeemed to be turned to Day.

As their Majeſties paſſed along, the Trumpets and City Muſick were placed in ſeveral Parts, ſounding and playing: Which, together with the ſeveral continual, and joyful Acclamations of the People, gave great Content to both their Majeſties.

As they paſſed by Pauls, the Choir ſung an Anthem.

The little Conduit in Cheapſide, and the Conduit in Fleetſtreet, running with Wine; as the other two Conduits had done in the Morning. And in their Paſſage by the South Door of St. Paul's Church, the Choir (with Sackbuts and Cornets joining with them) ſang an Anthem of Praiſe to God, and Prayers for their Majeſties long Lives. Which pleaſed his Majeſty ſo well, that he gave them an extraordinary Reſpect.

Emulation between their Majeſties and the Citizens.

And in their Paſſage to Temple Bar, he made ſuch Expreſſions of his Gracious Acceptance of the City's Love, that the People could not ſufficiently make manifeſt the Joy they conceived at it. So that by this Time, the whole Day ſeemed to be ſpent in a kind of Emulation (with Reverence be it ſpoken) between their Majeſties and the City: The Citizens bleſſing and praying for their Majeſties, and their Princely Iſſue; and their Majeſties returning the ſame Bleſſings upon the Heads of the Citizens; with innumerable Thanks added thereunto: Inſomuch as it is hard to reſolve, whether the Citizens were more joyed with the gracious Acceptance of their weak (tho' hearty and loyal) Endeavours, or their Majeſties with the Performance of the Day's ſeaſonable Service: Both their Majeſties and the Citizens ſeeming (as it were) not well ſatisfied to whom the Thanks of this Day's Work were properly due.

But to proceed.

When the Sheriffs Men (who were in the Front) were come as far as the May-Pole in the Strand, they began to make a Stand, and ſingled themſelves, by falling off at the right Hand of the Street; their Company extending in Length as far as Exeter-Houſe. And after them, the Horſemen did the like, in the ſame Order and Poſture as they had done in the Morning. And ſo continued to the Tilt-yard, over againſt his Majeſty's Palace of Whitehall: To which Place the Lord Maior, Knights and Aldermen, conducted their Majeſties.

After the ENTERTAINMENT.

The L. Maior takes his Leave of his Majeſty at Whitehall.

And now by this Time it might be conceived, that a Period might be ſet to this Relation; and that his Majeſty had given Teſtimony, ample and ſufficient, of his gracious Acceptation of the City's Love and Loyal Affection towards him. But, Manet altâ mente repoſtum, in a better Senſe than the Poet ſpake it: His Majeſty had taken ſo deep Impreſſion of his poor Subjects Love, that he thought he had not ſufficiently expreſs'd himſelf, by all that he had already ſo graciouſly been pleaſed to demonſtrate. And therefore, when the Lord Maior had brought their Majeſties into Whitehall, and was taking his Leave in humble manner, his Majeſty moſt graciouſly embraced and thanked him; and withal gave him in Charge, That in his Name the whole City might be thanked.

The King's Meſſage of Thanks to the City, delivered at the Common Counſil.

Whereupon, againſt Tueſday Morning following, being St. Andrew's Day, the Lord Maior cauſed a Common Council to be warned; where Mr. Recorder, in an eloquent and pithy Speech, related the Charge and Command, that his Majeſty (by the Lord Maior) had impoſed upon him. And withal (as was thought fit) he read his Speech to his Majeſty, and his Majeſty's moſt gracious Anſwer; (both which are before ſet down): Which ſo much revived and increaſed the Joy of all the Commons, that an Act was there made; and the Lord Maior was intreated to appoint Mr. Recorder, and ſo many Aldermen and Commoners as his Lordſhip ſhould think fit, to attend his Majeſty; and to return their humble Thanks for all his great and Princely Favours to the City; and to prefer to his Majeſty ſuch other Deſires of the City, as ſhould be thought neceſſary and convenient.

A Patent ſent to the Lord Maior for Baronet.

In the mean Time, his Majeſty (ſtudying, as it were, how to add more Honour to the Lord Maior, and in his to the whole City) had ſent to his Lordſhip his gracious Letters Patents; whereby he created him a Baronet.

The Lord Maior, according to the Power given unto him, by the Act of Common Council, called a Committee to his Houſe: Where he appointed how many Aldermen (beſides thoſe of the Committee for the Entertainment,) ſhould attend his Majeſty, with Mr. Recorder, in Purſuance of the ſaid Act. Where it was concluded, what Deſires they ſhould humbly repreſent to his Majeſty, on the Cities Behalf.

Upon Friday, the Third of December, Mr. Recorder, with theſe Aldermen, viz. Sir George Whit-

Some Aldermen, and Commoners, by Order of Common Council, wait upon the King.

Whitmore, Alderman Cordal, Alderman Soame, Alderman Gayer, Alderman Garrard, Alderman Wollaſton, and the Two Sheriffs, (being Aldermen likewiſe) with Eight of the Commoners of the ſaid Committee, went by his Lordſhip's Appointment to Hampton Court. Where they were received by the Right Honourable the Earl of Dorſet, Lord Chamberlain to her Majeſty, Sir Peter Wiche, Comptroller of his Majeſties Houſhold, and other Officers and Gentlemen of Quality, till they ſhould be admitted into his Majeſty's Preſence. And after ſome ſmall Stay, his Majeſty, with his Royal Conſort, the Queen, (attended by the Duke of Richmond, Marquis Hamilton, and the Earl of Dorſet,) came into her Majeſties Preſence Chamber. And ſoon after Mr. Recorder, the Aldermen and Commoners were called in. Where, after their humble Duties tendred, Mr. Recorder, in an elegant Speech, preſented the Loyal Affections, and humble Thanks of the City to their Majeſties, together with Two humble Petitions, formerly agreed on, to be preferred to his Majeſty, in Words to this Effect.

The City's Petitions to the King, delivered by the Recorder.

‘That according to his Majeſties Commandment, given to the Lord Maior, and himſelf, they had publiſhed that, which his Majeſty had graciouſly expreſs'd, at his Entry into the City, not only to particular Men thereof, but at a Common Council: Which is the Repreſentative Body of the City: And there made known the moſt gracious Acceptance, by both their Majeſties, of the Endeavours of the Citizens, for their Welcome and Entertainment that Day.

‘That after the publiſhing of it, they all forthwith, with one Heart, and one Voice, earneſtly entreated, and preſs'd the Lord Maior; that by his Means, and in ſuch way as he ſhould think fit, their moſt humble and hearty Thanks might be tendred, and preſented to both their Majeſties, for that ſingular Honour they had done the City, in vouchſafing their Preſence among them, and for thoſe real Teſtimonies his Majeſty had given of his Princely Favour and Affection towards them; tending ſo much to their Profit and Advantage: And eſpecially for both their Majeſty's gracious Acceptance of their poor (though hearty) Endeavours: With theſe and the like Expreſſions, which came from among them, That if they had done a Thouſand Times more, it had been but their Duty. That the Memory of this Honour, and theſe Favours, ſhould ever live among them: That it ſhould be preſerved to Poſterity: That their Deſires and Studies ſhould be, as much as in them lay, that they might be thought worthy of theſe Honours and Favours, and of ſo Good and Gracious a King and Queen.

‘Thus the Lord Maior had required us that were preſent, to attend their Majeſties with this Meſſage from the City; and to make this thankful Acknowledgment to them. Beſeeching their Majeſties (as an Addition to their former Favours) to take it in good Part from them. And this was the firſt Part of our Errand.

‘That we had Two humble Petitions to prefer to both their Majeſties. And we had the Riſe and Encouragement to both from that which his Majeſty was pleaſed to deliver to us.

‘Our Firſt Petition was, that their Majeſties would vouchſafe this Honour to the City, (if it might ſtand with their good Pleaſures) to make their Reſidence at this Seaſon of the Year, at the Palace at Whitehall. Their Preſence was very joyful to us. And his Majeſty was pleaſed to tell us, that he would ſtudy our Proſperity, and reſtore the Trade of the City: Which of late had been in ſome Diſorder. Their Reſidence there would give a good Quickning to the Retailing Trade; and by Conſequence to the Merchant.

‘Our Second was, Whereas ſince his happy Return hither, there had been ſome late Diſorders about Weſtminſter, among ſome People that met there, that their Majeſties would not impute this to the Body of the City, or to the better Sort of Citizens. We held it a Miſfortune, and a Scandal upon us, that when thoſe Diſorders were mentioned, the City was named with it. And that our Deſire was to vindicate and redeem it, by ſome publick Diſavowing it. And we could not begin better, than in the Preſence of their Majeſties, and beſought their Majeſties to take it into their Conſiderations, that the Skirts of the City, where the Lord Maior and Magiſtrates of London, have neither Power, nor Liberty, are more Populous, than the City it ſelf, fuller of the meaner Sort of People. And if any Dwellers in the City ſhould be Actors in it; (as who can deny, but among Millions of People, ſome there may be?) yet their Purpoſe was unknown to us. And to give their Majeſties ſome Aſſurance herein, there were ſome preſent there among us; Men that had lived in the City above Forty Years together, that knew the City, and the better Sort of Citizens, and were at Weſtminſter attending other Occaſions, when thoſe People met there, and took a heedful View of them: And they have affirmed, that they knew not the Face of one Man among them.

Mr. Recorder having ended, his Majeſty preſently, and graciouſly gave Anſwer, thus in Effect.

The King's Anſwer to the Recorder

‘That he was very well pleaſed with the Hearty and Loyal Affections of the Citizens. For which he gave them great Thanks. And for the firſt Petition, though he and her Majeſty had before purpoſed to Winter at Hampton-Court, yet being now fully perſuaded, that the Lord Maior, and Aldermen, and the moſt conſiderable Part of the Citizens of London, had not any Hand in the Diſorder mention'd by Mr. Recorder, in his Second Petition, he intended, (and ſo he knew her Majeſty would) to alter his Reſolution; and with all convenient Speed repair to Whitehall; there to keep their Chriſtmas; and be ready to do any Thing elſe, that might promote the Trade of the City. Deſiring Mr. Recorder to join with him, in taking ſome Courſe, for Prevention of the like Diſorders for the future.

Knights the Aldermen and Sheriffs.

After his Majeſty had ended his Anſwer, and that Mr. Recorder and Sir George Whitmore had kiſſed his Royal Hand; the next Alderman in Seniority kneeled down, to receive the like Princely Favour: When ſuddenly, and unexpectedly his Majeſty drew a Sword, and inſtead of giving him his Hand to Kiſs, he laid his Sword upon his Shoulder, and Knighted him: The like he did to the other Aldermen, and the Two Sheriffs; being all in Number Seven.

This done, their Majeſties gave them their Hands to Kiſs. The like Princely Favour vouchſafed they to the Commoners of the Committee. And after many gracious Demonſtrations of Love to them, and the whole City, his Majeſty commanded that they ſhould Dine, before they left the Court.

Dine at Court.

His Majeſties Command was fully and effectually performed. For as ſoon as they had in moſt humble Manner taken their Leaves of their Majeſties, they were brought by the Right Honourable the Earl of Dorſet, and by Mr. Comptroller, and other Officers of the Court, into a Room; where a Table was prepared for them, and none other, to Dine at. Where they were bountifully Feaſted; being honoured with the Preſence of the Earl of Dorſet: Who vouchſafed to Dine with them. And in their Majeſties Names gave them exceeding great Welcome; expreſſing to them that Love, which he ever hath abundantly manifeſted to the City. Mr. Comptroller likewiſe Dined with them; uſing them with very great Reſpect.

While they were at Dinner, there came Two Gentlemen to them, one from his Majeſty, the other from the Queen; to let them know, that their Majeſties had remembred the Health of the Lord Maior, aud the whole City. Which they all entertained with all due Reſpect; returning their humble Thanks, for that their Majeſties extraordinary Favour.

Dinner being done, they took their Leaves of the Honourable Earl, and other Officers of Quality and Eminency of the Court, and departed: Returning to the Lord Maior with great Joy and Comfort. To whom they made Relation of their Majeſties Grace and Favour to his Lordſhip, the whole City, and themſelves.

Thus have you ſeen (as briefly as we could) the Work of this Day; and in it, as well the Demonſtration of the Cities Love, and dutiful Affection to his Majeſty, and his Royal Conſort, as their Majeſties gracious and loving Acceptation of it. The former being but the bounden Service of Good and Loyal Subjects; the other, an extraordinary Act of Favour and Grace, worthy to be graven in Tables of Braſs, to be preſerved to all Poſterity.

The Maior and Aldermen in 1648, will not proclaim an Act for a Common-wealth.

And of later Times, however, the City, upon the fatal putting to Death of King Charles the Firſt, was forced tc comply with the Government that was then ſet up by a mighty prevailing Hand; yet for the laſting Memory of the City's Stedfaſtneſs to the Ancient Kingly Government, and to the Maintenance of the Engliſh Freedom, the Maior, and ſeveral of the Aldermen, utterly refuſed to publiſh an Act made by the Commons, ſoon after the ſaid King's Death, Intituled, An Act for the Exheredation of the Royal Line, the Aboliſhment of Monarchy in the Kingdom, and the ſetting up of a Commonwealth. Theſe that ſo refuſed, were Sir Abraham Reinardſon, Maior, Thomas Adams, John Langham, and James Bunce, Aldermen. For which the Maior was put out of his Maioralty, and he, with thoſe Aldermen, committed to the Tower. In April following, the Three Aldermen were to be brought to the Bar of the then Governing Lords. Which they hearing of, bravely and ſtoutly, as good Citizens, and true Engliſhmen, refuſed their Authority; and ſignified to the Lieutenant of the Tower, that they would not obey his Order to bring them before the Bar of that Houſe, declaring their firm Reſolution to ſtand for the Defence of the eſtabliſhed Laws of the Land, and their Proteſtation againſt the Lords Juriſdiction over them, or any other Commoners in Criminal Caſes: With an Appeal from the ſaid Lords to their proper and competent Judges, i. e. a Jury of their Equals, and Judges ſworn to proceed according to the known Laws of England. All this may be ſeen by the Letter and the Petition following.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Aſſembled in Parliament. The Humble Petition of Thomas Adams, John Langham, James Bunce, Aldermen of London, &c.

SHEWETH,

‘THAT if your Petitioners ſhall ſubmit to your Lordſhips Juriſdiction over Commoners in thoſe Criminal Caſes or Novaliſms in Law, Intituled, Articles of Impeachment of High-Treaſon, and other Miſdemeanors: They ſhall not only be Feloes de ſe, but alſo ſhall murther the Perſons, and ruin the Eſtates of all the Freeborn People of England; and that which is more, they ſhall betray the Common-Law, which is the Supream Authority (under God) of the Nation, and the Inheritance of every Freemans Poſterity. And that which is worſt of all, they ſhall be inſtrumental to pull down all the Judicatories of the Kingdom, and reedify an Arbitrary Government many Stories higher than ever the Star-Chamber, High-Commiſſion, or Council-Table were. And by the ſame Rule that your Lordſhips have Fined ſeveral Commoners Five Hundred Pounds a Man, for not Kneeling or Submitting to your Lordſhips ſhips Juriſdiction in Criminal Caſes, for which there is no Law; nay, which is abſolutely and apparently againſt the Fundamental Laws of the Land, and the ordinary Rule of your own Court of Judicature, uſually referring thoſe Cauſes which appertain to the Common Law, to the other Courts of Juſtice, eſpecially if the People deſire it; ſo you may Fine their Fellow Citizens, and Commoners of England as many Millions, and take away the Lives and Eſtates of all, as well as ſome, to the perpetual deſtroying and enſlaving the whole Kingdom. By the 29th Chapter of the great Charter, all Commoners are to be tried by their Equals; and there are Thirty Seſſions of Parliament which confirm the great Charter, being a Statute Declaratory of the Common Law; eſpecially thoſe eminent Laws, wherein your Lordſhips had your Shares in making of them, viz. the Petition of Right in 3° Caroli, and the Act for aboliſhing the Star-Chamber, and regulating the Council Table, in the 17th Caroli, in which many Statutes are enumerated, That Commoners ought to be tried by their Equals, by Bill of Indictment, or Writ Original, and by thoſe of their Neighbourhood: And all Decrees and Judgments made contrary thereto, are declared thereby to be null and void in Law, which bars all Precedents. And by ſeveral Declarations and Ordinances your Lordſhips have declared, that Ordinances are no Laws, but temporary, during the Wars; and the Caſe of Neceſſity being taken away, your Lordſhips have promiſed the free People of England, that they ſhall be governed according to the known Laws of the Land; as it appears in the Ordinance, Dated the 15th of January, 1647. And it is againſt the Law of God, Nature and Nations, that any Perſon or Perſons ſhould be Judge and Parties, Examiners or Accuſers in their own Cauſe, or to be tried any otherwiſe than by a known Law; for where is no Law, there is no Tranſgreſſion. It is declared by Sir Edward Cook, that the Parliament cannot make a Law againſt the Law of Nature, which is Cuſtom, according to Right and neceſſary Reaſon. That Precedents are nothing, in Compariſon of the Common and Statute Laws. Theſe being known Maxims in Law, A facto ad jus non valet Argumentum. Gubernandum eſt legibus non exemplis: Articles are nothing in Law but meer Innovations and Prerogatives extrajudical, eſpecially when ordinary Perſons are in Queſtion. The old Maxim in Law is, Non recurrendum eſt ad extraordinaria quando fieri poteſt per ordinaria. And your Lordſhips are not only Sworn, but have impoſed ſeveral Oaths, as the Proteſtation, and Solemn League and Covenant, upon the Free Commoners of England, to defend the Fundamental Laws of the Land. And they are confident your Lordſhips will be very tender of the Preſervation of the great Charter, in which is wrapped up our Lives, Liberties, and Eſtates: Your Noble Predeceſſors being ſo glorious and famous Inſtruments in aſſiſting this People in purchaſing the ſame.

‘Concerning the Point of Precedents, which is all can be ſaid for your Lordſhips, we ſhall give you the Anſwer.

1. ‘It is obſervable, that all ſuch Commoners, which have ſubmitted to your Lordſhips Juriſdiction, were in the Time of the Civil Wars, Flagrante Bello, not by Compulſion, but by voluntary Petitions of the Commons in a ſummary way, to the King in Perſon.

2. ‘One Precedent againſt your Lordſhips Juriſdiction, is of more Conſequence than a Thouſand for it: The Reaſon is plain, becauſe all Courts of Judicature are bottomed upon the Law of the Land; and it cannot be ſuppoſed that any Court can be miſcognizant of its own Juriſdiction. Your Lordſhips have confeſſed in Sir Simon de Beniſford's Caſe, that it is againſt the Law, for Peers to try Commoners; and your Predeceſſors have promiſed upon Record, that they will never do the like again, though that Occaſion were Superlative: Rot. 2. Rot. Parl. 5. Numb. 45.

3. ‘The Corporation of Cambridge was accuſed before the King and Lords, for complying with the Rebels of Eſſex, Kent and Hertford; their Council pleaded againſt the Juriſdiction of the Lords Houſe, in the Point of Treaſon, and the King and Lords allowed of the Plea.

4. ‘As there are many Precedents more may be alledged, that Commoners have denied your Lordſhips Juriſdiction, and that your Lordſhips have tranſmitted ſuch Caſes to the Common Law, if deſired by the Free People; ſo there can no Preſident be ſhewn that Commoners, which have refuſed to be tried by your Houſe, have been over-ruled by them in Point of Juriſdiction.

5. ‘There was never Precedent, ſince there were Parliaments in England, that the ſame Seſſion of Parliament hath Impriſoned, Fined, or any otherwiſe diſſeized or deſtroyed any Man, for obeying or executing the Laws, Ordinances, or Orders of the ſame Parliament. And there are many Ordinances in Force, which indemnify all thoſe which have acted by the Authority of Parliament, viz. May 26. 1642. 1. P. Book Decl. P. 281. June 14. 1642. P. 377.

The Premiſes conſidered;

Your Petitioners being Free Commoners of England, according to the known Laws of the Land, (de Jure) claim their Birthright, which is to be tried by God and their Country, in his Majeſties Court of Juſtice, by the ſworn Judges of the Law, and a Jury of their Equals, of their own Neighbourhood, where the pretended Fact was done, the Courts of Juſtice being open.

And your Petitioners ſhall Pray, &c.

And how forward and inſtrumental the City was in bringing back King Charles the IId, after his long Baniſhment, and in reſtoring the Ancient Conſtitution of the Kingdon after the Uſurpation, may appear by their promoting a Free Parliament, and other notable Things done by them at a Common-Council, December 29. 1659.

The City's Acts for bringing back King Charles the IId, at a Common Council, December, 1659.

To this Common Council was preſented a Report by Alderman Fowke; the Tenor whereof followeth.

At the Committee of Common Council, &c.

VOTED,

1. THAT this Committee conceive the City of London is at this Time in imminent and extraordinary Danger.

2. That they judge it abſolutely neceſſary at this Time, for the Court of Common Council

That the ſaid Commanders and Officers Commiſſions, ſhall be under the common Seal of the City, to be Sealed in open Court, before the Maior, Aldermen, and Common Council.

Touching the Letters received from Portſmouth, and the Fleet, the Opinion of the Committee is,

That ſeveral Commiſſioners be forthwith appointed to confer with the Lord Fleetwood, with Sir Arthur Haſlerig, Colonel Morley, and Colonel Walton, and with Vice-Admiral Lawſon, and other Officers of the Fleet, in order to the Safety of the City, and the Peace and Settlement of the Nation, and in due Time to give an Anſwer to General Monk's Letter.

That in order to the obtaining of that Peace and Safety, the Common Council do impower thoſe Commiſſioners to propound the convening of a Free Parliament, according to a late Declaration of this Court.

Voted, That theſe Votes be Reported to the Common Council by Alderman Fowke.

Which Report being Read, and every Part thereof ſeverally Debated, was by this Court confirmed and approved of, ſaving the Right of the Court of Aldermen.

Setting up the Poſts and Chains to be forborn.

December the 27th, 1659, Alderman Fowke, and Commiſſioners to Vice-Admiral Lawſon, made a Report of their Conference. A Committee appointed to attend the Parliament.

Votes againſt the City.

The Council of State, (as the Governing Party, then called themſelves) finding the City of London thus generally inclined to bring in the King, and in order to that, ſtanding for a Free Parliament, and perceiving how illy they ſtood affected to the preſent Power, made ſome Reſolutions: And theſe Votes paſt February the 9th, 1659.

That the Commiſſioners for Government of the Army do appoint Forces to be in London, for preſerving the Peace thereof, and of the Commonwealth; and for reducing of the City to the Obedience of the Parliament. And that the Commiſſioners take Care, that the Poſts and Chains in the ſaid City be taken away, and the Gates of the City forthwith deſtroyed. And theſe Reſolves of the Houſe were ſent to General Monk, and that he ſhould put the ſame in Execution. Who, however diſſatisfied with the ingrateful Work, executed their Orders. And in the Sight of the Citizens, (to be puniſhed for their Loyalty,) took down their Port-cullices and Gates, and took away their Poſts and Chains. And Monk and his Forces quartered in the City. Where notwithſtanding, he had many Viſitants of the Chief Citizens, and of the Secluded Members.

Common Council of London violated.

And further, to prevent the Cities good Intentions for the Reſtoration of the King and Ancient Government, the Parliament finding the Common Council of London to be againſt them, ordered, it ſhould be diſcontinued, and an Act brought in to conſtitute a new Common Council. Yet notwithſtanding the City brought their Counſels to bear ſoon after: And a Free Parliament was proclaimed in London, which voted in the King: Wherein, (as we ſee) the City had a prevailing Hand.

Former Seditious Acts of Common Council repealed.

And further, after the Reſtoration, the Citizens, to ſhew their Abhorrence of the arbitrary Doings of thoſe Times, formally made an Act of Common Council, Anno 1683, Sir William Pritchard, Maior, for Repealing the Treaſonable and Diſloyal Acts and Proceedings of that Court in the Time of the late Rebellion; a certain Number of Eminent Citizens, Aldermen, and Commoners, having been appointed diligently to look over all paſt Acts of Common Council made in thoſe Times; and to report them. As appears more at large by the ſaid Act of Common Council, viz.

‘The 6th of June, 1683, at a Common Council. This Day a Report was brought into this Court, by the Committee appointed to inſpect the Acts and Proceedings entred into the Journal of this Court, in the Times of Uſurpation, or at any Time before or ſince, that might be fit to be Explained or Repealed: The Tenor of which Report is as followeth, that is to ſay:

‘To the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London. Whereas by a late Order of this Honourable Court it was referred unto them, whoſe Names are Subſcribed, [theſe were Sir William Turner, Sir James Edwards, Sir John Moor, Sir Henry Tulſe, Sir Thomas Langham, Francis Griffith, Nathaniel Hawes, Henry Loads, Peter Ailworth, Nicholas Charleton, Thomas Vernon,] to inſpect the Acts, and other Proceedings entred in the Journal of this Court, in the Times of Uſurpation, or at any Times, &c. that may be thought fit to be explained or repealed, they did humbly certify, that in Purſuance of the ſaid Order, they had peruſed and examined thoſe Journals; wherein they found not only many Innovations and Irregularities brought into that Court and the Government of the City, but alſo moſt pernicious and abominable Proceedings, in abetting and carrying on thoſe wicked and unnatural Diviſions then raiſed in the Kingdom, and ſerving the Uſurpations of thoſe Times. All, or moſt of which, they perſuaded themſelves could never have had Place in this Court, had not Violence been offered to the Government of the City. The Lord Maior firſt arreſted and impriſoned, divers Loyal Aldermen and Commoners were, ſome impriſoned, others diſplaced, and all Loyal Citizens generally diſcountenanced and diſcouraged; and others of factious, and unquiet, and turbulent Spirits, got themſelves into the Common Council, and made up the greater Number therein. That all theſe Actions and Proceedings might (as they deſerved) be obliterated and wholly expunged, that no Remembrance thereof might be tranſmitted to Poſterity, to the Shame and Diſhonour of this Court and City; but that other Matters were therewithal intermixed, which (for the Subſtance of them) were in their Opinion inoffenſive, uſeful and fit to be continued. That ſeveral Committees had been appointed formerly by this Court, to obliterate the ſaid unjuſt Proceedings, and there were Lines croſſed over divers of them, which they preſumed were made by the ſaid Committees: But not being thereby obliterated, but ſtill remaining in the Books of the Acts and Proceedings of this Court, and never having been particularly diſclaimed and repealed by any Vote or Act of this Court that they had obſerved; they thought it very fitting, that the ſaid, and all other like diſloyal and irregular Proceedings, ſhould, by an expreſs Act of this Council, be renounced, repealed, and made abſolutely null and void. Which Proceedings, or the moſt of them, they ſet down, and preſented to this Court for that Purpoſe: And deſired that ſome few of them might be openly read; to beget in this Court, as it had done in them, a juſt Abhorrence and Deteſtation of ſuch Proceedings.

And then follow a Catalogue of them, from the Year 1641, and ſo yearly down to the Year 1657.

‘All which Particulars (as the ſaid Committee did proceed) being highly diſloyal, and ſavouring of the Faction and Uſurpation of thoſe unhappy Times, they thought fit ſhould by Act of this Court be diſclaimed, revoked, abrogated and repealed, to all Intents and Purpoſes whatſoever: Both to demonſtrate the Love to, and good Affection of the preſent Members of this Court to his Majeſty, and the eſtabliſhed Government, and to vindicate them from all Imputation of the like pernicious Principles and Practices, and expreſs their Diſlike of all factious Innovations. So alſo it will prevent any ill Uſe that may be made in Time to come, of the ſaid irregular Actions.

After the reading of which Reports openly in the Court, they were approved of and agreed to and confirmed. And it was Enacted by the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons, in that Common Council Aſſembled, that all the ſeveral Acts, Orders and Proceedings therein propounded to be Diſclaimed and Repealed, be Repealed and made Void. And they, and every of them, were by the Authority of this Court, Diſclaimed, Repealed, and made Null and Void.

The City's Addreſs to the Prince of Orange, 1688.

The City is thus Loyal to their Princes; but yet jealous of the Invaſion of their Religion and Liberty. This was the Cauſe the Citizens ſo readily received the Prince of Orange, An. 1688. as appears by their Addreſs, which was to this Tenor:

To his Highneſs the Prince of ORANGE.

The humble Addreſs of the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London, in Common Council aſſembled.

“MAY it pleaſe your Highneſs. We taking into Conſideration your Highneſs's fervent Zeal for the Proteſtant Religion, manifeſted to the World in your many and hazardous Enterprizes, in which it hath pleaſed Almighty God to bleſs you with miraculous Succeſs: We render our deepeſt Thanks to the Divine Majeſty for the ſame: And beg leave to preſent our moſt humble Thanks to your Highneſs, particularly for your appearing in Arms in this Kingdom, to carry on and perfect your glorious Deſign, to reſcue England, Scotland, and Ireland, from Slavery and Popery;

"and in a free Parliament to eſtabliſh the Religion and Laws of theſe Kingdoms upon a ſure and laſting Foundation. We have hitherto looked for ſome Remedy, for the Oppreſſions and imminent Dangers we, together with our Proteſtant Fellow-Subjects, laboured under, from his Majeſty's Conceſſions and Concurrences with your Highneſs's juſt and pious Purpoſes, expreſs'd in your gracious Declarations. But herein finding our ſelves finally diſappointed by his Majeſty's withdrawing himſelf, we preſume to make your Highneſs our Refuge; and do in the Name of this Capital City implore your Highneſs's Protection; and moſt humbly beſeech your Highneſs to vouchſafe to repair to this City; where your Highneſs will be received with univerſal Joy and Satisfaction.

Citizens Honourable for their Wiſdom and Learning.

And as Learning and Wiſdom do no leſs adorn than Wealth, and other Accompliſhments, ſo the City hath not wanted Learned and Wiſe Men: That on that Account have been preferred to the Courts of Princes, or have been of very good Uſe to the City, for their prudent Advice and Counſil, as there has been Occaſion. Such was Dr. Colet, Dean of St. Paul's, the Son of a Citizen, and Sir Thomas More, Lord Chancellor of England, well known among the Learned; Sir Thomas Paget, Secretary of State to King Henry the VIIIth, and Privy Counſellor alſo to the Two ſucceeding Princes; the Lord Rich, Lord Chancellor to King Edward the VIth; Sir William Fitz-Williams, Earl of Southampton; and Sir John Allen, before-mentioned; Sir Lionel Cranfield, Lord Treaſurer to King James I. But among thoſe that have juſtly acquired an honourable Remembrance for their Abilities in Prudence and Sober Advice, George Stadlow, Citizen and Haberdaſher of London, muſt not be forgotten; who made that memorable Speech to his Fellow-Citizens, how to manage themſelves in a very difficult Juncture: When in the Year 1551, the Duke of Somerſet, Lord Protector, and the other great Lords of the Court were in Diſſenſion: And both going to gather Forces againſt each other. Then did the Duke in the King's Name ſend to them for Aid; and the other Party ſitting at Ely Houſe in the City, requiring Aid of them on the other Hand. A dangerous Matter on either Side, and very difficult for the City to ſteer right, ſo as to preſerve her ſelf in Safety. When the Recorder had urged the City to aſſiſt the Lords with 500 Men, and the Citizens remained ſilent, not knowing which Way to take, Stadlow ſtood up and ſaid, That it was good to think of Things paſt, to avoid the Danger of Things to come. And then mentioned a Paſſage that he had read in Fabian's Chronicle, ſomewhat parallel to their preſent Circumſtance. Which was, That in the Barons Wars, under King Henry III. the Barons then demanded Aid of the Maior and City, as the Lords now did: And that even in a rightful Cauſe for the Commonweal; namely, for the Execution of certain good Laws, which the King would not ſuffer to be executed. Whereupon the City did Aid them. And the Barons prevailed againſt the King. Afterwards upon certain Conditions the King and his Barons came to Agreement. One of which Conditions was, That the King ſhould grant his Pardon to the Lords and to the Citizens. And ſo he did. And the Pardon ratified by Act of Parliament. And what followed of it, ſaid he? Was it forgotten? No, ſurely, nor forgiven neither, during the King's Life. And the Liberties of the City were taken away. Strangers appointed to be our Heads and Governors: And the Citizens given away, Body and Goods, and miſerably afflicted. Such, ſaid he, is the Wrath of a Prince. Whereupon he very prudently adviſed, that both the Lords and the Citizens might join together, to make humble Petition to the King, that he would hear ſuch Complaints againſt the Government of the Lord Protector, as might be juſtly alledged and proved. And then he made no doubt, the Matter would be ſo pacified, that neither the King, nor the Lords ſhould have cauſe to ſeek for further Aid of Soldiers, the laſt Extremity. This was the wiſe and moderate Advice of this Citizen: Which took place. And the Commons ſtayed. And the Lords took another Courſe; namely, of addreſſing the King. And ſo the City eſcaped that Danger.

A Citizen's wiſe Advice.

This George Stadlow ſeems to have been very ſtudious in Hiſtory, and the Art of Government. It was he that excited Ralph Robinſon to tranſlate More's Utopia into Engliſh, a Book that diſcovers a well-governed Commonweal.

The Nobility and Gentry honour London by inhabiting in it. Noblemens Inns in London.

It may alſo be placed among the Honours of this City, that ſo many Noblemen and Perſons of high Quality have, in former Times eſpecially, reſorted hither, and took up their Reſidences here for ſome Part of the Year, with a numerous Retinue, when they came up. And not only great Noblemen, but the chief Churchmen, as the Biſhops, Abbots, Priors, &c. of the Kingdom, had their Houſes here, which were called their Inns; where was great Houſe-keeping. Whereof a Poet in Queen Elizabeth's Time thus verſified:

Tho. Churchyard.

For when they came to London there to ſtay,
They ſent fat Beeves before them for their Store,&c.
Kept Houſe in Inns, and fed the Poor thereby.

Pleaſures and Diverſions of London.

And ſuch was the Wealth, the Pleaſure, and the Diverſions of London, that the Gentry alſo could not forbear, but left their Country-Seats, to viſit the City, and for a Time to become Citizens: Where alſo many of them choſe to reſide, rather than among their Tenants in the Country. Some for the Sake of the Sports and Games of it, and ſome for Variety, Company, the Faſhions and Gaiety there. But London in the mean Time wiped them of their Money, and Eſtates, and their Families often rued it at Home. The foreſaid ingenious Poet that lived leſs than an Age and an half ago, wrote a Satyr againſt the Gentry upon this Occaſion: Cenſuring them for affecting ſo much to reſort and tarry in London, to the Decay of Hoſpitality, and Injury of their Eſtates:

Fine Shops and Sights, fine Dames and Houſes gay,
Fine Wares, fine Words, fine Sorts of Meat is there;
Tea, all is fine, and nothing groſs, they ſay.
Fine Knacks coſt much: Coſt ſpoils us every where.
A Canker crept in Court, for ſome Men's Croſs,
That eats up Lands, and breeds great Lack and Loſs.

And then ſhewing the Debt and Beggary brought upon the Gentry by theſe London Temptations.

Oh Lord, how ſoon a Man is o're his Shoes!
That wades and ſteps in Streams or Waters deep?
How ſoon from Town in Country we have News?
That ſome ſpend all; for they can nothing keep.
If ſuch Lads were at Home in Bed aſleep,
'Twere better ſure, than live in London thus,
Upon the Score, or like Bankrupts, I wus.

Again,

I muſe, why Youth, or Age of Gentile Blood,
Born unto Wealth and worldly Worſhip here,
In London long conſumes both Land and Good,
That better were at Home to make good Chere.

In London ſtill they find all Victuals dear ;
Hoiſt up a height to bring our Purſes low,
And ſend Men home with empty Bags, I trow.

The City envied by the Gentry.
J. S.

This indeed hath occaſioned the Gentlemen of the Country to take Offence at the City : Inſomuch that it would have been much better for the City, had they abſtained from taking up their Dwellings here. For partly the ſpending or diminiſhing of their Patrimonies in this Place, partly the ſplendid way of Living, uſed by the wealthier Sort of Citizens, equalling, if not ſurpaſſing, many of them, had begot ſecret Jealouſies and Envies againſt them : And as Opportunity ſerved, they would ſhew it by affronting them, aud doing them ill Turns. And this perhaps was the Ground, that the Court was commonly at odds with the City : On which it commonly look'd with an ill Eye, and did love to oppoſe and diſappoint the Doings and Privileges of Citizens. And this will appear, by two or three Paſſages which I will take Occaſion to relate, all happening in Queen Elizabeth's Days.

Habeas Corpus procured from the Court.

In this Particular, ſome of the Court did uſually elude the City, that when the Magiſtrates thereof had taken up Malefactors, and committed them, an Habeas Corpus frequently came from Court, for the Deliverance of thoſe that were ſo committed : And ſo all the intended Juſtice to be done upon them was fruſtrated. Which Thing did at length ſo offend the City, that Sir Lionel Ducket, Lord Maior, Anno 1572, complained of this to the Lord Treaſurer, and deſired Redreſs thereof.

A Courtier kills a Citizen.

And in the Year 1583, one Mr. Nowel of the Court coming to London, cauſed his Man to give a Blow unto a Carman with the Pommel of his Sword, that he brake his Skull, and killed him. Mr. Nowel and his Man hereupon were indicted.

In theſe Caſes, wherein any of the Court was obnoxious for ſome Miſdemeanor committed in the City, great Application was uſed to be made to the Recorder, in the Delinquent's Behalf. And thus Fleetwood the Recorder ſignified, in a Letter to the Lord Treaſurer.

“ I am ſure to be much troubled with Letters, and with his Friends, and what by other means, as in the very like Caſe heretofore I have been even with the ſame Man. Here are ſundry young Gentlemen that uſe the Court, that moſt commonly term themſelves Gentlemen, [and ſay,] I am not thus to be uſed at a Slave's and a Cobler's Hands. I know not what other Plea Mr. Nowel can plead : But this I ſay, his Fact is foul. God ſend him good Deliverance. I think in my Conſcience, that he makes no Reckoning of the Matter.

The ſame Year this Accident happened.

An Indignity put upon the Recorder of London.

‘ One Abraham of Abraham, a Gentleman of a Hundred Pound a Year in the County of Lancaſter, put his Daughter and Heireſs unto the Lady Gerard of the Breme. Sir Thomas Gerard and his ſaid Lady being in London, and this young Woman with them, one Dwells, a Fencer, living near Cecil-Houſe, and his Wife, being a-kin to her, invited her and all my Lady's Children and Gentlewomen to a Breakfaſt. They came thither ; and at their coming, the Youth and Serving-Men were carried up to the Fencing-School, to play and be merry. But Mrs. Abraham was conveyed by the Wife into a Chamber ; and ſo ſhutting the Door on her, there ſhe left her. In the Chamber were Four or Five tall Men, whom ſhe knew not. And immediately ſhe fell into a great Fear, ſeeing them to compaſs her about. Then began an old Prieſt to read upon a Book theſe words ; I Henry take thee Suſan to my wedded Wife, &c. This done, they charged her never to diſcover this to any body living ; and ſo ſent her down to her Fellows. And Dinner being done, ſhe told ſome of her Companions very lamentably, what had been done : And they ſoon after to Sir Thomas and my Lady. Upon Complaint ; the Recorder ſent for the Fencer's Wife ; who would confeſs nothing. A little while after he went himſelf with the Fencer's Wife to Bridewell, where there was a full Court : And thither came Sir Thomas, with the young Gentlewoman. And there they bolted out the whole Matter ; and did no more. The Woman was returned to the Compter : The young Gentlewoman went with the Lady Gerard. But the Fencer and one Polwhale had the Confidence to tell ſome of the Lords of the Council, that ſhe was to have been put into Bridewell : Which ſhe never was ; and went only thither to accuſe the Woman that had ſo abuſed her in open Court. But the Fencer eaſily made Friends at Court ; and made ſuch Complaint of the Recorder to the Council-Board, that he was ſent for. He appeared, and the Secretary received his Anſwer : Which gave ſuch Satiſfaction, that in fine he told the Complainants, that they had deſerved to be hanged. And indeed, the ſaid Recorder found this to be Felony, by the 3d of Henry VII. Cap. 2.

All the Reflection the Recorder made upon this to a Great Man at the Court, was, That he thought ſuch Companions as that Fencer and his Wife were, ought not to be allowed to deface ſuch a Man as he was, in ſuch Order before the Lords.

The Honour of the City.
City's Advoc.
J. S.

In fine, to conclude this Subject, and this Firſt Book ; ſince we have ſaid all this of the Honour of the Citizens, let us add a few Things, that tend to advance the Honour of the CITY it ſelf.

LONDON is commonly ſtoried to be before Rome it ſelf was built, and to be rocked in a Trojan Cradle by the Founder and Father thereof, Heroick Brute, or Bryt, as the moſt ancient Monuments extant bear witneſs ; ſetting aſide all late Fancies that have been ſuperſtructed thereupon.

Under Claudius Cæſar, it was the Metropolis of the Trinobantes, the Chief Kingdom of Britain. Under other Cæſars afterwards, it was called Auguſta, or the Majeſtical or Imperial City. And for Hugeneſs, Concourſe, Navigation, Trade and Populoſity, it very hardly gives way to any City in Europe ; and excels all in the World for good Government, or at leaſt doth match and equal them.

The Citizens called Barons anciently.

The Citizens of this City have been honoured, and even courted by the Kings and Queens. Some of them, in former Times, have given the Citizens the Honourable Title of Barones, Barons.

Matthew Paris hath a Paſſage, where, in ſome Inſtrument of King Henry the Third, are theſe words : LONDONIENSES, quos propter Civitatis Dignitatem, & Antiquitatem Civium, BARONES conſuevimus appellare : “ The LONDON-“ ERS, whom by reaſon of the Dignity of the City, and the Antiquity of the Citizens, we have been wont to call BARONS.

Kings free of the City.

Divers Princes and Kings have been pleaſed to be incorporated into ſome of the Companies, and have choſen to be Freemen of the City.

Henry the Seventh, a very wiſe Prince, is ſaid to have been in Perſon at the Election of Maſter and Wardens of the Merchant Taylors, and to have ſat openly among them in a Gown of Crimſon Velvet of the Faſhion, with a Citizen's Hood of Velvet on his Shoulders, Alamode de Londres, upon their ſolemn Feaſt Day, in the Common Hall of the ſaid Company.

Queen Elizabeth was Free of the Mercers.

King James the Firſt incorporated himſelf into the Clothworkers; as Men dealing in the Principal and Nobleſt Staple Wares of all theſe Iſlands, viz. Woollen Cloths.

Q. Elizabeth ſprung from a Citizen.

And of Queen Elizabeth this further is to be remembred, That ſhe was ſprung directly from a Citizen; viz. Sir Geoffry Bullen, ſometime Lord Maior of London; who was lineally Anceſtor to Queen Anne her Mother, no longer before than the Reign of King Henry the Sixth. And ſhe did Sir Martin Calthorp, when Maior of London, the Honour to call him Kinſman, as indeed he was.

Both which Knights and Citizens were Gentlemen born, and of Right Worſhipful Families.

L. Fitz-Water the City-Banneret.

It muſt be added alſo, to the City's Honour, That it anciently had the Lord Fitz-Water for her Banneret.

Off. of Arms.

There was an old imperfect Volume in the Office of Arms, where the ſaid Lord Fitz-Water's Picture ſtood. He is there repreſented ſtanding, and holding a long Sword in his Right Hand, and a Standard reſting on the Ground in his Left, with the Figure of St. Paul depicted thereon, (the Titular Patron of the City before Thomas Becket's Time) with a Sword in his Right Hand, and a Book in his Left. On the Lord Fitz-Water's Shield, the well-known Armour of the City, the Croſs and Sword. And upon his Coat-Armour, which he wore in this Picture, the Hereditary Enſigns of his own Illuſtrious Family; which is, Or, a Feſs between Two Chevrons Gules.

There needs no greater Demonſtration of the City's Ancient Honour, than that a Principal Baron of the Realm was by Tenure her Standard-Bearer.

The City entertain the Palſgrave at Dinner.

It hath not been unuſual for the City to entertain Foreign Princes: Which they have done ſplendidly, and made them Preſents.

J. S.

One Inſtance whereof was Anno 1612. Frederick Count Palatine of the Rhine, called the Palſgrave, then came into England, to marry the Lady Elizabeth, King James's Daughter. And on the Twenty ninth of October, when the Lord Maior took his Oath according to Cuſtom, the ſaid Prince was entertained at Guildhall, at the Maior's Feaſt; accompanied with the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Duke of Lenox, the Biſhop of London, and divers other Earls and Lords.

After Dinner, the Maior and his Brethren, in Behalf of the City, preſented the Palſgrave with a very large Baſin and Ewer, richly gilded, and curiouſly wrought, and Two great gilt Pots, ſuitable to the reſt: On every of which was engaven, CIVITAS LONDON.

And upon the Marriage, the Lord Maior and Aldermen preſented the Lady Elizabeth with a fair Chain of Oriental Pearl, which coſt above 2000 l.

The Citizens preſent King James with 500 Pieces.

When King James the Firſt came from Edinburgh to Windſor, (from whence he came to his City of London) the Citizens preſented him with a Purſe of Five Hundred Pieces of Gold: The Maior and Aldermen meeting him, (in a very magnificent and ſplendid manner) and above Four Hundred Citizens in Chains of Gold, and well mounted, at Hide-Park.

Offices, Places, Liveries and Fees, given by the City.

Nor have I yet done collecting Matter, ſhewing the Magnificence of this City of London: Which will appear further, both in thoſe great Numbers of Officers, Attendants and Servants it maintains and makes uſe of, and likewiſe in the Liveries and Fees, that have anciently been, and yet are beſtowed. Theſe I ſhall exhibit in Two Tables, which were ſome Time ago printed. The Credit and Truth of every Particular, I take not upon me to vindicate, but offer them as I found them.

Offices and Places.

The Rooms and Offices belonging to the City, are reckoned between Two Hundred and forty and Two Hundred and fifty.

The Reader muſt pardon me, that with the ſeveral Places here appear the Sums joined, that have lately been accuſtomed to be given for them: Since the Liſt was thus drawn by ſome, who humbly offered it to the Conſideration of the Lords and Commons in Parliament, complaining of the ill Conſequence of Buying and Selling of Places.

They had, it ſeems, taken great Pains to find out the Number of Places, together with the reſpective Value as they were bought and ſold: Yet acknowledged, that ſome might be overvalued from Miſinformation; but computed one with another undervalued in the general.

The TABLES are here annexed, as they were then delivered in.

A SURVEY OF THE CITY of LONDON.

BOOK II.

Containing a particular Inſpection into the Thirteen Wards on the Eaſt Side of WALBROOKE.

CHAP. I.

The Diviſion of the CITY into four Parts: And into Twenty Six Wards, or Aldermanries; within and without the Walls.

HAVING thus in a Generality handled the Original of the City, the Walls, Gates, Ditches, and freſh Waters of it; its Bridges, Towers and Caſtles, the Houſes of Law, the Colleges and Schools of Learning, the Hoſpitals, and charitable Foundations; I am now to ſet down the Diſtribution of this City into Parts, and more eſpecially to declare the Antiquities Note-worthy in every of the ſame. And then, afterwards, how both the Whole and Parts have been from time to time ruled and governed.

London divided into four Parts. R. B.

The City of London, taking in that alſo of Weſtminſter, with the adjacent Parts which begirt them, may not improperly be divided into four Parts. The Firſt is the City of London within the Walls and Freedom, which is inhabited by wealthy Merchants and Tradeſmen, with a Mixture of Artificers, as depending on Trade and Manufacture. Secondly, The City or Liberty of Weſtminſter, and the adjacent Parts, which are taken up by the Court and Gentry, yet not without a mixture of eminent Tradeſmen and Artificers. Thirdly, That Part beyond the Tower, which compriſeth St. Katharines, Eaſt Smithfield, Wapping, Shadwell, Ratcliff, Limehouſe, and ſo Eaſtward to Blackwall. Which are chiefly inhabited by Seafaring Men, and thoſe that by their Trades, or otherwiſe, have their Dependance thereon. And, Fourthly, Southwark, which taking in all the Borough almoſt as far as Newington Southwards, to Rotherhith in the Eaſt, and to Lambeth in the Weſt, is generally inhabited and fitted with Tradeſmen, Artificers, Mariners, Water-men, and ſuch as have their Subſiſtence by and on the Water: Beſides abundance of Porters and Labourers, uſeful in their kind to do the moſt ſervile Work in each of the four Parts.

Its Extent.

All theſe four Parts taken together have a vaſt Extent: For from the fartheſt End beyond Petty-France Weſtward, unto Blackwall in the Eaſt, is reckoned above five Miles; and from the fartheſt End of Shoreditch Northwards, to the End of Blackmoore Street in Southwark Southwards, is about three Miles, making in Circumference above 15 Miles.

Streets, Lanes, Courts, &c.

This great and populous City contains in the whole 6 or 7000 Streets, Lanes, Alleys, Courts, and Yards of Name, and generally very full of Inhabitants. Before the late dreadful Fire of London, the Houſes within the Walls were computed to be about 13000; and that is accounted not above a ſixth Part of the four Parts: And in theſe late Years whole Fields have been converted into Builded Streets, Alleys, and Courts; as the great Buildings about the Abby of Weſtminſter, Tutbill Fields, and thoſe Parts: Then the greateſt Part of St. James's Pariſh, as St. James's Fields, Albemarle Buildings, St. James's Street, Piccadilly, Golden Square, all the Streets in the Soho Fields, wherein is St. Ann's Pariſh; alſo all Bloomsbury, Kings Square, and the new Streets thereabouts: the ſeveral Streets by St. Giles's Church, Red Lyon Square, and the ſeveral Streets abutting thereon; all Hatton Garden, and the Streets on the Back Part of Purple Lane towards the Fields,

Number of Houſes.

Great Additions of Buildings.

as Liquorpond Street, &c. The Great and Little Lincolns Inn Fields, all Covent Garden, and the ſeveral Streets abutting thereon; the ſeveral Streets in Cock and Pye Fields; alſo York Buildings, Beauford Buildings, Saliſbury Buildings, Durham Yard, Exeter Buildings, Arundel Buildings, all Norfolk Buildings, Eſſex Buildings; the ſeveral Streets by Clare Market: All which are very populous, and full of Courts and Alleys; and in the Eaſt and North Parts, the Spittle Fields, Goodman's Fields, with divers other Places too tedious to name. All which were only Fields and waſte Grounds. Beſides theſe, there hath been a very great Encreaſe of BUILDINGS, in converting of Gardens and great Houſes into Courts, Squares, and Alleys, throughout the whole City.]

But now to ſhew how London was anciently, and to this Day is divided.

The City of London divided from Eaſt to Weſt into a South half and a North half. The high and principal Street.

The ancient Diviſion of this City was into Wards, or Aldermanries: And therefore I will begin at the Eaſt, and ſo proceed through the high and moſt principal Streets of the City to the Weſt, after this manner.

Firſt, Through Aldgate Street, to the Weſt-Corner of St. Andrew's Church, called Underſhaft, on the Right Hand, and Lime Street Corner on the Left; all which is of Aldgate Ward. From thence through Cornhill Street to the Weſt Corner of Leadenhall; all which is of Lime Street Ward. From thence, leaving the Street that leadeth to Biſhopſgate on the Right Hand, and the Way that leadeth into Graſſe Street on the Left, ſtill through Cornhill Street, by the Conduit, to the Weſt Corner againſt the Stocks; all which is in Cornhill Ward. Then by the ſaid Stocks (a Market Place both of Fiſh and Fleſh ſtanding in the midſt of the City) through the Poultry (a Street ſo called) to the great Conduit in Weſt Cheap, and ſo through Cheap to the Standard, which is of Cheap Ward, except on the South Side from Bow Lane to the ſaid Standard, which is of Cordwainer Street Ward. Then by the Standard to the great Croſs, which is in Cripplegate Ward on the North Side, and in Bread Street Ward on the South Side: And to the little Conduit by Paul's Gate, from whence (of old time) the ſaid High Street ſtretched ſtrait on to Ludgate, all in the Ward of Farringdon within, then divided truly from Eaſt to Weſt: But ſince that, by means of the burning of Paul's Church, which was in the Reign of William the Firſt, ſurnamed Conqueror, Mauricius, then Biſhop of London, laid the Foundation of a new Church, ſo far in Largeneſs exceeding the old, that the Way towards Ludgate was thereby greatly ſtraitned, as before I have diſcourſed.

The Stocks Market the midſt of the City.

St. Paul's Church burned in the Conqueror's Time.

The City divided from North to South into an Eaſt half and a Weſt half.

Now, from the North to the South, this City was (of old time) divided, not by a large High Way, or Street, as from Eaſt to Weſt, but by a fair Brook of ſweet Water, which came from out the North Fields, through the Wall and midſt of the City, into the River of Thames; and which Diviſion is (till this Day) conſtantly and without Change maintained. This Water was called (as I have ſaid) Walbrooke [not Gallus Brook, of a Roman Captain, ſlain by Aſclepiodatus, and thrown therein, as ſome have fabuled, but] of running through, and from the Wall of this City. The Courſe whereof, (to proſecute it particularly) was and is from the ſaid Wall to St. Margaret's Church in Lothberry; from thence beneath the lower part of the Grocer's Hall, about the Eaſt Part of their Kitchen, under St. Mildred's Church, ſomewhat Weſt from the ſaid Stocks Market: From thence through Buckelſberry, by one great Houſe builded of Stone and Timber, called the Old Barge, becauſe Barges out of the River of Thames were rowed up ſo far into this Brook, on the back Side of the Houſes in Walbrooke Street, (which Street taketh Name of the ſaid Brook) by the Weſt End of St. John's Church upon Walbrooke, under Horſhoe Bridge, by the Weſt Side of Tallow Chandler's Hall, and of the Skinner's Hall, and ſo behind the other Houſes to Elbow Lane, and by a part thereof, down Greenwich Lane into the River of Thames.

The Courſe of Walbrooke, and Reaſon of the Name.

The Courſe of Walbrooke arched over.

This is the Courſe of Walbrooke, which was (of old time) bridged over in divers Places, for Paſſage of Horſes and Men, as need required: But ſince, by means of Encroachment on the Banks thereof, the Channel being greatly ſtraightned, and other Annoyances done thereunto; at length the ſame (by common conſent) was arched over with Brick, and paved with Stone, equal with the Ground where-through it paſſed, and is now in moſt Places builded upon, that no Man may by the Eye diſcern it. And therefore the Trace thereof is hardly known to the common People.

This City divided into Wards.

Fitzſtephen.

This City being thus divided from Eaſt to Weſt, and from North to South; I am further to ſhew how the ſame was (of old time) broken into divers Parts, called Wards, whereof Fitzſtephen, more than four hundred Years ago, writeth thus: This City (ſaith he) even as Rome, is divided into Wards; it hath yearly Sheriffs inſtead of Conſuls; it hath the Dignity of Senators in Aldermen, &c.

Wards in London 24. Patent Record.

The Number of theſe Wards in London, were both before, and in the Reign of Henry III. 24 in all; whereof 13 lay on the Eaſt Side of the ſaid Walbrooke, and 11 on the Weſt of the ſame. Notwithſtanding, theſe 11 grew much more large and big than thoſe on the Eaſt: And therefore in the Year of Chriſt 1393, the 17th of Richard II. Faringdon Ward, which was then one entire Ward, but mightily encreaſed of Buildings without the Gates, was by Parliament appointed to be divided into twain, and to have two Aldermen, to wit, Faringdon within, and Faringdon without, which made up the Number of 12 Wards on the Weſt Side of Walbrooke; and ſo came the whole Number of 25 on both Sides.

Wards in London 25.

Moreover, in the Year 1550, the Maior, Commonalty, and Citizens of London, purchaſing the Liberties of the Borough of Southwark: appointed the ſame to be a Ward of London; and ſo became the Number of 13 Wards on the Eaſt, 12 on the Weſt, and one on the South of the River Thames, lying in the ſaid Borough of Southwark, in the County of Surry; which in all ariſe to the Number of 26 Wards, and 26 Aldermen of London to govern them.

Wards in London and the Borough of Southwark, 26.

PORTSOKEN WARD;

The firſt Ward in the Eaſt Part.

Knighten Guild. The Bounds. Trinity Church and Canons. St. Katharine's. Eaſt Smithfield. The New Abby. The Minories. Goodman's Fields. St. Botolph Aldgate. Benefactors. The Modern State of this Ward.

Portſoken Ward.

SEeing that of every of theſe Wards I have to ſay ſomewhat, I will begin with Portſoken Ward without Ealdgate.

Knighten Guild. Lib. Trin.

This Portſoken, which ſoundeth as much as the Franchiſe at the Gate, was ſome time a Guild, and had this Beginning, as I have read. In the Days of King Edgar, more than ſeven hundred Years ſince, there were 13 Knights (or Soldiers) well beloved to the King and Realm for Services by them done: who requeſted to have a certain Portion of Land on the Eaſt Part of the City, left deſolate and forſaken by the Inhabitants, by reaſon of too much Servitude. They beſought the King to have this Land, with the Liberty of a Guild for ever. The King granted to their Requeſt, with Conditions following; to wit, That each of them ſhould victoriouſly accompliſh three Combats; one above the Ground, one under Ground, and the third in the Water. And after this, at a certain Day, in Eaſt Smithfield, they ſhould run with Spears againſt all Comers. All which was gloriouſly performed. And the ſame Day the King named it Knighten Guild, and ſo bounded it, from Ealdgate to the Place where the Bars now are toward the Eaſt, on both the ſides of the Street, and extended it towards the North, and the Gate, now ſince called Biſhopſgate, unto the Houſe then of William Presbyter, after of Jeffrey Tanner, and then of the Heirs of Colver; after that, of John Eaſeby; but ſince of the Lord Bouchier, &c. And again, towards the South, unto the River of Thames, and ſo far into the Water, as a Horſeman, entring the ſame, might ride at a low Water, and throw his Spear. So that all Eaſt Smithfield, with the Right Part of the Street that goeth to Dodding Pond, into the Thames, and alſo the Hoſpital of St. Katharine, with the Mills, that were founded in King Stephen's Days, and the outward Stone Wall, and the new Ditch of the Tower, are of the ſaid Fee and Liberty: For the ſaid Wall and Ditch of the Tower were made in the Time of King Richard I. when he was in the Holy Land, by William Longſhampe, Biſhop of Ely, as before I have noted unto you.

The Original thereof.

Bounds of Knighten Guild or Portſoken Ward.

The Liberties confirmed.

Theſe Knights had as then none other Charter by all the Days of Edgar, Ethelred, and Cnutus, until the Time of Edward the Confeſſor: Whom the Heirs of thoſe Knights humbly beſought to confirm their Liberties; whereunto he graciouſly granting, gave them a Deed thereof, as appeareth in the Book of the late Houſe of the Holy Trinity. The ſaid Charter was fair written in the Saxon Letter and Tongue.

Lib. Trinit.

After this, King William, the Son of William the Conqueror, made a Confirmation of the ſame Liberties unto the Heirs of theſe Knights in theſe Words:

K. William's Charter.

William, King of England, to Maurice, Biſhop, and Godfrey de Magum, and Richard de Parre, and to his faithful People of London, greeting: Know yee me to have graunted to the Men of Knighten Guild, the Guild that belonged to them, and the Land that belonged thereunto, with all Cuſtomes, as they had the ſame in the time of King Edward, and my Father. Witneſs Hugh de Buche; at Rething.

After him, King Henry I. confirmed the ſame by his Charter to the like Effect; the Recital whereof I pretermit for Brevity ſake. After which Time, the Church of the Holy Trinity within Ealdgate of London, being founded by Queen Matilde, Wife to the ſaid Henry, the Multitude of Brethren praiſing God Day and Night therein, in ſhort time ſo encreaſed, that all the City was delighted in the beholding of them. Inſomuch that in the Year 1115, certain Burgeſſes of London, of the Progeny of thoſe Noble Engliſh Knights; to wit, Radulphus Fitzalgod, Wilmarde le Devereſhe, Orgare le Prude, Edward Hupcornehill, Blackſtanus, and Alwine his Kinſman, and Robert his Brother, the Sons of Leafſtanus the Goldſmith, Wizo his Son, Hugh Fitzvulgar, Algare Secuſme, coming together into the Chapter Houſe of the ſaid Church of the Holy Trinity, gave to the ſame Church, and Canons ſerving God therein, all the Lands and Soke called in Engliſh Knighten Guild, which lieth to the Wall of the City without the ſame Gate, and ſtretcheth to the River of Thames: They gave it, I ſay, (taking upon them the Brotherhood and Participation of the Benefits of that Houſe) by the Hands of Prior Norman.

Priory of the Trinity within Ealdgate.

Knighten Guild given the Canons of the Holy Trinity.

And the better to confirm this their Grant, they offered upon the Altar there the Charter of Edward, together with the other Charters which they had thereof. And afterward they did put the foreſaid Prior in Seiſin thereof, by the Church of St. Botolph, which is builded thereon, and is the Head of that Land. Theſe things were thus done before Bernard, Prior of Dunſtable, John, Prior of Derland, Geffrey Clinton Chamberlain, and many other Clerks and Laymen, French and Engliſh. Orgare le Prude (one of their Company) was ſent to King Henry, beſeeching him to confirm their Gift, which the King gladly granted by this Deed following:

The King's Charter confirming the ſame.

Henry, King of England, to R. Biſhop of London, to the Sheriffs and Provoſt, and to all his Barons, and faithful People, French and Engliſh, of London and Middleſex, greeting: Know ye me to have granted and confirmed to the Church and Canons of the Holy Trinity of London, the Soke of the Engliſh Knighten Guild, and the Land which pertaineth thereunto, and the Church of S. Botolph, as the Men of the ſame Guild have given and granted unto them: And I will and ſtraightly command, that they may hold the ſame well, and honourably and freely, with Sack and Soke, Toll and Thea, Infangtheſe, and all Cuſtomes belonging to it, as the Men of the ſame Guild in the beſt Sort had the ſame in the time of King Edward; and as King William my Father, and Brother, did grant it to them by their Writs. Witneſs, A. the Queen, Geffrey de Clinton, the Chancellor, and William of Clinton; at Woodſtocke.

Confirmation of this Charter. Lib. Trin. Prior. J. S.

This Charter was afterwards confirmed by Gilbert, William and Roger, Biſhops of London. Then by S. Alphage, Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Then by Alexander and Innocent, Popes. Innocent alſo granted moreover to the Prior and Convent, that the foreſaid Church and Pariſhoners of the ſame ſhould be ſerved by one of the Canons, to be removed at the Prior's Pleaſure.]

Theſe Writings concerning this Knighten Guild regiſter'd in Guild-hall.

All theſe preſcribed Writings (ſaith my Book) which ſome time belonged to the Priory of the Holy Trinity, are regiſtred in the End of the Book of Remembrances of the Guild Hall of London, marked with the Letter C. Folio 134. The King ſent alſo his Sheriffs, to wit, Aubery de Vere, and Roger, Nephew to Hubert, which (upon his Behalf) ſhould inveſt this Church with the Poſſeſſions hereof; which the ſaid Sheriffs accompliſhed coming upon the Ground, Andrew Buchevite, and the forenamed Witneſſes and others ſtanding by; notwithſtanding Othowerus, Acolivillus, Otto, and Jeffrey, Earl of Eſſex, Conſtables of the Tower by Succeſſion, with-held by force a Portion of the ſaid Land, as I have before delivered.

Conſtables of the Tower.

The Founding of Trinity Church, Book C. Fol. 135. and Dunthorn, Fol. 79. R.

All this Hiſtory above related of the Founding of Trinity Church within Aldgate, and of the Beginning of the Canons Regular and Auguſtin Friars in England, is taken out of the Book C. in Guild-Hall, and out of an old Book there, called Dunthorn; where we read as follows.

Norman the firſt Prior, and the firſt of the Auguſtin Order.

“ In the Year of Chriſt 1108, and in the 8th Year of King Henry, was the Church of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate, London, founded by the venerable Lady Maud, Wife unto the ſaid King, by the Perſuaſion of Archbiſhop Anſelm. It was given unto Norman, who became the firſt Prior not only there, and firſt Canon Regular of the whole Kingdom: For by him was all England (ſaith my Record) adorned with the Rule of St. Auguſtin, and the Canonical Habit of that Order: Which Order, by the gathering together of many Friars into that Church, was the number of thoſe that praiſed God day and night, ſo much encreaſed, that the whole City was much delighted with the Sight of it: Inſomuch, that in the Year of our Lord 1125. certain Burgeſſes of the City, deſcended of the ancient Race of the Engliſh Knights, by Name Ralfe, the Son of Algode, Wolfard le Deveriſh, Orgar le Prude, Edward Upcornhill, Blacſtan, and his Couſin Alwyn; Alwyn and Robert his Brother, Sons of Leofſtan; Leofſtan the Goldſmith, and Wyzo his Son, Hugh the Son of Wolgare, Algar Secuſenne, Orgar the Son of Dereman, Osbert Drinchepin, and Adelardus Hornpite, meeting together in the Chapter of the Church of Chriſt, which is ſituate within the Walls of the City near Aldgate; freely gave unto the ſaid Church, and unto the Canons ſerving God, all that Land and Soken, which was called Angliſh Cnithgilda; which lies by the Wall of the City without Aldgate, and reaches into the Thames. They gave it, I ſay, themſelves becoming Friars, and partaking of the Benefits of that Place, by the Hand of Norman the Prior, who received them into the Society, as he had done others before them, by an Oath taken upon the Text of the Goſpel.

“ And to the Intent that this Gift of theirs might ſtand firm and unchangeable, they ſurrendred up (among other Writings which they had for it) the Charter of St. Edward: After which they gave the Prior Seiſin and Poſſeſſion of the ſaid Land * by the Church of St. Botolph, which had been builded upon the ſame, and was the Head of it.

* That is, by giving him Entrance and Poſſeſſion into the Church of St. Botolph, which was the Head, or, as it were, the Capital Meſſuage of the Manour.

“ All this was done before theſe Witneſſes, Bernard, Prior of Dunſtable, John, Prior of Landa, and divers other French and Engliſh People.

“ The ſaid Donors hereupon ſent one of their own Company, Ordgar le Prude by Name, unto King Henry with their Petition, that he would be pleaſed to give his Conſent and Confirmation to their ſaid Gift. Whereupon the King very willingly allowed the ſaid Land and Soken unto the Church; and to be free and acquitted from all Service to himſelf, as frank Alms ought to be; which he thus confirmed by his Charter:

Henry, King of England, &c. as before.]

Pope Innocent's Bull for Confirmation of the Gifts given to this Priory. J. S. Statuimus, Rym. Fœdera, &c. Tom. I.

To all this was added the ſacred Confirmation of the Pope, without which nothing was firm enough in thoſe Times. Innocent II. in the ſecond Year of King Stephen, Anno 1137, directed this Bull to his beloved Son Norman, Prior of that Church, placed within the Walls of London, and to his Friars, &c. i. e. “ We appoint, that whatſoever Poſſeſſions and Goods the ſaid Chriſt-church doth now juſtly and lawfully poſſeſs, or hereafter by the Conceſſion of Popes, Grants of Kings and Princes, Offerings of the Faithful, or by other juſt Means may be gotten, do remain firm and inviolable to you and your Succeſſors. Among which, theſe we thought convenient to expreſs by their proper Names; to wit, two Parts of Iſſues of the City of Exon, the Lands of Lectune, which Simon du Moulins, and Adeline his Wife, out of a Principle of Piety, granted to the ſame Place, the Land and the Soke of Angliſche-cnihte gild, the Church of Bix, with its Rents, the Church of Totenham. Beſides, whatever Churches or Lands, without the City of London or within, reaſonably beſtowed upon you by God's faithful People, or ſhall happen to be offered hereafter, we confirm to you, and by you to the ſame Church, by Apoſtolical Authority, &c. Yet ſaving due Reverence to the Biſhop of the Dioceſe. To this hangeth a Leaden Bull with Strings of yellow and red Silk.]

Part of Knighten Guild withheld by the Conſtables of the Tower.

The Prior and Canons of the Holy Trinity being thus ſeized of the ſaid Land and Soke of Knighten Guild, a Part of the Suburb without the Wall, (but within the Liberties of the City) the ſame Prior was for him, and his Succeſſors, admitted

Prior of the Trinity an Alderman of London.

mitted, as one of the Aldermen of London, to govern the ſame Land and Soke. According to the Cuſtomes of the City, he did ſit in Court, and rode with the Maior and his Brethren, the Aldermen, as one of them in Scarlet, or other Livery, as they uſed, until the Year 1531, at the which time the ſaid Priory (by the laſt Prior there) was ſurrendred to King Henry VIII. in the 23$^{d}$ of his Reign. Who gave this Priory to Sir Thomas Audley, Kt. Lord Chancellor of England, and he pulled down the Church. Sithence the which Diſſolution of that Houſe, the ſaid Ward of Portſoken hath been governed by a temporal Man, one of the Aldermen of London, elected by the Citizens, as by the Aldermen of other Wards.

This Priory ſurrendred to the King.

Another Pope's Grant to the Prior. J. S.

But to ſhew further what Countenance the Popes gave to this Priory of the Holy Trinity, I read this Bull of Pope Alexander, indulging Authority to the Prior over his Company, not to be controlled by the King himſelf, no not in his own Dominions. 8 Hen. II. Ann. 1162. “ALEXANDER the Pope granteth the Prior, upon his Requeſt, whereby the State of his Church may be preſerved and reformed for the better, that the Perſons of the ſaid Church, under the Diſcipline of regular Obſervance, may give to God worthy and acceptable Service, we grant him free Power of Correction, as is expedient; as to him belongs of correcting of the Exceſſes of thoſe under him, and recalling of Fugitives to the ſame Church, as it pertains to his Office; notwithſtanding the King's, or any other ſecular Prohibition. Let no Man therefore infringe this Page of our Grant, or oppoſe it by any raſh Boldneſs: But if any preſume to attempt it, let him know, that he ſhall incur the Indignation of the Omnipotent God, and the Bleſſed Apoſtles, St. Peter and Paul. At Viterbium July 3, and the third of the Pontificate.

Rymer's Fœdera, &c. Vol. 1. p. 20.

A Preſentment by Portſoken Ward.

Mention was made before of this Prior's being Alderman of Portſoken Ward. I have met with an ancient Preſentment of certain Jurats of this Ward in the Reign of King Edward I. at an Inquiſition of his Juſtices, wherein the ſaid Alderman himſelf is preſented. And preſenting things amiſs out of the Ward, as well as within, it may not be amiſs to lay it before the Reader.

In Baga Quo Warranto London. 3 E. 1. P. Le Neve.

The Prior of Chriſt's Church, London, holds his Wardmote of Portſoken of Aldgate, within the Priory, unjuſtly; becauſe his Wardmote was wont to be held within the Portſoken, and not without.

The Jurats ſay, that Sir Raſe de Berners, Kt. holds one Meſſe and two Water-Mills in St. Botolph without Aldgate, which are called the Knights Fee: Which Tenement ought to find for the King one Servant armed in one Turret in the Tower, for forty Days, in the time of War, at his proper Coſt. And in the laſt War he made a Default.

That Giles de Wodeham, Kt. made a Ditch upon the King's Way, called Kingeſceſland.

Philip Lands dwells in a Houſe upon the common Paſture, called Campricheſheth, at Hackeney.

That the Prior of Chriſt's Church, London, hath applied to himſelf a Lane between his Priory and the City Wall, through which was wont to be a common Way.

That the Nuns of St. Helen's within Biſhopſgate apply to themſelves a Lane from Biſhopſgate Street unto St. Mary at Axe Street.

That an Hermitage is placed in a Turret of the Wall of the City near Aldgate, and it is built four Foot without the Turret of the ſaid Wall in the King's High-way.

To add a few more Remarks concerning this ancient Monaſtery, or Priory of the Holy Trinity: The foreſaid Queen Maud gave to the Prior and Convent the Church of Brackyng, [the ſame with Braughing in Hertfordſhire as I think] with the Appurtenances: Alſo the Churches of St. Auguſtin Papey, near the Wall, and St. Edmund's Lombard Street, and of Allhallows upon the Wall. To which Churches the ſaid Prior and Convent preſented. Theſe three laſt Churches belonged to the Soke of Algate, which the ſaid Queen Maud gave to this Priory: And from theſe Churches they received certain yearly Penſions; that is, from St. Auguſtin's 12 d. from St. Edmond's 13 s. 4 d. and from Allhallows 3 s. All-Saints Fanchurch pertained alſo to them; whence they received 2 s. yearly Penſion. To this Priory alſo the Church of Bix or Bixil belonged, given them by William Corbil, Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

Churches given to this Priory.

Lib. Trin. penes me.

The Bounds of it.

The Boundaries of the Scite of this Priory appear in the Inſtrument of the Grant made of it by King Henry VIII. to Sir Thomas Audely, viz. A magna porta civitatis noſtre Lond. &c. i. e. “From the great Gate of our City of London called ALDEGATE, and ſo thence on the North-ſide of the King's Street, [or High Street] called ALDEGATE Street, unto the Bell-houſe [or Steeple] of St. Katharine Chriſt-church; and from thence by a certain Street reaching from the ſaid King Street by the ſaid Bell-houſe unto the great Gate of the ſaid late Monaſtery, and ſo by the ſaid Street from the ſaid great Gate of the ſaid late Monaſtery unto the Stone Wall of our City of London; and ſo by the ſaid Wall unto the ſaid great Gate called ALDEGATE.

The Priory ſticks to Holy Church. Lib. Trin. penes me.

The Monks of this Priory I find to be commended in a Charter of one Gualo, Cardinal of St. Martin, Legate of the Apoſtolick See, for their being ſuch obedient Sons to the Holy Roman Mother Church in the late Diſturbance in England, by reaſon of the Diſcord between the King [John] and the Barons; wherein they underwent heavy Loſſes, and no ſmall Wrongs. And in Conſideration thereof, the Cardinal confirmed to them the Church of Brackinges for their own Uſes. This Grant was in the Year 1211.

40 Hen. 3. P. Le Neve.

This Priory was once taken into the King's Hands for receiving a certain Thief that eſcaped from Newgate.

Surrendred to K. Hen. 8. An. 1531. Dr. Kennet, now Lord Biſhop of Peterborough.

This Church was ſurrender'd up into K. Henry VIII.'s Hands Feb. 4. 1531. 23 Regis, (as appears by the Copy of the Inſtrument communicated to me by the Reverend White Kennet D. D.) Nicolas Hancock the laſt Prior, and his Covent, aſſembled together in their Chapter Houſe, ſurrendring it by a formal Deed ſealed by their common Seal. And Feb. 25. the ſame Year, the ſaid Prior and Convent did recognize the foreſaid Surrender by their Names ſubſcribed, viz. Hancock the Prior, George Grevyl, and 17 more of the Convent, before Richard Watkyns, LL. B. Publick Notary, required hereunto by Rowland Lee and John Olyver, Clerks, or Maſters of Chancery, before whom the Surrender was made in the Chapter Houſe: Wherein is remarkable the Cauſe they aſſign for this Surrender, ——Domus, que in ſuis fructibus, redditibus, proventibus, obventibus & emolumentis non mediocriter deteriorata eſt, & quaſi in totum diminuta, ingentique ære alieno obruta, oppreſſa & gravata extitit, &c. i. e. “That their Houſe was not a little ſunk in its Fruits, Revenues and Benefits, and in effect come to nothing, and over Head and Ears in Debt. And therefore, that they maturely weighing and conſidering with themſelves, that unleſs the King (being their Founder and Patron)

The Grant thereof to Sir Tho. Audely.

The Grant of the Scite of this Priory thus in the King's Hands, with divers Meſſuages there and in Hertfordſhire, the King granted to Sir Tho. Audely Kt. Lord Chancellor of England, the Letters Patents bearing Date April 9. 25 Hen. VIII. An. 1533. And by another Charter the ſaid King granted to the ſaid Audely all whatſoever belonged to this Religious Houſe lying within Aldgate, or without; that is, in the Pariſh of St. Katharine Chriſt-church, within Aldgate, or in St. Botolph without: to be held in Socage by Fealty only. This was dated June 28. an. regn. 27. Not to be ſilent of other Letters Patents of the King, dated Decemb. 29. the Year before to the ſaid Sir Thomas, Sir Henry Parker, and others, of the Manour of Brawling, alias Brawgling-Bury, and the Rectory of Brawgling in the County of Hertford, Parcel of the Lands of the ſaid Priory.]

Thus much for the Out-Bounds of Knighten Guild, or Portſoken Ward, and for the Antiquity and Government thereof.

St. KATHARINES.

Places contained in this Ward.
Hoſpital of St. Katharines.

Now of the Parts therein, this is ſpecially to be noted. Firſt, the Eaſt Part of the Tower ſtandeth there. Then an Hoſpital of St. Katharine, founded by Matilde the Queen, Wife to King Stephen, by Licence of the Prior and Convent of the Holy Trinity in London, on whoſe Ground ſhe founded it. Elianor the Queen, Wife to King Edward I. a ſecond Foundreſs, appointed there to be a Maſter, three Brethren Chaplains, and three Siſters, 10 poor Women, and ſix poor Clerks. She gave to them the Manour of Carleton in Wiltſhire, and Upchurch in Kent, &c. Queen Philippa, Wife to King Edward III. 1351. founded a Chauntry there, and gave to that Hoſpital 10 Pound Land by Year. It was of late time called a free Chapel, a College, and an Hoſpital for poor Siſters.

A ſecond Foundreſs.

Gift and Grants to St. Katharines.
J. S. Record. Tur.

To this Houſe belonged the Manour of Riſhendon in the Iſle of Shepy, and a Tenement in the Pariſh of Menſtre [Minſter] there; and another Manour of Cheſingbery in Wilts; and Quarley [written alſo Owarley] in the County of Southampton; parcel of the Priory of Okeburne granted 19 Hen. VI. Tenements in Reynham in Kent accepted in Exchange: A Meſſuage in a Lane called Bow Lane, &c. Many Liberties were granted to this Hoſpital, and a Fair to be held upon Tower Hill the Day after the Feaſt of St. James, granted 20 Hen. VI. In this Church of St. Katharines was founded a Chauntry in Honour of St. Fabian and St. Sebaſtian; and 10 l. yearly to be taken out of the Iſſues of the Hanaper, 1 R. II. Among the Records of the Tower there is alſo one, ſhewing that it belonged to the King to preſent to the Keeper there the Perſons who ſhall be profeſſed Siſters there——Rich. II. Two Meſſes more came to them ſituate in the Pariſh of Berking Church, heretofore founded for an Hoſpital of poor frantick People; now granted 2 R. II. to this Hoſpital of St. Katharines for a Chauntry to be made by Robert Denton. Again, K. Edward III. in the ninth of his Reign granted to the Hoſpital of St. Katharine, de Boſco & Maremio capiend. in Boſco Roger. Waſt de Leinton [Leyton certè] infra Foreſt de Eſſex, pro focal. & pro reparatione Molendin. ſui de Reynham; i. e. Wood and Timber to be taken in the Wood of Roger Waſt of Leyton in the Foreſt of Eſſex, for Firing, and for the Repair of their Mill at Reynham. Farther, there was the Advowſon of the Church of St. Peter's in Northampton, with the Chapels of Kingſthorp and Upton annexed, granted to this Houſe by Iſabel the Queen, 3 E. 3. and the Church of Frethenſted in the Dioceſs of Canterbury.

A Mill and a Garden belonging to St. Katharines.

There belonged anciently to this Hoſpital a Mill and a Garden; which were both taken away for making the Tower Ditch: But for which Recompence was made them. For there is a Charter in the Tower, made 18 E. 2. concerning 5 Marks 6. s. 9. d. granted heretofore by K. Edward I. to be taken each Year at the Exchequer, in Recompence of a Loſs which they ſuſtained for the enlarging of the Ditch about the ſaid Tower.

Queens Patroneſſes of it.

Several Queens of England having been Foundreſſes, eſpecial Benefactors to this Hoſpital; Queens became chief Patroneſſes of it, and had ſome ſpecial Juriſdiction in it. There is a Record, 7 E. 3. that makes Alianor the Queen Grandmother of the King, the Founder; and determines the Power of the Queens of England there.

Guild of St. Barbara in St. Katharines.

There was a very noble Guild or Fraternity founded in the Church of this Hoſpital of St. Katharine's, to the Honour of St. Barbara. It was governed by a Maſter and three Wardens; it had two Royal Founders, K. Henry VIII. and Q. Katharine his firſt Wife; and many very high and honourable Perſons aſſociated themſelves as Members of the ſaid Fraternity. One was the great Cardinal Wolſey, and many other eminent Dukes, Earls, and Knights, Queens, and Ladies. All this will more fully appear by the Beads to be bidden for this Guild: An old Print whereof, communicated to me by a diligent Collector of ſuch Antiquities, is as followeth,

Mr. Bagford.

There lye buried in this Church the Counteſs of Huntington, Counteſs of the March in her time 1429; John Holland Duke of Exceſter, and Earl of Huntington, 1447. and his two Wives, in a fair Tomb on the North-ſide of the Choir under a ſtately Arch.

Dame Margaret Dutcheſs of Exeter bequeathed her Body to be buried in the Chapel within the Chancel of the College of St. Katharines, beſide the Tower of London: Whoſe Will was proved An. 1458.

The ſaid Duke of Exceſter's Monument here, is one of the ancienteſt remaining within, or about the City, excepting thoſe in the Temple Church. And for the preſerving of the Memory of this great Peer, there hath been hung up againſt a Pillar hard by, a Tablet expreſſing his Titles, his Offices, and who his Wives were; done by John Gybbon, Blewmantle. The Effigies of him, lying on the Right hand, and his two Wives on his Left, are engraven in Stone; each with their Hands together in a praying Poſture. The Duke hath on his Right hand three Rings, one on his fore Finger, another on his fourth Finger, both worn under the ſecond Joint, and a third on the middle Finger, worn under the firſt Joint. His firſt Wife's Hands are broken: On the Fingers of his ſecond Wife appear likewiſe three Rings, (which it ſeems to have been the Faſhion of the Nobility in thoſe Times) the Ring on the fore-Finger, and that on the fourth, being on the firſt Joint, that on the middle Finger worn under the ſecond: Coronets on all their Heads.]

Rich. Verſtegan born in St. Katharines.

In this Hoſpital Raimundus Lullius, the famous Hermetic Philoſopher, wrote his Teſtamentum Noviſſimum: As by the latter End of that Work appears. It may not be amiſs to add, for the Honour of this ancient Houſe, that Richard Verſtegan, that wrote the Reſtitution of decayed Antiquities, was born in St. Katharines. Whoſe Grandfather Theodore Rowland Verſtegan was of Guelderland, deſcended of an ancient and worſhipful Family: And, by reaſon of the War, came into England the latter end of K. Henry VII. As the abovementioned Gentleman, Mr. Gibbon, late an Inhabitant himſelf of St. Katharine's Hoſpital, now 38 Years and upwards, hath informed me.]

The Choir.

The Choir, which of late Years was not much inferior to that of Paul's, was diſſolved by Dr. Wylſon, a late Maſter there, the Brethren and Siſters remaining. This Houſe was valued at 315. l. 14. s. 2. d. being now of late Years encloſed about with ſmall Tenements and homely Cottages; having more Inhabitants, Engliſh and Strangers, than are in ſome Cities in England.

A Place in St. Katharines called Hangmans Gains. J. S.

Many of theſe Strangers had been Inhabitants of Calais, Hammes and Guiſnes; which Places being loſt in the Reign of Q. Mary, the poor People, Tradeſmen and others, were glad to flee over into England: Where wanting Habitation, a Place belonging to St. Katharines (now a Lane) was allowed them, which, from the Countries whence they came, was called Hammes and Guiſnes; and is the ſame with that Place, which at this Day by a ſtrange Corruption is called Hagmans Gains; as I was once told by Mr. Gibbon aforeſaid, late one of the College of Heralds, and a learned Antiquarian: And he had it from Mr. H. Sylliard once a Brother of this Hoſpital.

One Crokebay a Stranger in St. Katharines. Fox Martyrol.

Among many outlandiſh Men that lived here in St. Katherines was one Crokebay, a Man of Credit and Subſtance; who inhabited here in Q. Mary's Days: Whoſe Wife Gertrude, being a faſt Proteſtant, was troubled upon her Death-bed by Dr. Mallet, then Maſter of St. Katharines; becauſe he could not perſuade her, neither to receive the Unction nor the Sacrament; excuſing this laſt, in that ſhe was ſubject to vomit, and ſo was ſure, ſhe ſaid, to caſt up their God again. He therefore refuſed her Chriſtian Burial when ſhe was dead, and ſaid ſhe ſhould be buried in ſome High Way, and a Mark ſet upon her in token that ſhe was an Heretick; but her Husband at laſt obtained leave to bury her in his Garden: For there were Gardens then in St. Katharines.

Hangmans Gains. The Flemiſh Church-yard. Mr. Gibbon.

Behind Hangmans Gains [corrupted from Hammes and Guiſnes] is the Flemiſh Churchyard, which was appropriated for the Burial of thoſe of Hammes and Guiſnes, and other poor Flemings that came over afterwards under Q. Elizabeth: And is ſtill a Churchyard for the poorer ſort.

The Jewry in St. Katharines.

Somewhere within the Liberties of the Tower, and as it ſeems in this Part of St. Katharines, was a Place called Judaiſmus, the Jewry, which being a Place of Privilege, ſuch as were Jews (as well as others) reſorted thither for their Safety, who fell off from the Religion then profeſſed and practiſed; and particularly Prieſts that had taken Wives; and ſo eſteemed Apoſtates from the Unity of the Catholick Church. Among the Collections of the Tower Records taken by Mr. Prynn, we have this,

A Place of Privilege. Rec. Turr.

The Circuit of this Hoſpital, or Free Chapel of St. Katharine, is as follows: From the Eaſt Gate of the Tower by the Thames, unto the Bank beyond St. Katharine's Dock eaſtward; and from thence through all the Lane which leadeth from the ſaid Dock, and in and by every Part of the ſaid Lane, unto the King's Highway northward: Which way lyeth between the Abby of Grace, and the ſaid Hoſpital or Free Chapel, and leadeth from the City of London unto Radcliff. And alſo from the ſaid Way, againſt the ſame Lane, unto the Tower Ditch weſtward, and from thence to the River of Thames ſouthward.]

St. Katharines Brewhouſes. Leighs Accid. of Armory. fol. 79. b. J. S.

St. Katharines was famous for Brewhouſes in ancient Times. One Geffrey Gate in K. Henry VII. his Days ſpoiled the Brewhouſes at St. Katharines twice; either for brewing too much to their Cuſtomers beyond the Sea, or for putting too much Water into the Beer of their Cuſtomers, that they ſerved on this ſide the Sea, or elſe for both.

There be divers very ancient Records concerning this Knighten Guild, or Portſoken, that afterwards came into the Poſſeſſion of the Canons of Trinity Church; and likewiſe concerning the Hoſpital of St. Katharines: And many Charters of Kings of England, ſetting out the Liberties, Extent and Privileges of them. Authentick Copies whereof are ſtill remaining in certain old written Books in the Guild hall of London: Which Records and Charters follow.] And firſt,

* Or K. Edgar, Secund. Lib. Trinitat. Pro nimiâ ſervitute.

IN the Times of King Knowt * (or Kanutus) the Dane, were there thirteen Knights very well beloved both of King and Kingdom. Theſe begged of the King's Grace a certain Piece of Land in the Eaſt Part of London, which the Inhabitants had lately forſaken by reaſon of the Hardſhip and Service they there ſtood charged withal. The Knights ſuit, for to have this Land granted unto them for ever, with the Liberty of a Guild upon it; the King upon this Condition granted, namely, that every one of them ſhould perform three Combats upon the Land, and in the Water; and come off with Victory: And alſo, that upon a Day appointed, they ſhould run at Tilt againſt all Comers, in the Field which is now called Eaſt Smithfield. This they having performed glorioufly, the King gave them the Field, and the ſame Day named it Knytte Guilden; appointing theſe Boundaries unto it. Firſt, that it ſhould reach from Ealdgate to the Place where the Bars now are, Eaſtward on both ſides the Town. He extended it another way toward Biſhopſgate, as far as the Houſe of William the Prieſt. To the Southward, the Liberties of this Guild reached ſo far into the Water of the Thames, as a Horſeman riding into the River at a dead low Water, could dart his Horſeman's Staff from him. So that all Eaſt Smithfield, with part of the right hand Way, which ſtretcheth by Doddings Pond into the Thames; and alſo the Hoſpital of St. Katharines, with the Mills, (which Hoſpital was founded in the Reign of King Stephen) together with the outer Stone Wall, and the new Ditch of the Tower, ſtand, and are within the Fee aforeſaid. For the ſaid Wall and Ditch were not as yet made; but were afterwards, in the very time that King Richard I. was at Jeruſalem: Which was done by the Biſhop of Ely, the King's Juſtice over all the Kingdom. The occaſion was a Difference betwixt Earl John the King's Brother, and the Chief Juſtice. By the digging of this Ditch in the Ground of Eaſt Smithfield, did the Church of the Holy Trinity in London loſe half a Mark a Year Revenue; and the Mill which belonged unto the poor Brotherhood of the Hoſpital of St. Katharines, and unto the Churches of St. Katharines, and of the Holy Trinity altogether, was fain to be removed, to their no little Hindrance. A Garden alſo which the King had hired of the Brotherhood aforeſaid, at the Rent of ſix Marks a Year, was for the moſt part deſtroyed alſo by the ſaid Ditch: Recompence was often ſued for, but not made very ſpeedily, though promiſed faithfully. Afterwards, King Edward gave five Marks and an half unto the poor Brotherhood, for that part of their Garden which the Ditch had deſtroyed; and that part which it had not, he reſtored unto them again, which they hold unto this Day. As for their Rent of five Marks and a half, he gave them his Charter, by which they receive it very duly either out of the Exchequer or the Hanaper, even until this preſent.

Eaſt Smithfield.

Theſe were Engliſh Knights; and therefore in ſome Writings it is called Engliſh Knytte Guilden.

The Tower Ditch firſt made.

This Guild was by divers Kings afterwards confirmed. And firſt by Edward the Confeſſor, then by King William Rufus; of whoſe Charter I here give you this Abſtract.

Out of the Book C. Fol. 134.

William King of England, &c. to Biſhop M. G. de Magu, and R de Boare, and to his faithful * Leige People of London, ſendeth greeting. Know ye, that I have confirmed unto the Men of Cnittengilda, their Guild, and Lands pertaining unto it, with all their Cuſtoms entire; even as they enjoyed them in the Time of King Edward, and of my Father: Witneſs Henry de Both at Rethyng.

* Fidelibus. By which, perchance both in this, and other King's Charters of thoſe Times, are meant, ſuch as were the King's Tenants, or held Lands of him, and had ſworn Fealty for them to him.

Of K. Henry I. his Charter this is the Abſtract.

Henry King of England, &c. to Biſhop M. to the * Sheriff of London, and to all his Barons and faithful People of London, as well French as Engliſh, ſendeth greeting. Know ye, that I have granted unto all the Men of the Cnyttengilda, their Guild, and Lands pertaining unto it; together with all their Cuſtoms after the beſt manner; even as they enjoyed the ſame in the Times of King Edward and my Father, and as the King my Brother by his Charter and Seal confirmed them. And I free it from any Forfeiture that might accrue unto my ſelf, forbidding all Men, that upon Pretence hereof, they preſume not to offer them any Moleſtation: Witneſſes, R. de Momford, R. de Bigot, and H. de Booth, at Weſtminſter.

More concerning the Liberties and Extent of the ſaid Guild.

Know ye, that the Soken of Knyttengilda reaches from Aldgate, with the Lands on both ſides the Street, even unto the outer Bar. On the South Side it reaches towards the Thames; joining with the Soken within the Bar, 66 Foot of St. Paul. On the North it goes within the Bar 16 Foot of St. Paul. The Soken alſo extendeth towards Biſhopſgate, even unto the Houſe belonging ſometimes unto William the Prieſt, and after unto Geoffrey Tannar; together with all Smithfield, and ſo far into the Thames, as a Horſeman, at low Water, riding upon his * Deſtrier into the River, could dart his Lance from him; together with the Right Hand part of the Street which goes by Doddings Pond to the Thames: But as for that on the Left Hand, it is not of that Soken; but yet in the Pariſh of St. Botolphs.

More concerning the Tower Ditch beforementioned; and of the encloſing the whole City of London with a Ditch.

Whilſt King Richard, in his Return from Jeruſalem, was kept Priſoner by the Emperor of Almayne, there fell out a Diſſenſion betwixt Earl John the King's Brother, and the Biſhop of Ely, Lord Chief Juſtice of England; whereupon the Biſhop thought good to fortify the * K.'s Caſtle, which the Earl at that time provided to beleager. It ſeemed good to the Biſhop, therefore, to encompaſs in the whole Bulwark with a Wall of a moſt wonderful Thickneſs, and to make a broad and deep Ditch about that. Which the Thames flowing into, the whole Tower might both be encompaſſed and fortified by it. Upon occaſion, therefore, of this Ditch, which was then made in Smithfield, (and by reaſon of that other Ditch, which the Citizens for the ſame cauſe then began to make round about their City) did the Church of the Holy Trinity loſe half a Mark of yearly Revenue; and the Mill alſo belonging unto the Poor of the Hoſpital of Aldgate was taken away: Whereupon there accrued no ſmall Damage both unto us *, and to thoſe poor People; for which, though Recompence hath been often promiſed, yet have we hitherto received no Satisfaction.

More concerning this Matter out of a French Record in Book H. Folio 199. and in Book Dunthorne, Folio 88. Which is a Deſire of the Maſter of St. Katharines Hoſpital to have leave of the City to encloſe a certain piece of Ground near the Tower of London.

It was told unto the Maior, Aldermen, and Commonalty, how that John Hermeſthorpe, Maſter of St. Katharines Hoſpital by the Tower of London, had a certain piece of Land which had ſomewhile been a Portion of the Garden of his Hoſpital; which Portion, King Edward, Son to King Henry, had purchaſed of thoſe of the ſaid Hoſpital for the Enlargement of the Tower Ditch; for which he paid unto the Maſter, Brothers, and Siſters of the ſaid Hoſpital, 3. l. 13. s. 4. d. yearly for ever: And that the ſaid Hoſpital had received the ſaid Rent ever ſince the Time of the Purchaſe. This Place, indeed, had heretofore lain void and waſte, and had been of no Profit to any; ſerving only for a Reſort or Meeting Place of Rogues and Women of ill Converſation. For the reſtraining of which Naughtineſs and Pilferies, the ſaid John had again purchaſed it of King Edward III. of whom he had received Licence to encloſe the ſaid void Piece for the Benefit of his Hoſpital; he paying to the King and his Heirs, into their Exchequer, 6. s. 8. d. for ever: By virtue of which Licence the ſaid Maſter had already begun to encloſe the ſaid void Plat of Ground. This the Maior, &c. hearing of, ſent to forbid the Encloſure of; affirming, that the ſaid Plat belonged unto the Commonalty of the City of London; whereupon the Maſter forbore to proceed farther for ſix or eight Years together.

A Garden of St. Katharines.

A Place of ill Reſort near St. Katharines.

At the End of this Term, the ſaid Maſter made ſuit unto the Maior and Commonalty, that they would pleaſe to give him leave to encloſe the ſaid Place, were it but only to prevent and take away the Villanies which he affirmed to be there committed: For which Courteſy he then promiſed, that himſelf, and all the Brothers and Siſters of the ſaid Hoſpital, would particularly, and in eſpecial manner, pray for the good Eſtate of the City; and be willing moreover to pay ſome ſmall yearly Rent unto the Chamber of Guild Hall, London, for ever. To this Suit the Maior, Aldermen, and Commonalty conſented; and farther made choice of ſome certain Aldermen and Commoners, who ſhould take a View of this, and other void Places belonging to the City, and make report to them, &c.

To prove that the Hoſpital of St. Katharines, with the Mills, and all that belong to it, together with the Tower Ditch, all Eaſt Smithfield without the Poſtern, before the Abbey of Grace, with the right hand Part of the Street leading along by Duddings Pond, are, and Time out of Mind have been, within the Liberty of the City of London; and parcel of Portſoken Ward without Aldgate, in the Suburbs.

I find two ſeveral Copies of this; one in Book Dunthorne, Fol. 80 and another in Book K. Fol. 56.

The Maior and Commonalty of the City of London affirm, that in the Time of the Conqueror, and long before, the ſaid Ward of Portſoken was called the Ward of Angliſh Knightgilden: And that afterwards, about the eighth of King Henry I. Ralph the Son of Algode, Wolfard le Deveriſh, Orgar le Prude, with divers other ſubſtantial Citizens of London, deſcended of the ancient Race of the Engliſh Knights; being Lords of the Liberty of the ſaid Guild, in the Soken aforeſaid, and were ſeazed of all the Lands in the ſaid Soken, (as by the Charter of the ſaid King Henry it appeareth) did bequeath the ſaid Soken and Lands unto the Church and Canons of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate, London: Which Gift the ſaid King Henry by his Charter (which the Maior and Commonalty have here to ſhew) alſo confirmed. Upon pretext of which Gift and Confirmation, Norman, at that time Prior, and the Convent of the Church aforeſaid, as alſo their Succeſſors, ſtood a long time poſſeſſed. Afterwards, among other things, Ralph the Prior, with the Canons of the ſaid Church, did grant unto Maud Queen of England, Wife to King Stephen, a certain Parcel of Land in the ſaid Soken, (the very ſame, namely, upon which the ſaid Hoſpital of St. Katharines is now founded) together with all the Mill there in the Shambles *, in lieu of ſix yard Land in the Manour of Bracching, in the County of Hertford; even as by two Patents of the ſaid King and Queen made upon that Occaſion, it manifeſtly is declared. Moreover they affirm, that whereas the Lord Edward I. ſometimes King of England, had not any piece of Ground of his own proper Lands near enough unto his Tower of London, whereupon to build up his Wall, and to make his Ditch about the Tower, which he purpoſed to do anew; he purchaſed of the Maſter, Brethren, and Siſters of the Hoſpital of St. Katharines by the Tower aforeſaid, a certain Plat of Ground with the Appurtenances in Eaſt Smithfield, adjoining unto the Tower, both for the laying of the Sand, Gravel, and Marle, which ſhould be digged out of the Ditch, and that which ſhould ſerve for the reparing of the Wall aforeſaid: And that he paid unto the Maſter, Brothers, and Siſters aforeſaid, five Marks, ſix Shillings and nine Pence, both for the Purchaſe of the ſaid Plat, and the Recompence of their Loſs long ſince ſuſtained by the Enlargement of the Ditch, and Reparation of the Wall aforeſaid; which he cauſed for himſelf and his Succeſſors to be yearly payable out of the Exchequer: Which five Marks, ſix Shillings, nine Pence, the Maſters, Brothers, and Siſters (for the time being) of the ſaid Hoſpital, have ever ſince the ſaid Grant received, and do actually at this preſent receive it by virtue of the ſaid Patent, which they now have by them, &c. The Copy whereof was entered upon Record in the Chamber of * Guild Hall; and acknowledged by them before Nicholas Brembre, then Maior, and the Aldermen. They affirm alſo, that in the 14th Year of King Edward II. at ſuch time as he held Aſſizes in the ſaid Tower, it was proved, that the ſaid Ward of Portſoken (heretofore called Engliſh Knightgeld) was in, and of the Liberties of London; and that, ſo often as any Tax was to be raiſed for the King, or to be aſſeſſed for the Commonalty of London, upon the Commoners of the ſaid City, or that any other Aſſeſſment was to be made by the ſaid Commonalty, either for the raiſing of ſome Wall, making of any Encloſure, or for the Defence of the City; that all the People inhabiting the ſaid Ward, were accuſtomed to pay the ſaid Taxes, like other Freemen of the City; and the ſaid Aſſeſſments were wont to be levied upon them, as upon other Freemen of the City, like as by the Tranſcript of the Rolls of the ſaid Aſſizes * of the Kings, now remaining in the Treaſury of the Guild Hall of the ſame City, moſt clearly it appeareth.

* In Eſcambio.

* This is ſeveral times written Gimhald.

* In itinere.

They farther affirm, that the Lord Edw. III. late King of England, Progenitor of our Lord the King that now is, in the 17th Year of his Reign, directed by his Letter * unto John Hamond, at that time Maior of his City of London, and his Majeſty's Eſcheator in the ſame; in which Letters he made Rehearſal of all the former Buſineſs concerning the Wall and Ditch of the Tower, made in his Grandfather's time. He rehearſed alſo, how Ralfe of Sandwich, and John de Weſton, late Conſtables of the Tower, did let out the ſame Place by Parcels unto divers Men, without Leave or Licence: had therefore, either from the Kings, his Grandfather, Father, or himſelf; and that the ſaid Place was then builded upon, and rented out for 40 s. a Year, and that himſelf had given out Commiſſions to enquire upon the Reaſons, Manner, Right, and Value of every thing, &c. And that the ſaid John Hamond making Enquiry hereupon, made Return of all into the Chancery, &c.

* Per breve ſuum.

Eaſt Smithfield builded upon.

They affirm moreover, that all the Lands and Tenements upon the foreſaid Right Hand of the Way by Dudding's Pond, and about the ſaid Places of Eaſt Smithfield, Tower Hill, and Romeland, circularly ſituated, were and have been in in the time of the holding the Aſſizes of the ſaid King, impleaded and ſued within the ſaid City, and not elſewhere, as by the Evidences of the ſaid Lands and Tenements, upon Record enrolled in the Guildhall, &c. appeareth.

They farther ſay, that in the Times of all the former Kings and Aſſizes, (time out of mind) ſo often as any Miſ-hap or Caſualty, ſuch as Murther, Drowning, or other indirect Death of any Perſon, in any of the Places fore-mentioned, hath fallen out, upon which there was any Enquiry to be taken, or any Summons, Attachment, or Execution to be made in any of the ſaid Places; yea, and which more is, even within the Tower it ſelf, and at ſuch time as the King (now and then) hath been preſent, have the Sheriffs, Coroners, and other Officers of the ſaid City of London for the time being, and no other, uſed to make ſuch Queſts of Enquiry, Summons, Attachments, and Executions, and had right ſo to do; as it is moſt manifeſtly to be proved by divers Rolls of the Crown, and other Records of the Times aforeſaid, now being in the ſaid Treaſury.

The Liberties of the City this way.

They ſay moreover, that amongſt other Liberties granted by the King's Predeceſſors unto the Citizens of London, and ratified in divers Parliaments, this expreſly is one, That no Arreſt, Attachment, or Execution, be made by any Officers of the King's within the ſaid Liberty, either by Writ or without Writ, but only by the Officers of the City. By all which Charters, Letters, Patents, Bills, Acts of Aſſize, Writs, Inqueſts, Returns, Rolls of the Eſcheators, and Crown-Office, Aſſizes, Pleadings, Enrollments, Freedoms, and moſt plentiful other kinds of Records and Proofs, it may eaſily and undoubtedly be concluded, that the ſaid Hoſpital of St. Katherines, with the Mills, and other its Appurtenances; as alſo the whole Tower-Ditch, with all the Lands of Eaſt Smithfield without the Poſtern, before the Abby of Grace, together with the Right Side of the Street going by Dudding's Pond; as alſo the whole Ditch and Plain without the Tower, within the Poſtern, called Romeland, with all the Houſes and Gardens round about them, have all the time aforeſaid been within the Compaſs of the Liberty of the City.

Dunthorn, Fol. 84.

The ſelf-ſame Copy of what is laſt above, is ſomething differently recorded alſo in Book Dunthorn; the different Points whereof, not mentioned in this former, I have tranſcribed.

That the Hoſpital, Ditch, and the Tower Hill, are of the Pariſh of St. Botolph's Aldgate, and Parcel of Portſoken Ward: That another Part, by Romeland and the Thames, towards the Poſtern, by St. Katharine's Hoſpital, were of the Pariſh of Allhallows-Berkin, and of the Ward of the Tower of London. That Queen Maud was the Foundreſs of Trinity Church within Aldgate; that the Ditch begun by the Citizens in Rich. I.'s Time, was for the Defence of the City. That there is another Soken within the Walls of the City, called the Inner Soken, which reacheth from Aldgate even unto that Gate of the Tower called * Cinigate; which Soken is within the Liberties of the City, as by ſome Records kept by the Prior doth appear. That the Inhabitants of Portſoken and the Tower are to be impleaded only in the Courts of the City, for all Matters, Cauſes, and Contracts howſoever ariſing. That the Tower hath no proper Court of its own, but only the Court of the Baron, which is no Court of Record, as by Records exemplified in the King's Bench it appeareth: That when any Murther or Drowning hath been within the ſaid Hoſpital or Tower, the City Officers have attached the Malefactors within the Tower, notwithſtanding that the King himſelf ſometimes happened to be preſent within the ſaid Tower, and have carried the ſaid Men ſo arreſted into ſome of the King's Priſons within the City. That when the Juſtices Itinerant have uſed to come to keep Aſſizes in the Tower, the Officers of the City have had the keeping both of the inner and outer Gates of the ſaid Tower; and that nothing was executed within the Tower, which pertained to the Office of a * Servant, but by the Servants of the City. That the Sheriff of London hath had the Charge of all the Priſons in the Tower, ſo often as the ſaid Juſtices Itinerant have come, as appears in many Rolls of Pleas of the Crown, and of the ſaid Itinerant Juſtices.

* Cuning gate, perchance, or the Kings Gate.

* Sergeant, perchance.

By another ſhort Record in the ſaid Dunthorne, Fol. 85. it is ſpecified, that if any were murthered within the Tower, or drowned in the Tower-Ditch, or in the Gate, called the Water-Gate, that notwithſtanding the King himſelf were there preſent, yet have the City Sheriff and Coroner ſitten upon the dead Body, and empanelled their Juries.

Refer all this concerning the Privilege of the City within the Tower, unto Tower Street Ward.

The Letter or Commiſſion of King Edward unto John Hamond, Maior of London, beforementioned, is to be ſeen in Dunthorne, Fol. 87. 'Tis dated at Weſtminſter, Octob. 21. in the 17th Year of his Reign over England, and over France the 4th. The Lord Maior's Return of the Inquiſition is alſo there recorded.

More concerning the ſame Matter, and of the reſtoring to the Church of a little Piece of Land, encroached upon by the Conſtables of the Tower.

Stephen King of England, to the Biſhop of London, and to the Juſtices, Sheriffs, Barons, Officers, and all his * Liege People of London, French and Engliſh, greeting. Wherefore I will, and hereby firmly do command, that they ſhall well and peaceably, freely, quietly and honourably, have and hold the Land aforeſaid; even as after the beſt manner they did freely and quietly enjoy other their Lands, and even as King Henry had before granted, and by his Charter confirmed it unto them. And I will and command, that they hold the ſaid Lands from me and from mine Heirs, free, cleared, and acquitted from all Claim and ſecular Service: That is to ſay, in ſuch manner as it ſhall never be lawful either for me or for mine Heirs, to do them any Injury, or contumely, in conſideration of the Lands aforeſaid. S. of Land in the Manour of Bracking in perpetual Alms; for the reſt of the Souls, that is to ſay, of Baldwin my Son, and Maud my Daughter, which lie buried there. I have farther alſo given and granted unto the ſaid Church and Canons ſix Yards of Land in the ſame Manour of Bracking, * for the Exchange of their Mill, and that Plat of their Ground, which they heretofore granted unto Queen Maud my Wife, near unto the Tower of London, upon which ſhe hath now founded an Hoſpital * for the Poor. Thoſe ſix Yards of Land, I mean, which I ſtill kept in mine own Demaines*, after I had made Partition of the other Parcels of the ſaid Manour; that is to ſay, that Part upon which the Church is founded, and unto which the Market belongeth. Wherefore I will, and firmly hereby command, that the ſaid Church and Canons ſhall well, peaceably, freely, and honourably for ever poſſeſs the ſaid Lands, acquitted from all ſecular Exaction, as it becometh free Alms: That is to ſay, my Demains with Sake, and Soke, and Toll, and Thea, and Infangtheof, with all ſuch other Cuſtoms as they now hold other their Poſſeſſions. Out of Book C. Fol. 136.

Maud by the Grace of God, Queen of Engliſh, to Robert Biſhop of London, and to all that hold on holy Church, greeting. Know ye that by the Counſel of the Archbiſhop Anſelme, and by the Grant and Confirmation of my Lord King Henry, I have given and confirmed the Church of Chriſt, within the Walls of London, to be free and acquitted from all Subjection, as well of the Church of Waltham *, as of all other Churches, excepting the Church of St. Paul, and of the Biſhop of London, together with all the Appurtenances, unto the Honour of God, and to the Canons Regular there ſerving God, with Norman the Prior, for ever; and that for the Redemption of our Souls, and the Souls of our Parents. In like manner have I given unto them the Gate called Aldgate, with the Soken thereunto belonging, which was mine own Demains; and two Parts of the Revenues of the City of Exceſter. And I will and command, that the ſaid Canons ſhall well, peaceably, freely, and honourably poſſeſs thoſe Lands, and all belonging unto their Church; together with thoſe Cuſtoms and Liberties which my Lord King Henry hath by his Charter confirmed unto them, ſo that no Injury nor Reproach be therefore done unto them. Aldgate Church, when builded.

Firſt, Obſerve the Time of the building of St. Botolph Church without Aldgate, which was about the Age of the Conqueror. So much we know by this, that it was builded betwixt the Time of Canutus and Henry I.

Barons.

Secondly, Whereas the Kings write to the Barons of London, Know what Matthew Paris in his Henry III. ſays, viz. That the Citizens of London, both for their Antiquity, and the Honour of the City, were called Barons. But they were only the principal Citizens that had this Title. The chief Men of the City, whom we now call Barons, were heretofore ſtyled Captains: They were the King's free Tenants, privileged all over England. Sometimes the King's Writs were directed to the Sheriff and Barons of London. The Church alſo had its Barons or free Tenants, and divers other Cities of England. See for this Word in Sir Henry Spelman's Gloſſary.

Thirdly, Obſerve London and Middleſex to be in thoſe Days joined together, as in King Henry's Charter.

I add one Paſſage more concerning this Priory. In Proceſs of Time, the Hoſpital of St. Katharines near the Tower, which had Dependance upon the ſaid Priory, now in the Time of King Henry III. withdrew their Canonical Obedience, having a Diſpenſation from a Biſhop of London, and ſome Countenance alſo from the Queen ſo to do. Whereupon the Prior and Convent applied, with and complain'd of the Wrong done them, unto Pope Urban. Who gave them his Bull in their Favour, which happened Anno 1264. 48 Henry III. And ſome Biſhops of London, with the Conſent of the Chapter, had granted the ſame to the Prior and Convent. And ſome Archbiſhops of Canterbury had confirmed the Collation and Donation of the ſaid Place. That the Friars in that Hoſpital took their Profeſſion, Habit, and Manner of Living, according to the Rule of St. Auguſtin, and promiſed by an Oath given upon this to live under Obedience to them, and fully to anſwer to them, as well in Temporals as Spirituals. But that a Biſhop of London at that time had ſpoiled them of the foreſaid Hoſpital, and the Rights of it, and permitted not the Friars to yield Canonical and due Obedience to them. The Pope therefore commanded the ſaid Prior and Convent by his Apoſtolick Letter to require the ſaid Biſhop to reſtore to them their Privileges in the ſaid Hoſpital.

The ſame Year the Pope directed a Bull to the Queen of England, who had alſo deprived the ſaid Priory and Convent of the ſaid Hoſpital; not ſuffering thoſe of that Hoſpital to give their due and Canonical Obedience to them, and for which they had interceded with him: Wherefore he ſent her his Bull in their Behalf; ſince for an hundred Years the ſaid Hoſpital belonged to them, &c.

New Abby on Eaſt Smithfield.

On the Eaſt, and by North of the Tower, lye Eaſt Smithfield and Tower Hill, two Plots of Ground ſo called, without the Wall of the City. And Eaſt from them both was ſometime a Monaſtery called New Abby, [and the Abby of Graces] founded by King Edward III. in the Year 1359. upon occaſion as followeth, Founded by K. Edw. III. Burial for the Dead, prepared in Time of Peſtilence.

In the Year 1348. 23 Edward III. the firſt great Peſtilence in his Time began, and encreaſed ſo ſore, that for want of Room in Church Yards to bury the Dead of the City, and of the Suburbs, one John Corey, Clerk, procured of Nicholas, Prior of the Holy Trinity within Ealdgate, one Toft of Ground near unto Eaſt Smithfield, for the Burial of them that died, with Condition that it might be called the Church Yard of the Holy Trinity. Which Ground he cauſed, by the Aid of divers devout Citizens, to be encloſed with a Wall of Stone. Robert Elſing, Son of William Elſing, gave five Pounds thereunto; and the ſame was dedicated by Ralph Stratford, Biſhop of London, where innumerable Bodies of the Dead were afterward buried, and a Chapel built in the ſame Place, to the Honour of God: To the which King Edward ſetting his Eye (having before in a Tempeſt on the Sea, and Peril of drowning, made a Vow to build a Monaſtery to the Honour of God, and our Lady of Grace, if God would grant him Grace to come ſafe to Land) builded there a Monaſtery, placing an Abbot, and Monks of the Ciſtercian, or White Order. The Bounds of this Plot of Ground, together with a Decree for Tythes thereof, are expreſſed in the Charter; the Effect whereof I have ſet down in another Place, and have to ſhew.

Cauſing it to be named Eaſtminſter.

The Occaſion of Founding this Abby of Graces. J. S.

Record. Turr. 25 E. 3. M. 34.

This Abbey of St. Mary of Graces had a Charter from K. Edward III. in the 25th of his Reign: And another Occaſion of the Foundation ſeems to appear thence.

Rex dilectis ſibi in Chriſto Abbati & Conventui de Bello loco Regis, Salutem. Quia ad invocationem omnipotentis Dei, & Domini Jeſu Chriſti ac glorioſiſſime matris ſuæ MARIE, pluries tam in terra quam in mari, in bellis & in periculis aliis, ſenſimus nos adjutos, Volentes provide in memoriam Graciarum hujuſmodi, cultum ipſius Dei & genetricis ſuæ, &c. The Subſtance of which Record is, That the King founded this Houſe in Remembrance and Acknowledgment of the Goodneſs of Almighty God, and of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and of the bleſſed Virgin MARY; whom he had often called upon, and found helpful to him by Sea and by Land, in Wars, and other Perils: And therefore ordered this Houſe to be called, The King's Free Chapel of the bleſſed Virgin OF GRACES, in memoriam Gratiarum, i. e. in Memory of theſe Graces, or Favours, which he had received from her. Therefore, the more amply to dilate the Worſhip of the ſaid God, and his Mother, he now began to found and endow this Free Chapel of the Ciſtercian Order, as a filial Houſe to be ſubject to the Monaſtery of Beaulieu of the ſame King's founding; and appointed the Abbot, and his Succeſſors, yearly to viſit it, or as Need ſhould require, and duly to correct what ſhould require the Line of Correction. He ordered the ſaid Abbot to ſend ſome of his fellow Monks of his Convent, to ſerve God and the bleſſed Virgin in the ſaid Chapel, under the regular Obſervance of the ſaid Order. And he appointed Walter de Sta Cruce, i. e. Holy Croſs, to be the firſt Preſident of the ſaid Chapel; whom he enjoined kindly to receive and treat the ſaid Religious, that were to profeſs Religion at the ſaid Free Chapel.

Manours belonging to this Abby. J. S.

By a Patent of 19 R. II. it appears that there belonged to this Monaſtery of St. Mary de Graciis the Manour of Graveſend, and ſeveral other Manours in Kent; alſo Rents in Woolwich, and the Manour of Popeler: And by a Patent 1 H. IV. it had divers Manours in the Counties of Devon and Cornwal, and Somerſet.

The Abby of Graces, Regiſt. Ep. Lon. Edw. Alexander.

Joan Hull, wife of Stephen Hull, Citizen and Pannarius [Draper] Lond. by her Will, dated Jan. 1425 gave a Tenement called Blackleſte in the Pariſh of St. Bennet Fink, London, for ever, to John, Abbot of the Monaſtery of St. Mary de Graciis of the Ciſtercian Order; and the Convent of the ſame to pray for her Soul.]

This Houſe, at the late general Suppreſſion, was valued at 546. l. 10. d. yearly; it was ſurrendred in the Year 1539. 30 Henry VIII. Since the which Time, the ſaid Monaſtery being clean pulled down by Sir Arthur Darcy Knt. and others; of late time, (in place thereof) is builded a large Storehouſe for Victuals. And convenient Ovens are builded there, for baking of Bisket to ſerve her Majeſty's Ships: The Grounds adjoining, and belonging to the ſaid Abbey, are employed in building of ſmall Tenements.

The King's Storehouſe.

Eaſt Smithfield Fair. J. S.

K. Henry III. in the 13th of his Reign granted, that a Fair ſhould be held at Eaſt Smithfield for 15 Days; viz. from the Eve of Pentecoſt to the Octaves of Trinity: And the ſaid King ſent his Briefs to the ſeveral Sheriffs of Lincoln, Glouceſter, Kent, Worceſter, York, Norfolk and Suffolk, and to the Maior and Sheriffs of London to proclaim the ſame. Et ideo tibi precipimus, quod predict. feriam, &c. i. e. “ And therefore we command you, that you cauſe to be proclaimed the beforeſaid Fair throughout the whole Bailiffwick, as is aforeſaid: Cauſing all Merchants of your Bailiffwick to know, that they may ſecurely come to the Fair. Witneſs the King at Weſtminſter the 8th Day of February.

And 30 E. III. there was a Grant to the Maſter, Brethren, and Chaplains, and Siſters of St. Katharines, that they, for ever, ſhall have one Fair upon Tower Hill [now called Little Tower Hill] over againſt the Abbey of St. Mary Graces; that large Ground in all Place there: There was alſo a Charter for this 20 Henry VI.]

Eight Acres encloſed in Hog Lane by Spinola. J. S.

Preſented.

In this Hog Lane, now mentioned, lying on the back ſide of Whitechapel, were eight Acres of Land, which about the Year 1574 were in the Poſſeſſion of one Benedict Spinola, a rich Italian Merchant; whereof he made twenty Tenter Yards and certain Gardens. Theſe, ſome pretended, were firſt encloſed by him, being before open and common. And hence it came to paſs, that in the Year 1584 it was preſented as an Annoyance to the Archers, and all the Queen's Liege People. And a Precept was awarded to the Tenants and Occupiers of the Premiſſes to remove their Pales and Fences, and all Buildings made thereupon: For now many Clothiers dwelt here, who hereupon applied themſelves to the Lord Treaſurer of England, and brought Witneſs to the contrary: Shewing, that the ſame Field, before it was ſo converted as then it was, was a Piece of Ground ſeveral, not common, nor never commonly uſed by any Archers, being far unmeet for Archers to ſhoot in, by reaſon of ſtanding Puddles, moſt noiſome Layſtals, and filthy Ditches in and about the ſame. Alſo the Way called Hog Lane was ſo foul and deep in the Winter time, that no Man could paſs by the ſame. And in Summer time Men would not paſs thereby for fear of Infection, by means of the Filthineſs that lay there. So that the Preſenters were utterly deceived, and not well informed in their Preſentments. Afterwards Benedict Spinola beſtowed great Coſt and Charges upon levelling and cleanſing the Premiſſes; and made divers Tenter Yards, by means whereof the common Ways and Paſſages about the ſaid eight Acres were greatly amended and enlarged, that all People might well and ſafely paſs. And poor Clothworkers by the Tenter Yards were greatly relieved: For that of late time divers Tenter Yards in and about London were decayed and pulled down, and the Ground converted to other Uſes. And becauſe the Queen had lately by Proclamation reſtrained all future Buildings and Encloſures in the Suburbs, they ſhewed that theſe Tenter Yards and Gardens were made long before the ſaid Proclamation.]

Abby of St. Clare Nuns, called the Minories.

From the Weſt Part of this Tower Hill, towards Aldgate, being a long continual Street, amongſt other ſmaller Buildings in that Row, there was ſometimes an Abby of Nuns of the Order of St. Clare, called the Minories, founded by Edmund, Earl of Lancaſter, Leiceſter and Darby, Brother to King Edward I. in the Year 1293, the length of which Abby contained 15 Perches and ſeven Foot; near unto the King's Street, or High Way, &c. as appeareth by a Deed dated 1303. A Plague of Peſtilence being in this City in the Year 1515, there died in this Houſe of Nuns profeſſed to the Number of 27, beſides other Lay People, Servants in the Houſe. This Houſe was valued to diſpend 418 l. 8 s. 5 d. yearly. And was ſurrendred by Dame Elizabeth Salvage, the laſt Abbeſs there, unto King Hen. VIII. in the thirtieth of his Reign, the Year of Chriſt 1539.

The Founding, Privileges, Revenues of this Place. J. S.

Record. Turr.

Concerning this Houſe of Nuns, I find theſe Particulars. The Licence for Founding it bore Date 21 E. I. to the Abbeſs of St. Clare without Aldgate. There was a Charter granted 9 E. II. that the Siſters Minoreſſes without Aldgate, ſint quiete de Tallagio, &c. i. e. be quit of Tallage on account of their Lands and Tenements in the City of London. In another Charter 14 E. II. it is called the Abby of the Minoreſſes of St. Mary of the Order of St. Clare without the Walls of the City: In which Charter are confirmed certain Meſſes of theirs in the Vintry, in Wood Street, Lad Lane, Old Fiſhſtreet, and one Meſs and two Shops in Lombard Street, Chriſt's Church Lane, and Shirburgh Lane; gotten of divers well affected Perſons: What the Charters and Liberties of theſe Minoreſſes were, may be ſeen by the Confirmation thereof in 1 H. V. and Anno 16. and 25. and 2 H. 4. which remain in the Tower Records. The Manour of Apeldercome was granted to the Prioreſs of the Minoreſſes without Aldgate, 1 H. IV. and 22 H. VI. A Meſs called the Herteſhorn, in the Pariſh of St. Mary Matfelon, was granted to them by Nicholas Walſhe, 7 E. IV. To all the reſt let this be added.

This diſſolved Monaſtery, being a large old Meſſuage, became a dwelling Houſe for divers great Men ſucceſſively; whom the King pleaſed to allow to reſide there. One of theſe, and the firſt, was John Clark Biſhop of Bath and Wells, who was buried in the Minorites Church; and afterwards his Corps reſted in Aldgate Church, as an old Inſcription there in Braſs teſtified: Afterwards, I think I have read, ſome Officers of the Tower had their Dwelling there. In the Year 1552. it came to Henry Duke of Suffolk by Patent from K. Edward VI. "Granting the chief Meſſuage, "or Manſion, called The Minory Houſe, within "the Precinct of the ſaid Monaſtery, called the "Minores, without Aldgate, London; and divers "Houſes in London belonging to the ſaid Mo-"naſtery, which extend to the clear Value of "36. l. 11. s. 5. d. ob. to hold in free Socage; "and the foreſaid capital Houſe in Capite.

An Account of the Monuments of ſuch Perſons of Quality as were buried in this Monaſtery, is wanting. I find one Matild Truſſel buried here, and the Lady Elizabeth Keryel, who bequeathed her Body, by her Will An. 1419. to be buried in the Minoreſs Church, London, near the Tomb of her Mother, the foreſaid Matild Truſſel. And Elizabeth, Dutcheſs of Norfolk, in the Year 1506. by her laſt Will, ordered her Body to be lain in the Nuns Choir, in the Minoreſſes without Aldgate, London; nigh unto the Place where Anne Montgomery lay buried.

The TRINITY MINORESS.

Pariſh Church of St. Trinity.

There is a ſmall Pariſh Church for Inhabitants of the Cloſe, called St. Trinity.

Repaired with the Churchyard. R.

This Church greatly decayed in the Roof, (the Timber repaired and mended) was new tyled in the Year of our Lord God 1618. In the Year 1620. the Steeple, that before (as the Church) was covered with Tyles, was untiled; and (the Timber repaired and ſtrengthened) was covered again with Lead. In the Year 1628. all the Inſide of the Church was well and very commendably beautified.

Alſo in the Year 1623. the Churchyard, that before was only paled in with Boards, was (to the better Defence and Grace of it) encompaſſed about with Brick, with a very handſome Entrance into it: This, as all the Repairs beforenamed, being the ſole Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhoners.

A Farm by the Minories, wherein hath been ſold three Pints of Milk for one Halfpenny, in Memory of Men living.

Near adjoining to this Abby, called the Minories, on the South Side thereof, was ſome time a Farm belonging to the ſaid Nunnery; at the which Farm, I my ſelf (in my Youth) have fetched many a Halfpenny worth of Milk, and never had leſs than three Ale Pints for a Halfpenny in the Summer, nor leſs than one Ale Quart for a Halfpenny in the Winter, always hot from the Cow, as the ſame was milked and ſtrained. One Trolop, and afterwards Goodman, were the Farmers there, and had 30 or 40 Kine to the Pail. Goodman's Son being Heir thereof, let out the Ground, firſt for grazing of Horſes, and then for Garden Plots, and lived like a Gentleman thereby. He lieth buried in St. Botolph's Church.

Goodmans Fields turned into Streets. J. S.

But now Goodman's Fields are no longer Fields and Gardens, but Buildings, conſiſting of many fair Streets, as Maunſel Street, Peſcod or Preſcot Street, Leman Street, &c. and Tenters for Clothworkers, and a large Paſſage for Carts and Horſes out of Whitechapel into Wellcloſe; beſides many other Lanes.]

Ditch of the City lay open, and was cleanſed, but now filled up.

On the other Side of that Street lieth the Ditch without the Walls of the City, which of old time was uſed to lie open, and was always (from time to time) cleanſed from Filth and Mud, as need required; and was of great breadth, and ſo deep, that divers watering Horſes, where they thought it ſhalloweſt, were drowned both Horſe and Man. But now of later time the ſame Ditch is encloſed, and the Banks thereof let out for Garden Plots, Carpenters Yards, Bowling Alleys, and divers Houſes be thereon builded. Whereby the City Wall is hidden, the Ditch filled up, a ſmall Chanel left, and made ſhallow enough.

And built. J. S.

All this Ditch is now quite filled up, and built with tolerable good Houſes, and makes a fair and airy Street, only ſomewhat annoyed by Dunghills, and little Out Houſes and Yards over againſt them, which belong to the Inhabitants of the Houſes in the Minories, Pariſh Church of St. Botolph.

From Aldgate, Eaſt, lieth a large Street, and High Way, ſome time repleniſhed with few, but fair and cleanly Buildings: On the North Side whereof, the firſt Building was the Pariſh Church of St. Botolph, in a large Cemitery, or Churchyard.

The Pariſh Church of St. BOTOLPH Aldgate.

Guild of the Holy Trinity in St. Botolph Church. J. S.

In this Church was founded a Fraternity, or Guild of the Holy Trinity; to which belonged a Meſſuage and Houſe called Trinity Hall, otherwiſe the common Hall of the ſaid Fraternity; to which belonged eight Meſſuages, commonly called Trinity Alley, ſold with other Things 2 Edward VI. for 6 l. 13 s. 4 d.

The Steeple is towered with Spires at each Corner, a ſeemly Lanthorn ſtanding in the Middle. Over into the Street a convenient Dial, for the Uſe of Paſſengers, extends it ſelf from the Side of the ſaid Steeple.

New Iles and a Steeple built to St. Botolphs. J. S.

We may gather ſome Knowledge what this Church of St. Botolph was about 300 Years ago, and how enlarged, from an ancient Will, bearing Date Sept. 5. 1418. in the Regiſtrary of the Biſhops of London, viz. That there then was an Ile added to it, called the new Ile of St. Katharines, and a new Chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, made equal and like to the ſaid St. Katharines Ile; and alſo a new Steeple. The Donor was Robert Burford, a Bell Founder, a wealthy Man, as it ſeems of this Pariſh, and charitably diſpoſed; who by Will gave 40 l. towards the building the new Ile of St. Katharines, and towards the making and raiſing of St. Mary's Chapel to the ſame Height and Form of the new Ile of St. Katharines 40 Mark; and towards the building of a new Steeple 40 l. more. And left it to his Executors, to ſee the whole Covering of the new Ile of the Chapel of St. Katharines in the ſaid Church to be compleatly finiſhed, in the Carpentary, at his proper Coſt and Charges. All which appear by the Words of the Will.

The Church hath been lately new builded at the ſpecial Charges of the Priors of the Holy Trinity, Patrons thereof, as it appeareth by the Arms of that Houſe engraven on the Stone Work. The Pariſhioners of the Pariſh being of late Years mightily encreaſed, the Church is peſtered with Lofts and Seats for them.

Aldgate Church repaired Ann. 1621. R.

This Church was repaired and beautified in the Year of our Lord God 1621. And in the Year 1633. all the Ground through the Church was new laid and levelled. In the doing of which, where before from the lower End of the Church to the upper End, it was all but one even Floor, without any Aſcent or Riſing, they have made a fair Aſcent at the Beginning of the Chancel; and in that again at the Place where they give the Communion. Further gracing and enriching it with a fair new Table, and the whole Chancel with new Pews, very decently wrought and diſpoſed.

Monuments in this Church.

Monuments in this Church there are few. Henry Jorden founded a Chantry there. John Romany Ollarie, and Agnes his Wife, were buried there about Anno 1408. Richard Cheſter Alderman, one of the Sheriffs, 1484. Thomas Lord Darcy of the North, Knight of the Garter, beheaded 1537. Sir Arthur Darcy, youngeſt Son to Thomas Lord Darcy, deceaſed at the New Abby on the Tower Hill, was buried there.

There is a fair Vault under Ground, purpoſely made (as appeareth) for the whole Family: Over which Vault (being in the Eaſt End of the Chancel, but leaning ſomewhat to the North) is a fair ancient Tomb of Alabaſter ingeniouſly wrought, being the Figure of a Man in white Marble lying along, as in a Sleep, with a white Sheet lapt about him; only the Face, Breaſt and Arms naked: Having theſe Lines thereon,

On the North Side of this Tomb there is a ſmall Monument, fixed in the Wall, bearing this Inſcription, Sir Ed. Darcy.

Here lyeth Sir Edward Darcy, Knt. third Son of Sir Arthur Darcy, Knt. Of the Privy Chamber to the late Queen Elizabeth. He married the Daughter of Thomas Aſteley, *Eſq; by whom he had fifteen Children. Sir Arthur Darcy, here mentioned, was firſt buried in the new Abby of Eaſtminſter, where he deceas'd; for what reaſon he was removed is not related: Moſt likely on the account of this being the burial Place of his Anceſtors. Another ſmaller Monument is alſo fixed in the ſame Wall, but ſomewhat more toward the South, having this Inſcription:

Rob. Taylor. Here lyeth buried the Corps of Robert Taylor, of Silverdale, in the Pariſh of Warton in the County of Lancaſter, Gentleman, the Father of John Taylor, Citizen and Draper of London, *and of this Pariſh Beer Brewer. Near unto the Place where the Miniſter readeth Divine Service, there is a ſmall Braſs Plate fixed in the Wall, a very unworthy Monument (in my mind) for a Man of ſo great Charity and Bounty, not having ſo much as a Graven Stone beſtowed on him upon the Ground. The Plate containeth theſe Lines following.

Robert Dow. Here before this Pew lyeth buried the Body of Robert Dow, Citizen and Merchant Taylor of London, with Lettice his Wife, and Thomas his Son: Which Robert deceaſed May 2. in the Year 1612. His Age was 89 *Years. His Charity to this Pariſh. Here follows an Account of Mr. Dow's Charity to this Pariſh: It is worthy to be obſerved for the farther illuſtrating the Character of that worthy Citizen, what pious and prudent Care he has taken for the choice of fit Perſons to receive ſuch his Charity: As particularly in his Directions to the Church Wardens, and Ancients, for the choice of the two Almſwomen which he added to the Merchant Taylors Almſhouſe in Little Tower Hill, and left a competent Proviſion for their Maintenance; and in that other Direction for the choice of the ſixty Poor. Dr. Bray. J. Carpenter.

The Exhortation drawn up by himſelf, and by his particular Order to be repeated to the Poor who receive his Charity at the time of the Diſtribution of it, is full of Chriſtian Simplicity and Primitive Piety.

There are alſo two other Exhortations of his to be repeated to the condemned Priſoners in Newgate: The one, the Night before they are to be executed, by the Sexton or Bell-man of the Pariſh of St. Sepulchre's; the other, as they paſs under the Church Wall to Execution: For which, and ringing the Paſſing Bell the Morning of Execution, he left 1 l. 6 s. 8 d. yearly for ever.

Theſe two Exhortations you will find ſubjoined to that which is delivered to the 60 Poor of Aldgate: and do ſhew how much he was concerned for the Good of the Souls of thoſe unhappy Criminals; as his other Charities do, how much he was concerned for relieving the bodily Neceſſities of thoſe who are worthy Objects of it.

Viceſimo octavo die Auguſti Anno Domini 1605, Anno Regni Domini noſtri Jacobi Dei Gratia Angliæ, Scotiæ, Franciæ & Hiberniæ Regis, Fidei Defenſoris, &c. (viz.) Angliæ, Franciæ, & Hiberniæ tertio, & Scotiæ, triceſimo nono.

WHEREAS I Robert Dow, Citizen and Merchant Taylor of London, now dwelling in this Pariſh of St. Botolph's without Aldgate: (minding always to help the Poor, and through the Goodneſs of Almighty God, from whom all holy Deſires, all good Counſels, and all juſt Works do proceed) I have contracted with the Worſhipful Company of Merchant Taylors under their common Seal, upon due Satiſfaction to them made, to perform for me certain Deeds of Charity by God and Grace for ever. Amongſt the which, ſix Pounds per Ann. is to be paid to one poor Widow of this Pariſh, placed by me in their Almſhouſe here adjoining, during her Life and good Behaviour: And after her Deceaſe to a poor Widow, to be from time to time, for ever, elected out of this Pariſh, according as in a Writing made between the ſaid Company and me is mentioned. And perceiving the Multitude of Poor encreaſeth in this Pariſh, I have further agreed with the ſame Company to pay the Sum of Ten Pounds Six Shillings yearly, in manner and form following, viz.

The ſaid Maſter and Wardens ſhall yearly appoint one of their Renter Wardens, and common Clerk of the ſaid Company, to pay the ſame Ten Pounds Six Shillings upon the Eve or Vigil of St. Thomas the Apoſtle, next before the Birth of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, by nine a Clock in the Forenoon, unto the Church Wardens of the ſame Pariſh within the ſame Church. At which time the four Church Wardens for the time being, or three of them at the leaſt, ſhall be yearly ready there to receive the ſame Sum; and by them ſo received, the Sum of Ten Pounds Parcel thereof ſhall be diſtributed to the Poor of the ſame Pariſh in manner and form following, (viz.) The ſame Diſtribution is appointed to be always made forthwith upon the Receipt thereof before twelve of the Clock of the ſame Day, to 60 poor People of the ſame Pariſh, by Three Shillings Four Pence to each of them: Of the which Number, 30 ſhall be of the Ward called, The upper End of the Pariſh, and 30 of the lower End of the Pariſh, called, The Lordſhip of Eaſt Smithfield.

All the ſaid Poor People ſhall be warned; they of the upper End by the Pariſh Clerk; and they of the lower End by the Sexton, to be at the Church before nine of the Clock of the ſame Day. And if any of them by Sickneſs, or other great Lett, cannot come to the Church, they ſhall deſire ſome known Neighbour to be at the Church, and receive the ſame for him or her. The Poor of the upper End ſhall always be firſt called; and as they anſwer to their Names, they ſhall go up into the North Ile of the Choir, and ſhut the Partition Door to them, and ſee that no other be amongſt them. Then ſhall they of the lower End be called; and as they do anſwer, go up into the South Ile, and ſhut the like Partition Door to them, and remain as aforeſaid.

If any Perſons remain in the Church that come to aſk Alms more than is appointed, the Church Wardens ſhall warn them all forth; and being gone, lock all the Church Doors, that they may the more quietly diſtribute the Charity. Then the Church Wardens being within the Choir, ſhall diſtribute firſt to them of the upper End; and as they be paid, the Pariſh Clerk ſhall croſs their Names in the Book, and they ſhall go down into the Body of the Church, for cumbring the Choir. And they of the lower End being next paid, and ſo croſs'd, ſhall alſo go down into the Body of the Church. This done, then the Pariſh Clerk ſhall call them up near the Choir Door, and the Miniſter, in Preſence of the Church Wardens, ſhall exhort them to come to the Church to ſerve God at the time of Common Prayers appointed, if they may, and eſpecially upon the Sundays and other Holidays not to fail. And if any be found negligent of the ſame, or be of any other Miſdemeanor, the Church Wardens in their Precinct ſhall exclude ſuch Perſon, and beſtow ſuch Charity upon ſome more worthy Perſon.

This Exhortation being done, the ſaid Poor ſhall all kneel down, and humbly, with Heart and Hand lifted up to God, ſay with the Miniſter openly the Lord's Prayer. And laſtly, they ſhall ſay, God reward all good Benefactors, and bleſs the worſhipful Company of Merchant Taylors: Then ſhall the South Church Door and Gate be ſet open, that they may all go out quietly three and three together.

The Six Shillings, reſidue of the Ten Pounds Six Shillings, ſhall be diſpoſed of in this manner. Firſt, to the Company's Clerk that bringeth the Money, and payeth it, from the Merchant Taylors Hall, eight Pence; the Miniſter, or Curate, for his Preſence and good Exhortation to the Poor, ſhall have eight Pence; the four Church Wardens ſhall have for their Pains eight Pence a piece, amounting to two Shillings eight Pence. Whenſoever any of the Poor do deceaſe, marry, or depart from the Pariſh, the Pariſh Clerk ſhall enter the Day of their Burial, Marriage or Departure upon their Names, and ſhall yearly, eight or ten Days before St. Thomas Eve, ſhew the ſame to the Church Wardens, that they may yearly make up the full Number of 60 Perſons; which being ſo prefitted, the ſame Clerk ſhall newly enter them in two Sides of this Book, as now it is begun: And he ſhall keep the Book ſafe in the Veſtry, and have for his ſo doing twelve Pence more. The ſaid Clerk and Sexton for warning the ſaid Poor, and Attendance at the Church at that time, ſhall have each of them ſix Pence; which laſt ſeveral Sums amount to the ſaid ſix Shillings. And if the Miniſter or Curate be abſent to give the Exhortation after the Diſtribution, the Pariſh Clerk ſhall do the ſame, and have the ſaid eight Pence for his Labour. And if any of the Church Wardens be abſent at the ſaid Diſtribution, then his Part ſhall likewiſe be given to them that be preſent. The poor Perſons now ſet down, and hereafter to be choſen, ſhall receive the ſame Charity yearly during their Lives: (except they marry, depart the Pariſh, or ſome other lawful Impediment or Miſdemeanor, or that they have ſuch better Preferment, as the Church Wardens ſhall think it meet to beſtow it of other more needy) And as any do deceaſe, marry, or depart the Pariſh, the Church Wardens in their Precinct ſhall appoint the moſt poor and honeſt Perſons to this Charity, reſpecting and preferring aged poor Widows before others.

The Copy verbatim of this above written remaineth in the Merchant Taylors Regiſter, with a Proviſo in the Contract between us in theſe Words, or to this Effect.

Provided always, and it is ordayned and agreed by me the ſaid Robert Dow, That if the Church Wardens of the Pariſh of St. Botolphs, aforeſaid, or their Succeſſors, Church Wardens for the Time being, ſhall be found negligent in the due paying of the ſaid Sum of ten Pounds ſix Shillings, or in obſerving the Orders beforementioned, or if the poor Widows, the Company's Almſwomen, ſhall not, or may not, quietly enjoy the Pews, which at the Charges of the Company have been built for their Uſe within the ſaid Church, without being diſplaced or removed for the ſame; That then it ſhall, and may be lawful, to the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants of the Company of Merchant Taylors aboveſaid, (upon due, and convenient Warning firſt given to the ſaid Church Wardens for the Time being, and the ſame not reformed) to retain the ſaid ten Pounds ſix Shillings, and to pay it no more unto them for their Poor; but to give and beſtow the ſaid Charity, to, and upon whom, and in what Order and Sort they ſhall think moſt expedient, for ever.

And the Orders of electing the ſaid poor Almſwomen is appointed by the Writing under the Company's common Seal to be performed in this manner following, viz. The Alderman's Deputy, and eight ancient Pariſhioners of the ſaid Pariſh, ſhall, for ever, within four Days after the Deceaſe of ſuch Widow, called Mr. Robert Dow his Almſwoman, preſent to the Maſter, or one of the Wardens of the ſaid Society of Merchant Taylors for the Time being, three ancient poor Widows inhabiting within that Part of the ſaid Pariſh which lieth within the Freedom of London, being of honeſt Behaviour and Converſation, and of the Age of ſix and fifty Years at the leaſt: wherein they ſhall prefer the Widows of Merchant Taylors, if any ſuch ſhall be qualified as aforeſaid. Out of which three Names ſo preſented, ed, as aforeſaid, the ſaid Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants, ſhall elect one to ſupply the ſaid Room: And from Time to Time, upon the Death of every ſuch Widow, to be called Mr. Robert Dow his Almſwoman: This Order and Courſe to be held and obſerved for ever.

And yf within the ſaid Pariſh there ſhall not be any ſuch poor Widows as aforeſaid, or yf the ſaid Alderman's Deputy, and eight Ancients, ſhall not, within the ſaid four Days next after the Deceaſe of every ſuch poor Widow, preſent unto the ſaid Maſter, and Wardens, the Name, or Names, of ſuch poor Widow, or Widows, as aforeſaid, That then it ſhall, and may be lawful to, and for the ſaid Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants, at every ſuch Time, to prefer and elect ſuch poor aged Merchant Taylor's Widow, of ſuch Age and Condition as aforeſaid, as in their Wiſdoms ſhall be thought fit; as in, and by the ſaid Writing may appear. In Witneſs whereof, I the ſaid Robert Dow, and the Curate, Church Wardens, and Veſtrie Men, hereunder named, have hereunto ſubſcribed our Names in the Veſtrie Houſe of the ſaid Pariſh, the Day and Year above written.

By me Robert Dow.

Henrye Rigges Curate.

The Church Wardens, Common Council, and Veſtry Men, are ſubſcribed in order.

His Gift augmented.

The above ſaid Sum of ten Pounds ſix Shillings was augmented in Mr. Dow's Life time, to twenty Pounds ten Shillings, as the following Memorandum, ſigned by his own Hand, will farther ſhew.

MEMORANDUM, That upon St. Thomas's Eve, Anno 1609. this Benevolence of Mr. Robert Dow's Gift was augmented. So that every poor Body of the threeſcore receiveth yearly ſix Shillings and eight Pence: And the former ſix Shillings was then encreaſed to ten Shillings, and given to the Bringers of the Money, the Church Wardens, and others, attending there, and is recited with other Matters, more at large, beginning in the next Side following. Signed in the Margin

Robert Dow.

John Clerke, Pariſh Clerk.

This Matter following ſheweth, how Mr. Robert Dow, a Pariſhioner of St. Botolphs without Aldgate, London, did firſt agree with the worſhipful Company of Merchant Taylors for Charity to certain Poor of that Pariſh, and how that Charity was after encreaſed, with ſpecial Orders ſet down how the Pariſhioners ſhould make choice for Continuance of the ſaid Charity for ever, viz.

WHEREAS by one Pair of Indentures, dated the 28th of Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1605. paſſed between the worſhipful Company of Merchant Taylors, and Robert Dow, an ancient Brother of their Company, among other Matters contained therein, It was agreed that his Woman, placed in their Almſhouſe, ſhall be always choſen of the poor Women of that Pariſh, being St. Botolphs without Aldgate, and that ten Pounds ſhould be yearly paid to the Church Wardens there to be diſtributed by three Shillings and four Pence to 60 of their Poor, with ſix Shillings to be given other ways, as is in the former matter expreſſed; It is ſithence farther agreed between the ſaid worſhipful Company, and Robert Dow, and ſet down in another Pair of Indentures, dated the 4th Day of April, Anno Dom. 1610. among other Charities therein contained, that two poor Women, there named Joan Giles, Robert Dow's Almſwoman, and Mary Darcy, Gregory Smythes, and Robert Dow's Almſwoman, both placed in the Company's Almſhouſe, marked with the Daſie Flower, who have two Shillings and four Pence weekly Penſions, beſides Houſe-room, Fewel, &c. that their Succeſſors ſhall be always choſen of the Poor in that Pariſh. And that the former ten Pounds ſhall be encreaſed to twenty Pounds to be diſtributed by ſix Shillings and eight Pence to threeſcore Poor, and that the former ſix Shillings ſhall be made up ten Shillings, to be divided and given, viz. two Shillings to the Merchant Taylor's Warden, and their Clerk, for bringing the Money to the Church, or elſe to the Clerk, if the Warden come not; four Shillings to the four Church Wardens, for paying the ſix Shillings and eight Pence to each of the Poor; one Shilling to the Curate for his Exhortation to them; one Shilling to the Pariſh Clerk and Sexton for warning the Poor to the Church, and two Shillings reſting to the ſaid Clerk, for entring the Poor's Names into the Regiſter againſt St. Thomas's Eve; in like manner, and according as the ſame was paid and performed in the Church on St. Thomas's Eve laſt paſt, and ſo entred by the Pariſh Clerk in this Book, or Regiſter, to be kept in the Veſtry: Which Charity ſhall be performed, by God's Grace, for ever.

Now for the Choice of thoſe two poor Almſwomen out of this Pariſh, this Order ſhall be obſerved.

The Choice of the two Almſwomen.

FIRST, Upon the Death and Burial of either the ſaid two Women, or their Succeſſors, the Pariſh Clerk there ſhall forthwith certify to the Church Wardens of her Death, and pray them that they would meet to chuſe another poor Widow for her. And incontinently he ſhall go to Merchant Taylor's Hall, and in Abſence of the Maſter and Wardens, he ſhall certify the Name of the Woman deceaſed to the Company's Clerk, if he be preſent, or elſe to the Company's Beadle, or to the Clerk's Man: to ſhew forthwith unto the Maſter, and Wardens, of the Woman's Death, and that the Church Wardens of St. Botolphs Pariſh without Aldgate will bring two poor Women of the Pariſh to the Maſter and Wardens upon Monday Morning then next following, if it be working Day, and that they would be pleaſed to chooſe and admit one of the ſaid two poor Women for the Woman deceaſed. Hereupon the ſaid Church Wardens, and others of the Pariſh, ſhall proceed to the Choice of thoſe two poor Women, in all ſilent manner, to avoid many Suitors; having firſt conſidered that none is admitted into that Houſe, till ſhe hath tried her Age, to be above 57 Years, and that ſhe be ſound of her Body, and not ſickly, but a quiet Woman, and of good Name and Fame in every Degree, no uſual Begger, and void of Children for encumbring that Houſe. And theſe Defects being cleared, then to proceed as followeth.——Within two Days after the Deceaſe of Joan Giles, and her Succeſſors, the two Church Wardens, ſtanding for the upper End of the Pariſh, ſhall call and aſſemble together within the Veſtry ten, nine, or eight at the leaſt, of the wiſe and ancienteſt Men of that Part of the Pariſh, and ſhall conſider of the poor Widows in their Precinct, and reſolve upon two ancient, quiet, diſcreet, and moſt devout Women, qualified as aforeſaid. And if there be any poor, needy Widows of Merchant Taylors, Freemen of London, inhabiting within the Precinct where the Deceaſed was, full of the Qualities aforeſaid, and capable of this Gift, the ſaid Church Wardens, and Electors, ſhall always put in one of them to be of the couple in their Certificate to the Maſter and Wardens, that they may be preferred before others. Becauſe they be Merchant Taylor's Widows, for whom that Almſhouſe was firſt intended. And having thus agreed upon two, the ſaid two Church Wardens ſhall preſent them to the Maſter and Wardens of the worſhipful Company of Merchant Taylors, with this Writing, which they ſhall make and direct in Order as followeth.

To the Maſter and Wardens of the worſhipful Company of Merchant Taylors of London.

WE the Church Wardens and Perſons hereunderwritten, Pariſhioners of St. Botolphs without Aldgate, London, have aſſembled together in our Veſtry Houſe according to the Deviſe of our good Neighbour Mr. Robert Dow, and have choſen out of the Poor of the upper End of our Pariſh theſe two poor Widows named A. B. and C. D. here preſent before you, and pray you to chooſe and name one of them, and to place her in your Almſhouſe, for Succeſſor to deceaſed, called Mr. Robert Dow's Almſwoman. And we ſhall moſt thankfully accept your Choice and Admittance of her: and pray you to place her in the ſaid Houſe, with all the Benefits belonging to ſuch a poor Woman there, ſo long as ſhe doth obſerve the Orders appointed by your Company. In Witneſs whereof to this our Certificate and Requeſt, we the Electors have ſubſcribed our Names. London Day of Anno Dom.

Church Wardens, &c.
Electors, &c.

N. B. The ſame Directions are repeated for the chooſing of an Almſwoman out of the lower End of the Pariſh; to which is ſubjoin'd —— “And theſe two Women, late poor Neighbours of the Pariſh, the ſaid Mr. Robert Dow prayeth the good Pariſhioners to remember them ſometimes with a Dinner, or Repaſt, for their more Comfort, in ſhew of their Love towards them.

PROVIDED always, that if the ſaid Church Wardens do not come to the Merchant Taylor's Hall, and preſent there two poor Women in manner aboveſaid, within eight Days after the Burial of either the ſaid two poor Women, then the ſaid Maſter and Wardens, to avoid Trouble of Suitors, ſhall, and may elect, and place in, ſuch a one as in their Wiſdom and good Conſcience ſhall ſeem moſt needful and convenient, and the Pariſhioners aboveſaid, for this their Default, ſhall looſe their Choice for that Election.

The Choice of the threeſcore Poor.

FORASMUCH as the Poor in theſe Days are given unto too much Idleneſs and little Labour to get, and much ſeeking after Alms, how little ſoever it be; whereby when any of theſe threeſcore Poor do deceaſe, the Church Wardens are in manner cumbred with Suitors to have the Alms of thoſe deceaſed; It is therefore deviſed and ordered for the Election of ſuch Poor as ſhall have the Charity of thoſe deceaſed, and partly to excuſe the honeſt Church Wardens from Affection to any other than thoſe that have moſt need; That all the four Church Wardens, ſeven or eight Days, yearly, before the ſaid St. Thomas's Eve, ſhall call to them, within the Veſtry of the ſaid St. Botolphs Pariſh, four ancient and diſcreet Neighbours (that is to ſay) two of each End, which make four for each End with the two Church Wardens: and having the Clerk with this Book, or Regiſter, of the threeſcore Poor's Names with them, they ſhall ſee and underſtand how many of the thirty Poor of each End be deceaſed, and to place ſuch poor Perſons as the ſaid four or three of each Side ſhall think that Noble is beſt beſtowed upon, as they will anſwer to God for the ſame; and for Requeſt of any whoſoever, to make no Grant before that Day of their meeting, whereby the moſt Needy may have the Charity.

This Charity was firſt intended for poor Widows and old needy Maidens, becauſe there were then found ſo many ſuch, and more in the whole Pariſh, and not purpoſely meant for any ſole Men, or married Couples; yet for that certain old needy ſole Men were then Suitors, there were allowed ſome few of them among the Women. It is therefore agreed and ordered, that ten or twelve ſuch needy and old lone Men may be Partakers of this Charity, and not any more, whereof five or ſix may be married Couples, if their great Need require it, and ſuch Men to come to Church on St. Thomas's Eve without their Wives, if they be able, otherwiſe his Wife to come for him. There muſt be no Queſtion to have half the Number of theſe poor Men from the upper or nether End of the Pariſh, but more or leſs as the Neceſſity ſhall be found in each End without any Affection. So that ten Pounds, which is thirty Nobles, be always beſtowed upon thirty Poor of each End: And that this Form muſt be duly obſerved with all Quietneſs, Love, and Charity, as the Pariſhioners deſire the Continuance of the ſame for ever.——And to conclude, It is ordered, and Mr. Dow prayeth the Pariſhioners his good Neighbours, that once every Year, yearly at the firſt Veſtry, holden next after the Election of the new Church Wardens, that this Order of the two Almſwomen, and Charity to the threeſcore Poor, ſhall be read to the whole Veſtry Men, for better Underſtanding and Obſervation of the ſame. In Witneſs whereof the ſaid Robert Dow for his part, and the ſaid Church Wardens and Veſtry Men for them, and their Succeſſors, have hereunto ſubſcribed their Names, the 26th Day of June, in the Year of our Lord 1610.

By me Robert Dow.
William Biddulph Curate.
Church Wardens, Veſtry Men, &c.

THE EXHORTATION that is to be made to the threeſcore Poor by the Miniſter, and in his Abſence by the Pariſh Clerk, after the Charity of Mr. DOW is given, is either to be ſpoken or read to them in theſe Words, viz.

The Exhortation to be ſpoken to the threeſcore Poor.

GOOD PEOPLE, mark what I ſay to you, the Giver of this Charity, with the Advice of the Church Wardens, and other good Men of the Pariſh, have thought you moſt worthy of the ſame, where a great many other have need of it. You are, therefore, to give God Thanks, and to behave your ſelves in this manner, that is to ſay, you ſhall upon the Sundays come to Church to Morning and Evening Prayer, without you have great Let, and upon other Holidays appointed for Prayer; and there you ſhall, with all Reverence and Devotion, give your ſelves to hear the holy Prayers and Commandments of God, with other the divine Scriptures read unto you; and likewiſe to the holy Word of God, when it is preached there. You ſhall live in all charitable and chriſtian ſort with your Neighbours, and be Peace and Love-makers to your power. Conſidering with your ſelves that you be aged, and therefore moſt meet for you to give good Example, and be ready prepared to go hence when God ſhall call you. If you obſerve and follow this good Counſel, you ſhall all have this Penſion ſo long as you live, and have need of it. But if you be found in any Default, this Charity, and any other Charity given you in this Pariſh, ſhall be taken from you for ever, and ſhall be beſtowed upon more worthy Perſons: Therefore ſee that you forget not this good Leſſon. Now kneel you all down, and with all Humility and Reverence lift up your Hearts and Hands to God, and with loud Voice ſay devoutly after me, (Our Father which art in Heaven, &c.) Now ſay you all (God reward all good Benefactors, and bleſs the worſhipful Company of Merchant Taylors.) Riſe you all now up in God's Name, and go you quietly three and three together, till you be all out of the Church Gate; and God bleſs you all, and encreaſe the Number of good and charitable Men.]

In the North Ile of the Chancel lyeth a fair Stone on the Ground, with this Inſcription upon it, engraven in Braſs:

Will. Cowch. A. M. Here lyeth the Body of William Cowch, one of the ordinary Yeomen of her Majeſty's Chamber, Citizen and Innholder of London. He deceaſed the 13. Day of July Ann. Out of the which Houſe, after the Deceaſe of the ſaid* Joane his Wife, is to be paid by the Governours of the ſaid Hoſpital five Pound yearly for ever to the Poor of Portſoken Ward, within the ſaid Pariſh.

In the middle Ile of the Church, before the Entrance into the Chancel, lieth a fair Graveſtone on the Ground, having this Inſcription engraven upon Braſs upon it:

Rob. Cockes. Here under this Stone lyeth buried the Body of Robert Cockes, late Citizen and Tallow-Chandler of London. Who by his laſt Will and Teſtament gave to this Ward of Portſoken *(wherein he dwelt) the Sum of one hundred Pounds, to be employed for the Uſe and Benefit of the Poor of the ſaid Ward. In the ſame Ile, but a little lower, lyeth another fair Grave-ſtone, having (in a whiter kind of Stone) a Coat of Armes on it, and a Deſcription in well formed Letters, ſpeaking thus:

Dan. Balgay. Here underneath this Stone lyeth the Body of Daniel Balgay, ſometime an Inhabitant of this Pariſh, of good Account and Credit, being a Citizen of this honourable City of London, *and free of the worſhipful Company of the Mercers. Chriſtus mihi vita.

J. S. In the Chancel at the South Eaſt Corner, near the Altar, is a Monument ſet up in Memory of Mr. Prat, the late diligent and well deſerving Curate, with this Inſcription:

Ben. Prat. J. Wor. Under this Pavement lyeth BENJAMIN PRAT A. M. for above xvi Years late Curate of this Church: He affected to end his Days in Cœlibacy, and departed this Life the 3d Day of March A. D. 1715.

RESURGAM.

Theſe few pious Words above were all he deſired ſhould be here ſubſcribed. Yet it ought not to be concealed, that he bequeathed to the Right Reverend Father in God, the Lord Biſhop of LONDON for the time being, (only in Truſt) the perpetual Advowſon of the Rectory of the Pariſh and Pariſh Church of GREENSTEED, juxta CHIPPIN ONGAR, in the County of ESSEX: the firſt Preſentation to an intimate Friend, and after him to the immediate READER, or moſt inferior Miniſter of this his NATIVE PARISH CHURCH, for ever, and other CHURCHES afterwards, which may hereafter be built in this Pariſh; as may be ſeen more at large in his WILL.

His Soul was adorned with great Stedfaſtneſs to the moſt Orthodox Principles: He was a Perſon of great PIETY, LENITY and CHARITY; and in all his ACTIONS conſtantly ſignaliz'd himſelf in the ſeveral Offices of his SACRED MINISTRY. He continually endeavoured to illuſtrate his Veneration and Eſteem for the moſt Glorious and Adorable TRINITY, and his High Calling of GOD in CHRIST JESUS.

And ſo he proceeded, till he was juſt arrived at the Prime of his Age: and then was taken from his Labours, to receive an exceeding great REWARD.

Thus does he ſtill ſpeak, and yet propoſe an eminent and illuſtrious Example to all his ſucceeding BRETHREN.

In the Churchyard Southward, and toward the Street, ſtandeth a handſome Tomb, well defenced over from Weather, and a fair Graveſtone upon it. Beneath, on the outſide of the Tomb, are engraven the Arms belonging to the Vintners and the Barber Chirurgions: Upon the Graveſtone is a fair Plate of Braſs, with all theſe Lines engraven on it:

Coppedhall, a Place in this Pariſh. Regiſt. Lond.

Coppedhall in parochia Sancti Bothi extra Aldgate. An. 1413.]

Eaſt from this Pariſh Church, there were certain fair Inns for Receipt of Travellers repairing to the City, up towards Hog Lane End, ſomewhat within the Bars, and a Mark there, ſhewing how far the Liberties of the City do extend.

Hog Lane.

This Hog Lane, [ſo called perhaps from the Hogs that ran in the Fields there, now called Petticoat Lane and Artillery Lane] ſtretcheth North to St. Mary Spittle, without Biſhopſgate, and within theſe 44 * Years laſt, had (on both ſides) fair Hedge-rows of Elm Trees, with Bridges and eaſy Stiles to paſs over into the pleaſant Fields, very commodious for Citizens therein to walk, ſhoot, and otherwiſe to recreate and refreſh their dulled Spirits in the ſweet and wholſome Air, which is now (within few Years) made a continual Building throughout of Garden Houſes and ſmall Cottages; and the Fields on either ſide be turned into Garden Plots, Tenter Yards, Bowling Alleys, and ſuch like; from Hounds Ditch in the Weſt ſo far as Whitechapel, and farther in the Eaſt.

* Reckoning from the Year 1554. to 1598. when Stow firſt ſet forth his Survey.

J. S.

In a fine old Map of London (ſometime in the Poſſeſſion of Mr. Pepys of Clapham) I obſerved only a few ſcattering Houſes through this Lane; but the Eaſt Side of it wholly unbuilt, and conſiſting only of Fields, where Cows and other Cattle were feeding.

Hogs allowed to be kept by the Bakers. Lib. Horn.

Among the Laws of the Bakers, in the Book Horn, the Bakers of London were allowed to keep Hogs, and nouriſh them for themſelves in their own Houſes, or elſewhere, without the Streets and Lanes of the City; but not within the City. And hence this Hog Lane, ſituate in the Suburbian Fields, might well have its Denomination.]

The South Side of Aldgate.

The South Side of the High Way from Ealdgate had ſome few Tenements thinly ſcattered here and there, with much void Space between them up to the Bars. But now that Street is not only fully repleniſhed with Buildings outward, and alſo peſtred with divers Alleys on either Side to the Bars; but alſo even to Whitechapel and beyond.

Water Conduit at Aldgate.

Amongſt the which late Buildings, one memorable for the Commodity of that Eaſt Part of this City, is a fair Water Conduit, hard without the Gate; for the building whereof, in the Year 1535. Sir John Allen being Maior, two Fifteens were granted by the Citizens for the making and laying of Pipes to convey Water from Hackney to that Place; and ſo that Work was finiſhed.

J. S.

It was repaired, and much ornamental and uſeful Stone Work added, in the Year 1546. as appears by the Date in old Figures ſet upon the Wall.]

The Inconveniences of this Conduit. A. M.

Here I may not omit to tell you, that although this Water Conduit was very beneficial to the People inhabiting there round about, yet in regard of the Situation, being upon the Street's South Side, and immediately deſcending down many Steps or Stairs of Stone, it was troubleſome to the poor People fetching Water there, in coming up laden with their Tubs, Pails and Tankards. Beſides, until the Turn of each Party came by Order and due Courſe, their Tankards, Tubs, and Pails, did greatly peſter the Paſſage about, and thorow the Gate, endangering divers perſonal Harms, and other great Inconveniences. Which ſince then, at the taking down of the old Gate, that a new might be builded in the ſame Place, is exceeding commendably amended, to the City's Honour, their Credit that had Care for the diſpoſing of the Work, and great Eaſe of the poor Water Bearers, and all Paſſengers. For now there is a fair ſpacious Court, wherein all the Tankards, and other Veſſels, orderly ſtand; (without any Annoyance to the Street) and the Deſcent to the Conduit is made very convenient, free from offending one another in their Labour, the Paſſage to and fro is ſo aptly ordered, and the Room ſo large for their Attendance.

Redreſt.

Old Aldgate new built.

In the Rubbiſh were found two Pieces of Coin, of Trajanus and Diocleſianus, Emperors.

The old ruinous Gate being taken down, and Order provided for a new Foundation, divers very ancient Pieces of Roman Coin were found among the Stones and Rubbiſh; which as Mr. Martin Bond (a worſhipful Citizen, and one of the Surveyors of the Work) told me, two of them (according to their true Form and Figure) he cauſed to be carved in Stone, and fixed on either Side of the Gate's Arch without, Eaſtward. [which are there ſtill.]

The reſt of theſe ſtamped Roman Pieces were ſent for by the Lord Maior and his Brethren to the Guild Hall, where as yet they remain to be ſeen. Moreover, under his own Hand Writing, he delivered me this brief Note, which (for mine own Diſcharge) I have here ſet down.

The 10th Day of March, Anno 1607. I Martin Bond laid the firſt Foundation Stone of Aldgate, Northward: The Bottom of which Foundation was ſixteen Foot deep, and eight Foot broad.

The other ancient Coins found in the Walls. Edm. How's Chron. p. 892.

J. S.

But it was not finiſhed till the End of the next Year. The other Roman Coins found in the old Walls were of Clodius Albinus, Veſpaſian, Domitian, Carauſius, Valentinianus: The Forms and Superſcriptions thereof, the ſaid Mr. Bond cauſed to be carved in Free Stone, and ſet over the Conduit Door juſt without the Gate.]

Begun to be taken down in An. 1606. and finiſhed An. 1609.

Now concerning the building of the Gate, what time it was in hand, and the Care and Pains taken about it, it would require a larger Explanation than here I am limited unto; but the Gate being very worthily and famouſly finiſhed it may be thus deſcribed to Poſterity.

The Gate Eaſtward.

Fame.

Eaſtward, upon the Height of the Gate, ſtandeth a fair golden Sphere, with a goodly Vane on it. On the upper Battlements (as vigilant Sentinels, and kept waking by Fame's golden Trumpet) are placed the Shapes of two armed ancient Soldiers, each holding a great Stone in his Hand, as denying the Entrance of any bold Enemy, or ſuch as are not Friends to the City.

Beneath, in a fair large Square, ſtandeth the imaginary Figure of our Royal Sovereign King James, in bright gilt Armour, at whoſe Feet (on either Side) lye the Lion and golden chained Unicorn, mildly couching, as expreſſing Awe and Humility in ſo great a Preſence. [But both K. James, and his Lion and Unicorn are all taken away lately, to give place to a large Window, now placed there. Which is Pity.]

So much for the Outſide of the Gate, with the two Roman Coins before remembred.

Weſtward. Fortune. Weſtward, or within, higheſt of all, ſtandeth Fortune, ingeniouſly carved and guilded, ſtanding upon her Globe, or Mound, with her Sail ſpreading over her Head, and looking with a graceful and auſpicious Countenance upon the City.

Beneath her, in a large Square, are placed the King's Arms, richly wrought and engraven, bearing the Motto,

DIEU ET MON DROIT.

And a little lower,

VIVAT REX.

Somewhat lower, and to grace each Side of the Gate, are ſet two feminine Perſonages, the one Southward, appearing to be Peace, with a ſilver Dove upon her one Hand, and a guilded Wreath or Garland in the other. On the North Side ſtandeth Charity, with a Child at her Breaſt, and another led in her hand: Implying (as I conceive) that where Peace, and Love, or Charity, do proſper, and are truly embraced, that City ſhall be for ever bleſſed.

Peace. Charity.

Over the Arch of the Gate is thus fairly engraven:

Senatus Populuſq; Londinenſ. fecit, 1609.

And underneath,

HUMFREY WELD, Maior.]

The Charge of this Gate in Building was reputed to amount to 4000*l.* and upwards.

J. S. Over the Poſtern of this Gate, where the People paſs on Foot, is this Inſcription: This Poſtern was made at the Care and Coſt of the honourable City of London in the Maioralty of Sir Anthony Bateman, Anno Dom. 1663.]

Houndſditch. From Aldgate North Weſt to Biſhopſgate lyeth the Ditch of the City, in that Part called Houndſditch, becauſe that in old time, when the ſame lay open, much Filth (conveyed forth of the City, eſpecially dead Dogs) was there laid or caſt.

Edrick for Treachery thrown into this Ditch. J. S. Into this filthy Ditch King Canutus commanded Edrick, a noble Saxon, who had baſely ſlain his King and Lord Edmund Ironſide, to be drawn by the Heels from Bainards Caſtle through the City, and caſt in there, after he had firſt been tormented to Death by lighted Torches. Rich. of Ciciter.]

A Mud Wall againſt Houndſditch. Of later Time a Mud Wall was made, encloſing the Ditch, to keep out the laying of ſuch Filth as had been accuſtomed.

A Field on the Eaſt Side. Over againſt this mud Wall, on the other Side of the Street, was a fair Field, ſometime belonging to the Priory of the Trinity, and ſince, by Sir Tho. Awdley, given to Magdalen College in Cambridge.

A Meſſuage and ſeven Acres in Houndſditch. J. S. This Ground contained a Meſſuage, a Dove Houſe, and a Garden of about ſeven Acres. There was alſo adjoining to this Garden a great Gate, and a Building over, and a Street or Lane leading from Houndſditch thither. For all this Sir Tho. Audley obtained of King Henry ſpecial Letters Patents, dated March 23. in the 25th of his Reign, as belonging to the Priory, to this Tenor:

Ex MSS. Dris. Kennet. nunc D. Epiſc. Petriburg. Henricus Octavus Dei gratia, &c. Omnibus ad quos, &c. Sciatis quod nos, &c. Dedimus & conceſſimus, &c. i. e. " Know ye, that we have " given and granted to the ſaid Thomas, one Meſſuage,
" one Dovecoat, and one Garden or " Parcel of Land, with the Appurtenances, containing
" by Eſtimation ſeven Acres of Land,
" whether more or leſs, as they lay and are in
" the Pariſh of St. Botolph without Aldgate, London,
" viz. Between a certain Street or Lane, called
" Hog Lane on one part, and divers Meſſuages

" adjoining and built on the other part. He gave " alſo and granted to the ſaid Thomas a certain
" great Gate, with an Edifice built upon it, and " adjacent; and a certain Street or Lane, extending " from the aforeſaid King's High Way
" called Houndſditch, to, in and as far as the ſaid
" Garden or Parcel of Land, containing ſeven
" Acres; withal Edifices, Walls, Ditches and
" Cloſes, in and about the ſaid Garden, or Parcel
" of the Lands there being: Which Meſſuage,
" Dovecoat, Garden, Gate, Street or Lane, and
" the other Premiſſes, with their Appurtenances,
" lately belonged to the Prior and Convent of
" the Monaſtery or Priory of the Holy Trinity,
" London, by the Right of that Monaſtery; and " which, among others, is come to our Hands
" by the Authority of Parliament, as well on the " account of the Gift of Nicholas Hancock, late
" Prior, as on the account of the Diſſolution of " the ſaid Monaſtery.

The next Year, that is, the 26th of the King's Reign, the ſame Sir Thomas Audley obtained of the King other Letters Patents, dated Decemb. 29. Wherein, among other Gifts, he granted him Licence to give and grant lawfully the ſaid Meſſuage, Dove Houſe and Garden, to Henry Parker Knt. Tho. Barnardiſton Kt. John Chriſtmas Eſq; Tho. Pope, Arthur Clerk, and Tho. Spilman, Gentlemen. Yet it ſeems theſe Perſons poſſeſſed not the Premiſſes, at leaſt not the Garden of ſeven Acres, ſince Mr. Stow (as above) writeth, that Sir Tho. Audley gave it to Magdalen College, of which he was Founder.]

This Field (as all other about the City) was encloſed, reſerving open Paſſage thereinto for ſuch as were diſpoſed. Towards the Street were ſome ſmall Cottages, of two Stories high, and little Garden Plots backward, for poor bedrid People, (for in that Street dwelt none other) builded by ſome Prior of the Holy Trinity, to whom that Ground belonged.

Bedrid People in Houndſditch. In my Youth, I remember, devout People, as well Men as Women of this City, were accuſtomed oftentimes (eſpecially on Fridays weekly, to walk that way purpoſely, and there to beſtow their charitable Alms, every poor Man or Woman lying in their Bed within their Window, which was towards the Street open ſo low, that every Man might ſee them; a clean linen Cloth lying in their Window, and a Pair of Beads; to ſhew that there lay a bedrid Body, unable but to pray only: This Street was firſt paved in the Year 1503.

Braſs Ordnance caſt in Houndſditch by the Owens. About the latter end of the Reign of King Hen. 8. three Brethren that were Gun Founders, ſirnamed Owens, gat Ground there to build upon, and to encloſe for caſting of braſs Ordnance. Theſe occupied a good Part of the Street on the Field ſide, and in ſhort time divers others alſo builded there; ſo that the poor bedrid People were worn out, and in place of their homely Cottages, ſuch Houſes builded as do rather want Room than Rent. [Which Houſes be for the moſt part poſſeſſed by Brokers, Sellers of old Apparel, and ſuch like.] The Reſidue of the Field was for the moſt part made into a Garden, by a Gardiner named Cawſway, one that ſerved the Markets with Herbs and Roots. And in the laſt Year of King Edward VI. the ſame was parcelled into Gardens, wherein are now many fair Houſes of Pleaſure builded.

A Matter greatly deſerving Reformation in Houndſditch. A. M. But as it is fatal to the Suburbs of every great City to be infected with ſome foul and unclean Birds, that there build their Neſts, although not with profeſſed and ignominious Stain of lewd Life; becauſe (within the Limits of Houndſditch) dwell many a good and honeſt Citizen, that will never endure ſuch ſcandalous Neighbourhood: Yet there are crept in among them a baſe kind of Vermin, well deſerving to be ranked and numbered with them, whom our old Prophet and Countryman Gyldas, called Ætatis atramentum, the black Diſcredit of the Age, and of the Place where they are ſuffered to live. Or rather (as St. Bernard thinks it more convenient to term them) Baptiſatos Judæos; who take themſelves to be Chriſtians, when they are worſe (indeed) than the Jews ever were for Uſury.

Pawnbrokers.

Such Gains are the greedy Uſurers Glory.

Theſe Men, or rather Monſters in the Shape of Men, profeſs to live by lending, and yet will lend nothing but upon Pawns; neither to any, but unto poor People only, and for no leſs Gain than after fifty or threeſcore Pounds in the hundred. The Pawn of the poor Borrower muſt needs be more than double worth the Money lent upon it, and the Time of Limitation is no longer than a Month; albeit they well know, that the Money needs not be repayed back until a Twelvemonth's end. By which time the Intereſt grows to be ſo great, that the Pawn, which (at the firſt) was better than twice worth the Money borrowed on it, doth not (in the end) prove to be valuable to the Debt, which muſt be payed before the poor Party can redeem it. By which extorting Means of proceeding the poor Borrower is quite cheated of his Pawn, for leſs than the third part, which it was truly worth indeed.

A publick Stock would do well for the Poor in every Pariſh.

It is a great Error (in my poor Opinion) that in ſo ancient and famous a City, abounding (otherwiſe) in moſt Chriſtian Alms and Works of Mercy, that among ſo many worthy Liberalities beſtowed on the Poor in divers and diſtinct Pariſhes, no Order is taken for ſuch a publick Stock for the truly poor; that when in their urgent Neceſſity, either by want of Means, Sickneſs, and other Hindrances, their Pawns may not go to the Cut-throat Uſurer; but remain to their own good (living or dying) or to theirs, without any other Benefit, than that it may ſtill ſerve for the like Relief.

And let me not here be miſtaken, that I condemn ſuch as live by honeſt buying and ſelling, and make a good Conſcience of their dealing: No truly, I mean only the Judas Broker, that lives by the Bag, and (except God be more merciful to him) will follow him that did bear the Bag.]

On the Ditch Side of this Street, the Mud Wall is alſo (by little and little) taken all down, the Bank of the Ditch being raſed, made level Ground, and turned into Garden Plots and Carpenters Yards, and many large Houſes are there Builded. The Filth of which Houſes, as alſo the Earth caſt out of their Vaults, is turned into the Ditch: By which means the Ditch is filled up, and both the Ditch and Wall ſo hidden, that they cannot be ſeen of the Paſſers by.

Benefactors in this Ward. A. M.

Here, according to my Purpoſe in all other Wards and Pariſhes, I mean not to forget God's Bleſſings beſtowed by the Hands and merciful Minds of charitable Benefactors. In this Pariſh of St. Botolph's without Aldgate, theſe Perſons following do juſtly deſerve Memory.

The Miniſter's Benefits.

Eight Pounds per Annum only, payable to the Miniſter from the Impropriator, being a Stipend reſerved in the Grant from the Crown. But Mr. Samuel Brewſter, ~~the~~ preſent Impropriator, hath very commendably and chriſtianly given back the Benefits of the Eaſter Book to the Miniſter of the Pariſh, to which he was legally entitled; and hath applied it for the promoting the Honour of God, and the Intereſt of the Church. And beſide this generous Act of his to the Church, hath writ a Letter to the Pariſhioners of the ſaid Pariſh, exciting them to pay the ſame juſtly and honeſtly to Dr. Kennet, their then worthy and learned Incumbent; and withal ſhewing therein the Nature of Offerings, and the Uſe and Neceſſity of paying them. And this Letter he cauſed to be printed, that it might be the more univerſally ſpread abroad in this Pariſh. Therein he ſhews them, what theſe Offerings were, viz. 2*d.* a Head of all above the Age of 16, according to the number of their Families: But exhorted them, that ſeeing he had for the Honour of Religion reſtored them to their firſt religious Uſe, that they would in making their Offerings do it according to their Abilities, and not barely to pay them according to the Rule of the Land, but according as God had bleſſed them; and made a Note of it, that at the Time Offerings were ſettled, 2*d.* was equivalent to a Shilling now.

S. Brewſter Impropriator.

Eaſter Book.

Further, it muſt be noted, that the ſaid Impropriator, inſtead of the abovesaid 8*l.* per Ann. payable to the Miniſter of the ſaid Pariſh, (who now is the Reverend Dr. Bray) hath ſettled upon him and his Succeſſors, Incumbents there, all the Benefits ariſing from the Chancel, as Pews, Burials, &c. which is confirmed by a Deed of the ſaid Impropriator and the Pariſhoners: And whereby the ſaid Pariſh is obliged to keep the ſaid Chancel, and all things belonging thereunto, in continual good Repair.]

Benefits of the Chancel ſettled on the Miniſter.

The Right of Preſentation. J. S.

The Right of Preſentation to this Church had been divers Years in Conteſt between the Impropriator and the Crown, Dr. White Kennet, late Dean (now Lord Biſhop) of Peterborough, was preſented by the Impropriator: Dr. Rich. Hollingworth the then Incumbent, held it from the Crown; but after a long Suit at Law between the Queen and Mr. Brewſter, the ſaid Impropriator, he was found the true Patron; and ſo decreed.

The preſent worthy Miniſter is Dr. Thomas Bray.]

The Limits of Portſoken Ward, and of the whole Pariſh, which extendeth a great way farther than the Ward doth. A. M.

Now concerning the Bounds and Limits both of the Pariſh and Ward, and how far they extend themſelves every way; there can be no better Direction therein than following the Order of their own yearly Perambulation, which for avoiding of Prolixity, thus I obſerve, Walking down Houndſditch Northward, ſo far as the dwelling Houſe of one Edward Anſel, Carpenter, they there croſs the Way Eaſtward into Still and Hand Alley, paſſing on along by a Garden brick Wall, belonging to a fair goodly Place, termed ſome time Fiſhers Folly: Thence they proceed into Hog Lane, in the Middle of which Lane is the Partition between the two Pariſhes of Whitechapel and St. Botolphs: There they go on to the Bars in the common Street, and croſſing the Way Southward, go through a now Tavern Houſe, known by the Name of the Caſtle. Where turning back again the Breadth of two ſmall Gardens, they then paſs on right forward (weſt) to the Minories Wall, until they come to the Minories Bars.

There (at the farther end) they turn down into an Alley, called Browns Alley, to a Wall being by Goodman's Fields; and ſo along by that Wall, ſo far as to Goodman's Gate: Where, by reaſon of a Controverſy happening between the Pariſh of Whitechapel and St. Botolphs, and a Barn and other Buildings erected in the Way, they are conſtrained to turn up into the Street again. Then they go down Red Lion Alley, to the Houſe of one Darby Morgan, paſſing on thence directly into Roſemary Lane. Then down on the South Side till they come to the Eaſt Side of a new Churchyard, there builded at the Pariſh's Coſt, and for their Help in times of Sickneſs: There they go through an Houſe, then through the Churchyard, and afterward through the Houſe of one John Batcheler. Thence they go down Nightingale Lane, on the Weſt Side, until they come to the Middle of a Foord, which ſome time turned Wapping Mill; and there the foreſaid two Pariſhes are divided again by that Foord: Then go they on ſo far as M. Duppa, or Dupper's Houſe, and ſo round about St. Katharines till they come to the Sign of the Maidenhead, and there they fix their Mark.

And then paſs over Tower Hill to the Houſe of one John Atkinſon, near to the Poſtern Gate; and then go directly Northward up the Minories Street till they come to the Portcullis under Aldgate, where the Teſtimony of their Mark concludeth all.

In theſe, or the moſt part of theſe latter Directions, I have been greatly favoured by Mr. John Brigges, the painful and induſtrious Miniſter of St. Botolphs, who, by the Help of the Clerk and Sexton, moſt lovingly and gently befriended me.]

The preſent State of the Ward.

Now for the preſent State of this Ward, and what the Places for Habitation are, whether Streets, Fields, Lanes, Alleys and Courts, it briefly ſtandeth thus upon a late Survey.

R. B.

In this Ward the principal Streets and Places are, Whitechapel, the Minories, and Houndſditch, together with the Weſt Side of Petticoat Lane; in which Streets there are divers Alleys and Courts. Of theſe in Order.

Whitechapel.

Whitechapel is a ſpacious fair Street for Entrance into the City Eaſtward, and ſomewhat long, reckoning from the Layſtall Eaſt unto the Bars Weſt, where the Ward ends. It is a great Thorough-fair, being the Eſſex Road, and well reſorted unto, which occaſions it to be the better inhabited, and accommodated with good Inns for the Reception of Travellers, and for Horſes, Coaches, Carts and Waggons.

Here on the South Side is a Hay Market three times a Week.

The Butchers.

The South Side within the Bars, as well as a little way without, is taken up by a great many Butchers, who drive a conſiderable Trade, and kill excellent Beef, Veal, Mutton and Lamb; lying conveniently for driving and carrying Cattel from Rumford Market.

Inns.

On the North Side are divers conſiderable Inns much reſorted unto, as the Three Nuns, the Crown, the Black Bull, the Blue Boar; with ſeveral Shopkeepers, who have a good Retail Trade out of the Country.

Here, about the Bars, ply a great Number of Stage Coaches, for the conveniency of bringing to Town, or carrying into the Country, ſuch as pleaſe to make uſe of them. Hog Lane, is near unto Whitechapel Bars, and runs Northwards towards St. Mary Spittle. In ancient Times on both Sides of this Lane were Hedge Rows and Elm Trees, with pleaſant Fields to walk in.

J. S.

Inſomuch that ſome Gentlemen of the Court and City built their Houſes here for Air. Here was an Houſe on the Weſt Side, a good way in the Lane, which, when I was a Boy, was commonly called the Spaniſh Ambaſſadors Houſe, who in King James I.'s Reign dwelt here: And he (I think) was the famous Count Gondamer. And a little way off this, on the Eaſt Side of the Way, down a paved Alley, (now called Strype's Court from my Father who inhabited here) was a fair large Houſe with a good Garden before it, built and inhabited by Hans Jacobſon, a Dutchman, the ſaid King James's Jeweller, wherein I was born. But after, French Proteſtants, that in the ſaid King's Reign, and before, fled their Country for their Religion, many planted themſelves here, viz. in that Part of the Lane neareſt Spittle-Fields, to follow their Trades, being generally Broad Weavers of Silk, it ſoon became a contiguous Row of Buildings on both Sides of the Way.]

R. B.

So that of later Years all is converted into Buildings, even all the Spittle Fields, wherein are ſeveral Streets, with Courts and Alleys, repleniſhed with Inhabitants, eſpecially Silk Throwſters and Weavers, and Dependents on them; of which many are Wallons, and Refugee French. This Lane hath the Weſt Side in this Ward, the Eaſt being part in the Pariſh of Whitechapel, and part in the large Pariſh of Stepney. In this Petticoat Lane are divers Courts and Alleys, moſt of which on the Weſt Side, which are in this Ward, have their Paſſage into, or out of Gravel Lane, where they have been treated of. But theſe that have not, are five; Inkhorn Court, a pretty open Place, with indifferent Inhabitants. Near unto this Court is White Hart Court, which is but indifferent. Bates Yard very mean. And Red Croſs Court, which hath a Paſſage into Whitechapel Street, where it is treated of. This Part of the Lane coming out at the Bars is not over well inhabited; and thoſe of moſt account are Horners, who prepare Horns for other petty Manufactures; as for thoſe that make Lanthorns, Inkhorns, Giggs, Spoons, ſmall Diſhes, and other things of Horn.

Inkhorn Court.
White Hart Court.
Bates Yard.
Horners.

Minories.

The Minories, of which there is the Great and the Little; the Great is a broad and ſpacious Street, into which you enter out of Aldgate Street over againſt St. Botolphs Church, and runneth Southward into Little Tower Hill; having on the Weſt Side London Wall, where anciently the City Ditch went, as in Houndſditch, and uſed for the caſting of Filth thereon; and ſo lay open: Which being found inconvenient, noiſome, and dangerous, it was filled up, and the Ground converted to other Uſes; there being now a Row of Buildings next the Wall, and made uſe of for Stablings and Coach Houſes, with Rooms over them: And in ſhort being built on either Side, being on the Back of the Minories, it is become a fair Street, and bears the Name of Vine Yard; and hath a broad Paſſage into it out of the Minories called Vine Street, which hath good Buildings pretty well inhabited; as is the Minories: Which is of chief note for the Gunſmiths there inhabiting, and driving a conſiderable Trade.

Vine Yard.
Vine Street.
Gunſmiths.

Little Minories.

The Little Minories are the Buildings erected upon the Site of the Abby of Nuns, called Minorites, containing two or three Courts, all pretty well inhabited: And here alſo is the Trinity Minories Church, which pretends to Privileges, as marrying without Licence: Out of this Place is a Paſſage into Heydon Yard.

Goodmans Fields.

Near unto this Nunnery, or Little Minories, was a large Field, which belonged unto it, called by the Name of Goodmans Fields, (the Reaſon whereof was ſhewn before) which name it yet retaineth, although the Field is now converted into fair Streets, with very good brick Houſes well inhabited by ſeveral Merchants, and Perſons of Repute; but the ſaid Goodmans Fields, not being in this Ward, belongs not to our preſent Cognizance. To return therefore to this Street called the Minories: Therein are ſeveral Courts or Alleys; beginning towards Aldgate there is Black Boy Court, being long, narrow, and ordinary. Maidenhead Alley, ſmall, naſty, and beggarly. Three Kings Alley, pretty large, containing two Courts, one within another, and both indifferent good. Fountain Alley, very mean. Ship Yard, an indifferent large ſquare Court, but very mean, with old Houſes. Well Alley, but ſmall, with a long and narrow Paſſage to it. Shippeys Yard, indifferent large, and pretty good, eſpecially the upper Part. Heydon Yard, being broad enough for Coach or Cart; at the upper end is a good large Square, or open Place railed about, with a Row of Trees, very ornamental in the Summer Seaſon, having on the Eaſt Side Coach Houſes and Stables, on the Weſt Side a very handſome Row of large Houſes, with Court Yards before them, and are inhabited by Merchants, Perſons of Repute: On the North a Square of good brick Houſes; out of this Yard, on the Weſt, is a Paſſage into the Little Minories, on the Eaſt another into Goodmans Fields. Browns Yard, indifferent good, with a Paſſage down Steps into ſome part of it. Squirels Alley, pretty well built, with a narrow paved Paſſage that goes down Steps. Swan Alley, long, naſty, and narrow, hath a Paſſage into Manſel Street. Goodmans Yard, very large, and leads into Goodmans Fields, almoſt over againſt Peaſecod Street hath pretty good Buildings, and indifferently well inhabited. Red Lion Alley, long and narrow, with old built Houſes. Red Gate Court, but ſmall, with a Paſſage down Steps into Heathen Court. Wheelers Yard, a pretty open Place. Bullocks Court, a very handſome open Place, having at the lower end a Timber-Yard. Hamerſmith Alley, very ordinary, with a Paſſage to it down Steps. Walls Court, a pretty handſome Place, with a Paſſage to it paved with Pebble Stones. Black Horſe Alley, containing two ſmall Courts, which are but ordinary. Eales Court, pretty open, with a Paſſage for a Cart, and the Houſes are indifferently well inhabited. Weedens Rents, with a deſcending ſteep Paſſage, very mean. Goodings Yard, a pretty handſome open Place, indifferently well built. Bellowes Yard, indifferent, with a Paſſage to it down Steps. Star Alley, but ordinary, at the lower end is another Court down Steps, alſo very mean. Three Crown Court, alſo but ordinary, both as to Houſe and Inhabitants.

Tower Street Ward.

THE firſt Ward in the Eaſt Part of this City, within the Wall, is called Tower Street Ward, and extendeth along the River of Thames, from the ſaid Tower in the Eaſt, almoſt to Belingſgate in the Weſt; one half of the Tower, the Ditch on the Weſt Side, and Bulwarks adjoining, do ſtand within that Part, where the Wall of the City of old time went ſtraight from the Poſtern Gate, South to the River of Thames, before that the Tower was builded. From, and without the Tower Ditch, Weſt, and by North, is the ſaid Tower Hill, ſome time a large Plot of Ground, now greatly ſtraightned by means of Encroachments (unlawfully made and ſuffered) for Gardens and Houſes, ſome on the Bank of the Tower Ditch, whereby the Ditch is marred, but more near unto the Wall of the City, from the Poſtern, North, till over againſt the principal Fore Gate of the Lord Lumley's Houſe, &c. but the Tower Ward goeth no farther that way. Tower Hill.

Scaffold on Tower Hill.

Upon this Hill is always readily prepared (at the Charges of the City) a large Scaffold and Gallows of Timber, for the Execution of ſuch Traitors, or other Tranſgreſſors, as are delivered out of the Tower, or otherwiſe to the Sheriffs of London by Writ, there to be executed. *Lib.*L. Fol.4c. I read, that in the Fifth of King Edward IV. a Scaffold and Gallows was there ſet up by other the King's Officers, and not of the City's Charges; whereupon the Maior and his Brethren complained, but were anſwered by the King, that the Tower Hill was of the Liberty of the City, and whatſoever was done in that Point was not in Derogation of the City's Liberties; and therefore commanded Proclamation to be made, as well within the City as in the Suburbs, as followeth,

Edward IV. his Proclamation aſſerting the City's Right in Tower Hill. W. Dunthorn.

Foraſmuch as the ſeventh Day of this preſent Month of November, Gallows were erected and ſet up beſides our Tower of London, within the Liberties and Franchiſes of our City of London, in Derogation and Prejudice of the Liberties and Franchiſes of this City; the King our Sovereign Lord would it be certainly underſtood, that the Erection and ſetting up of the ſaid Gallows was not done by his Commandment: Wherefore, the King our Sovereign Lord willeth, that the Erection and ſetting up of the ſaid Gallows, be not any Preſident, or Example, thereby hereafter to be taken, in Hurt, Prejudice, or Derogation, of the Franchiſes, Liberties, and Privileges of the City, which he at all times hath had, and hath in his Benevolence, tender Favour, and good Grace, &c.

Conteſt about the Liberty of the Tower. A. M.

Many Controverſies have been in times paſt betwixt the Lord Maior and Citizens of London on the one Party, and the Lieutenant of the Tower of London on the other Party, touching their Liberties: The Lieutenant uſurping divers Privileges which were againſt the Laws of the Realm: As for Example,

If A. B. were indebted to C. D. dwelling in the Precinct of the Tower, and would ſuffer himſelf to be arreſted and proſecuted by the ſaid C. D. in the Court held within the Tower, and there to have Judgment upon the ſaid Debt obtained againſt him: After which Judgment obtained, a Precept was awarded under the Seal of Office of the Lieutenant, redirected unto the Porter of the Tower, or to his Deputy, to take A. B. in Execution for the ſame Debt. And after that A. B. is ſo taken in Execution, there is Return made of the Execution of the ſaid Precept; and thereupon the Lieutenant not only appointeth about a Dozen or more Keepers to the ſaid A. B. and ſuch as the ſaid A. B. will nominate, but alſo ſuffereth the ſaid A. B. to go at Liberty; giving unto him a Protection under the Seal of his Office: And thereby commandeth all Officers in any wiſe to forbear to arreſt or trouble the ſaid A. B. for the Space of one whole Year, being his Priſoner. Then if it ſhall happen that the ſaid A. B. ſhall be arreſted, being in the Cuſtody of any of his Keepers, and having the ſaid Protection to ſhew; if immediately upon the ſhewing of the ſame he be not ſet at Liberty again, in ſuch caſe the Lieutenant pretendeth that he hath Power to arreſt the Body of any Perſon dwelling in ſuch City or County wherein the ſaid A. B. was ſo arreſted and troubled, if any ſuch Perſon can be found within the Liberties of the Tower; and the Body of the ſame Perſon to detain in ſafe Cuſtody until ſuch time as the ſaid A. B. ſhall be enlarged.

This pretended Privilege is directly againſt the Laws of the Realm, as hereunder is reſolved by the Judges.

By which means the Execution of the Laws of the Realm is hindered, and the Subjects wronged.

The Caſe between Hopton Lieutenant, and the City. Ex Relatione Hum. Dyſon Notarii Pub.

Alſo in the Year of our Lord God 1585. Sir Owen Hopton Kt. Lieutenant of the Tower of London, (of whom ſomething was ſaid before in Portſoken Ward) by colour of his Office, pretending Title to a Garden Plot near the Tower, did cauſe his Servants violently to take Poſſeſſion thereof, and to bring thoſe Perſons before him that kept the Poſſeſſion, whom he impriſoned in the Tower. Whereupon a Writ of Habeas Corpus was ſued forth of the King's Bench for the removing of the Body of Robert Shapely, one of the Priſoners, which Writ was brought and delivered unto the Lieutenant by Robert Smith, then Solicitor of the City of London; but the Lieutenant would not receive nor obey the Writ, but would have compelled the ſaid Robert Smith to carry it back again with him: which he refuſing, the Lieutenant put the Writ into his Pocket, and abuſed and impriſoned alſo the ſaid Robert Smith in the Tower. For Redreſs of which Wrongs, and of many others, there was Complaint made to the Lords of the Privy Council, who referred the Hearing of thoſe Controverſies, and the Examination of the Rights and Privileges which the Lieutenant pretended to belong unto his Office, to the Lords Chief Juſtices and to the Maſter of the Rolls, who were to certify their Opinions thereof in Writing, as by the Letters of the Lords of the Council in that behalf ſent and directed unto them, of the Tenor following, appeareth.

The Councils Letters to the Lords Chief Juſtices, and to the Maſter of the Rolls.

The Council's Orders for Examination of the Cuſtoms of the Lieutenant, and Privileges of the City.

A*Fter our very hearty Commendations,* &c. There hath been complaint made unto us in the behalf of the Lord Maior and Citizens of London againſt Sir Owen Hopton Knt. Lieutenant of the Tower, whom they charge with ſome diſordered Dealing by him uſed towards one Robert Smith, a Solicitor for the City, ſent lately unto him with a Writ of Habeas Corpus, out of the Court of her Majeſty's Bench, for the removing of the Body of one Robert Shapeley, a Servant to one William Wikins a Citizen, impriſoned by the Lieutenant upon ſome pretended Quarrel of Privilege; the manner whereof ſhall beſt appear unto you by the ſeveral Complaints and Articles herein incloſed, exhibited unto us by the ſaid Smith and Wikins.

And foraſmuch as the Maior, Aldermen and Citizens of London, have heretofore oftentimes found themſelves grieved, with ſundry Actions of unkind and violent Dealings, offered by the ſaid Lieutenant and his Officers as they have informed, to the Breach of their Charters and Liberties, whereby there is grown ſome Diviſion and Diſſenſion between them (which we deſire by all good means to have removed;) and whereas the Lieutenant ſeemeth to warrant his Doings by ancient Privileges and Cuſtoms of the Tower, whereunto the Citizens on their parts, upon opinion of the Validities of their Charters, refuſe to yield: We conſidering what Inconvenience may enſue of the private Diſſenſion between them, have thought good to require you, calling Maſter Lieutenant before you, and the Parties, whoſe Complaints are herewith ſent unto you, with ſuch Proofs and Witneſs as may be produced, effectually to examine the Matters thereby informed againſt him: and that you alſo take Knowledge of ſuch other Complaints and Controverſies, as the Lord Maior and the Recorder of London ſhall deliver unto you againſt the Lieutenant of the Tower concerning their former Debates and Strifes, for Matter of Liberties, Preſcriptions and Cuſtoms, and the like on the behalf of the Lieutenant againſt them, praying you to take ſome Pains to hear the Matters at large on both Sides, and to ſee upon what Privileges, Cuſtoms, and Preſcriptions, their ſeveral Claims are grounded and pretended; as alſo to conſider of their Strength and Validity in Law, wherein after you ſhall have ſpent ſome time, and heard and underſtood the Matters at large, we require you then to make report unto us what you ſhall have found on both Sides, as well touching the Complaints of Smith and Wikins, as of the Lord Maior and Citizens, with your Opinions of their ſaid Complaints and Controverſies, and what Courſe were fitteſt to be taken between them, which we pray you to do with as convenient Speed as you may: And ſo bid you heartily farewel.

Directed to the Lords Chief Juſtices, and to the Maſter of the Rolls.

Upon the Receipt of which Letters the ſaid Lords Chief Juſtices, and Maſter of the Rolls, did at large hear the Allegations and Proofs of both Parties, and did accordingly certify their Opinions thereof to the Lords of the Privy Council in manner following:

The Certificate, touching as well the Articles and Complaints made to your Honours by Robert Smith and William Wikins, againſt Sir Owen Hopton, Knt. Lieutenant of the Tower, as the Controverſies between the Maior and Citizens of London and the ſaid Lieutenant.

The Lord Chief Juſtices Report to the Council.

FIrſt, upon Examination of the Matter, touching the ſaid Smith and Wikins, mentioned in your Honour's Letters, it appeareth unto us, that (ſome Controverſy being between the Maior and Citizens and the ſaid Lieutenant, touching a Garden Plot near the ſaid Tower) one Ralph Gaſken, Servant to the ſaid Lieutenant, violently did draw forth of the ſaid Garden one Shapeley, Servant to the ſaid Wikins, then labouring there for his ſaid Maſter, in ſuch violent manner, as thereby blood was drawn of him in ſeveral Places, and carried him to the Tower, and there kept him in Priſon eight Days; and that one Shawe, another of the Lieutenant's Servants, was preſent with the ſaid Gaſken aiding him, but that he did not hurt the ſaid Shapeley; which Gaſken and Shawe did detain ſome of the Apparel of the ſaid Shapeley, and yet do for any thing known to us.

And that likewiſe one Payne was taken forth of the ſaid Garden, and carried to the Tower, and there impriſoned three Days, and then delivered upon Bond, to render his Body to the Tower when he ſhould be required, and that Payne hath left a Pawn of the Value of 10*s.* for his Meat and Drink.

And that her Majeſty's Writ of Habeas Corpus for the Body of Shapeley was ſued forth of her Bench, directed to the Lieutenant, which was carried and delivered to him by the ſaid Smith, who prayed the ſaid Lieutenant to make Allowance thereof, and paid him the Fee due therefore. But forthwith he would have forced the ſaid Smith to have received the Money again and the Writ: which Smith refuſed to do, praying him not to be offended for bringing of her Majeſty's Proceſs.

And thereupon Maſter Lieutenant ſaid he would put his Writ in his Pocket, as he had done many, and therewith rubbed Smith on the Cheeks, and threatned to impriſon him, if he would not carry back the Writ again and the Money: whereupon the ſaid Lieutenant impriſoned Smith, and detained him about three Hours, until upon a Bill of his Hand to return to Priſon when the Lieutenant ſhould ſend for him, he was delivered; which Matter the Lieutenant confeſſeth to be true.

And touching ſuch Liberties as Maſter Lieutenant claimeth to have been uſed for the Officers and Attendants in the Tower, as not to be arreſted by any Action in the City of London, and Protections to be granted to them by Maſter Lieutenant, and not obeying of Writs of Habeas Corpus, we think ſuch Perſons as are daily attendant in the Tower, ſerving her Majeſty there, are to be privileged, and not to be arreſted upon any Plaint in London. But for Writs of Execution, or Capias ut ligatum, and ſuch like, we think they ought to have no Privilege.

Moreover, touching Protections granted by Mr. Lieutenant, for ſuch as be condemned in any Action in the Court, kept in the Tower, to go at large, and not to be arreſted by any Proceſs out of the Queen's high Courts, or elſewhere, or any other Protection to that effect, for any privileged Perſon, we think the ſame againſt her Majeſty's Laws and Dignity.

Item, That Mr. Lieutenant ought to return every Habeas Corpus, out of any Court at Weſtminſter, ſo as the Juſtices before whom it ſhall be returned, (as the Cauſe ſhall require) may either remand it with the Body, or retain the Matter before them, and deliver the Body as Juſtice ſhall require.

As touching the Juriſdiction of the Court in the Tower, and the Controverſies for certain Liberties upon the Tower Hill, and the Soil there, and divers Places about the Tower, we are not yet fully reſolved; but deſire your Lordſhips to have ſome farther time to conſider thereupon: For, that there be many Matters alledged, and to be ſhewed in Writing for the ſame, as we are informed, which we have not yet ſeen.

Item, The ſaid Lieutenant doth claim a Liberty, that if any Perſon privileged in the Tower be arreſted in London, that he may take the Body of any Citizen that ſhall come within the Liberties of the Tower, and keep his Body there until the other be delivered; which we think altogether againſt the Laws of this Realm.

Chriſtopher Wray.
Edmond Anderſon.
Gilbert Gerrard.

After the Lords of the Privy Council had received the ſame Certificate, they did thereupon make this final Order and Decree following, viz.

W*Hereas ſundry Variances and Contentions have heretofore ariſen, and have of late Years depended, betwixt the Lord Maior and Commonalty of the City of* London, on the one Part, and the Lieutenant of her Majeſty's Tower of London on the other Part, touching Matters of Liberties, Preſcriptions, Cuſtoms, and other Claims and Pretences; by reaſon whereof, and for lack of Order for ſtay of thoſe Variances and Contentions, divers Tumults have heretofore grown, and her Majeſty's Peace hath many times been in hazard to be dangerouſly broken; whereupon ſeveral Complaints have been heretofore exhibited to the Lords and others, thers, of her Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy Council, by the Lord Maior and Commonalty aforeſaid, againſt the ſaid Lieutenant, for divers Injuries alledged to be offered on his Part to the Citizens of London without Order of Law or Equity: After Conſideration had of which ſeveral Complaints, it pleaſed their Lordſhips (having care to procure an End of thoſe Controverſies, for avoiding of Inconveniences that might enſue) by their honourable Letters to give order to Sir Chriſtopher Wray, Knt. Lord Chief Juſtice of England; Sir Edmond Anderſon, Knt. Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas; and to Sir Gilbert Gerrard, Knt. Maſter of the Rolls, that they (calling the ſaid Lieutenant and the Parties Complainants before them) ſhould effectually hear and examine the Controverſies (on both Sides) and certify their Lordſhips what they ſhould find, together with their Opinions touching the ſame, who having called the Parties accordingly before them, and adviſedly and with good Deliberation ſundry times heard their Allegations and Anſwers, as well by writing as by word, with Council learned on all Parts, have ſignified their Opinions of the ſaid Controverſies in writing, as hereafter followeth:

Firſt, touching ſuch Liberties as M. Lieutenant claimeth to have been uſed for the Officers and Attendants in the Tower, as not to be arreſted by any Action in the City of London, and Protections to be granted to them by Maſter Lieutenant, and not obeying of Writs of we think ſuch Perſons as be daily attendant in the Tower ſerving her Majeſty there, are to be privileged, and not to be arreſted upon any Plaint in London, but for Writs of Executions, or and ſuch like, we think they ought to have no Privilege.

Secondly, concerning Protections granted by Maſter Lieutenant for ſuch as be condemned in any Action in the Court, kept in the Tower, to go at large, and not to be arreſted by any Proceſs out of the Queen's High Courts, or elſewhere, or any other Protection to that effect for any privileged Perſon, we think the ſame againſt her Majeſty's Laws and Dignity.

Thirdly, that Maſter Lieutenant ought to return every Habeas Corpus out of any Court at Weſtminſter, ſo as the Juſtices, before whom it ſhall be returned (as the Cauſe ſhall require) may either remand it with the Body, or retain the Matter before them, and deliver the Body as Juſtice ſhall require.

Laſtly, whereas the Lieutenant doth alſo claim a liberty, that if any Perſon privileged in the Tower be arreſted in London, he may take the Body of any Citizen that ſhall come within the Liberties of the Tower, and keep his Body there until the other be delivered; we think the ſame to be altogether againſt the Laws of the Realm.

The Lords therefore of her Majeſty's ſaid Privy Council, upon grave and deliberate Conſiderations had of the Certificate and Opinions of the ſaid Lords Chief Juſtices and Maſter of the Rolls, and to the end Occaſions of Contention, Trouble, and Diſorder, and the Danger of Breach of her Majeſty's Peace, which have heretofore of late Years ariſen and grown upon the Controverſies aforeſaid, may from henceforth ceaſe, and be altogether removed and taken away.

It was this Day by their Lordſhips ordered and decreed, betwixt the Lord Maior, Commonalty and Citizens of London, and their Succeſſors, and the Lieutenant of her Highneſs's ſaid Tower of London, and all other Lieutenants and Officers of the Tower at any time hereafter to ſucceed, That the Matters, Points, and Articles, contained in the Certificate of the ſaid Juſtices and Maſter of the Rolls beforementioned, wherein their Reſolutions, Opinions, and Determinations, be ſet down, declared, and ſignified, ſhall at all times from henceforth ſtand and remain for Rules and Reſolutions and final Determination and Deciſion: For ſo much and ſo many of the Points of Controverſies as are contained in the ſaid Certificate (whereof they have delivered their Opinions) to be for ever hereafter duly obſerved and kept; and that nothing be hereafter at any time done, or attempted on either Part, to the violating or interrupting of the ſame.]

There was a Place within the Liberties of the Tower, called the Jewry, becauſe it was inhabited by Jews. Where there happened 22 Hen. III. a Robbery and a Murther to be committed by William Fitz Bernard, and Richard his Servant; who came to the Houſe of Joce a Jew, and there ſlew him, and his Wife Henna. The ſaid William was taken at St. Saviour's for a certain Silver Cup, and was hanged. Richard was called for, and outlawed. One Miles le Eſpicer, who was with them, was wounded, and fled to a Church, and died in it. No Attachment was made by the Sheriffs, becauſe it happened in the Jewry; and ſo belonged not to the Sheriffs, but to the Conſtable of the Tower.]

On the North Side of this Hill is the ſaid Lord Lumley's Houſe, and on the Weſt Side divers Houſes lately builded, and other Encroachments along South to Chick Lane, on the Eaſt of Barking Church; at the end whereof you have Tower Street, ſtretching from the Tower Hill, Weſt to St. Margaret Pattens Church Parſonage.

Now therefore to begin at the Eaſt End of the Street; on the North Side thereof is the fair Pariſh Church called Alhallows Barking, which ſtandeth in a large, but ſome time far larger, Cemitery, or Churchyard. It hath a fair Dial extending over the Street from the Steeple: On the North Side whereof was ſome time builded a fair Chapel founded by King Richard I. Some have written that his Heart was buried there under the high Altar. This Chapel was confirmed and augmented by King Edward I. Edward IV. gave Licence to his Couſin John, Earl of Worceſter, to found there a Brotherhood for a Maſter and Brethren. On a Table hanging up in the Church it is thus written. This Church was much defaced and ruined by a lamentable Blow of 27 Barrels of Gunpowder, that took fire the fourth Day of January 1649. in a Ship-chandler's Houſe over againſt the South ſide of the Church: And afterwards was repaired and beautified again by a voluntary Contribution of the Pariſhioners, as is recorded in the Church Book.

Repaired again, and a Steeple built 1659.

The Steeple of Brick was erected and built from the Foundation, and a ſixth Bell added, and the Church new lay'd with ten Inch Tiles, and beautified at the Coſt of the Pariſhioners, and ſome others, (as appears in the Regiſter Book) 1659. And there is another Table in the Church, containing a Liſt of the Names of ſundry Pariſhioners, and others that contributed toward building of the Steeple, An. 1659.

Repaired again Ann. 1701.

It was again repaired in the Year 1701. An Account whereof is given in a Table hanging in the Veſtry. This Church was new paved with Purbeck Stone; and the two Portals thereof were erected at the Charge of the Pariſh, and voluntary Contribution of Dr. John Gaskarth, and other worthy Perſons in the Year 1701.

The Accident by Gunpowder. Leyborn.

Over againſt the Wall of Barkin Churchyard a ſad and lamentable Accident befel by Gun Powder, in this manner. One of the Houſes in this Place was a Ship Chandler's, who, upon the 4th of January 1649. about 7 of the Clock at Night, being buſy in his Shop about barrelling up of Gun Powder, it took Fire, and in the twinkling of an Eye blew up not only that, but all the Houſes thereabouts, to the Number (towards the Street and in back Alleys) of 50 or 60. The Number of Perſons deſtroyed by this Blow could never be known, for the next Houſe but one was the Roſe Tavern, a Houſe, never (at that time of Night) but full of Company; and that Day the Pariſh Dinner was in that Houſe. And in three or four Days after, digging, they continually found Heads, Arms, Legs, and half Bodies miſerably torn and ſcorched, beſides many whole Bodies, not ſo much as their Cloaths ſinged. In the Courſe of this Accident I will inſtance in two, one a dead, the other a living Monument: In the digging, (as I ſaid before) they found the Miſtreſs of the Houſe of the Roſe Tavern ſitting in her Bar, and one of the Drawers ſtanding by the Bar's Side, with a Pot in his Hand, only ſtifled with Duſt and Smoak; their Bodies being preſerved whole, by means of great Timbers falling croſs one upon another: This is one. Another is this, The next Morning there was found upon the upper Leads of Barkin Church a young Child lying in a Cradle, as newly laid in Bed, neither the Child nor Cradle having the leaſt ſign of any Fire or other Hurt. It was never known whoſe Child it was, ſo that one of the Pariſh kept it for a Memorial; for in the Year 1666. I ſaw the Child, grown to be then a proper Maiden, and came to the Man that had kept her all that time, where he was drinking at a Tavern, with ſome other Company then preſent: And he told us, ſhe was the Child that was ſo found in the Cradle upon the Church Leads as aforeſaid.]

Bounds of this Pariſh. A. M.

Concerning the Bounds and Limits of this Pariſh according to our precedent Order: They go Northward from the Church ſo far as the Corner, where is the back Gate, ſome time belonging to Sir Francis Walſingham, but now to Sir Nicholas Salter. Thence they go on along by the Garden Wall belonging to the Lady Lumley, to the Eaſt Corner; where going over, they paſs on ſo far as the Houſe of one Peter Porter, right over againſt the great Gate of the Lady Lumley's Houſe. Where turning back down a Paſſage to the South Part of Mr. Covell's Garden, in the midſt whereof, Eaſtward, upon London Wall, their Mark is fixed. Returning back that way again, they croſs Southward over Tower Hill, where ſome time ſtood a Croſs, diſtinguiſhing the Tower Liberty and Alhallows.

So they go on to the Tower Dock, to the Houſe of Mr. Clay, Brewer, where they go up Petty Wales, to the Cuſtom Houſe Gate. And there they turn up Water Lane, on the Eaſt Side only, till they come forth thereof, and croſs over into Mart Lane, ſo far as Sir Henry Baker's Houſe, where they turn over Eaſt, and ſo paſs on that End of Mart Lane South, where turning again Eaſt to Sydon Lane, they go up that Lane North, ſo far as Part of the Houſe belonging to Sir Nicholas Salter, and there fix their Mark; returning to Chapel Alley, and there ending where they began.

Here I confeſs my ſelf beholding to Mr. Edward Abbot, Parſon of Alhallows Barking, and the Officers that there gave me friendly Aſſiſtance.]

Sydon Lane.

By the Weſt End of this Pariſh Church and Chapel lyeth Sydon Lane, now corruptly called Sything Lane, from Tower Street up North to Hart Street.

In this Sydon Lane divers fair and large Houſes are builded; namely, one by Sir John Allen, ſome time Maior of London, and of the Privy Council unto K. Henry VIII. Sir Francis Walſingham Knt. principal Secretary to the Queen's Majeſty that then lived, was lodged there, and ſo was the Earl of Eſſex, &c.

Sharington Houſe. J. S.

I know not whether it were this very Houſe, But I am ſure hereabouts was a capital Meſſuage called Sharington Houſe, forfeited to King Edward VI. from Sir Edward Sharington, belonging to the Mint, attainted the 3d of his Reign: Which Houſe the King gave to Henry Earl of Arundel.]

Benefactors. A. M.

A Table of the Benefactors very fair hangeth up on the North Wall. It was made 1685. Therefore,

Coming now to the Charities given to the Poor in this Pariſh, I find no nomination of any, but of one Mrs. Bainham, and Sir James Deane*, whoſe Gifts are Benevolence in Bread weekly to the Poor. There ſtandeth alſo in the lower part of the Church, a Memory of one yet living, inſcribed thus:

Limits and Bounds of the Pariſh. A. M.

Now for the Limits and Bounds of the Pariſh. They go on from the Church Weſt, and turning down on the Eaſt Side of Mart-lane, croſs the way over to Sir Henry Baker's Houſe, and ſo go up on the Weſt Side, till turning into Hart Street, they go on into Sydon Lane, ſo far as their Mark ſtandeth, on the Houſe of Sir Nicholas Salter, joining to theirs of Barking Pariſh. Then they go over on the Weſt Side, and ſo paſs down Crutched Friars, to Tower Hill, to the further part of the Lady Lumley's Garden Wall, and the back Gate of the aforeſaid Sir Nicholas, where turning back to Porter's Houſe, and going on Northward, they go into an Alley, which guideth them to the North End of Maſter Covel's Garden, and there they fix their Mark by theirs of Barking, on London Wall.

Crutched Friars.

So returning again, they go up towards Aldgate on the Eaſt Side, ſo far as directly againſt the Sign of the Cock, returning back on the Weſt Side to the Pump in Crutched Friars, and then to the place where they began.

Here I was favoured by Maſter John Simpſon, Parſon of St. Olaves, and the friendly Officers there.]

Woodroffe.

Woodroffe Lane towards the Tower is in this Pariſh.

Mart Lane, of a Mart kept about Blanch Chappelton, or Appleton.

Then have ye out of Tower Street alſo on the North Side, one other Lane, called Mart Lane, which runneth up towards the North, and is for the moſt part of this Tower Street Ward; which Lane is about the third quarter thereof, divided from Aldgate Ward, by a Chain to be drawn thwart the ſaid Lane, above the Weſt End of Hart Street.

Sharington Houſe. J. S.

In this Lane or Street lived ſometime Sir William Sharington, Knt. a chief Officer in the Mint in King Edward VI's Reign; who for his Frauds was attainted, but pardoned. This Meſſuage here was called Sharington Houſe: Of ſuch Capacity it ſeems, and Magnificence, that Henry Earl of Arundel obtained it of the King from the time of his Attaint; and creditable enough for that moſt noble Peer and Privy Counſellor to live in.]

Cokedon Lane, ſometime at the South Weſt End of Mart Lane, I read of.

Mincheon Lane.

A third Lane out of Tower Street on the North Side, is called Mincheon Lane, ſo called of Tenements there, ſometime pertaining to the Minchuns or Nuns of St. Helens in Biſhopſgate Street. This Lane is all of the ſaid Ward, except the corner Houſe towards Fen Church Street.

Galley men dwelled there.

Firſt Edition

In this Lane of Old Time dwelled divers Strangers born, of Genoa and thoſe Parts; theſe were commonly called Galley-men, as Men that came up in the Galleys, brought up Wines and other Merchandiſes, which they landed in Thames Street, at a Place called Galley Key: They had a certain Coin of Silver amongſt themſelves, which were Half Pence of Genoa, and were called Galley Half Pence. Theſe Half Pence were forbidden in the 13th Year of King Henry IV. And again by Parliament in the 4th of Henry V. [by the Name of Half Pence of Genoa, forbidden to paſs, as unlawful Payment, amongſt the Engliſh Subjects.] And it was enacted, That if any Perſon bring into this Realm Galley Half Pence, Suſkins, or Dodkins, he ſhould be puniſhed as a Thief, and he that taketh or payeth ſuch Money, ſhall loſe an hundred Shillings, whereof the King ſhall have the one half, and he that will ſue, the other half.

Notwithſtanding in my Youth I have ſeen them paſs currant, but with ſome difficulty, for that the Engliſh Half Pence were then (though not ſo broad) ſomewhat thicker and ſtronger. There was at that time alſo forbidden certain other Coins, called Seskaris and Dodkins, with all Scottiſh Monies.

Clothworkers Hall.

The Clothworkers Hall is in this Lane.

Griſle's Houſe.

Then at the End Weſt of Tower Street, have ye a little turning towards the North, a fair Houſe, ſometime belonging to one named Griſle, for he dwelled there in the Year 1449. And Jack Cade, Captain of the Rebels in Kent, being by him in this his Houſe feaſted, when he had dined, like an unkind Gueſt, robbed him of all that was there to be found worth the Carriage.

John Campneis, Alderman blind.

Next to this is another fair Houſe, ſometime builded by Angel Dune, Grocer, Alderman of London; ſince poſſeſſed by Sir John Campneies, Alderman and Maior of London. He builded in this Houſe an high Tower of Brick, the firſt that ever I heard of in any private Man's Houſe, to overlook his Neighbours in this City. But this delight of his Eye was puniſhed with Blindneſs ſome years before his Death. Since that time, Sir Percivall Hart, a jolly Courtier, and Knight Harbenger to the Queen, was lodged there, &c.

Margaret Pattens.

From this Houſe ſomewhat Weſt, is the Pariſh Church and Parſonage Houſe of St. Margaret Pattens. To the which Church and Houſe on the North Side, and as far over againſt on the South, ſtretcheth the fartheſt Weſt part of this Ward.

Bear Lane.

Sporiar Lane or Water Lane, or Hart Lane.

And therefore, to begin again at the Eaſt End of Tower Street. On the South Side have ye Bear Lane, wherein are many fair Houſes, and runneth down to Thames Street. The next is Sporiar Lane, of old time ſo called, but ſince and of later time, named Water Lane, becauſe it runneth down to the Watergate by the Cuſtom Houſe in Thames Street.

Trinity Houſe in Water Lane. J. S.

In Water Lane is ſituate Trinity Houſe, which belongs to an ancient Corporation of Mariners, founded in King Henry VIII's Time, for the regulation of Seamen, and ſecurity and convenience of Ships and Mariners on our Coaſts. In the ſaid King's Reign lived Sir Tho. Spert, Knight, Comptroller of the Navy to that King; who was the firſt Founder and Maſter of the ſaid Society of Trinity Houſe; and died Anno 1541. and was buried in the Chancel of Stepney Church. To whoſe Memory the ſaid Corporation Anno 1622. ſet up a Monument there for him eighty Years and one after the deceaſe of the ſaid Spert their Founder. It is on the South Wall over the Door, but the Inſcription is now almoſt worn out, but it may be read in its proper place in this Book. And by an Inſcription ancienter than that ſet up by the ſaid Corporation, loſt long ſince in the Church, but preſerved by Norden; we learn, that this Gentleman had three Wives, Dame Margery, Dame Anne, and Dame Mary, all lying in the Chancel there: And that his Coat of Arms was Two Launces in Saltier between four Hearts, on a Chief, a Ship with the Sails furled. I have been told further of this Knight, that he was Commander of the biggeſt Ship then that the Sea bore, namely, Henry Grace de Dieu, built by K. Henry VIII. near the beginning of his Reign.

Nordens Middleſex.

This Houſe where the Corporation uſually meets belonged to them before the great Fire, but (how long I know not,) they took a long Leaſe and rebuilt it, but pay a Ground Rent to William Ruſſel of Stubbers in Eſſex, Eſq; Son of Sir William Ruſſel, Knt. ſometime Alderman of London, deceaſed. This Houſe hath been lately burnt down again; but is now by the ſaid Brotherhood built up fairly a ſecond time.

The Government of it.

This Corporation, one of the conſiderableſt in the Kingdom, is governed by a Maſter, four Wardens, eight Aſſiſtants, and the eldeſt Brothers of the Company, as they are called, one and thirty in all. The reſt of their Company are called Younger Brothers, without any fixed Number: For any Seafaring Men that will, are admitted into the Society under that Name: But they are not in the Government.

They meet to chuſe their Maſter commonly at Deptford Strond, but are not obliged to do it, there; but the Houſe there being their ancient Houſe, they meet there by old Cuſtom.

Their Courts.

Their Arms.

Their Meetings are commonly on Wedneſdays and Saturdays here at their Houſe in Water Lane, but their Courts are not fixed conſtantly to a ſet time, but as Occaſion and Buſineſs requires. Their Coat of Arms is, Between a Croſs Gules, four Ships under Sail. The Creſt, a Demy Lion crowned, Or, with a Sword in his right Paw. The Motto is, Trinitas in Unitate.

They are eſtabliſhed by many Charters of the Princes of this Land.

Their Uſe and Service.

Their Service and Uſe is, that they appoint all Pilots: They ſet and place the Buoys and Sea-Marks for the ſafe Direction of Ships in their Sailing. For which they have certain Duties payable by Merchant-Men. They can Licence poor Seamen, ancient and paſt going to Sea, to exerciſe the Calling of a Waterman upon the Thames, and take in Fares, tho' they have not been bound to any one Free of the Watermans Company. They do maintain in Penſions at this time two thouſand poor Seamen, or their Widows; every one of which have at leaſt Half a Crown paid them every firſt Monday in the Month, and ſome more, beſides accidental diſtreſſed Seamen.

Their Hoſpitals.

They have three fair Hoſpitals, built by themſelves; two at Deptford, and one at Mile End, near London. That at Mile End is a very handſome Structure with a fair Chapel, and is peculiar for decayed Sea-Commanders, Maſters of Veſſels, or ſuch as have been Pilots, and their Widows.

Their Revenues.

And thus as they do a great deal of good, ſo they have large Revenues to do it with. Which ariſe partly, from Sums of Money given and bequeathed unto them for charitable Uſes, partly from Houſes and Lands alſo given them, and particularly and chiefly from Ballaſt. For they only have, by Act of Parliament, the benefit of providing Ballaſt for Ships in the Thames; and all Ships that take in Ballaſt pay them 12 d. a Tun: For which it is brought to their Ship's ſide, which the Seamen find a good Convenience in, and are very well contented to pay it. They have alſo certain Light Houſes as at Scilly and Dungeneſs in the Weſt. To which Houſes all Ships pay one Half Penny a Tun.

In their Hall.

In their Hall there is an old Flag hanging up, which they ſay was taken from the Spaniards by Sir Francis Drake; whoſe Picture hangeth up there. There is alſo the exact Model of a Ship of a great ſize rigged, encloſed in a Frame glazed round; the Gift of Sir Jeremy Smith: Likewiſe two large Globes encloſed, as was the Model of the Ship; the Gift of Sir Thomas Allen: Both Admirals of the Navy under K. Charles II. Divers Tables alſo hang up round this Hall, containing the Names of their Benefactors with the mention of their reſpective Gifts; and in their Parlour five large Plats drawn curiouſly and exactly by a Pen, deſcribing certain Sea Fights in King Charles II's Time. Much more is ſhewn of them in the Fifth Book. Chap. xvi.]

Harp Lane.

Then is there Hart Lane, or Harp Lane, which likewiſe runneth down into Thames Street.

The Chichley's.
Bakers Hall.
* Who was Brother to Chichley the Archbiſhop. Firſt Edit.

In this Hart Lane is the Bakers Hall, ſometime the dwelling Houſe of John Chichley, Chamberlain of London, who * was Son to William Chichley, Alderman of London, Brother to William Chichley, Arch Deacon of Canterbury, Nephew to Robert Chichley, Maior of London, and to Henry Chichley Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

Chichley Houſe.

This John Chichley (ſaith our Leyland) had four and twenty Children. Sir Tho. Kirrial of Kent, after he had been long Priſoner in France, married Elizabeth, one of the Daughters of this Chichley, by whom he had this Chichley's Houſe.

This Elizabeth was ſecondly married to Sir Ralph Aſhton, Knight Marſhal: And thirdly, to Sir John Bourchier, Uncle to the late Bourchier, Earl of Eſſex, but ſhe never had Child. Edward Poynings made part with Bourchier, and Elizabeth, to have Oſtenhanger in Kent, after their death, and entred into it, they living.

Gally Row.
Church Lane by Eaſt.
Church Lane in the Weſt.
Fowle Lane.

In Tower Street, between Hart Lane, and Church Lane, was a Quadrant, called Galley Row, becauſe Gally Men dwelled there. Then have ye two Lanes out of Tower Street, both called Church Lanes, becauſe one runneth down by the Eaſt End of St. Dunſtan's Church, and the other by the Weſt End of the ſame: Out of the Weſt Lane, turneth another Lane, Weſt toward Saint Mary Hill, and is called Fowl Lane, which is for the moſt part of Tower Street Ward.

The Church of St. DUNSTAN in the EAST.

Pariſh Church of St. Dunſtan in the Eaſt.

This Church of St. Dunſtan is called in the Eaſt, for difference from one other of the ſame Name in the Weſt: It is a fair and large Church of an ancient Building, and within a large Church Yard: It hath a great Pariſh of many rich Merchants, and other Occupiers of divers Trades; namely Salters and Ironmongers.

Repaired. R.

This Church began to be repaired in the Year of our Lord God 1631. And was fully repaired, richly and very worthily beautified in the Year of our Lord 1633.

Chriſtopher Vincent, } Church Wardens.
John Dines, }

I might here dilate and enlarge my ſelf, by ſpreading this General into its Particulars: But for that, this ſhall ſuffice. The Decays of it were many and great, and conſequently the Repairs. The many and great parts of it almoſt making up the whole, which may eaſily be believed by the Sum of this ſumptuous Repair; the Charge of it amounting to 2400 l. and upwards.

To the making up of which, many of the worthy Pariſhioners have lent to the Lord, in giving to this poor decayed Church very large Sums. And of ſuch Givers thus the Lord ſaith, He that giveth to the Poor, lendeth to the Lord.

Lord L'Eſtrange does Penance in this Church. Archbiſhop Chichley's Regiſt. J. S.

Concerning this Church of St. Dunſtan's in the Eaſt, there is this remarkable Paſſage recorded, that the Lord L'Eſtrange and his Wife, did publick Penance, after the manner of Penitents, from St. Paul's to this Church; becauſe they gave a Cauſe of Murder in the ſame Church, and polluted it.]

A. M.

But ſuch as remain, and merit Memory, I will declare them in this order following.

In the Chancel.

On the South Side of the Chancel, ſtandeth an ancient Marble Tomb, cooped about with filliting of Braſs Plates, bearing theſe Words engraven on them:

Hic jacet Bartholomeus James, Miles, Civis & Pannarius, ac Aldermannus, necnon quondam Maior hujus inclitæ Civitatis London, &c.

The Tomb of Sir Barth. James. J. S. And his Legacies.

The Place in this Church where this Alderman lay, was called the Chapel of the Holy Trinity, under a Tomb erected in his Life time, ſituate before the Image of the Holy Trinity. He willed that immediately after his deceaſe there ſhould be made and ſet up in the High Choir a convenient and an honeſt Presbytery, after the Advice and Diſcretion of Dame Alice his Wife. Item, He bequeathed to the High Altar of the ſaid Church of St. Dunſtan's for his Offering [for Duties] forgotten or neglected, or witholden, in diſcharge of his Soul againſt our Lord God; and alſo to have his Soul among other Souls on Sundays, recommended to the devout Prayers of the Pariſhioners there, 26 s. 8 d. Item, He bequeathed to the Suſtentation of the Brotherhood of Jeſu in the ſame Church to pray for his Soul, —— Item, He willed to have at his Burying and Months Mind, 20 Torches of Wax, every Torch weighing ſix Pounds, and four convenient Tapers of Wax, to be holden by ſuch Men as had ready their black Gowns and Hoods. Of the Torches, he bequeathed to the Church of Saint Dunſtan four, to burn on Sundays and other Feſtival Days before the Bleſſed Sacrament at the ſacring of the high Maſs there to be ſung as long as they will endure. Item, Two of the ſaid Torches to the Abby of Leyſon in Kent: One to the Priory of St. Mary Magdalene of Combwel in Kent: Two to the Pariſh Church of St. Margaret Pattens in the City of London: Two to the Chapel of our Lady of Barnet: One to the Pariſh Church of Alhallow in Stayning, London: One to the Chapel of St. Mary Magdalene of the Guild Hall of the the City of London: One other to the Pariſh of St. Margaret in Lothbury, London. And Dame Alice, his Wife, to diſpoſe of the remanent of the ſaid Torches at her pleaſure. Item, He bequeathed to the Brotherhood of the Pariſh Clerks of the City of London, 20 s. So that they were at conducing of his Body to the ſaid Church of St. Dunſtan's, and at his Dirige and Maſs of Requiem, and at his Months Mind. Item, He bequeathed to the Brethren of the Houſe of Friers of the Order of St. Auſtin of London 20 s. for that they the Day of his burying come to the ſaid Church of St. Dunſtan, and there ſing Dirige by Note, and pray for his Soul. Item, To every other of the three Orders of Friers of the City to pray for his Soul, 6 s. 8 d. if it may be, at the Diſcretion of Dame Alice, his Wife. Item, He willed that there ſhould be ſung in the ſaid Church of St. Dunſtan, Dirige and Maſs of Requiem, by the Prieſts and Clerks of the ſame Church devoutly from the time of his Burial till and unto time his Months Mind were finiſhed: And every of them to have for their Labour 6 s. 8 d. to pray for his Soul. After his ſaid Months Mind was done he willed, that the ſaid four Tapers ſhould be broken and made into ſmall Tapers, every piece weighing one Pound; which he willed ſhould be ſet before the Image of the Holy Trinity and of our Lady in the Church of Saint Dunſtan's, to burn at due and convenient times and ſeaſons. Item, He willed that anon after his Months Mind done, Dame Alice, his Wife, ſhould ordain a Prieſt of good Name and of honeſt Converſation, to ſing and ſay Divine Service and Maſs in the ſaid Church, without he were otherwiſe letted or occupied by the ſaid Dame Alice, his Wife. For he willed in any wiſe, that the ſame Prieſt ſhould be at the Commandment of the ſaid Dame Alice, to attend upon her, and to ſay Maſs and Service afore her in ſuch times as ſhould pleaſe her. The ſame Prieſt to pray for his Soul, and for the Soul of Johane late his Wife, their Fathers and Mothers, Children and Benefactors Souls, and all Chriſtian Souls, during the term of five Years or more, after the Diſcretion and Will of the ſaid Dame Alice, next enſuing after his deceaſe; ſhe giving him yearly his Wages, like as ſhe by her Diſcretion could agree with him: The ſame Prieſt daily to ſay his Maſſes, as was in the ſame Church appointed by the ſame Dame Alice, at the Awter of the Holy Trinity in the ſaid Church. Item, He bequeathed to every Houſe of the Lazars in the City of London, 3 s. 4 d. to pray for his Soul. Item, To be diſtributed among poor People in the Houſe of St. Bartholomew Spittal, in Money, Bread, or otherwiſe, 3 s. 4 d.

Gives his Houſe to the Pariſh.

And after many other charitable Legacies given to the Priſons, the Comptors, the Charter Houſes at Shene, and behind London, and other Gifts, the ſaid Sir Bartholomew James willed and ordained, that the great Meſſuage or Tenement in which he dwelt ſeated in the Pariſh of Saint Dunſtan in the Eaſt, ſo and ſo bounded, after the deceaſe of Dame Alice, his Wife, ſhould wholly remain to the Parſon and Church Wardens of the ſame Pariſh for the time being, to the Uſe of the Reparation and Works of the ſame Church for evermore: Under the Conditions enſuing, that is to ſay, That the ſaid Wardens of the ſaid Church and their Succeſſors, yearly on the Day of the Month on which it ſhould fortune him to deceaſe or be buried, ſhould hold and keep in the ſaid Church an Obit, or Anniverſary for him, Dame Alice and Johane, his Wives, honeſtly as it ought to be done, ſolemnly by Note, by the Prieſts and Clerks of the ſaid Church, with Wax to be had and ſpent about the ſame, ringing of Bells, and all other things belonging to the ſame; and the Wardens of the ſame Church cauſing the Maior and Sheriffs of the City of London yearly to be at his ſaid Obit: And the Maior yearly (for the time being, offering at his Maſs of Requiem 1 d.) to have 6 s. 8 d. paid by the hand of the ſaid Warden out of the Rents and Iſſues of his ſaid great Tenement: And either of the Sheriffs for the time being, to have 3 s. 4 d. The reſidue and remaining due yearly of the Rents and Profits, &c. of the ſaid great Tenement, after the foreſaid Payments, to be converted yearly to the Uſe of the Works and Reparation of the Church and ſaid great Tenement. I have ſet this Will down thus largely from the Original, to ſhew the Cuſtoms and Magnificence of Funerals, and withal the ſuperſtitious Piety of thoſe times.]

A. M.

These Wharfs and Keys commonly bear the Names of their Owners, and are therefore changeable. I read, in the 26th of Henry VI. that in the Pariſh of St. Dunſtan in the Eaſt, a Tenement called Paſſekes Wharf, and another called Horners Key in Thames Street, were granted to William Haringdon Eſq; I read alſo, that in the ſixth of Richard II. John Churchman, Grocer, for the Quiet of Merchants, did newly build a certain Houſe upon the Key, called Wool-wharf, in the Tower Street Ward, in the Pariſh of Alhallows Barking, betwixt the Tenement of Paul Salisbury on the Eaſt Part, and the Lane called the Water Gate on the Weſt, to ſerve for Troynage, or weighing of Wools in the Port of London: Whereupon the King granted, that during the Life of the ſaid John, the aforeſaid Troynage ſhould be held and kept in the ſaid Houſe, with Eaſements there for the Ballances and Weights, and a Counting-place for the Cuſtomer, Controulers, Clerks, and other Officers of the ſaid Troynage, together with Ingreſs and Regreſs to and from the ſame, even as was had in other Places, where the ſaid Troynage was wont to be kept, and that the King ſhould pay yearly to the ſaid John (during his Life) 40 s. at the Terms of St. Michael and Eaſter, by even Portions by the Hands of his Cuſtomer, without any other Payment to the ſaid John, as in the Indenture thereof more at large appeareth.

Rates ſet for Merchandizes.

About the Year 1554, or 1555, under Queen Mary I. a Commiſſion was given forth to certain Commiſſioners for the ceſſing of the new Rates; whereof the Lord Paget and Sir John Baker were the chief; the one Lord Privy Seal, and the other Chancellor of the Exchequer. Who obſerved this Rule, to underrate the moſt neceſſary Commodities that came into the Realm, to draw them hither; and to overrate the ſuperfluous Commodities inward, to drive them away: And generally they did under rate and underprize all Foreign Commodities of that they were ordinarily current for, leſt a Glut here of any of thoſe Wares might bring them under their Rates: and that the Merchants might not ſay they were valued to the utmoſt that before lacked a good part of that they were then rated at. And ſo Peter Oſborn, Remembrancer to the Lord Treaſurer, divers Years after informed him.

There was alſo, long before this, a Book of Rates in King Henry VII.'s Time.

Book of Rates in H. 7. Time.

Abuſes of Cuſtomers, &c.

Chart. D. Theſaurar. Angl.

One Needham, about the Year 1570 and odd, wrote a Book for ſhewing and correcting the Abuſes of Cuſtomers, of Shippers, of Merchants, &c. and ſent it privately to the Lord Treaſurer, with his Letter, to this Tenor; That he thought it his Duty juſtly and truly to open to his Honour ſuch Notes and Knowledge, as by his Service and travel he had gather'd in 10 or 12 Years, by ſearching how to reform ſuch Abuſes, Deceipts and Diſorders, as were uſed all England through againſt the Queen's Majeſty, both by her Officers belonging to the Cuſtoms, as alſo by Merchants and Shippers; and how they might be redreſſed, and her Highneſs juſtly anſwered her Rights and Duties. And alſo, his farther Opinion how to reform ſuch Wrongs as the ſaid Officers and their Clerks, and their Clerks Clerks uſed againſt the Merchants and Shippers, by raiſing new Duties, delaying them from Bills, Cockets and other Writings, and not obſerving the Hours and Times appointed them to be at the Cuſtom Houſe, and give Attendance to receive her Majeſty's Duties, and diſpatch the Merchants and Shippers. All which good Orders, that had been appointed both for the the good Service of her Majeſty, the Merchants and Shippers, by the gentle and mild Nature of the late Lord Treaſurer (Marquis of Wincheſter) deceaſed, all the Officers and Clerks were ſuffered to break, and in manner did what they would without Comptrolment. And by long Sufferance, both they, the Merchants, Shippers, Key-keepers, and other Watermen, were now neſtled, and grown into that diſordered Liberty, which had been, and was ſo profitable to them, that it would be hard to bring them to good Order again, without ſome Severeneſs to be uſed.

A Method to redreſs them.

The Method of doing this, this Man laid before the preſent Treaſurer, the Lord Burghley, in certain Articles, and offered himſelf to be employed therein; having his Warrant from the ſaid Treaſurer, and he making it his own Device and Doing, ſo as it might not be known to come from him, [this Propoſer] for his avoiding of farther Diſpleaſure.

A ſpecial Searcher.

This Perſon the Queen had 12 Years ago put in truſt to travel in theſe Matters of Cuſtom. And he had according to his Oath and Duty, without reſpect of Favour or Malice to any Perſons, ſhewed his Opinion how to reform the Abuſes as well of the one as the other; as one deſirous to ſee her Majeſty truly anſwered her Rights and Dues, and that honeſt Merchants and Shippers might be well uſed, and Offenders puniſhed.

An Account of the Queen's yearly Cuſtoms.

In the Year 1572, a Liſt was brought in to the Lord Treaſurer of the Queen's yearly Cuſtoms, Subſidies and Impoſts, ſince the beginning of her Reign to that Time. Which ſtood thus:

Names of all the Cuſtom Houſe Officers.

The Names of the Officers the ſame Year 1572, in and appertaining to the Cuſtom Houſe of London, beſides Commiſſions appendent, were theſe:

For Petty Cuſtom.

1. Mr. Billingſley, Collector of Cuſtom inwards.
2. Mr. Bird, Collector of Cuſtom outwards.
3. Mr. Rivet, Comptroler of thoſe two.

Subſidy by Statute.

4. Mr. Tho. Smith, Collector of Subſidy inward.
5. Mr. Francis Robinſon, Collector of Subſidy outwards.
6. Mr. John Chapman, Comptroler of thoſe two.
7. Mr. Colſhil, an odd Man for a Surveyor, which overlooketh all the reſt.
8. Mr. Richard Gray, a Searcher, whoſe Service always is upon the Water.
9. The Ninth is the Office of the Waiters, whoſe Service is always on the Land, without Head, as they term it, becauſe every Man catcheth for himſelf, &c. And they are in Number Sixteen.

The other Eight aforeſaid are termed Head Officers, becauſe every one of them have their Deputies and Servants, ſome two, ſome four, and ſome ſix.

10. Mr. Yong, the Tenth, is an Officer called the Packer. The Gift and Profit of which Office appertained to the City of London. The Gift of all the reſt to the Lord Treaſurer of England.

Commiſſions Appendent.

Smith and Morley for Survey of Cloth; Daubeney for Survey of Beer; Fabian and Wanton for other Devices; Broke and Hunt for Barrelled Fiſh; Anſlo and Farnham for Coney Skins; Mr. Robinſon's Leaſe for the Ferme-Wines.

Concealment of Cuſtoms.

The Queen loſt conſiderably by Concealments of Cuſtoms, as appeared by a Note brought in, about the eighth or ninth year of Q. Elizabeth, by the Cuſtomers of the Port of London, of all the Value of the Goods ſhipped out or brought in by the Engliſh and Strangers, for the Queen's firſt eight Years: taken out of the Accounts delivered into the Exchequer. Which one Carmarthen of the Cuſtom Houſe drew up for the Queen's own Uſe: Wherein he ſet down what was, in thoſe eight Years, concealed of Cuſtoms inward only, all things allowable deducted, viz. 96720 l. 13 s. 7 d. Beſides the petty Cuſtoms of Strangers inwards, which is not herein reckoned. Whereupon there was a Commiſſion for Concealment of Cuſtoms granted to one Edmond Matthews. But he was menaced and threatned to be made a Pattern of Deſtruction, for ever to attempt the like Service.

Tho. Smith the Queen's Cuſtomer.

About the Year 1590, Thomas Smith was the Queen's Cuſtomer; to whom ſhe let the Cuſtoms and Subſidies in the Port of London inwards to Farm; (who had long before been a Collector of them.) For which he paid her Rent 20000 l. per annum. Whereas, as it was diſcovered, all the Incomes of thoſe Cuſtoms amounted yearly to 30309 l. 15 s. 5 d. So as it appeared the Queen loſt yearly by that Farm 10309 l. 15 s. 5 d. This the ſaid Carmarthen caſt up; thereby intending to let the Queen underſtand how much ſhe loſt by Farming out her Cuſtoms, viz. above 10000 l. a year.

A Clerk for Execution of Penal Statutes.

There was a new Officer propounded about the Year 1572 to be brought into the Cuſtom Houſe, viz. a Clerk for the Execution of Penal Statutes, namely, one Middlemore; who had moved for this Place for himſelf, and obtained a Patent for it, upon pretence, that Forfeitures and Penalties made by Merchants might be the better anſwered to the Queen. About this the Lord Treaſurer conſulted the chief Officers of the Cuſtom Houſe, who gave in their Reaſons againſt it; which were theſe: Firſt, That there was no Place for any more Officers or Clerks than were already there placed; but rather Lack of Room, for Expedition of the Merchants and Shippers, when they came there. That there had been divers like Grants made for having of Places in the Cuſtom Houſe; to whom Denial had been made by the Lord Treaſurer to have any Place there. And that for Middlemore's Patent, they thought it not profitable for the Queen's Service, that any Penal Laws ſhould be executed in her Cuſtom Houſe: For that it would much hinder her Revenue in her Cuſtoms and Subſidies; and alſo grieve the Merchants, who daily did diminiſh in their Trades, and employed their Monies upon Exchange, whereof her Majeſty had no Benefit. Finally, the Cuſtom Houſe had always been a quiet Place, appointed only for Receipt of the Queen's Revenues and Duties, and not for Execution of Penal Statutes; which were repugnant one to the other.]

Near unto this Cuſtomers Key, towards the Eaſt, is the ſaid Water Gate, and Weſt from it, Porters Key, or Porters Lane. Galley Key.

Petty Wales.

Porters Key: Then Galley Key, where the Galleys were uſed to unlade, and land their Merchandizes and Wares; and that part of Thames ſtreet was therefore of ſome called Galley Row, but more commonly Petty Wales.

Stone Buildings here.

Julius Cæſar's Houſe by the Tower.

Princes of Wales their Lodging.

Scotland.

Britain Street, or Little Britain.

On the North Side, as well as on the South of this Thames ſtreet, are many fair Houſes, large for Stowage, builded for Merchants, towards the Eaſt End thereof, namely, over againſt Galley Key, Wool Key, and the Cuſtom Houſe. There have been of old time ſome large Buildings of Stone, the Ruins whereof do yet remain, but the firſt Builders and Owners of them are worn out of Memory: Wherefore the common People affirm Julius Cæſar to be the Builder thereof, as alſo of the Tower it ſelf; but thereof I have ſpoken already. Some are of another Opinion, and that a more likely, that this great Stone Building was ſometime the Lodging appointed for the Princes of Wales when they repaired to this City, and that therefore the Street in that Part is called Petty Wales, which Name remaineth there moſt commonly until this Day; even as where the Kings of Scotland were uſed to be lodged betwixt Charing croſs and Whitehall, it is likewiſe called Scotland: And where the Earls of Britain were lodged without Alderſgate, the Street is called Britain Street, &c.

The ſaid Building might (of old time) pertain to the Princes of Wales, as is aforeſaid, but is ſince turned to other Uſe.

The Merchants of Italy, their Lodging by their Gallies.

Guilda Teutonicorum.

It is before noted of Galley Key, that the Gallies of Italy, and other Parts, did there diſcharge their Wines and Merchandizes brought to this City. It is like therefore that the Merchants and Owners procured the Place to build upon for their Lodgings and Store Houſes, as the Merchants of the Haunce of Almaine were licenſed to have an Houſe, called Guilda Teutonicorum, the Guild-Hall of the Germanes.

Merchants of Burdeaux in the Vintry.

No Gallies landed here, in memory of Men living.

Mother Mampudding.

A ſtrange kind of building by the Shipwrights or Galley-men.

Alſo the Merchants of Burdeaux were licenſed to build at the Vintry ſtrongly with Stone, as may yet be ſeen, and ſeemeth old, though often repaired. Much more Cauſe have theſe Buildings in Petty Wales (though as lately builded, and partly of the like Stone brought from Cane in Normandy) to ſeem old, which for many Years, to wit, ſince the Gallies left their courſe of landing there, hath fallen to Ruin, and been letten out for Stabling of Horſes, to Tipplers of Beer, and ſuch like. Amongſt others, one Mother Mampudding (as they termed her) for many Years kept this Houſe, or a great part thereof, for victualling; and it ſeemeth, that the Builders of the Hall of this Houſe were Shipwrights, and not Houſe Carpenters: For the Frame thereof (being but low) is raiſed of certain principal Poſts of main Timber, fixed deep in the Ground, without any Groundſel, boarded cloſe round about on the Inſide, having none other Wall from the Ground to the Roof; thoſe Boards not exceeding the length of a Clap-board, about an Inch thick, every Board ledging over other, as in a Ship or Galley nailed with Ship Nails called rough and clenches, to wit, rough Nails with broad round Heads, and clenched on the other ſide with ſquare Plates of Iron. The Roof of this Hall is alſo wrought of the like Board, and nailed with rough and clench, and ſeemeth as it were a Galley, the Keel turned upwards; and I obſerved that no Worm or Rottenneſs is ſeen to have entred into either Board or Timber. And therefore, in mine Opinion, of no great Antiquity.

An Hoſpital for Lunatick or Phrenzy People.

I read in the 44th of Edward III. that an Hoſpital in the Pariſh of Barking Church was founded by Robert Denton Chaplain, for the Suſtentation of poor Prieſts, and other both Men and Women, that were ſick of the Phrenzy, there to remain till they were perfectly whole, and reſtored to good Memory.

Cobhams Inn.

Alſo I read, that in the ſixth of Henry V. there was in the Tower Ward a Meſſuage, or great Houſe, called Cobham's Inn; and in the 37th of Henry VI. a Meſſuage in Thames ſtreet, pertaining to Richard Longvile, &c. Some of the Ruins before ſpoken of may ſeem to be of the foreſaid Hoſpital, belonging peradventure to ſome Prior Alien, and ſo ſuppreſſed among the reſt, in the Reign of Edward III. or Henry V. who ſuppreſſed them all.

Its principal Streets and Lanes. Leybourn. R. B.

Now for the modern State of this Ward, in relation to the Streets, Paſſages, and Places of Habitation, ſince the Fire of London. It contains theſe principal Streets and Lanes, as hath been taken by a careful Survey; viz. Tower Street, Thames Street, Mark Lane, Mincing Lane and Seething Lane, St. Olave Hartſtreet; then Idle Lane, St. Dunſtan's Hill, Harp Lane, Water Lane, and Beer Lane, in which Places are ſeveral Courts and Alleys.

Tower Street.

Tower Street, of which there is the Great and the Little; of which latter, but ſome part is in this Ward, beginning about the middle near unto St. Margaret Pattons Church, and falls into great Tower Street, which runs Eaſtwards unto Tower Hill, or Dock, and is a ſpacious Street, well built and inhabited by able Tradeſmen, and the rather as being ſo great a Thorough-fair to and from Wapping, the Tower, St. Katharine's, and thoſe Parts bordering upon the Thames, repleniſhed with Seafaring Perſons.

Mercers Court.

Carpenters Hall Court. Fowks Court.

Black Swan Court.

Red Croſs Court.

Beckford Court.

White Lyon Court.

Prieſts Alley.

Roſe Alley.

Barking Church.

The Courts in this Street are, Mercers Court, ſeated on the North Side, very long, with turning Paſſages, and but indifferently inhabited. Carpenters Hall Court, a ſquare Place, with an open Paſſage into it, ſufficient for a Cart. Fowks Court, very handſome and open, with a Free Stone Pavement, and hath good Houſes, which are well inhabited. Black Swan Court, a pretty handſome open Place, with indifferent Houſes. Red Croſs Court alſo pretty good. Beckford Court, a very handſome, airy Place, with large Houſes, well inhabited, eſpecially the upper End. White Lyon Court, ſeated over againſt Barking Church, is both ſmall and ordinary, and hath a Paſſage into Chitterling Alley. Prieſts Alley, both narrow and ordinary, which with a turning Paſſage falls into Tower Dock: In this Alley are two ſmall Courts, very ordinary, and without Names. Roſe Alley, over againſt Barking Church, being long and ordinary, and hath a Paſſage down Steps into Chitterling Alley, as alſo into Gloceſter Court. Then Barking Church, a Peculiar to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury; to which Church the Abbot of Barking was anciently Patron. The Diſmes 10*s.* 8*d.*

Barking Chapel.

On the back ſide of Barking Churchyard is an Alley, or Paſſage into Tower Hill, with Houſes on the one Side, which have a Proſpect of the Church and Churchyard; and on this part, being the North ſide, was anciently the fair Barking Chapel, long ſince diſſolved. On the South Eaſt Corner of Tower Street is a Row of Houſes fronting the Tower, and leadeth to Thames Street, being pleaſantly ſituated, having alſo the Proſpect of the Thames.

Thames Street.

Thames Street is a Place of a conſiderable Trade, and taken up by great Dealers, as well by Wholeſale as Retale: And altho' the Street (ſince the new building of it) is broad enough; yet, by reaſon of the Cuſtom Houſe, and the ſeveral Keys and Wharfs, is extremely peſter'd with Cars, to the great Annoyance of the Inhabitants and Paſſengers through it. This Street runneth a very great Length from Eaſt to Weſt, even to Puddle Dock, which is about a Mile, but lies in ſeveral Wards. The Part in this Ward goeth no farther than Billingſgate.

The preſent Keys and Wharfs.

The preſent Names of the Keys or Wharfs lying on the South Side, beginning at the Tower Dock, are Brewers Key, Galley Key, Cuſtom Houſe Key, Potters Key, Wiggings Key, Ralphs Key, Temple Key, Little Dice Key, Great Dice Key, Smarts Key, and then Billingſgate; which ſaid Keys are all made uſe of for the lading and unlading of Merchants Goods; and ſome of theſe Keys are more conſiderable than others, particularly Smarts Key for Grain, &c.

The Cuſtom Houſe.

But above all is the Cuſtom Houſe: Which being conſumed by the Fire of London 1666, is rebuilt in a much more magnificent and uniform Manner, a Proſpect of which I have here inſerted; being now a large and graceful Pile of Buildings fronting the Water ſide, very commodious, as well for the Commiſſioners and the ſeveral Officers and Clerks above Stairs, as the Warehouſes underneath, and the Cranes for the landing and lading of Merchants Goods; this being the grand Office for the Management of the Cuſtoms throughout the Kingdom. This Houſe was thus ſtately built by King Charles II. with the Expence of above 10000*l*. And of this Cuſtom Houſe ſee more, where the Trade of the City is treated of.

Dog Tavern Court.
Wicheler's Yard.
Nags Head Court.
Smithers Coffee Houſe.
Vine Court Warehouſe.

But to proceed with our Deſcription of the Places: On the North ſide of this Thames Street, beginning towards Billingſgate, are theſe Courts, viz. Dog Tavern Court, a very handſome and genteel Place, and well inhabited. Wichelers Yard, taken up in Warehouſes for Stowing of Merchants Goods. Nags Head Court but ordinary; and here is kept the Coal-meters Office. Smithers Coffee-Houſe being in a Court taken up by the ſaid Coffee-Houſe, and hath a Paſſage into Water Lane. Vine Court Warehouſe taken up alſo by Warehouſes.

Bear Lane.
Gloceſter Court.
Horn Alley.
Roſe Alley.
Chitterling Alley.
Cuſtom Houſe Court.

Bear Lane, comes out of Tower Street, and turns into Thames Street, a Place of ſmall Account: In this Lane are theſe Courts, viz. Gloceſter Court, a pretty handſome Place, with a Free Stone Pavement, and hath a Paſſage into Prieſts Alley. Horn Alley, but indifferent, hath a Paſſage into Thames Street, another into Roſe Alley, and another into Chitterling Alley, both indifferent Places. Cuſtom Houſe Court, a good handſome Place, with a Free Stone Pavement: At the upper end of this Court is another ſmall Court ſo called, which hath a Paſſage through the Ship Tavern into Water Lane.

Water Lane.
Orance Court.
Trinity Houſe.

Water Lane, a very great Thorough-fare, occaſioned by the Cuſtom Houſe, as being the ready Paſſage to it, and is for the generality taken up by Publick Houſes: This Lane is ſo called as running down to the Water Gate by the Cuſtom Houſe; but formerly it was called Sporiar Lane. In this Lane is Orance Court, having but two Houſes; the reſt taken up in Warehouſes. And here is Trinity Houſe, a good handſome large Building, in which Houſe is alſo kept the Ballaſt Office.

Harp Lane.
Bakers Hall.
Croſs Lane.
St. Dunſtan's Hill.
Church Lane.
Fowle Lane.
Coffin Court.

Harp Lane comes out of Tower Street, and falls into Thames Street, a Place much peſtered with Carrs, by reaſon of their paſſing this way to the Cuſtom Houſe Keys, which is no ſmall Annoyance to the Inhabitants. On the Eaſt ſide is Bakers Hall, ſome time ſince the Dwelling-Houſe of John Chichley, Eſq; Chamberlain of the City of London. On the Weſt ſide of this Harp Lane is Croſs Lane, which is but ordinary, and leads to St. Mary Hill. St. Dunſtan's Hill, formerly called Church Lane, runs as far as St. Dunſtan's Churchyard, and from thence down unto Thames Street. On the Weſt ſide of the ſaid Church is another Lane, called Church Lane, which turneth into another towards St. Mary Hill, and is called Fowl Lane. This St. Dunſtan's Hill is a Place well inhabited by Merchants, eſpecially about the Church; and on the Eaſt ſide, over againſt the Church, is Coffin Court, which is but narrow, and not over well inhabited.

St. Dunſtan's Church.

Then St. Dunſtan's Church, called St. Dunſtan's in the Eaſt, a Peculiar belonging to the Juriſdiction of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Anciently the Prior of Chriſt Church, Canterbury, was Patron. It was burnt down in the Year 1666. Lady Williamſon contributed largely and nobly towards the rebuilding. It is now a very ſpacious and fair Church: The Steeple alſo hath been of late years taken down, and ſtrongly built up again, and furniſhed with a very muſical Ring of Bells.

Church Alley.
Idle Lane.
Prieſts Alley.

Adjoyning to this Church Northwards, is Church Alley, which hath a handſome Free Stone Paving, and pretty good Buildings on the Side fronting the Church; and this Alley leadeth into Idle Lane, which comes out of the Weſt End of Tower Street, and falls into Thames Street: On the Weſt Side of this Lane is Croſs Lane, which falls into St. Mary Hill; by this Church is Prieſts Alley, alſo of no good Account.

Mincing Lane.

Mincing Lane, anciently called Mincheon, is garniſhed with very good Houſes, which for the generality are taken up by Merchants, and Perſons of Repute, and the Street is broad and ſtrait coming out of Tower Street and going up into Fenchurch Street.

Clothworkers Hall.
Bell Yard.

Here is Clothworkers Hall, a very large and graceful Building, with a large Court-yard paved with Free Stone. This Hall is oft made uſe of by the Lord Maior, or one of the Sheriffs, during the time of their reſpective Office, as being commodious for that Occaſion; and this brings in a Benefit to the Company. In this Lane, or rather Street, is Bell Yard, which is a good handſome Place.

Mark Lane.
Sugar Loaf Alley.
Well Alley.
Star Alley.

Mark Lane, or Mart Lane, being ſo called from a Mart there formerly kept. A Place now well inhabited, with divers large Houſes for Merchants; but for the generality all old Timber Houſes: The greateſt part of this Lane is in this Ward, to wit, from Tower Street unto that part where the Poſt and Chain is placed thwart the Street, which is above the Weſt End of Hart Street: And in this part of the Lane are theſe Places, viz. Sugar-Loaf Alley, which is but indifferent, over againſt which is the old Navy Office. Well Alley, being both ſmall and narrow. Pick-axe Alley alſo ſmall; and Star Alley, which is but ordinary.

Hartſtreet.
St. Olave Hartſtreet Church.
Croſſeys, or Angel Court.

Hart Street is but ſhort, coming out of Mart Lane, and falls into Crutched Fryers by St. Olave Hart Street Church, belonging to the Dioceſe of London: A Churchyard behind it. Over againſt this Church is Croſſeys, or Angel Court, which is a pretty open Place with good Buildings, well inhabited.

Seething Lane.
Navy Office.
John Deveres Yard.
Carr Yard.
Green Arbour Court.
Black Dog Alley.

Seething, or Sything Lane, runneth Northwards from Tower Street unto Crutched Fryers. It is now a Place of no great Account; but amongſt the Inhabitants ſome are Merchants. Here is the Navy Office; but the chief Gate for Entrance is out of Crutched Fryers. Some part of the Building being in Aldgate Ward, it is there treated of. And in this Lane are theſe Courts, and Places of Name, viz. John Deveres Yard, pretty broad in the Middle, but ordinary, with a narrow Paſſage into Mark Lane. Carr Yard, a pretty handſome open Place, but meanly inhabited. Green Arbour Court, a pretty large Place, containing two Courts, one within another, and both bearing the ſame Name. Star Alley, newly built for Warehouſes and Tenements. Black Dog Alley very very mean and ordinary. Black Raven Court, an open Place, with good new Brick Buildings, well inhabited: And here is kept the Tranſport Office. Plough Yard; but ordinary built and inhabited. Crown Court but ſmall, with a Free Stone Pavement.

Tower Hill. Barking Alley. Roſe Court. Muſcovy Court.

Tower Hill. The Weſt Row of Buildings, with part of the Hill, (which is in this Ward) is a handſome Structure, very well inhabited, and pleaſantly ſeated in an open Air, having the delightful Proſpect of the Thames, and the Tower: And in this Row is Barking Alley, or Alleys; one leading into Tower Street, and the other into Seething Lane; in both which the Buildings encompaſs Barking Church on the North and Eaſt Sides. Then about the middle of this Row of Buildings is Roſe Court, both ſmall and ordinary. Farther Northwards, is Muſcovy Court, a curious large open Place, with a Free Stone Pavement, and conſiſting of fair new Brick Buildings, and they very well inhabited. Out of this Court is a back Paſſage, with a Door into the Navy Office.

Formerly there were round the Tower old Buildings, which encloſed the Ditch, or Moat; and theſe ſtood until the Reign of King Charles II. But being found incommodious, were all by Command from above (Sir John Robinſon being Lieutenant) pulled down, and the Moat cleanſed and enlarged, with Brick-work on the outſide, even to the Ground. So that now the Tower is not ſo choaked up, but ſtands open on all Sides.]

Thus much for the Bounds and Antiquity of this Ward. Wherein are noted, firſt, the Tower of London, three Pariſh Churches, the Cuſtom Houſe, and two Halls of Companies; to wit, the Clothworkers and the Bakers.

This Ward hath an Alderman, his Deputy, Common Counſellors 8, Conſtables 13, Scavengers 12, Wardmote Men 13, and a Beadle: It is taxed to the Fifteen at 26 *l.

There are to watch at the ſeveral Stands within this Ward every Night, a Conſtable and the Beadle with forty Watchmen.

The Jury Men returned by the Wardmote Inqueſt for this Ward, are to ſerve as Jurors in the ſeveral Courts in Guildhall in the Month of May.]

The Alderman of this Ward is Sir Charles Peers, Knt.

* It is taxed to the Fifteen at 46 l. and accounted in the Exchequer at 45 l. 10 s. Firſt Edit.

Ealdgate Ward. The Bounds thereof. A fair Well anciently.

THE ſecond Ward within the Walls on the Eaſt part, is called Ealdgate [or Aldgate] Ward, as taking Name of the ſame Gate. The principal Street of this Ward beginneth at Ealdgate, ſtretching Weſt to ſometime a fair Well, where now a Pump is placed. From thence (the way being divided into twain) the firſt and principal Street, (called Ealdgate Street) runneth on the South Side to Lime Street Corner. And half that Street down on the left hand, is alſo of that Ward.

Hart-horn Alley. Bricklayers-Hall. Sprinkle Alley.

In the mid way on that South Side, betwixt Ealdgate and Lime Street, is Hart Horn Alley, a way that goeth thorough into Fenchurch Street, over againſt Northumberland Houſe. Then have ye Bricklayers Hall, [uſed alſo now by the Company of Silkthrowers] and another Alley, called Sprinkle Alley, of an holy Water Sprinkle ſometime hanging there, now named Sugar Loaf Alley, of the like Sign.

Mrs. Cornwallis. African Houſe.

Then is there a fair Houſe, with divers Tenements near adjoining, ſometime belonging to a late diſſolved Priory, but ſince poſſeſſed by Mrs. Cornwallis, Widow, and her Heirs, by the Gift of King Henry VIII. in reward of fine Puddings (as it was commonly ſaid) by her made, wherewith ſhe had preſented him: Such was the princely Liberality of thoſe times. Of later time, Sir Nicholas Throgmorton, Kt. was lodged there; which now is the African Houſe.

Belzeters Lane. A Proverb of Billitar Lane. J. S.

Then ſomewhat more Weſt is Belzeter's Lane, ſo called of the firſt Builder and Owner thereof; now corruptly called Billiter Lane: [A Place conſiſting formerly of poor and ordinary Houſes, where it ſeems needy and beggarly People uſed to inhabit; whence the Proverb uſed in ancient Times, A bawdy Beggar of Billiter Lane, which Sir Thomas More ſomewhere uſed in his Book which he wrote againſt Tyndal.]

Wall, Gate and Windows of Stone found under Ground.

Betwixt this Belzeter's Lane and Lime Street, was, (of later time) a Frame of three fair Houſes ſet up in the Year 1590. in place where before was a large Garden Plot, incloſed from the high Street with a Brick Wall, which Wall being taken down, and the Ground digged for Cellerage, there was found right under the ſaid Brick Wall, another Wall of Stone, with a Gate arched of Stone, and Gates of Timber to be cloſed in the midſt towards the Street; the Timber of the Gates was conſumed, but the Hinges of Iron ſtill remained on their Staples on both the Sides.

The Ground raiſed here above two Fathom.

Moreover, in that Wall were ſquare Windows, with Bars of Iron on either ſide the Gate: This Wall was under Ground above two Fathoms deep, as I then eſteemed it, and ſeemeth to be the Ruins of ſome Houſe burned in the Reign of King Stephen, when the Fire began in the Houſe of one Aelward, near London Stone, and conſumed Eaſt to Ealdgate. Whereby it appeareth, how greatly the Ground of this City hath been in that Place raiſed.

St. Mary Street. St. Auguſtin's Church in the Wall.

On the North Side, this principal Street ſtretcheth to the Weſt Corner of St. Andrew's Church, and then the Ward turneth towards the North, by St. Mary Street, on the Eaſt Side, to St. Auguſtine's Church in the Wall, and by Buries Marks again, or about by the Wall to Ealdgate.

the South, from the Pump aforeſaid, is called Fenchurch Street, and is of Ealdgate Ward, till ye come to Culver Alley, on the Weſt Side of Ironmongers Hall. Where ſometime was a Lane, which went out of Fenchurch Street to the midſt of Lime Street: But this Lane was ſtopped up, for Suſpicion of Thieves that lurked there by Night. [This Paſſage is of late opened again.]

A. M.

Hart Street.

Again, to Ealdgate, (out of the principal Street, even by the Gate and Wall of the City) runneth a Lane South, [to Croſſed or Crowched Friers, and then Woodroſe Lane,] to the Tower Hill. And out of this Lane Weſt, a Street called Hart Street, which of that Ward ſtretcheth to Sydon Lane, by St. Olave's Church. One other Lane more Weſt from Ealdgate, goeth by Northumberland Houſe toward the Croſſed Friers: Then have ye on the ſame ſide, the North End of Mart Lane, and Blanch [Appleton or] Chappelton, where that Ward endeth.

The Extent of the Soke. J. S. Dunthorne.

In ſhort, the ancient Bounds of this Ward may be taken from the Extent of the Soke of the Priory of Chriſt's Church. And what that is may be known from what is wrote by one of that Convent, and preſerved in an old Book, called Dunthorne. Where we read, Sciendum igitur quanta ſit Soka, cujus fines tales ſunt. A Porta de Algate, &c. i.e. “ We muſt know therefore how great the Soke is, which hath ſuch Bounds. From the Gate of Algate as far as the Gate of the Bailey of the Tower, called Cungate, and all Cheken Lane towards Barking Church, as far as the Churchyard, except one Houſe nearer than the Churchyard. And the Journey is returned the ſame way as far as the Church of Saint Olaves; and then we come back by the Street which goes by the Church of Colemanchurch; then it goes forth towards Fenchurch; and ſo there on this ſide our Houſes is a Lane, thro' which we went unto the Houſe of Theobald Fitz-Ivo, Alderman; which Lane now is ſtopped up, becauſe it had been ſuſpected for Thieves in the Night. Therefore becauſe a Way was not open there, we come back again by a Lane towards the Church of St. Michael; and ſo as far as Lime Street, to the Houſe of Richard Cavel. This therefore is our inward Soke, and theſe are the Bounds of it. This the Queen Mother gave to us with the Gate of Algate. From Lime Street we go through the Street by the Church of St. Andrew's, as far as the Chapel of St. Auguſtine upon the Wall; then as far as the Gate of the Churchyard. This is the Circuit of our inner Soke.]

Ancient Places.

The Priory of the Holy Trinity. Maud the Founder.

Thus much for the Bounds: Now for Monuments, or Places moſt ancient and notable. I am firſt to begin with the late diſſolved Priory of the Holy Trinity, called Chriſt Church, on the right hand within Algate. This Priory was founded by Matilda the Queen, Daughter to Malcolm King of Scotland, Wife to Henry the Firſt, in the ſame place where Siredus ſometime began to erect a Church, in Honour of the Croſs, and of Saint Mary Magdalene, of which the Dean and Chapter of Waltham were wont to receive thirty Shillings. The Queen was to acquit her Church thereof; and in exchange gave unto them a Mill. King Henry her Husband confirmed her Gift. This Church was given to Norman, the firſt Canon regular in all England.

Norman the Prior.

Chriſt's Church.

The ſaid Queen alſo gave unto the ſame Church, and thoſe that ſerved God therein, the Port of Aldgate, and the Soke thereunto belonging, with all Cuſtoms, ſo free as ſhe had held the ſame, and 25 l. Blanks, which ſhe had of the City of Exceſter, as appeareth by her Deed, wherein ſhe nameth the Houſe Chriſt Church, and reporteth Aldgate to be of her Demains; which ſhe granteth, with two parts of the Rent of the City of Exceſter.

Q. Maud's Charter to the Priory. J. S.

The Deed of Queen Maud follows, as it was taken out of the Regiſter of the ſaid Priory, called there Prioratus de Crichurch.

Pariſh of the Holy Trinity.

Norman took on him to be Prior of Chriſt's Church, in the Year of Chriſt, 1108. in the Pariſhes of St. Mary Magdalene, St. Michael, St. Katharine, and the Bleſſed Trinity, which now was made but one Pariſh of the Holy Trinity, and was (in old time) of the Holy Croſs, or Holy Rood Pariſh.

The Situation of the Priory.

The King's Iron Ell.

The Priory was builded on a piece of Ground in the Pariſh of St. Katharine, towards Aldgate, which lyeth in length betwixt the Kings Street, by the which Men go towards Aldgate, near to the Chapel of St. Michael towards the North, and containeth in length eighty three Ells, half quarter, and quartern of the King's Iron Ell, and lyeth in breadth, &c. The Soke and Ward of Aldgate was then bounded, as I have before ſhewn: The Queen was a mean alſo, that the Land and Engliſh Knighten Guild was given unto the Prior Norman. The honourable Man Geffrey de Clinton was a great helper therein, and obtained, that the Canons might incloſe the way betwixt their Church and the Wall of the City, &c. This Priory in proceſs of time became a very fair and large Church, rich in Lands and Ornaments, and paſſed all the Priories in the City of London, or Shire of Middleſex, the Prior whereof was an Alderman of London, to wit, of Portſoken Ward.

Prior of Chriſt's Church, an Alderman of London.

Conteſt between the Pariſhioners of St. Katherines and the Priory. J. S.

After this great Priory had ſwallowed up thoſe four Pariſhes aboveſaid, the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of St. Katharine's, procured themſelves a Chapel or Church to be built in the Churchyard of the Priory, for their more convenient and quiet reſort to perform their Divine Service in: The Prior appointing them one of his Canons, according to his Pleaſure, to ſay Maſs to them: But ſtill they were bound to chriſten their Children in the Conventual Church, and to come thither at all ſolemn Times, that being the Parochial Church: Where for a great while before they commonly reſorted in a part of that Church on the South, where the Altar of St. Mary Magdalene was placed. So that hereby Maſs was ſaying in two Places of the Church at one time: Which by the Noiſe of ſeveral celebrating together, a great Confuſion and Diſturbance was occaſioned. To prevent this, the ſaid Chapel was at length erected, where one of the Canons officiated. But in time great Diſcord happened between the Priory and them, about their Neglect of coming to the Conventual Church: And Reſtraint was put upon them, as to their frequenting their own Church or Chapel, and obliging them to reſort to the great Church for the chriſtening of their Children, and upon all the Holidays, eſpecially the greater; as in the Night and Day of our Lord's Nativity, Good Friday, the Day of the Benediction of the Eaſter Wax Candle, the Morning of Eaſter Day; the Veſpers and Vigils of the Feaſts of the Holy Trinity, and the Dedication of the Conventual Church of the Holy Trinity. For theſe things great Contentions aroſe between the Prior, Robert Exeter, and the Convent, and the foreſaid Pariſhioners; and continued to the time of William Haradon and Lord Richard Clifford, Biſhop of London. Who in the Year 1414 made an Accommodation of their Differences by a Compoſition between them, which was this that follows:

So that the Terms of this Compoſition were as follow: viz. That the ſaid Pariſhioners of St. Katharine Chriſt's, or Creechurch, ſhould have a Baptiſmal Font anew ſet up in their Church or Chapel for baptizing of Children, and to have other Solemnities to be there performed (about which ſuch Contentions had before ariſen among them) for all times hereafter. That they ſhould reſort to the Conventual Church on the Feſtivals and Dedication of the ſaid Conventual Church in the Eve of Saint Bartholomew yearly. And there, in Token of their Submiſſion and Acknowledgement, each ſhould, in thoſe Feſtivals, offer their Pence, Halfpence and Farthings. And that they might, if they pleaſed, keep the Dedication of St. Katharine in their own ſaid Chapel or Church. Which he, the Biſhop out of his Paternal Affection towards them, yielded unto. Further, That they might not ring the Bells on Eaſter Day, till the Office was finiſhed at the Conventual Church. That one of the Canons, to be placed, or removed at the pleaſure of the Prior, ſhould ſerve in the ſaid Chapel as was uſual before this preſent Ordinance, to adminiſter to the ſaid Pariſhioners the Sacraments and Sacramentals, as anciently was done. That the Prior and Convent henceforth be not obliged to find the Ornaments, nor be at other Charges for the Chapel. All which Ordination and Compoſition the Prior and Convent and the ſaid Pariſhioners had received, and promiſed inviolably to obſerve perpetually.]

The Terms thereof.

Priors Aldermen.

I read, that Euſtacius, the eighth Prior, about the Year 1264. becauſe he would not deal with temporal Matters, inſtituted Theobald Fitz Juonis, Alderman of Portſoken Ward under him; and that William Riſing, Prior of Chriſt's Church, was ſworn Alderman of the ſaid Portſoken Ward, in the firſt of Richard II. Theſe Priors have ſitten and ridden amongſt the Aldermen of London, in Livery like unto them, ſaving that the Prior's Habit was in ſhape of a ſpiritual Perſon, as I my ſelf have ſeen in my Childhood: At which time, the Prior kept a moſt bountiful Houſe of Meat and Drink, both for Rich and Poor, as well within the Houſe, as at the Gates, to all Comers, according to their Eſtates.

But to conclude my Speech of this Priory: King Henry VIII. minding to reward Sir Thomas Audeley, Speaker of the Parliament againſt Cardinal Woolſey, as ye may read in Hall, ſent for the Prior, commending him for his Hoſpitality, promiſed him Preferment, as a Man worthy of a far greater Dignity; which Promiſe ſurely he performed, and compounded with him, though in what ſort I never heard, for that the Prior ſurrendred all the Priory, with the Appurtenances to the King, in the Month of July, in the Year 1531. the 23d of the ſaid King's Reign. The Canons were ſent to other Houſes of the ſame Order. And the Priory, with the Appurtenances, King Henry gave to Sir Thomas Audley, newly Knighted, and afterwards made Lord Chancellor.

Priory of the Holy Trinity ſurrendred and ſuppreſſed.

Given to Sir Thomas Audley.

Nine Bells in this Church.

Sir Thomas Audely offered the great Church of this Priory, with a Ring of nine Bells well tuned (whereof four the greateſt are now at Stebunhith, [ſold to the Pariſh] and the five leſſer at St. Stephen's Coleman Street) to the Pariſhioners of St. Katharine Chriſt Church, in exchange for their ſmall Pariſh Church, minding to have pulled it down, and to have builded there towards the Street: But the Pariſhioners, having Doubts in their Heads of After-claps, refuſed the Offer.

The Church and Steeple.

Then was the Priory Church and Steeple proffered to whomſoever would take it down, and carry it from the Ground; but no Man would undertake the Offer. Whereupon, Sir Thomas Audley was fain to be at more Charges to take it down, than could be made of the Stones, Timber, Lead, Iron, &c. For the Workmen, with great Labour, beginning at the top, looſed Stone from Stone, and threw them down, whereby the moſt part of them were broken, and few remained whole, and thoſe were ſold very cheap: For all the Buildings then made about the City were of Brick and Timber. At that time, any Man in the City might have a Cart Load of hard Stone for paving, brought to his Door for 6 d. or 7 d. with the Carriage.

Comes to the Duke of Norfolk.

The ſaid Thomas Lord Audley builded and dwelt on this Priory during his Life, and died there in the Year 1544. Since the which time, the ſaid Priory came (by marriage of the Lord Audley's Daughter and Heir) unto Thomas, late Duke of Norfolk, and was then called the Dukes Place.

The Dukes Place.

The Duke of Norfolk rides thither.

J. S.

I find the ſaid Duke, Anno 1562, with hisDucheſs, riding thither thro' Biſhopſgate Street to Leadenhall, and ſo to Creechurch to his own Place: Attended with 100 Horſe in his Livery; with his Gentlemen afore, their Coats guarded with Velvet; and four Heralds riding before him, viz. Clarentieux, Somerſet, Red Croſs, and Blew Mantle.]

TRINITY CHRITS CHURCH, now called St. JAMES DUKES PLACE.

The Inhabitants of the Dukes Place made themſelves Pariſhioners of St. Katharine Creechurch by lack of a Church of their own.

A. M.

At this time the Inhabitants, dwelling and abiding in the ſaid Dukes Place, became utterly deſtitute of any Pariſh Church, for reſorting to God's Divine Service, and the adminiſtration of the bleſſed Sacraments, which in the time of their former blind Zeal, the demoliſhed Priory not only ſeemed for their Uſe, but infinite other thereto reſorting. In which reſpect the Pariſh Church of St. Katharine being ſo near, and ſtanding in the Cœmitery or Churchyard of the late diſſolved Priory of the Holy Trinity, whereby it was called St. Katharine Chriſt's Church; They reſorted thither at the Hours of Divine Service, and for the benefit of the bleſſed Sacraments; whereby (to ſpeak rightly) they became a Burthen to the ſaid Pariſh: yet well enough born withal, in regard of the Benefit enſuing by them. So that they carried the Reſpect of equal Pariſhioners, exerciſing and accompliſhing all Duties there, even as if it had been their own proper Pariſh.

The time of ſuch continuance, did merely make a Cuſtom of it in Opinion.

The long continuance of them in this kind, although ſo much diſliked, and gladly would have compaſſed Means for remedy thereof; Yet their power not ſtretching ſo far, nor the way (as yet fitting for their Purpoſe) they remained contented againſt their Wills, till time would fit them with more convenient opportunity. Ground they wanted not for raiſing a ſufficient Pariſh Church to themſelves, neither did any good Will fail in them for the effecting their Purpoſe: But only were curbed by the lack of Strength, how and which way to bring it about.

At length, perceiving their Ground (intended for ſo good a Uſe to themſelves) aimed at for

And the King finding the Caſe ſo truly honeſt and religious, for new erecting a Church where ſuch Neceſſity required, and where Superſtition had ſo long time formerly been harboured; not only gave the Lord Archbiſhop, and the Suitors both, Thanks and Commendation; but alſo, under his Hand and broad Seal, authorizable Warrant for their proceeding. The Lord Maior and Senate of Aldermen having intelligence in the Caſe, and perceiving what an Honour would redound thereby, firſt to God, who inſpired them thereto, next to the King for ſo Royally granting the Suit, and then to the City for furthering it to Effect; (Notwithſtanding contrary Oppoſition by them, who would have had them ſtill continue, as formerly they were, without benefit of a Pariſh Church of their own) it proceeded on with good and proſperous Succeſs, to the no mean Honour and Commendation of the Lord Maior then being, Sir Edward Barkham by Name, the Court of Aldermen, and State of this famous City. By whoſe good Means it is made a very beautiful and comely Pariſh Church, it being called in the time of re-edifying, Trinity Chriſt's Church; raiſed out of the long decayed Ruins, of Trinity Priory in the Dukes Place.

Theſe two Gentlemen were Sheriffs then.

The main and great Eaſt Light in the Chancel, Sir Edward Barkham himſelf undertook, and effected it as his own Charge, as Expreſſion teſtifieth in the ſame Window. The other ſideling by it, but inclining more Southerly, the two worſhipful Gentlemen, Mr. George Whitmore, and Mr. Nicholas Rantan, worthily performed. And the third, ſtanding Northerly in the ſame Chancel; Mr. Walter Leigh, who had been a Serjeant at Arms to the King's Majeſty, and now Sword Bearer of London, did likewiſe at his own Charge perform. The two Weſtern Lights in the bottom of the Church, being (indeed) very fair Lights; the honourable Company of Drapers effected the one, and the Woodmongers worſhipful Society finiſhed the other. An Account of the Manner of the Conſecration of this Church. J. S.

An authentick Copy of the beforeſaid Conſecration of St. James Duke's Place Church, is preſerved in a Regiſter Book of the Pariſh, being the Deed and Inſtrument of the Conſecration; beginning, Univerſis & ſingulis, &c. Georgius permiſſione Divina London Epus. Salutem in Domino ſempiternam, &c. i. e. To all and every one, who, &c. GEORGE, by Divine Permiſſion, Biſhop of London, Health in the Lord everlaſting, &c. Then it ſet forth, How the Maior, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City, had prayed him, that he would vouchſafe to ſeparate from all humane or common and profane Uſes, and convert to ſacred and divine, the Chappel or Church, with the Steeple united to it, to the Honour of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, and for the Propagation of the Goſpel; being ſituate within a certain Precinct commonly called The Duke's Place, within the Gate of the foreſaid City, called Algate, of the Dioceſs and Juriſdiction of London: Heretofore built; but afterwards, by the Authority of Parliament, diſſolved and turned to common Uſes. But that they had founded and built it again at their great Coſts; and had alſo aſſigned certain Plots of Ground joyning and contiguous to the ſaid Chappel or Church, for burying the faithful Dead therein. Therefore he, the ſaid George Biſhop of London, deſirous to ſatisfy the laudable and pious Deſires of the ſaid Maior, Aldermen, &c. in that Behalf, did on Thurſday the 2. Day of January 1622. between the Hours of 8 and 11 the ſame Day, come to the Church or Chapel beforeſaid. At which Time and Place, he, with the moſt Reverend Father in Chriſt, George, by the Divine Providence, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Sir Henry Marten Doctor of Law, and Knight, the Biſhop's Vicar General in Spirituals, ſtanding before the Weſt Folding Doors of the Chapel or Church aforeſaid; the Honourable Peter Proby Lord Maior of the City, together with ſome of his Worſhipful Brethren, viz. Sir John Leman, Sir John [William] Cockin, Sir Edward Barkham, Knts. Martin Lumley, John Gore, William Gore, Cutbert Hacket, John [James] Cambel, Richard Herne, Hugh Hammerſly, Edward Allen, Robert Ducy, William [George] Whitmore, and Nicholas Reynton, Eſqrs. Aldermen of the ſame City; John Hodges Eſq; and Sir Humfrey Hawford [Hanford] Kt. alſo Aldermen and Sheriffs; and others of the Commonalty accompanying them; came to them; and the ſaid Maior for himſelf, and the Aldermen and Commonalty publickly offered, gave, delivered, and granted to the ſaid Biſhop the Chapel or Church, the Steeple and the Plots of Ground united to them, for the foreſaid Uſes: Beſeeching him to ſeparate the ſame from all profane Uſes by virtue of his Paſtoral Office, and to convert them to ſuch as were ſacred and divine; and ſolemnly to dedicate the ſame to God: And then delivered to him the Keys of the Chapel or Church, and of the Steeple. Which the Biſhop receiving, he unlocked and opened the Doors which before were locked, and entred with the Archbiſhop, &c. and took Poſſeſſion. And in the very Threſhold at his Entrance, bleſſed the Place after this manner:

I was glad when they ſaid unto me, We will go into the Houſe of the Lord.

Peace be within theſe Walls, and Proſperity within theſe Doors.

Becauſe thou art a Houſe for the Lord our God, we will ſeek to do thee good.

I have choſen and ſanctified this Place, that my Name may be there for ever.

And mine Eyes and mine Heart ſhall be there perpetually.

Then going a little forward with bended Knees, and Hands towards the Eaſt, lifted up to Heaven, he made a devout Prayer, thereby Devoting and Dedicating the Place from that Day for ever unto God, and Conſecrating it to his Service only, for hearing his Word, celebrating his Sacraments, and offering up the Sacrifice of Prayer and Thankſgiving.

Then turning to the Congregation ſtanding at the Doors of the Chapel or Church, in the ſight of the Lord Maior and Aldermen, and Multitude of the Faithful there preſent, by a formal Inſtrument in that Behalf conceived in Writing, and by the Vicar General offered and delivered to the Biſhop, he ſeparated the ſaid Chapel or Church, with the Steeple, from humane and profane Uſes, and dedicated it to God; and ſo declared it to be Dedicated and Conſecrated openly and publickly in theſe Words, In Nomine Dei, &c. i. e. In the Name of God, Amen, We, GEORGE, by the Divine Permiſſion, Biſhop of London, &c. therein he mentioned the ſaid Church to be notoriouſly ſituated within his Dioceſs and Juriſdiction; and that he had Dedicated the ſame to the Worſhip of the Holy and Undivided Trinity [in ſome Remembrance probably of the old Priory of the Holy Trinity, on part of which Ground the Church now ſtood.] And he named it, The Church or Chapel of St. James within Algate.

Then the ordinary Prayers were ſaid, with three ſelect Pſalms by Tho. Langley, and other Petty Canons of St. Paul's. Then the xxiii Pſalm was ſung with Muſical Inſtruments. Then a Sermon was preached by John Whiting D. D. out of the 2. Sam. vii. 13. He ſhall build a Houſe for my Name, &c.

Then a Child was baptized, Sir Henry Marten, the Biſhop's Vicar General, and Sir William Cockain Alderman, and the Lady Maioreſs, Sureties; being baptized by the Biſhop, and named JAMES.

Then the Biſhop made another Prayer, praying God to accept that Day's Duty and Service, of Dedicating that Church to his great and dreadful Name.

Then the Biſhop went to the Chancel, and called the Maior and Alderman, to whom, being placed before the Lord's Table, he ſpake in theſe or the like Words:

“ My Lord Maior, and you the Aldermen and Commonalty of this City, you have done a worthy Work in building this Houſe for God. It is your moſt earneſt Deſire to have it Conſecrated. Which Requeſt you have obtained, and therein a double Favour both from God; that it hath pleaſed him to accept from ſimple Men ſuch mean Offers, and to tye his Pleaſure by Promiſe to ſuch Places as this; and alſo from the Church, which hath appointed the Means for performing thereof. And this Requeſt is by me already ſatisfied, and that Duty performed. Now then, you muſt know, That this Place is become an Anathema: And that in every Anathema is both a Conſecration and an Execration; a Bleſſing and a Curſe. If you ſhall uſe it rightly, and to that Purpoſe only for which it is ſanctified, it will be an Anathema, a Bleſſing to you and your Families. If otherwiſe, and that you profane it, it will be an Anathema, a Curſe to you and your Poſterity.

“ Therefore I do here charge you, in the Name of Almighty God, in whoſe Preſence you now appear, and to whoſe great and glorious Name this Place is now Dedicated, That neither ye by your ſelves, nor by any Permiſſion of others, do ſuffer any thing to be done contrary to what is now intended and performed. If ye ſhall, I do call the great God of Heaven, before whoſe Altar ye now ſtand, and this Congregation here, witneſs againſt the Souls of you and yours, at the dreadful Day of Judgment. But my Hope is, you will not. And yet, for more Aſſurance, I do require you to paſs me your Promiſes before God and this Company, not to do or ſuffer it any way to be profaned.

And accordingly the Maior and Aldermen gave their Word; and promiſed ſufficient to endow the Church, for a Prieſt to ſerve in it.

And then the Biſhop read a Prayer for a Collect.

This being done, they betook themſelves to the Lord's Supper; and the Archbiſhop, the Maior, Aldermen, and ſeveral others received. And then the Biſhop pronounced another Prayer for a Concluſion.

Then they all went out to the Plots ſet out for the Church Yard; and one of the Biſhop's Chaplains, viz. Thomas Worral B. D. read the xxiii. Chapter of Geneſis. Then the Vicar General gave the Biſhop an Inſtrument ſetting forth the Places, with their Dimenſions, allotted for the Church Yard, And then the Biſhop read, In Nomine Domini Amen, &c. Cum Honorandus Vir Dominus MAIOR, &c. Then he added a Prayer, That thoſe that ſhould hereafter be committed to that Earth, might be ſo guided by God's Grace while they are here in this World, that ſetting God evermore before their Eyes, and accounting all Things vain in compariſon of their enjoying of their only God and Saviour, might live in his Fear and dye in his Faith, and ſo be made Heirs of his Everlaſting Kingdom.

And ſo the Biſhop diſmiſs'd the whole Congregation in Peace, with the Apoſtolical Benediction.

This Inſtrument was ſigned and dated the 10. Day of January, Anno Dom. 1622. and of the Biſhop's Tranſlation the ſecond.

Whether Duke's Place was in Creechurch Pariſh.

In the beginning of the Reign of K. Charles I. the Pariſh of St. Katharine Creechurch contended with this new Pariſh of St. James Dukes Place, as though all that Place was but a Precinct of the Pariſh of the ſaid St. Katharine. In this Suit, Dr. Barnaby Gooch Maſter of Magdalen College in Cambridge, with the Fellows of the ſame Houſe, Patrons of Creechurch joyned with Stephen Deniſon Miniſter, or Curate of the ſaid Pariſh. This Matter obtained a final Decree by three Judges Delegates, Tho. Talbot, Hugh Barker, and Edmund Pope, Doctors of Law; viz. That within the Dukes Place there formerly ſtood a certain Pariſh Church of the Holy Trinity; and that the Inhabitants within the ſaid Place frequented it, for the celebrating Divine Things. And this Church of St. James, newly built and re-edified within the Place, called Dukes Place, was, and is rightly and lawfully, together with the Church Yard adjoyning to it, Conſecrated by GEORGE, by Divine Providence, Biſhop of London, and named the Church of St. James within Aldgate, and ought ſo to be had and eſteemed, and to be a Pariſh Church.

A Gift to this Pariſh.

Sir Edward Barkham Alderman of London, by his Will dated Jan. 15. 1632. gave unto the Parſon of the new Church in Dukes Place, the yearly Sum of 40 s. to be payed to the ſaid Parſon yearly for the time being, upon Good Friday; upon Condition the ſaid Parſon preach a Sermon in the foreſaid Church upon the Maunday Thurſday. And to ten of the pooreſt People of the Pariſh, that have been at the Sermon that Day 2 s. a piece, to be diſtributed at the Diſcretion of the Church Warden; that is, 20 s. to the Poor. Which three Pounds to be yearly iſſuing out of a Meſſuage and Tenement called the Flower de Luce.

This Tenement being burnt down in the great Fire, the Heir of the ſaid Sir Edmund Barkham, did, an. 1668. pray the Judges ſitting in the Hall of Clifford's Inn, That the ſaid Legacy might therefore be abated: And the Judges ordered that the third part ſhould be abated for 40 Years next to come, to begin at Chriſtmas 1668. and when the 40 Years were expired, to be 3 l. as formerly.

The Pariſh Church of St. KATHARINE CREECHURCH.

The Pariſh Church of St. Katharine ſtandeth in the Cœmitery of the ſame diſſolved Priory of the Holy Trinity, and is therefore called St. Katharine Chriſt's Church.

The Occaſion of building St. Katharine Creechurch. J. S. Lib. Trinit. penes me.

The Pariſhioners, as it appeareth by a Leiger Book of Chriſt's Church Priory, did at firſt meet together for Divine Service at the Altar of St. Mary Magdalen in the South Part of this Conventual Church. But afterwards an Inconvenience being found therein, per Diſſonantiam vocum; when Service was ſaying to the Canons in another part of the Church, and at the ſame time to the ſaid Pariſhioners here in this part of it: Therefore by the Conſent and Agreement as well of the Prior and Convent, as of the Pariſhioners aforeſaid, the Chapel of St. Katharine was built in the Church Yard of the ſaid Church, at the Motion of the Lord Richard de Graveſhende Biſhop of London [who was Biſhop from the Year 1280. to 1303.] In which Chapel Service might be more quietly performed. But there happened upon this much Contention and Diſcord between Robert Exeter the Prior, and the Pariſhioners; which continued to the Time of William Haradon Prior, and Lord Richard Clifford Biſhop of London, who in the time of his ordinary Viſitation, (which happened anno 1414.) made an Agreement between them by mutual Conſent, in the Compoſition following:

Compoſition between the Pariſhioners and the Priory.

That a Baptiſmal Font in the Church or Chapel ſhould be erected anew, for baptizing of Children, and other Things there neceſſary or ſeaſonable to be done. And that other Solemnities and Services ſhould be performed for perpetual future Times in their ſaid Church or Chapel.

Alſo, that the Pariſhioners repair yearly to the Conventual Church in the Feſtival of the Holy Trinity, and alſo in the Feſtival of the Dedication of the ſaid Conventual Church, falling out on the Morrow of St. Bartholomew the Apoſtle, every Year; and giving due Reverence to the ſaid Church, in token of Subjection and Acknowledgment, each at leaſt in the ſame Feſtivals, ſhould offer humbly and devoutly ſingle Pence, Halfpence, or Farthings.

But in caſe the ſame Pariſhioners were minded to celebrate the Solemnity of the Dedication of the ſaid Church or Chapel of St. Katharine, in the ſame Church or Chapel, we kindly do not hinder the Devotion and Will of the ſaid Pariſhioners; yea, rather with a Paternal Affection yield to it.

That there be no Ringing to the Office of the Reſurrection in the Church or Chapel, till ſuch Office in the Conventual Church, on the uſual time, be done.

That Service be ſaid to the Pariſhioners by one of the ſaid Canons in their ſaid Church or Chapel, according to the Will of the Prior and Convent, as was accuſtomed antiently before this Ordinance.

To have to the ſaid Pariſhioners all the Sacraments and Sacramentals to be performed by him, or by ſome other Canon, or ſecular Prieſt to be deputed in his Abſence.

The Prior and Convent not bound to find anew, or ſupport any Ornaments or Burthens to the ſame Church, on account of this Ordinance, or having been enjoyed by any, may they be forced to it. Given and acted in the Chapter Houſe of the Priory, in the Year of the Incarnation of our Lord 1414. Witneſs John Swayn Doctor of both Laws our Chancellor, Peter Hynewick, &c.

This Compoſition was confirmed by Pope Martin.]

This Church ſeemeth to be a very old Thing. Since the building whereof, the high Street hath been ſo often raiſed by Pavements, that now Men are fain to deſcend into the ſaid Church by divers Steps, [ſeven in Number.] But the Steeple or Bell Tower thereof hath been lately builded; to wit, about the Year 1504. for Sir John Percivall Merchant Taylor, then deceaſing, gave Money towards the building thereof.

The new building of St. Katharin Chriſt's Church. A. M.

Now concerning this Pariſh Church being now newly built, and made a very fair Church indeed; the aſcending into it is by four or five Degrees. Very gladly would I have delivered further Satisfaction concerning the new Structure thereof: But I was anſwered, they would admit no medling therewith, untill they had new built the Steeple, and other neceſſary Occaſions thereto belonging.

He was very unaffectedly charitable, generous, faithful, ſincere, neat and amiable, but ſuffered much by over Credulity, Exceſs of Modeſty, and Good Nature, and by falſe Reports.

The Foundation of this new Church. R.

The firſt Brick, as alſo the firſt Stone in this Foundation, was laid by Mr. Martin Bond of this Pariſh, Aldermans Deputy of the Ward, and one of our City Captains. The Brick was laid (as is aforeſaid) the 23d of June, and the Stone (a principal corner Stone) the 28th of July following.

Many of the Pariſhioners (following this worthy Leader) laid every Man his Stone, with which they laid ſomething elſe, which the Workmen took up very thankfully.

On the back ſide of the North Wall of the old Church was a Cloiſter, the breadth of it ſeven Foot and above. Which Cloiſter, by the taking down of that Wall, being taken into the Church, gave it all its breadth to enlarge it.

Antiquities found in the old Church.

In digging under this Wall, there was found the Figure of half the Face of a Man, caſt in Lead, the Mould ſetting likewiſe upon it this Word, Comes.

A ſtrange Skull.

Digging under the South Row of Pillars, they found the Skull of a Man, the thickneſs of which was three quarters of an Inch and better, meaſured by many, and admired by all that have ſeen it.

An old Pillar.

At the Weſt End of this Church, adjoyning to the Steeple, ſtands a Pillar of the old Church, as it ſtood, and was there erected: This Pillar (from the Baſis, or Foot, to the Chapiter or Head, upon which the old Arch was raiſed) being 18 Foot high, and but three to be ſeen above ground, ſhews the Meaſure or Height to which the Floor of this new Church hath been raiſed above that of the old, which is, the hidden part of the Pillar, or the 15 Foot of it buried.

This Structure, not of Brick, but built from the Ground with the choiceſt Free Stone might be got, without, within, and in every part of it ſupplied, furniſhed, and enriched, with whatſoever might add to its greateſt Grace and Luſtre, was finiſhed in the Year of our Lord God 1630.

Conſecrated.

In this Year (accounting from March to March) upon the 16th Day of January, it was Conſecrated by the right Reverend Father in God, William Lord Biſhop of London. And upon the ſame Day (as on ſuch it is uſual with us) were the Sacrament of the Lords Supper, and the Sacrament of Baptiſm adminiſtred.

In this Church the Pulpit and Communion Table are pure Cedar, and both the Gift of Mr. John Dyke, a Merchant, living in this Pariſh.

A very fair Gate built at the Eaſt End of the South Wall, was the Gift of William Avenen, Citizen and Goldſmith of London, who died in December 1631.

This Table of Queen Elizabeth, one of the faireſt that I have ſeen in this City, was the Gift of one that is a Stranger to this Pariſh; at leaſt to any, to be the Beſtower of it. He is yet concealed, and ſtill is deſirous ſo to be.

Benefactors to the new Church.

That, of that great number of great and magnificent Benefactors, that joined to the making up of this great, and (in our time) unparalell'd piece of Work, I have only touched upon theſe, may no doubt ſeem ſtrange, there being none in this number, whoſe liberal Hand and Heart deſerves not a Golden Character. I confeſs it. To all that may be ſaid, my Anſwer is briefly this: Being doubtful of getting all, or all of thoſe I might get, and loth of great things to ſpeak to little Purpoſe, I only took theſe that offered themſelves by the way; leaving the reſt to the Regiſter of the Giver of their Means to give: With whom all good Deeds are recorded, and undoubtedly ſhall be rewarded.]

Parſonage and Tythes. Viſitation Book. J. S.

There is no Parſonage Houſe or Glebe belonging to this Pariſh; nor was before the great Fire. The whole Tythe is 35 or 36 l. per Ann. The Pariſh pay 25 l. per Ann. to Magdalen College in Cambridge, to which the Tythes belong; and the Remainder is paid to the Miniſter, whoſe Allowance is augmented by voluntary Gift. The Miniſter is in the Election of the Pariſh. A Regiſter is kept of the Benefactors, and an Account of what Legacies have been left.]

St. ANDREW UNDERSHAFT Pariſh.

Pariſh Church of St. Andrew Underſhaft. A Shaft or May-pole higher than the Church Steeple.

At the North Weſt Corner of this Ward in the ſaid high Street, ſtandeth the fair and beautiful Pariſh Church of St. Andrew the Apoſtle, with an addition, to be known from other Churches of that Name, of the Knape or Underſhaft, and ſo called St. Andrew Underſhaft, becauſe that of old time, every Year (on May Day in the Morning) it was uſed, that an high or long Shaft, or May Pole, was ſet up there, in the midſt of the Street, before the South Door of the ſaid Church. Which Shaft when it was ſet on end, and fixed in the Ground, was higher than the Church Steeple. Geffrey Chaucer, writing of a vain Boaſter, hath theſe Words, meaning of the ſaid Shaft.

Chawcer. Chance of dice.

Right well aloft,
and high ye bear you Head,
The Weather Cock with flying,
as ye would kill,
When ye be ſtuffed,
bet of Wine, than Bread,
Then look ye,
when your Womb doth fill,

As ye would bear
the great SHAFT of Cornhill.
Lord, ſo merrily
crowdeth then your Croke,
That all the Street
may hear your Body Cloke.

As hath been at large before declared.

This Shaft was not raiſed at any time ſince evil May Day (ſo called of an Inſurrection made by Prentices, and other young Perſons againſt Aliens, in the Year 1517.) but the ſaid Shaft was laid along over the Doors, and under the Pentiſes of one Row of Houſes, and Alley Gate, called of the Shaft, Shaft Alley, (being of the Poſſeſſions of Rocheſter Bridge) in the Ward of Lime Street.

Shaft or May-pole preached againſt at Paul's Croſs.

Sir Stephen, the Curate.

The ſaid Elm Tree his preaching Place is lately taken down.

Shaft or May-pole ſawed in pieces and burnt.

It was there, I ſay, hanged on Iron Hooks many Years, till the third of King Edward VI. that one Sir Stephen, Curate of St. Katharine Chriſt's Chriſt, preaching at Paul's Croſs, ſaid there, that this Shaft was made an Idol, by naming the Church of St. Andrew, with the Addition of Under that Shaft: He perſwaded therefore, that the Names of Churches might be altered: Alſo, that the Names of Days in the Week might be changed, the Fiſh Days to be kept any Days, except Friday and Saturday, and the Lent any time, ſave only betwixt Shrovetide and Eaſter. I have oft times ſeen this Man, forſaking the Pulpit of his ſaid Pariſh Church, preach out of an high Elm Tree in the midſt of the Church Yard: and then entring the Church, forſaking the Altar, to have ſung his high Maſs in Engliſh, upon a Tomb of the Dead towards the North. I heard his Sermon at Paul's Croſs, and I ſaw the effect that followed: For in the Afternoon of that preſent Sunday, the Neighbours, and Tenants to the ſaid Bridge, over whoſe Doors the ſaid Shaft had lain, after they had dined, to make themſelves ſtrong, gathered more help, and with great labour raiſing the Shaft from the Hooks (whereon it had reſted two and thirty Years) they ſawed it in pieces, every Man taking for his Share, ſo much as had lain over his Door and Stall, the length of his Houſe, and they of the Alley, divided amongſt them ſo much as had laid over their Alley Gate. Thus was this Idol (as he poor Man termed it) mangled, and after burned.

Bayliff of Rumford executed within Ealdgate for Words ſpoken to the Prieſt of the Pariſh.

Soon after was there a Commotion of the Commons in Norfolk, Suffolk, Eſſex, and other Shires. By means whereof ſtreight Orders being taken for the ſuppreſſion of Rumours, divers Perſons were apprehended and executed by Marſhal Law; amongſt the which, the Bayliff of Rumford in Eſſex was one, a Man very well beloved: He was early in the Morning of Mary Magdalen's Day (then kept Holiday) brought by the Sheriffs of London, and the Knight Marſhal, to the Well within Ealdgate: there to be executed upon a Gibbet ſet up that Morning, where being on the Ladder, he had Words to this Effect;

Good People, I am come hither to die, but know not for what Offence, except for Words by me ſpoken Yeſternight to Sir Stephen, Curate and Preacher of this Pariſh, which were theſe: He asked me, what News in the Country? I anſwered, Heavy News. Why, quoth he? It is ſaid, quoth I, that many Men be up in Eſſex, but thanks be to God All is in good quiet about us: And this was all, as God be my Judge, &c. Upon theſe Words of the Priſoner, Sir Stephen to avoid reproach of the People, left the City, and was never heard of ſince amongſt them to my knowledge. I heard the Words of the Priſoner, for he was executed upon the Pavement of my Door, where I then kept Houſe.

Pariſh Church of St. Andrew Underſhaft new builded.

Thus much by Digreſſion: Now again to the Pariſh Church of St. Andrew Underſhaft, for it ſtill retaineth the Name, which hath been new builded by the Pariſhioners there, ſince the Year 1520. every Man putting to his helping hand, ſome with their Purſes, other with their Bodies. Stephen Jennings Merchant Taylor, ſometime Maior of London, cauſed (at his Charges) to be builded the whole North Side of the great middle Ile, both of the Body and Quire, as appeareth by his Arms over every Pillar graven, and alſo the North Ile, which he roofed with Timber and cieled: Alſo the whole South Side of the Church was glazed, and the Pews in the South Chapel made of his Coſts, as appeareth in every Window, and upon the ſaid Pews. He deceaſed in the Year 1524. and was buried in the Grey Friers Church. John Kirby, Merchant Taylor, ſometime one of the Sheriffs, John Garland, Merchant Taylor, and Nicolas Leviſon, Mercer, Executor to Garland, were great Benefactors to this Work: Which was finiſhed (to the glazing) in the Year 1529. and fully finiſhed 1532.

Repaired again. R.

This Church was again repaired and laudably trimmed and beautified, at the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners in the Year of our Lord God, 1627.

Willam Bargins
Simon Farewel } Church Wardens.

Then, I ſay, trimmed and beautified; altho' for ſome few Years before and ſince, to this preſent Year 1633. the Care and Coſt of the Pariſhioners have been ſtill employed in the ſupplying and furniſhing of it with ſuch things, as either for Neceſſity or Beauty, their love to God's Houſe ſhould find wanting. Among other things, theſe; they have raiſed their Chancel; adding to that Coſt a Communion Table with a very fair Frame about it. They have made many new Pews, a fair Alabaſter Font, and a Clock, a neceſſary thing that in the Memory of Man this Pariſh hath not had, nor the eldeſt Pariſhioner ever heard of.

A Preſs of Books in this Church.

They have alſo in this Church (much commending the Founders and Continuers of it) at the lower End of the North Ile, a fair Wainſcot Preſs full of good Books, the Works of many Learned and Reverend Divines; offering at ſeaſonable and convenient times, the benefit of reading to any that ſhall be as ready to embrace it, as they and their Maintainers to impart it.]

J. S.

In the Eaſt Window are Images painted in Glaſs in full Proportion, and in their Robes; repreſenting ſeveral Kings, viz. King Edward VI. Q. Elizabeth, and the three ſucceeding Kings.

This Church was again beautified Anno 1684. by Strangways Mud, Church Warden. Again in the Year 1704.]

Italian Ordinary.

Nicolas Houblon.

Their Bounds and Limits are thus: Firſt they go Eaſt, ſo far as the Houſe of one Allen Barker, Grocer, over againſt Billeter Lane End, and ſo North all the ſide of the High Street, to Mr. Francis Philips's Houſe, over againſt the King's Head Tavern, Weſt. There, on the South ſide of the High Street, beginning at the Italian Ordinary of Ieronymo di Soldi, they turn Eaſt to one Thomas Georges, two Houſes beyond the Pewter Pot. Then they turn back into Limeſtreet, South, on both ſides the Way, ſo far as the Houſe of Nicholas Hobland, (or rather Houblon) Merchant Stranger, on the one ſide, and William Ruddock, Taylor, on the other. Returning back, they croſs the way into St. Mary Axe, all the Weſt ſide throughout the whole Street, with ſome certain Houſes over againſt London Wall towards Biſhopſgate, the laſt whereof is the dwelling Houſe of Griffin Martin, Trumpeter. So turning back into St. Mary Axe, they go upon the Eaſt ſide, from the Houſe of Mr. John Holding, commonly called Fletchers Hall, and ſo on to Mr. George Sares, adjoyning to the Church, and there end. Mr. Henry Maſon is Parſon there, but my friendly furtherance was by Thomas Johnſon the Clerk.]

St. Mary Street.

Pickering Houſe.

Fletchers Hall.

Now down St. Mary Street, by the Weſt end of the Church towards the North, ſtands divers fair Houſes for Merchants, and other; namely, one fair great Houſe builded by Sir William Pickering the Father, poſſeſſed by Sir William his Son, and ſince by Sir Edward Wootton of Kent. North from this Place is the Fletchers Hall, and ſo down to the corner of that Street over againſt London Wall; and again Eaſtwards to a fair Houſe lately builded, partly by Mr. Robert Beale, one of the Clerks of the Council.

J. S. St. Mary at Axe.

Regiſt. Lond.

In this Street ſtood a Pariſh Church, dedicated to St. Mary, and commonly called St. Mary at Axe. Eccleſia S. Mariæ atte Nax, London. In Queen Elizabeth's Reign united to St. Andrew Underſhaft.]

Papey, a Brotherhood or Hoſpital for poor Prieſts.

St. Auguſtine Papey in the Wall.

Then come you to the Papey, a proper Houſe, wherein ſometime was kept a Fraternity or Brotherhood of St. Charity and St. John Evangeliſt, called the Papey, for poor impotent Prieſts, (for in ſome Language Prieſts are called Papes) founded in the Year 1430. by William Oliver, William Barnabie and John Stafford Chaplains, or Chantry Prieſts in London, for a Maſter, two Wardens, &c. Chaplains, Chauntry Prieſts, Conducts, and other Brethren and Siſters, that ſhould be admitted into the Church of St. Auguſtine Papey in the Wall. The Brethren of this Houſe becoming lame, or otherwiſe into great Poverty, were here relieved; as to have Chamber, with certain allowance of Bread, Drink, and Coal, and one old Man and his Wife to ſee them ſerved, and to keep the Houſe clean.

They attended at Funerals. J. S.

Theſe poor Prieſts of the Papey, (as alſo the Brotherhood of the threeſcore Prieſts, and the Company of Clerks that were skilled in ſinging Diriges and Church Offices) commonly attended at ſolemn Funerals. Dame Jane Milbourn, Widow of Sir John Milbourn, in her laſt Will Anno 1543. willed to be buried in St. Edmund Lumbardſtreet; and bequeathed to the Brotherhood of Papey to come to her Burial, and to pray for her Soul, 10 s. And likewiſe to the Brotherhood of Threeſcore Prieſts in London, to come to her Burial, and to pray for her Soul, 10 s. And to the Brotherhood of Clerks to come to her Burial, and pray for her Soul, 10 s. And likewiſe to Bartho. Lynſted, ſometime Prior of St. Mary Overies, to come, &c. 6 l. 13 s. 6 d.

The Foundation, Statutes and Maſters of this Fraternity. Cott. Libr. Vitell. F. 16.

They that pleaſe may read more of this Church and Brotherhood in Limeſtreet Ward, and alſo in a MS. in the Cotton Library; where an Account is given of the Foundation and Statutes of the Fraternity in Honour of Holy Charity and St. John Evangeliſt, for the Aid and Maintenance of poor Prieſts in the Church or Chapel of St. Auguſtine de Papey within Biſhopſgate, made at various times; with the Charter of the Donation of the Papey Church, and other things belonging to that Fraternity: Alſo the Names of the Maſters and Wardens from the Year 1442. Anno 20 Hen. VI. to 1548. Anno 2 Edw. VI. when I ſuppoſe it was diſſolved.]

This Brotherhood (amongſt others) was ſuppreſſed in the Reign of Edward VI. Since the which time, in this Houſe hath been lodged Mr. Morris of Eſſex, Sir Francis Walſingham, principal Secretary to her Majeſty, Maſter Barret of Eſſex, &c.

The Abbot of Bury his Inn. Bevis Markes.

Then next is one great Houſe, large of Rooms, fair Courts and Garden Plots, ſometime pertaining to the Baſſets, ſince that, to the Abbots of Bury in Suffolk, and therefore called Buries Marks, corruptly Bevis Marks. And ſince the Diſſolution of the Abby of Bury, to Thomas Heneage the Father, and Sir Thomas Heneage the Son.

The Jews Synagogue here. J. S.

This Houſe and Ground is now encreaſed into many Tenements: And among the reſt, the Jews of London have of late built themſelves a large Synagogue here, wainſcotted round. It ſtands Eaſt and Weſt like one of our Churches. The great Door is on the Weſt: Near to which Weſt End is a long Deſk upon an Aſcent, ſomewhat raiſed from the reſt of the Floor; where I ſuppoſe the Law is read. The Eaſt Wall is in part railed in; and before the Wall is a Door, which is to open with a Key, where their Law ſeems to be laid up. Aloft on this Wall are the Ten Commandments, or ſome part of them, inſcribed in Golden Hebrew Letters without Points. There be ſeven great Branched Candleſticks of Braſs hanging down from the Top; and many other Places for Candles and Lamps. The Seats are Benches, with Backs to them that run along from Weſt to Eaſt. I happened to go into this Synagogue one Day in the Week before their Pentecoſt, that is, our Whitſunday: There I ſaw a great many Jews, ſome of the beter Rank of them, ſeeing and ordering things againſt the Feaſt: others climbing up Ladders, and adorning the Candleſticks with Bunches of ſweet Flowers and Herbs: others ſtrewing the Windows and other Places with the like Herbs and Flowers very neatly; all in order to the Celebration of their approaching Feaſt.]

Then next unto it is the before ſpoken Priory of the Holy Trinity, to wit, the Weſt and North part thereof, which ſtretcheth up to Ealdgate, where we firſt begun.

Fenchurch Street.

Ironmongers Hall.

Woodroffe Lane by the Wall of the Tower Hill.

Now again in the ſecond way from Ealdgate, more toward the South, from the Well or Pump aforeſaid, lyeth Fenchurch Street; on the Right Hand whereof, ſomewhat Weſt from the South End of Belzetters Lane, is the Ironmongers Hall; which Company was incorporated in the third of Edward IV. Richard Fleming was their firſt Maſter, Nicholas Marſhal and Richard Cox were Cuſtos's or Wardens. And on the Left Hand, or South ſide (even by the Gate and Wall of the City) runneth down a Lane to the Tower Hill, the South part whereof is called Woodroffe Lane; and out of this Lane toward the Weſt, a Street called Hartſtreet.

Croſſed Friars Houſe.

In this Street, at the South Eaſt Corner thereof, ſometime ſtood one Houſe of Crouched (or Croſſed) Fryers, founded by Ralph Hoſier, and William Sabernes, about the Year 1298. Stephen the tenth Prior of the Holy Trinity in London, granted three Tenements for 13 s. 8 d. by the Year, unto the ſaid Ralph Hoſier and William Sabernes, who afterwards became Friars of S. Croſſe: Adam was the firſt Prior of that Houſe. Theſe Friars founded their Houſe in the place of certain Tenements, purchaſed of Richard Wimbuſh, the twelfth Prior of the Holy Trinity, in the Year 1319. Which was confirmed by Edward III. the 17th of his Reign. Valued at 52 l. 13 s. 4 d. Surrendred the 12th of November, the 30th of Henry VIII.

Fryers of St. Croſſe.

J. S.

One Andrew de Bures gave this Houſe 5 Ed. III. one Meſſe and 28 Acres of Land, and one Acre of Meadow in Aketon; and one Meſſe and 60 Acres of Land in Waldingfield in the County of Suffolk.

Lands of the Crutched Fryers. 41 Ed. III.

There was a Licence granted 23 Ed. III. to the Prior of the Holy Croſs, to get Lands in Oxon. And likewiſe the Prior obtained a Grant for a Tenement in Synedene Lane, the ſame with that now called Seething Lane.

Navy Office ſtands upon the Ruins of this Houſe.

The very Ruins of this Religious Houſe are not now to be ſeen, and nothing of it remaining, only it gives Name to the Street, being more commonly called Crutched Fryers than Hartſtreet. But in the Place thereof now ſtands the Navy-Office, a noble Structure; and within the Compaſs of it many other fine Buildings.]

The City give ſome Ground to theſe Friars. R.

At a Common Council, not far from the Beginning of Henry VIII.'s Reign, an Act paſſed for granting unto the Prior and Covent of the Croſſed Fryers, beſide the Tower of London (to the Intent that they ſhould pray for the good Eſtate of the City) ſome common Ground of the ſaid City, for the Enlargement of their Church, viz. in Breadth from the Eaſt End of their Church, from the main Wall thereof on the North part, into the High Street there, five Foot of Aſſize. And at the Weſt End of their Church in Breadth four Foot and an half, ſtretching in Length from the Eaſt toward the Weſt Part ſeven Score and eight Foot and an half.

The Croſſed Friars Suit to the City for their Supply.

Afterwards at a Common Council, holden on Tueſday September 25. Ann. 12 Hen. VIII. the ſaid Prior and Covent petitioned for Succour towards the edifying and Maintenance of their new Church; and to take upon them and the whole City, to be their ſecond Founders. Whereupon it was agreed, that ſeveral Exhortations ſhould be made in Writing to every Fellowſhip in London, to ſee what they would do of their Devotions towards the ſame; and ſuch Sums to be certified to the Maior and Aldermen, to the Intent it may be known to what it will amount.]

A lewd Prior of this Houſe. J. S.

A Prior of this Houſe in Henry VIII.'s Time was not ſo obſervant as he ſhould be of the Rules of his Order: who on a Friday (a Day of ſomewhat more Mortification and Devotion) was found at 11 of the Clock in Bed with a Whore, and taken in that Poſture by Barthelot and others, appointed Viſitors by Crumwel the Vicar General's Order. For the concealing of this Incontinency, the ſurprized Prior diſtributed 30 l. preſently among them, and promiſed 30 l. more. All which was certified to Crumwel in a Letter wrote by the ſaid Barthelot. Theſe ſcandalous Crimes haſtened the Diſſolution of theſe Monaſteries.]

Milbourn's Almſmen to do Devotions at his Tomb. J. S.

Sir John Milborne aforeſaid was a Benefactor to this Houſe of the Crutched Fryers: He ſet up his Tomb in their Church in his Life-time, and appointed a ſolemn Obit to be kept there, during the Life of himſelf and his Wiſe Dame Johan; and after his Deceaſe to be alſo kept in the ſaid Church by the ſaid Friars for their Souls.

And his thirteen Bedemen, dwelling in his Almeſhouſe hard by, were to come daily unto this Church, where they ſhould in ſome convenient Place, near unto the ſaid Tomb, abide and continue while the Service of God, or at the leaſt until ſuch time as a whole Maſs, which daily ſhould be begun in the ſaid Church by the Hour of eight of the Clock in the Morning or thereabouts, ſhould be ſung or ſaid for evermore, at the Altar called Our Ladies Altar in the mid Ile of the ſaid Church, founded by the ſaid Sir John Milbourn. The Drapers vindicated.

A true Account of Milbourn's Almſhouſes. J. S.

Concerning this Gift of Sir John Milbourn, it appears by Dolphin's Will, that he built thirteen Almſhouſes in his Life time on a Plot of Ground in the Pariſh of St. Olave's near the Tower in Algate Ward, next adjoining on the South part of the Choir, or Chancel of the Conventual Church of the Priory of Croſſed Friers of London, and the Convent of the ſaid Place, within the Precinct ſometime of their Houſe. Which Plot or Parcel of Ground contained in the Eaſt part thereof from North to South; that is to ſay, from the South Eaſt Corner of the ſaid Church along by the Highway there, unto the new Houſe of one John Martin, 115 Feet and one Inch of Aſſize: And in breadth from Eaſt to Weſt, that is to ſay, from the foreſaid Way to the Convent Garden, 16 Feet and ſix Inches of Aſſize, &c. And ſo it goes on ſetting out the Dimenſions. The ſaid thirteen Tenements or Cottages contained about the eighth part of an Acre, with the Appurtenances. This Sir John Milbourn had of Edmund Stretham, Prior of the Croſſed Friers and the Covent, recovered 26 H. 8. as in the Huſtengs of London appeareth of Record.

Milbourn's Gift to the Drapers. Vid. Dolphin's Will.

Of theſe ſaid thirteen Tenements or Cottages the ſaid Milbourn, and Dame Johan his Wife, made a Gift in Truſt unto one William Dolphin, Citizen and Draper; as alſo of eleven other Meſſuages in ſeveral Pariſhes in London: Which were bought with the Money and Goods of the ſaid Sir John Milbourn and Dame Johan.

The Houſes were theſe: Five Meſſuages in Thames Street in the Pariſh of St. Laurence Pountney: Two Meſſuages with their Appurtenaces in the Pariſh of St. Nicolas near Newgate: Two Meſſuages with their Appurtenances in St. Martins the Great; ſometime belonging to the Reverend Father in Chriſt, John Archbiſhop of Thebes, and Commendatory perpetual of Carliſle. Two Meſſuages or Tenements and Gardens, ſometime John Cheſters, afterwards Dame Johan his late Wife, married to Sir John Milbourn, lying in the Pariſh of our Bleſſed Lady of Aldermary: Eleven in all.

All theſe eleven Meſſuages with the ſaid thirteen Cottages, the ſaid William Dolphin by his laſt Will bearing date the 8th Day of December, 36 H. 8. deviſed and bequeathed to the Maſter and Wardens, Brethren and Siſtern of the Guild or Fraternity of our Bleſſed Lady of DRAPERS; to have and to hold to them and their Succeſſors for ever: For theſe Uſes, viz. With part of the Rents and Iſſues to diſpoſe and diſtribute thirty two Shillings and ten Pence Sterling, at twelve times of the Year, to thirteen poor People Houſeholders, either wedded Perſons or unmarried, Brethren or Siſtern of the ſame Fraternity of Drapers, as ſhould be admitted to the thirteen Rooms: That is, 7 d. a Week a piece, on every firſt Day of the Month, beginning the firſt Day of May in the Year 1536.

And in caſe there ſhould not be found within the Company of Drapers ſo many poor Houſeholders as would receive the ſame Alms, then there ſhould be named, to ſupply the ſame number of Almſmen, other Houſeholders of the Pariſh of St. Edmund's in Lumbardſtreet, and St. Bartholomew the Little to receive the ſaid Alms.

Theſe poor People were to be thus qualifyed; viz. to be of honeſt Converſation, and not detect of any open Crime: And after their Admiſſion, ſhould be reſtant and abiding upon the ſame: And not to keep any common ſelling of Ale, Beer, or Wine, or any other thing concerning Tippling, or any petty Oſtrey.

They were to be nominated and put in by Sir John Milbourn, and Dame Johan his Wife, during their mortal Lives; and after their Deceaſes, by their Executors. And then by the Maſter and Wardens and Aſſiſtants of the Drapers for ever: And the ſaid Bedemen or Almſmen were daily to come unto the Church of the Croſſed Friars in ſome place near to the Tomb of the ſaid Milbourn and Dame Johan: and there to abide and continue while the Service of God was ſaid.

This Allowance to the Poor of this Almſhouſe the worſhipful Company of Drapers do faithfully pay: And have doubled it: And encreaſed the Number of the poor Folks from thirteen to fifteen; as Mr. Turner the Clark hath informed me.

All this above written is taken out of the Will of Dolphin, being an authentick Copy thereof remaining among the Companies Records: Which Will I carefully inſpected by the Favour and in the Preſence of Nathaniel Tench, Eſq; a worthy Aſſiſtant of the ſaid Company; whereby they may be fully vindicated from ſome unjuſt Surmiſes that went about in Stow's time concerning them, and wherewith he, good Man, was carried away, as though the Drapers performed not this Charity with that Integrity they ought.]

Next to theſe Almſhouſes is the Lord Lumley's Houſe, builded in the time of K. Henry VIII. by Sir Thomas Wiat the Father, upon one Plot of Ground, of late pertaining to the foreſaid Croſſed Friers, where part of their Houſe ſtood: And this is the fartheſt part of Ealdgate Ward toward the South, and joineth to the Tower Hill. The other ſide of that Lane, over againſt the Lord Lumley's Houſe, on the Wall Side of the City, is now for the moſt part (or altogether) builded, even to Ealdgate.

South ſide of Fenchurch Street.

Then have ye on the South Side of Fenchurch Street, over againſt the Wall or Pump, amongſt other fair and large builded Houſes, one that ſometime belonged to the Prior of Monte Jovis, or Monaſterie Cornute, (a Cell to Monte Jovis beyond the Seas) in Eſſex. It was the Priors Inn, when he repaired to this City. Then a Lane that leadeth down to Northumberland Houſe, towards the Croſſed Friers, as is afore-ſhewed.

Monte Jovis. Prior of Horn Church in Eſſex.

This Northumberland Houſe, in the Pariſh of St. Katharine Coleman, belonged to Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, in the 33d. of Henry VI. But of late being left by the Earls, the Gardens thereof were made into Bowling Alleys, and other Parts into Dicing Houſes, common to all Comers for their Money, there to bowl and hazard. But now of late, ſo many Bowling Alleys, and other Houſes for unlawful Gaming, have been raiſed in other Parts of the City and the Suburbs, that this their ancient and only patron of Miſrule, is left and forſaken of her Gameſters, and therefore turned into a number of great rented ſmall Cottages, for Strangers and others.

Northumb. Houſe. Made into Bowling Alleys and Diceing-Houſes.

The Poor Jury.

At the Weſt End of this Lane, in the way from Ealdgate toward the Croſſed Friers of old time, were certain Tenements, called the Poor Jury, of Jews living there.

St. KATHARINE COLEMAN Pariſh.

Pariſh Church of St. Katharine Coleman.

Next unto this Northumberland Houſe, is the Pariſh Church of St. Katharine, called Coleman; which addition of Coleman, was taken of a great Haw Yard, or Garden, of old time called Coleman Haw, in the Pariſh of the Trinity, now called Chriſt's Church, and in the Pariſh of St. Katharine, and All Saints, called Coleman Church.

Coleman Haw.

Church repaired. R.

This Church was repaired and beautified in the Year of our Lord 1620. In the Year 1624. their Veſtry was built, and a Gallery new made for the Poor of the Pariſh to ſit in. And again, the Church was repaired and beautified, Anno 1703. Tho. Harper, Rector; Charles Rawlins and Richard Coleſon, Church Wardens. This Church eſcaped the great Fire.]

MONUMENTS in this Church, I find none recorded by Mr. Stowe; and upon my view, theſe were the moſt remarkable that I found there:

In the North Eaſt End of the Chancel an ancient Tomb.

Charitable Gifts to Katharine Coleman Pariſh.

Concerning CHARITY to the Poor in this Pariſh, beſides the Chriſtian Diſpoſition of the Pariſhioners themſelves, I find by Information, that Sir James Deane hath given 2*s*. weekly in Bread for ever, which is duly performed every Friday. Sir Henry Billingſley (by his laſt Will) gave the Sum of 200 l. for Relief of the Poor in this Pariſh; but by not making his own Eyes Overſeers, and his Hands his trueſt Executors, his good Intent is injured, and the Poor diſappointed.

Sir Henry Billingſley, Knt. and Alderman, about the Year 1586. having taken to Farm part of the Churchyard, of the Miniſter and Pariſhioners, at the yearly Rent of 4 s. to the Miniſter, and 4 s. to the Churchwarden, on the 6th of Aug. 1606. made his Will, and gave to the Poor of the Pariſh the yearly Profits of 200 l. when laid out in Land, or the Intereſt thereof till laid out, for ever; upon Condition that his Heirs and Aſſigns ſhould peaceably hold and enjoy the ſaid part of the Churchyard, whereon then he had erected a Coach Houſe, and part of his Dwelling Houſe.

This the Pariſh thought fit to enter in their Table of Benefactors in this Manner, as on Record, viz.

1603 Dame Elizabeth, } Billingſley, did Will to 1606 Sir Henry } the Poor 1 s. per Week for ever; and 200 l. which their Heirs, &c. have not paid.

Glebe.

The Miniſter hath an Houſe for his Reſidence ſtanding upon his Glebe, and a Ground Rent of 7 l. per Annum for another Houſe adjoyning to it, let out by Leaſe for about 16 l. per Annum. There belongs alſo to him another ſmall Tenement, for which he receives 6 l. per Annum. As it was given in by the Churchwardens in a Parochial Viſitation Anno 1693.]

A. M.

The Limits and Bounds of this Pariſh need no relation, becauſe they are contained within ſo ſmall a Compaſs; and at every Place where their Mark is fixed, there is likewiſe a Katharine Wheel of Iron, not eaſy to be broken off or removed. Mr. Wright, the learned Parſon here, gave me his gentle Furtherance, ſhewing me a Glaſs Window in the South Ile of the Church, where is figured the Shape of an Alderman in Scarlet, kneeling on his Knees, and the Words ſet down by him, do expreſs his Name to be William White, Maior of this honourable City. Whereby he is perſuaded, and I am likewiſe of his Opinion, (by divers Opinions thereto inducing) that all that Ile was either of his building, or (at leaſt) repairing, it appeareth ſo novel to the reſt.]

Will. White.

Mannor of Blanch Apleton. Mart Lane.

Then have ye Blanch Apleton, [corruptly now called Blind Chapel Court] whereof I read in the 13th of Edward I. that a Lane behind the ſame Blanch Apleton was granted by the King to be incloſed and ſhut up. This Blanch Apleton was a Mannor belonging to Sir Thomas Roos of Hamelake, Knt. the 7th of Richard II. ſtanding at the North Eaſt Corner of Mart Lane; which was ſo called of a Privilege ſometime enjoyed to keep a Mart there; long ſince diſcontinued, and therefore forgotten, ſo as nothing remaineth for Memory, but the Name of Mart Lane, and that corruptly termed Mark Lane.

Baſketmakers at Blanch Apleton, and Foreigners.

I read, that in the 3d of Edward IV. all Baſket-makers, Wire-drawers, and other Foreigners, were permitted to have Shops in this Mannor of Blanch Apleton, and not elſewhere within this City, or Suburbs thereof.

And this alſo being the fartheſt Weſt part of this Ward on that South ſide; I leave it, with three Pariſh Churches; St. Katharine Chriſts Church, St. Andrew Underſhaft, and St. Katharine Coleman; and three Halls of Companies; the Bricklayers Hall, the Fletchers Hall, and the Ironmongers Hall.

R. B.

Now for the preſent State of this Ward; it briefly ſtands thus.

Aldgate Street

And firſt to begin with Aldgate Street, which is broad, but ſhort; and very well inhabited by Tradeſmen; and by giving Entrance through the Gate into and out of the adjacent Parts of the Suburbs, renders it a great Thorough-fare. It begins at the Gate, and runneth Weſtwards to the Pump, where it divides it ſelf into two Streets; one falling into Leadenhall Street, and the other into Fenchurch Street. Next unto the Gate is the chief (but narrow) Entrance into Dukes Place, which is very large, and for the generality taken up by the Jews, where they had lately their Synagogue.

Dukes Place inhabited much by Jews. Jews Synagogue.

St. James's Church.

In this Place are ſeveral Courts, ſome of which are very large, as are thoſe where the Church of St. James Dukes Place now ſtandeth. This Church did pretend a Privilege above others, eſpecially in Marrying without Licenſes; which by Act of Parliament was lately taken away from this, as well as from the Minories, and others, by laying very heavy Pecuniary Mulcts upon all Perſons whatſoever that marry without Banns or Licenſe. Out of this Court where this Church ſtandeth, is a Paſſage under an Arch into another large one, called Dukes Place Court; and to theſe two Courts, there are two Out-letts into that part of Dukes Place which fronteth London Wall, along which is a narrow Lane, called commonly Dukes Place, which turning South leads to Aldgate, and North Weſt to Bevis Marks Aldgate; a Place generally taken up by Shooe-makers Shops. Here is a ſmall Place called Vine Court, which is but ordinary. Likewiſe out of Dukes Place Court is a Street which leadeth to another, and both called Dukes Place. And in this Part was the Jews Synagogue, a good large upper Room: From this Part is Heneage Lane, which is but ordinary, and falls into Bevis Marks, which comes out of Dukes Place by London Wall, and falls into Camomile Street, which runneth along by the Wall as far as St. Mary Axe. But neither this nor Bevis Marks are Places of any conſiderable Account. On the South ſide here is Plough Yard, which is pretty large, but chiefly taken up for Stablings and and Coaches, but towards the upper End hath a handſome Houſe with a Garden before it fit for a good Inhabitant; and near unto this Yard is Berry Street, which is very handſome and cleanly kept, with good uniform Buildings on both Sides, which are well inhabited by Merchants, and Perſons of Repute, who dwell privately, without Shops: This Street falls into one part of Dukes Place, where there is a narrow Paſſage into St. Mary Axe, called Greyhound Alley, which is but ordinary.

St. Mary Axe

St. Mary Axe, a Street that comes out of Bevis Marks by London Wall, and runneth up South to Leadenhall Street againſt Lime Street. And this Street, eſpecially the Eaſt Side, (which is only in this Ward) is generally taken up by Merchants, there being divers large and fair Buildings ſeated backwards, with good Entrances to them ſhut up by Gates; and many of them have Gardens behind them.

Here was lately the fair Houſe of Sir Jeffrey Jeffryes, Knt. and Alderman. Which is now taken down, with divers others. In the Places whereof are other good Houſes now erecting by Mr. John Blunt, the Gardens backwards having been ſpacious, and deſigned for a Square.

Fletchers Hall.
St. Andrew Underſhaft Church.

At the North End is Fletchers Hall, a pretty ſmall Brick Building. And at the South Corner is ſeated the Pariſh Church of St. Andrew Underſhaft, formerly St. Andrew the Apoſtle; a large old Church, having a Towered Steeple, and a Lanthorn in the midſt. It was one of the Churches that eſcaped the late Conflagration. It is in the Dioceſe of London, the Biſhop of London Patron. The Diſmes 17*s.* 4*d.*

Little Dukes Place.

Leadenhall Street, a Place of a great Trade, well inhabited, and a great Through-fare. In this Street are theſe Places. Pewter Pot Inn, of an indifferent Trade. Allen's Court hath one large Houſe that fronts the Street, being ſometime the Seat of Sir Thomas Allen, and therefore ſo called. Wheatſheaf Alley hath a dark Entrance, and is but ordinary. Axe Alley hath ſeveral Turnings, and leads into Buckers Gardens, and ſo into Dukes Place by the Jews Synagogue. The Crown Tavern large and of a good Trade. The Royal African Houſe, a large Houſe, being the Place for the Management of the Affairs of that Company. Sugar Loaf Court, a pretty handſome Place, with a Free Stone Pavement, well built and inhabited. Black Raven Alley, ſmall and ordinary. Little Dukes Place alſo mean and ſmall.

Lime Street.
Cullum Street.
Axe Yard.
Lime Street Alley.

Lime Street on the South Side of Leadenhall Street leads into Fenchurch Street, and is for the generality taken up by Merchants, and Perſons of Repute. The Weſt Side of this Street lieth in Lime Street Ward; ſome part in Langborn Ward; there being in this Ward but the Eaſt Side, from Leadenhall Street Corner unto a late built Street, called Cullum Street from the Builder. And in this Part is Axe Yard, which is but indifferent. Lime Street Alley, by ſome called Billiter Alley, as leading into Billiter Square, and through that Square Eaſt into Billiter Lane. Betwixt this Alley and Axe Yard is a new Court built out of ſome Houſes pulled down.

Billiter Lane.
Billiter Square.
Smith's Rents.
Billet Court.

Eaſt of Lime Street is Billiter Lane, which alſo goes out of Leadenhall Street, and falls into Fenchurch Street againſt the End of Mark Lane. This Street is of very ordinary Account, the Buildings being very old Timber Houſes, which much want pulling down and new Building, and the Inhabitants being as inconſiderable as ſmall Brokers, Chandlers, and ſuch like. And 'tis great pity that a Place ſo well ſeated ſhould be ſo mean: But the chief Ornament of this Place is Billiter Square on the Weſt Side, which is a very handſome, open, and airy Place, graced with good new Brick Buildings, very well inhabited; and out of this Square is a handſome Free Stone Paſſage called Smith's Rents, which leadeth to Fenchurch Street, where there ſtands alſo good Houſes. In this Street or Lane is Billet Court, which is both ſmall and ordinary.

Mark Lane.
Blanch Appleton Court.
Pick-axe Alley.

Mark Lane, or Mart Lane. Entring into which, on the Left Hand there is a large open ſquare Place, with a Paſſage to it for Carts, which is called Blanch Appleton Court, having pretty good Timber Houſes, which are indifferently well inhabited. It hath a turning Paſſage on the South Side by an Alley which encompaſſeth ſome of the Houſes. More South is Pick-axe Alley, very ſmall and ordinary, with a dark Entrance into it. This Lane is very long, falling into Tower Street. But the Part in this Ward is but ſmall, viz. the Eaſt Side from the Corner of Fenchurch unto Pick-axe Alley, the greateſt Part being in Tower Street Ward, with ſome Part in Langborn Ward.

Fenchurch Street.

Sarazens Head Inn.

Fenchurch Street is long, reaching from the Pump within Aldgate to Gracechurch Street; and for the generality is well inhabited, and amongſt the Inhabitants divers are Merchants: But of this Street, there is in this Ward no more but from Billiter Lane unto Aldgate Street on the North Side, and a little beyond Mark Lane to Aldgate Street on the South Side; the reſt being in Langborn Ward. Places of Name in this Part of the Street are, St. Katharine Coleman Church, ſeated on the South Side betwixt Mark Lane and Northumberland Houſe, now converted into Buildings, and called Northumberland Alley. Adjoining to this Church Weſtward, is Magpye Alley, which hath a narrow Paſſage into French Ordinary Court, and ſo into Crutched Fryers. Sugar Loaf Alley hath a Paſſage with a Free Stone Pavement into Leadenhall Street. Northumberland Alley, very long, which with ſeveral turning Paſſages falls into Crutched Fryers; and for the generality is but an ordinary Place, as well for Buildings as Inhabitants, yet not without ſome few that are good. Nearer Aldgate is the Sarazens Head Inn, which is very large, and of a conſiderable Trade.

Crouched Fryers.
Poor Jury Lane.

Crouched, or Croſſed Fryers, begins in the Weſt at Hart Street, and runs Eaſtward, taking in part of the Navy Office, as is laid down in the Map of Tower Street Ward, and then turning Northwards, falls into Aldgate. But that Part that runs Northwards is called Poor Jury Lane, from the Jews that formerly there inhabited. This Lane is but ordinary as to its Houſes and Inhabitants.

French Ordinary Court.

This Crouched Fryers Street hath ſeveral good Buildings and Places of Name, viz. on the North Side, French Ordinary Court already mentioned, being a large open Place with very good Buildings, eſpecially on the Eaſt Side; having Palliſado Pales, with Trees before the Court Yards of the Houſes, and a Free Stone Pavement betwixt the Houſes. Out of this Court is a Paſſage down Steps into Fenchurch Street.

The Navy Office.

The Navy Office on the South Side of the Street hath ſome Part in this Ward, to wit, almoſt the firſt Court, with the Side Buildings, and ſome ſmall Part of the Office itſelf; the other Part, viz. the back Part, being in Tower Street Ward. And for as much as the chief Entrance out of Crouched Fryers is in this Ward, I ſhall here give the Deſcription thereof. This Place ſince its new Building is made very commodious for Buſineſs, the Office where the Commiſſioners meet, and the ſeveral Clerks keep their Books, being placed in the midſt of a large Court apart from the reſt of the Buildings round about it; which are ſet apart for the Reſidence of the Commiſſioners and principal Officers; the Office being

LIMESTREET WARD.

The Bounds of it. The Manor of Leadenhall. Simon Eyre a famous Citizen. The Bread Carts of Bow, St. Mary at Axe Pariſh. The Pariſh of St. Auguſtine at the Wall. The preſent State of this Ward.

Limeſtreet Ward.

Limeſtreet, whence ſo called.

THE next is Limeſtreet Ward, and taketh the Name Limeſtreet, of making or ſelling of Lime there, (as is ſuppoſed.) The Eaſt Side of this Limeſtreet, from the North Corner thereof, to the midſt is of Ealdgate Ward, as is aforeſaid: The Weſt Side, for the moſt part, from the North Corner, Southward, is of this Limeſtreet Ward: The South End on both Sides is of Langbourn Ward: The Body of this Limeſtreet Ward, is of the high Street called Cornhill Street, which ſtretcheth from Limeſtreet on the South Side, to the Weſt Corner of Leadenhall: And on the North Side, from the South Weſt Corner of St. Mary Street, to another Corner over againſt Leadenhall.

High Street of Cornhill.

St. Mary Street.

Now for St. Mary Street, the Weſt Side thereof is of this Limeſtreet Ward, and alſo the Street which runneth by the North End of this St. Mary Street, on both Sides; from thence Weſt to an Houſe called the Wreſtlers, a Sign ſo called, almoſt to Biſhopſgate. And theſe are the Bounds of this ſmall Ward.

Places of Note in this Ward.

An Houſe in Limeſtreet, called the King's Artiree.

Greenyard.

Monuments, or Places notable in this Ward, be theſe: In Limeſtreet are divers fair Houſes for Merchants and others: There was ſometime a Manſion Houſe of the King's, called the King's Artirce, whereof I find Record in the 14th of Edward I. but now grown out of Knowledge. I read alſo of another great Houſe in the Weſt Side of Limeſtreet, having a Chapel on the South, and a Garden on the Weſt, then belonging to the Lord Nevill; which Garden is now called the Greenyard of the Leadenhall.

This Houſe, in the Ninth of Richard II. pertained to Sir Simon Burley, and Sir John Burley his Brother: And of late the ſaid Houſe was taken down, add the fore Front thereof new builded of Timber, by Hugh Offley, Alderman.

Benbridges Inn.

At the North Weſt Corner of Limeſtreet, was (of old time) one great Meſſuage, called Benbridge's Inn: Raphe Holland, Draper, about the Year 1452. gave it to John Gill, Maſter, and to the Wardens and Fraternity of Taylors, and Linen Armorers of St. John Baptiſt in London, and to their Succeſſors for ever. They did ſet up in place thereof a fair large Frame of Timber, containing in the high Street one great Houſe, and before it, to the Corner of Limeſtreet, three other Tenements, the Corner Houſe being the largeſt: And then down Limeſtreet divers proper Tenements. All which the Merchant Taylors in the Reign of Edward VI. ſold to Stephen Kirton, Merchant Taylor and Alderman. He gave with his Daughter Griſild, to Nicholas Woodroffe, the ſaid great Houſe, with two Tenements before it, in lieu of an hundred Pounds, and made it up in Money, three hundred ſixty ſix Pounds, thirteen Shillings, four Pence. This worſhipful Man, and the Gentlewoman his Widow after him, kept thoſe Houſes down Limeſtreet in good Reparations, never put out but one Tenant, took no Fines, nor raiſed Rents of them, which was ten Shillings the piece yearly: But whether that Favour did over-live her Funeral, the Tenants now can beſt declare the contrary.

Next unto this on the high Street was the Lord Souches Meſſuage or Tenement, and other. In place whereof, Richard Wethel, Merchant Taylor, builded a fair Houſe, with an high Tower, the ſecond in number, and firſt of Timber that ever I learned to have been builded, to overlook Neighbours in this City.

Meſſuage of the L. Sowch.

An Houſe with an high Tower.

This Richard, then a young Man, became in ſhort time ſo tormented with Gouts in his Joints, of his Hands and Legs, that he could neither feed himſelf, nor go further than he was led, much leſs was he able to climb, and take the pleaſure of the height of his Tower.

Then is there another fair Houſe, builded by Stephen Kirton, Alderman: Alderman Lee doth now poſſeſs it, and again new buildeth. [But now, it * is in the Cuſtody of Sir William Craven.]

Meſſuage called Green Gate.

Then is there a fair Houſe, of old time called the Green Gate, by which one Michael Piſtoy, Lumbard, held it, with a Tenement and nine Shops, in the Reign of Richard II. who in the 15th of his Reign, gave it to Roger Crophull and Tho. Bromeſlet, Eſqrs by the Name of the Green Gate, in the Pariſh of St. Andrew upon Cornhill, in Limeſtreet Ward: Since the which time, Philip Malpas, ſometime Alderman, and one of the Sheriffs, dwelled therein, and was there robbed and ſpoiled of his Goods, to a great Value, by Jack Cade, and other Rebels, in the Year 1449.

Philip Malpas robbed.

Afterwards, in the Reign of Henry VII. it was ſeized into the King's Hands. And then granted firſt unto John Alſton, after that, unto William de la Rivers, and ſince by Henry VIII. to John Mutas, a Pickard, or Frenchman, who dwelled there, and harboured in his Houſe many Frenchmen, that kalendred Wolſteds, and did other things, contrary to the Franchiſes of the Citizens. Wherefore on evil May Day, which was in the Year 1517. the Prentiſes and other ſpoiled his Houſe, and if they could have found Mutas, they would have ſtricken off his Head. Sir Peter Mutas, Son to the ſaid John Mutas, ſold this Houſe to David Woodroſe, Alderman, whoſe Son, Sir Nicholas Woodroſe, Alderman, ſold it over to John Moore, Alderman, that next poſſeſſed it.

Mutas Houſe ſpoiled.
Sir Peter Mutas.

Leaden Porch.

Next is a Houſe, called the Leaden Porch, lately divided into two Tenements, whereof one is a Tavern, and then one other Houſe for a Merchant, likewiſe called the Leaden Porch, but now turned to a Cooks Houſe.

A Houſe wherein divers Maioralties were kept.

Next is a fair Houſe and large, wherein divers Maioralties have been kept, whereof twain in my remembrance; to wit, Sir William Bowyer, and Sir Henry Huberthorne.

Manor of Leadenhall.

The next is Leadenhall, of which I read, that in the Year 1309. it belonged to Sir Hugh Nevil, Knt. and that the Lady Alice his Widow, made a Feoffment thereof, by the name of Leadenhall, with the Advouſons of the Church of St. Peter on Cornhill, and other Churches, to Richard Earl of Arundel and Surrey, 1382.

More, in the Year 1380. Alice Nevil, Widow to Sir John Nevill, Knt. of Eſſex, confirmed to Thomas Cogſhall, and others, the ſaid Manor of Leadenhall, and the Advouſons, &c.

This Manor of Leadenhall comes to the City. Anno 1408.

In the Year 1384. Humfrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, had the ſaid Manor. And in the Year 1408. Robert Rikeden of Eſſex, and Margaret his Wife, confirmed to Richard Whittington, and other Citizens of London, the ſaid Manor of Leadenhall, with the Appurtenances, the Advouſon of St. Peter's Church, St. Margaret Pattens, &c.

And in the Year 1411. the ſaid Whittington and other confirmed the ſame to the Maior and Communalty of London, whereby it came to the Poſſeſſion of the City.

Licence to take up Lead to the building of a common Granary.

Then in the Year 1443. the 21. of Henry VI. John Hatherly, Maior, purchaſed Licence of the ſaid King to take up 200. Fodder of Lead, for the building of Water Conduits, a common Granary, and the Croſs in Weſt Cheap, more richly, for the Honour of the City.

In the Year next following, the Parſon and Pariſh of St. Dunſtan in the Eaſt of London, ſeeing the famous and mighty Man (for the Words be in the Grant; Cum nobilis & potens vir,) Simon Eyre, Citizen of London, among other his Works of Piety, effectually determined to erect and build a certain Granary, upon the Soil of the ſame City at Leadenhall, of his own Charges, for the common utility of the ſaid City; to the amplifying and inlarging of the ſaid Granary, granted to Henry Frowicke, then Maior, the Aldermen and Communalty and their Succeſſors for ever, all their Tenements, with the Appurtenances, ſometime called the Horſe Mill in Graſs Street, for the annual Rent of four Pounds, &c.

Horſe Mill in Graſs Street.

Alſo, certain Evidences (of an Alley and Tenements pertaining to the Horſe Mill, adjoining to the ſaid Leaden Hall in Graſs Street, given by William Kingſtone, Fiſhmonger, unto the Pariſh Church of St. Peter upon Cornhill) do ſpecify the ſaid Granary, to be builded by the ſaid honourable and famous Merchant, Simon Eyre, ſometime an Upholſter, and then a Draper, in the Year 1419. He builded it of ſquared Stone in the form as now it ſheweth, with a fair and large Chapel in the Eaſt ſide of the Quadrant, over the Porch of which he cauſed to be written, Dextra Domini exaltavit me, The Lord's right hand exalted me.

Simon Eyre ſometime an Upholſter, then by changing of his Copy a Draper.
Leadenhall new builded to be a common Garner.
A Chapel builded in Leadenhall.

Within the ſaid Church, on the North Wall was written, Honorandus famoſus Mercator Simon Eyre, hujus operis, &c. In Engliſh thus: The honourable and famous Merchant Simon Eyre, Founder of this Work, once Maior of this City, Citizen and Draper of the ſame, departed out of this Life the 18th Day of September, the Year from the Incarnation of Chriſt, 1459. and the 38th Year of the Reign of King Henry VI. He was buried in his Pariſh Church of St. Mary Wolnoth in Lumbard Street: He gave by his Teſtament, which I have read, to be diſtributed to all Priſons in London, or within a Mile of that City, ſomewhat to relieve them.

Legacies given by Simon Eyre.
Daily Service by Note, &c. and three Free Schools in Leadenhall.

More, he gave 2000 Marks upon a Condition, which not performed, was then to be diſtributed to Maids Marriages, and other Deeds of Charity: He alſo gave 3000 Marks to the Company of Drapers; upon Condition, that they ſhould within one Year after his Deceaſe, eſtabliſh perpetually a Maſter or Warden, five ſecular Prieſts, ſix Clerks, and two Queriſters, to ſing daily Divine Service by Note for ever, in his Chapel of the Leadenhall: Alſo three School Maſters with an Uſher, to wit, one Maſter with an Uſher for Grammar, one Maſter for Writing, and the third for Song, with houſing there newly builded for them for ever: The Maſter to have for his Salary, ten Pounds, and every other Prieſt eight Pounds, every other Clerk five Pounds, ſix Shillings, eight Pence, and every other Choriſter five Marks. And if the Drapers refuſed this to do, within one Year after his deceaſe, then the three thouſand Marks to remain to the Prior and Convent of Chriſt's Church in London, with Condition to eſtabliſh as is aforeſaid, within two Years after his deceaſe. And if they refuſed, then the 3000 Marks to be diſpoſed by his Executors, as they beſt could deviſe in Works of Charity.

Thus much for his Teſtament, not performed by eſtabliſhing of Divine Service in his Chapel or Free Schools for Scholars; neither how the Stock of 3000 Marks, or rather 5000 Marks, was imployed by his Executors, could I ever learn *. He left Iſſue, Thomas, who had Iſſue, Thomas, &c. True it is, that in the Year 1464.

* Flying Tales I have heard, but not of Credit to avouch, and therefore I over paſs them: So in the firſt Edit. Lib. Albus.

the third of Edward IV. it was agreed by the Maior, Aldermen and Commonalty of London, that notwithſtanding the King Letters Patents, lately before granted unto them, touching the Tronage or weighing of Wares, to be holden at the Leaden Hall; yet ſuit ſhould be made to the King for new Letters Patents, to be granted to the Maior of the Staple, for the Tronage of Woolls to be holden there, and order to be taken by the Diſcretion of Thomas Cooke, then Maior, the Counſel of the City, Jeffrey Filding then Maior of the Staple at Weſtminſter, and of the King's Council, what ſhould be paid to the Maior and Aldermen of the City, for the laying and houſing of the Woolls there, that ſo they might be brought forth and weighed, &c.

A Brotherhood of ſixty Prieſts in the Chapel of Leadenhall.

Touching the Chapel there, I find, that in the Year 1466. by Licence obtained of King Edward IV. in the ſixth of his Reign, a Fraternity of the Trinity of ſixty Prieſts (beſide other Brethren and Siſters) in the ſame Chapel, was founded by William Rouſe, John Riſby, and Thomas Aſhby, Prieſts. Some of the which ſixty Prieſts, every Market Day in the Forenoon, did celebrate Divine Service there, to ſuch Market People as repaired to Prayer. And once every Year they met all together, and had ſolemn Service, with Proceſſion of all the Brethren and Siſters. This Foundation was in the Year 1512. by a Common Council confirmed to the ſixty Trinity Prieſts and to their Succeſſors, at the Will of the Maior and Commonalty.

Leadenhall burned.

Now it did befal, that in the Year 1484. a great Fire happened upon the Leadenhall, by what Caſualty I know not, but much houſing was there deſtroyed, with all the Stocks for Guns, and other Proviſion belonging to the City, which was a great Loſs, and no leſs Charge to be repaired by them.

Rich. Arnold.

In the Year 1503. the eighteenth of Henry the Seventh, a Requeſt was made by the Commons of the City, concerning the uſage of the ſaid Leadenhall, in Form as followeth:

A Requeſt of the Citizens to the Maior and Aldermen. Vid. Old Cuſt. F. 1. J. S.

Pleaſe it the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Common Council, to enact, That all Frenchmen bringing Canvas, Linen Cloth, and other Wares to be ſold, and all Foreigns bringing Wolſteds, Sayes, Stamins, Kiverings, Nails, Iron Work, or any other Wares, and alſo all manner Foreigns, bringing Lead to the City to be ſold; ſhall bring all ſuch their Wares aforeſaid, to the open Market of the Leadenhall, there and no where elſe to be ſhewed, ſold, and uttered, like as of old Time it hath been uſed, upon pain of Forfeiture of all the ſaid Wares, ſhewed or ſold in any other place than aforeſaid; The ſhew of the ſaid Wares to be made three Days in a Week, that is to ſay, Monday, Tueſday, and Wedneſday. It is alſo thought reaſonable, that the Common Beam be kept from henceforth in the Leadenhall. And the Farmer to pay therefore reaſonable Rent to the Chamber: For better it is that the Chamber have advantage thereby, than a foreign Perſon. And alſo the ſaid Leadenhall, which is more chargeable now by half than profitable, ſhall better bear out the Charges thereof. Alſo the Common Beam for Wooll at Leadenhall, may pay yearly a Rent to the Chamber of London, toward the Supportation and Charges of the ſame Place: For reaſon it is, that a common Office occupied upon a common Ground, bear a Charge to the Uſe of the Communalty. Alſo that Foreigns bringing Woolls, or any other Merchandizes or Wares to Leadenhall, to be kept there for the Sale and Market; may pay more largely for keeping of their Goods, than Freemen. Thus much for the Requeſt of the Commons at this time.

Leadenhall Market for Canvas and Linen Cloth.

Common Beam.

To be kept in Leadenhall.

Leadenhall pertaining to the Communalty.

Woolls, Fells, and other Merchandizes to be ſold in Leadenhall.

Now to ſet down ſome Proof, that the ſaid Hall hath been imployed and uſed as a Granary for Corn and Grain (as the ſame was firſt appointed) leaving all former Examples, this one may ſuffice: Roger Achly, Maior of London, in the Year 1512. the third of Henry VIII. when the ſaid Maior entred the Maioralty, there was not found one hundred Quarters of Wheat in all the Garners of this City, either within the Liberties, or near adjoining. Through the which Scarcity, when the Carts of Stratford came laden with Bread to the City (as they had been accuſtomed) there was ſuch preſs about them, that one Man was ready to deſtroy another, in ſtriving to be ſerved for their Money. But this Scarcity laſted not long: For the Maior (in ſhort time) made ſuch Proviſion of Wheat, that the Bakers both of London, and of Stratford, were weary of taking it up, and were forced to take much more than they would. And for the reſt the Maior laid out the Money and ſtowed it up in Leadenhall, and other Garners of the City. This Maior alſo kept the Market ſo well, that he would be at the Leadenhall, by four a Clock in the Summers Mornings, and from thence he went to other Markets, to the great comfort of the Citizens.

Leadenhall uſed as a Garner.

Roger Achely Maior, made good Proviſion for the City.

Bread Carts of Stratford, at the Bow.

Surveyors of the City Garners.

I read alſo, that in the Year 1528. the 20. of Henry VIII. Surveyors were appointed to view the Garners of the City, namely, the Bridgehouſe and the Leadenhall, how they were ſtored of Grain for the Service of the City. And becauſe I have here before ſpoken of the Bread Carts coming from Stratford at the Bow, ye ſhall underſtand, that of old time, the Bakers of Bread at Stratford were allowed to bring daily (except the Sabbath and principal Feaſts) divers long Carts laden with Bread, the ſame being two Ounces in the Penny Wheate Loaf, heavier than the Penny Wheat Loaf baked in the City, the ſame to be ſold in Cheape, three or four Carts ſtanding there, between Gutheran's Lane and Fauſter's Lane End, one Cart on Cornhill, by the Conduit, and one other in Graſs Street. And I have read, that in the fourth Year of Edward II. Richard Reffeham being Maior, a Baker named John of Stratford, for making Bread leſſer than the Aſſiſe, was with a Fool's Hood on his Head, and Loaves of Bread about his Neck, drawn on a Hurdle through the Streets of this City.

Where the Bread Carts ſtood.

Liber D.

A Baker of Stratford puniſhed in London for baking Bread under the Aſſize.

Moreover, in the forty fourth of Edward the Third, John Chicheſter being Maior of London, I read in the Viſions of Pierce Plowman, a Book ſo called, as followeth.

There was a carefull commune, when no Cart came to Town with Baked bread fro Stratford: tho gan beggers weepe, and workemen were agaſt, a little this will be thought long in the date of our Dirte, in a dry Averell a thouſand and three hundred, twice thirty and ten, &c.

John Malverne. Bread Carts from Stratford miſſed in this City in the time of Scarcity.

I read alſo in the twenty of Henry VIII. Sir James Spencer being Maior, ſix Bakers of Stratford were merced in the Guildhall of London, for baking under the Size appointed. Theſe Bakers of Stratford left ſerving this City, I know not upon what occaſion, about thirty Years ſince.

Six Bakers of Stratford amerced.

[In the firſt Edition of this SURVEY which was Anno 1598. the ceaſing of theſe Stratford Bread Carts was ſaid to be about thirty Years ſince; which then muſt be about the Year 1568.]

J. S.

In the Year 1519. the tenth of Henry VIII. Sept. 28. a Petition was exhibited by the Commons to the Common Council, * and was by them allowed, concerning the Leadenhall, how they would have it uſed, viz.

A Petition of the Commons concerning the uſe of the Leadenhall.

* It ran to the Right Honourable the Maior, and his Worſhipful Brethren the Aldermen, and to the diſcreet Commoners in this Common Council aſſembled.

Meekly beſeeching, ſheweth unto your good Lordſhip, and Maſterſhips, divers and many Citizens of this City, which with your Favours (under Correction) think, that the great place called the Leadenhall, ſhould, nor ought not to be letten to Farm, to any Perſon or Perſons, and in eſpecial, to any Fellowſhip or Company incorporate, to have and hold the ſame Hall for term of Years, for ſuch Inconveniences as thereby may enſue, and come to the hurt of the common weal of the ſaid City in time to come, as ſomewhat more largely may appear in the Articles hereafter following.

Firſt, If any Aſſembly, or haſty gathering of the Commons of the ſaid City, for oppreſſing or ſubduing of miſruled People within the ſaid City, hereafter ſhall happen to be called or commanded by the Maior, Aldermen and other Governours and Counſellors of the ſaid City for the time being; there is none ſo convenient, meet and neceſſary a place to aſſemble them in, within the ſaid City, as the ſaid Leadenhall, both for largeneſs of room, and for their ſure Defence in time of their counſelling together about the Premiſes. Alſo, in that place hath been uſed the Artillery, Guns, and other common Armours of the ſaid City, to be ſafely kept in a readineſs, for the Safeguard, Wealth and Defence of the ſaid City, to be had and occupied at times, when need required. As alſo the ſtore of Timber, for the neceſſary Reparations of the Tenements belonging to the Chamber of the ſaid City, there commonly hath been kept.

Artillery, and Guns in Leadenhall.

And Timber kept there.

Item. If any Triumph or Nobleſſe were to be done, or ſhewed by the Commonalty of the ſaid City, for the Honour of our Sovereign Lord the King, and Realm, and for the Worſhip of the City; the ſaid Leadenhall is the moſt meet and convenient place, to prepare and order the ſaid Triumph therein, and from thence to iſſue forth to the places therefore appointed.

Item, At any Largeſs or Dole of any Money, made unto the poor People of this City; by or after the Death of any worſhipful Perſon within the ſaid City, it hath been uſed, to be done and given in the ſaid Leadenhall, for that the ſaid place is moſt meet therefore.

Largeſſes and Doles diſtributed here.

Item, The honourable Father, that was Maker of the ſaid Hall, had a ſpecial Will, Intent and Mind, (as it is commonly ſaid) that the Market Men and Women, that came to the City with Victuals and other things, ſhould have their free ſtanding within the ſaid Leadenhall in wet Weather, to keep themſelves and their Wares dry; and thereby to encourage them, and all other, to have the better will and deſire, the more plenteouſly to reſort to the ſaid City, to victual the ſame. And if the ſaid Hall ſhould be letten to Farm, the Will of the ſaid honourable Father ſhould never be fulfilled, nor take effect.

Leadenhall a Market Place for Victuallers, and the People to ſtand dry.

Item, If the ſaid place, which is the chief Fortreſs and moſt neceſſary Place within all the City, for the Tuition and Safeguard of the ſame, ſhould be letten to Farm, out of the Hands of the chief Heads of the ſame City, and eſpecially to any other Body Politick, it might at length (by likelihood) be occaſion of Diſcord and Debate between the ſaid Bodies Politick. Which God defend.

Leadenhall the chief Fortreſs of the City.

For theſe and many other great and reaſonable Cauſes, which hereafter ſhall be ſhewed to this Honourable Court, your ſaid Beſeechers think it much neceſſary, that the ſaid Hall be ſtill in the Hands of this City, and to be ſurely kept by ſad and diſcreet Officers in ſuch wiſe, that it may always be ready to be uſed and occupied, for the common weale of the ſaid City when need ſhall require, and in no wiſe to be letten to any Body Politick. Thus much for the Petition.

About the Year 1534. great means was made about the Leadenhall, to have the ſame made a Burſe for the Aſſembly of Merchants, as they had been accuſtomed in Lumbard Street: Many Common Councils were called to that end; but in the Year 1535. John Champneis being Maior, it was fully concluded, that the Burſe ſhould remain in Lumbard Street, as afore, and Leadenhall no more to be ſpoken of concerning this Matter.

Leadenhall meant to have been made a Burſe for Merchants.

In the Year 1546. when King Henry's Corps lay in State in his Chapel at Weſtminſter, in the Month of February, about twelve Days, here at Leadenhall, Heath Biſhop of Worceſter the King's Almoner, and other his Miniſters and Aſſiſtants, did daily diſtribute to poor People of the City great plenty of Money; as well as at Weſtminſter; and divers other Places in the ſeveral Wards, both in open Doles and by way of Proclamation.]

Here Money given by the King's Almoner. J. S.

The uſe of Leadenhall in my Youth was thus: In a part of the North Quadrant, on the Eaſt ſide of the North Gate, were the common Beams for weighing of Wooll and other Wares, as had been accuſtomed: On the Weſt ſide of the Gate was the Scales to weigh Meal: The other three Sides were reſerved (for the moſt part) to the making and reſting of the Pageants ſhewed at Midſummer in the Watch: The remnant of the Sides and Quadrants were imployed for the ſtowage of Woolſacks, but not cloſed up: The Lofts above were partly uſed by the Painters, in working for the decking of Pageants and other Devices, for beautifying of the Watch and Watchmen. The reſidue of the Lofts were letten out to Merchants, the Woolwinders and Packers therein to wind and pack their Wools. And thus much for Leadenhall may ſuffice.

The Uſe of Leadenhall anciently.

Now on the North of Limeſtreet Ward, in the high Street are divers fair Houſes for Merchants, and proper Tenements for Artificers, with an Alley alſo called Shaft Alley, of the Shaft or Maypole ſometime reſting over the Gate thereof, as I have declared in Ealdgate Ward.

The North of Limeſtreet Ward.

In the Year 1576. partly at the Charges of the Pariſh of St. Andrew, and partly at the Charges of the Chamber of London, a Water Pump was raiſed in this high Street of Limeſtreet Ward, near unto Limeſtreet Corner. For the placing of the which Pump, having broken up the Ground, they were forced to dig more than two Fathom deep, before they came to any main Ground. Where they found a Hearth made of Britain, or Roman Tile, every Tile half yard ſquare, and about two Inches thick: they found Coal lying there alſo (for that lying whole will never conſume.) Then digging one Fathom into the main, they found Water ſufficient, made their prall, and ſet up the Pump. Which Pump, with oft repairing and great Charges to the Pariſh, continued not 24 years, but being rotted, was taken up, and a new ſet in the Place in the Year 1600. Thus much for the high Street.

A Pump in the high Street of Limeſtreet Ward Cornhill Street in ſome place raiſed two Fathom higher than of old Time, as appeared by Buildings found ſo deep.

In St. Mary Street had ye (of old time) a Pariſh Church of St. Mary the Virgin, St. Urſula, and the 11000 Virgins; which Church was commonly called St. Mary at the Axe, of the Sign of an Axe, over againſt the Eaſt End thereof, or St. Mary Pellipar, of a Plot of Ground lying on the North ſide thereof, pertaining to the Skinners in London. This Pariſh about the Year 1565. was united to the Pariſh Church of St. Andrew Underſhaft. And ſo was St. Mary at the Axe ſuppreſſed, and letten out to be a Warehouſe for a Merchant. Here was afterwards a FreeSchool kept. Againſt the Eaſt End of this Church was ſometime a fair Wall, now turned to a Pump.

St. Mary Street, Pariſh Church of Mary, St. Urſula, and 11000. Virgins, called At the Axe, letten out for a Warehouſe.

Pariſh Church of St. Auguſtine in the Wall, made a Chapel to the Papey, and ſince pulled down, made a Stable.

Alſo againſt the North End of this St. Mary Street, was ſometime one other Pariſh Church of St. Auguſtine, called St. Auguſtine in the Wall, for that it ſtood adjoining to the Wall of the City, and otherwiſe called St. Auguſtines Papey, or the Poor, as I have read in the Reign of Edward III.

Earl of Oxford had his Inn in S. Auguſtine's Papey. J. S.

In this Pariſh an Earl of Oxford had his Inn: and the laſt Will of Agnes Lady Bardolph Anno 1403. was dated from hence, in theſe Words; Hoſpitio, &c. from the Inn of the Habitation of the Lord, the Earl of Oxenford, in the Pariſh of St. Auguſtines de Papey, London.]

About the Year 1430. in the Reign of H. VI. the ſame Church was allowed to the Brethren of the Papey, the Houſe of poor Prieſts, whereof I have ſpoken in Aldgate Ward.

The Donation of St. Auguſtine's Church to the Papey. J. S.

The Donation of this Pariſh Church, (about the Year 1430.) with the Churchyard, a Meſſuage and Garden thereunto belonging, may be worth the recording in this Place. And therefore I ſhall ſet it down, as I have met with it in the incomparable Library of the Honourable Robert Harley, Eſq; now Earl of Oxon. (the Copy whereof ſeems to have ſometime belonged to John Stow) It is as follows:

Biblioth. Harlian.

Be it known unto all Men by theſe Preſents, that I Richard Wodehouſe, Parſon of All Saints Church in the Wall of London in Bradſtreet Ward, by Aſſent and Licence of William, Prior of the Trinity Houſe within Aldgate, and the Covent of the ſame Houſe, being Patrons of All Saints Church, and of the Chapel, late the Pariſh Church, called Papey Church, late in the Pariſh of All Saints aforeſaid, in Aldgate Ward, ſituate at Beauſmarkes next London Wall: Alſo, by Conſent, Aſſent, and Licence of the Reverend Father in Chriſt William, by God's Grace Biſhop of London, Ordinary of the ſame; have confirmed to R. the aforeſaid Chapel, late the Pariſh Church, called Papey Church, with the Churchyard, together with a certain Tenement or Meſſuage, and Garden adjoining to the ſaid Chapel, with all things elſe that ought of right to pertain to the ſaid Chapel. On the other Side is an Inſtrument, ſhewing the Foundation of this Hoſpital, the Founders thereof, and the Cauſe; to wit, out of Compaſſion to poor decayed Prieſts, and for their Relief and Subſiſtence. The Inſtrument is as follows:

TO all the Sons of our Holy Mother the Church, to whom and to whoſe Knowledge theſe Letters or the Contents of them ſhall come, and thoſe whom the Writing underneath do touch, or ſhall hereafrer touch; Thomas Symineſſon Parſon of the Pariſh Church of All Saints at the Wall of the City of London, together with the Church of St. Auguſtines Papey of the ſame City, by ordinary Authority, and for true, lawful and honeſt Cauſes, joined, annexed and incorporated to the ſame Church of All Saints, and William Cleve Chaplain of the Chantry founded at the Altar of St. John Baptiſt in the Church of the Bleſſed MARY of Aldermary Church of London; and William Barnaby, one of the Chantry of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's in London; and John Stafford Chaplain, of the City of London; ſend greeting in our Lord everlaſting;

And then follows the Inſtrument of the Donation of the Papey Church, as before.]

No Pariſh Church in this Ward.

The Pariſhioners of this Church were appointed to the Pariſh Church of Allhallows in the Wall, which is in Broadſtreet Ward. This Brotherhood, called Papey, being ſuppreſſed, the Church of St. Auguſtine was pulled down, and in place thereof one Grey, an Apothecary, builded a Stable, and a Hay-loft. It is now a dwelling Houſe, reſerving the Churchyard for a Garden Plot. Thoſe two Pariſh Churches, both lying in the Ward of Limeſtreet, being thus ſuppreſſed, there is not any one Pariſh Church or Place for Divine Service in that Ward, but the Inhabitants thereof repair to Churches out of their Ward, namely to St. Peter upon Cornhill in Cornhill Ward, St. Andrew in Aldgate Ward, Allhallows in the Wall in Broadſtreet Ward, and ſome to St. Dennis in Langborn Ward.

Now becauſe of late there hath been ſome Queſtion, to what Ward this Church or Chapel of St. Auguſtine Papey, ſhould of right belong; (for the ſame hath been challenged by them of Aldgate Ward, and (without reaſon) taken into Biſhopſgate Ward, from Limeſtreet Ward) I am ſomewhat to touch it.

Houſes by London Wall in the Ward of Limeſtreet.

About 30 Years ſince, the Chamber of London granted a Leaſe of Ground (in theſe Words) Lying near London Wall, in the Ward of Limeſtreet, from the Weſt of the ſaid Church or Chapel of St. Auguſtine Papey, towards Biſhopſgate, &c. On the which Plot of Ground, the Leaſee builded three fair Tenements, and placed Tenants there: theſe were charged to bear Scot and Lot, and ſome of them to bear Office in Limeſtreet Ward: all which they did willingly without grudging. And when any ſuſpected or diſordered Perſons were by the Landlord placed there, the Officers of Limeſtreet Ward fetched them out of their Houſes, committed them to ward, procured their due Puniſhments, and baniſhed them from thence. Whereby in ſhort time that Place was reformed, and brought into good Order: which thing being noted by them of Aldgate Ward, they moved their Alderman, Sir Thomas Offley, to call in thoſe Houſes to be of his Ward. But I myſelf ſhewing a fair Ledgier Book, ſometime pertaining to the late diſſolved Priory of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate, wherein were ſet down the juſt Bounds of Aldgate Ward, before Sir Thomas Offley, Sir Rowland Hayward, the Common Council, and Wardmote Inqueſt of the ſaid Limeſtreet Ward; Sir Thomas Offley gave over his Challenge, and ſo that Matter reſted in good Quiet until the Year 1579. that Sir Richard Pype (being Maior, and Alderman of Biſhopſgate Ward) challenged thoſe Houſes to be of his Ward, whereunto (without reaſon ſhewed) Sir Rowland Hayward yielded: and thus is that ſide of the Street, from the North Corner of St. Mary Street almoſt to Biſhopſgate, (wherein is one Plot of Ground, letten by the Chamberlain of London to the Pariſh of St. Martin Oteſwich, to be a Churchyard or Burying-place for the Dead of that Pariſh, &c.) unjuſtly drawn from the Ward of Limeſtreet.

Stow vindicates Limeſtreet Ward, as to ſome Bounds of it.

A part of Limeſtreet Ward unjuſtly withheld by Biſhopſgate Ward.

Divers other Proofs I could ſet down, but this one following may ſuffice. The Maior and Aldermen of London made a Grant to the Fraternity of the Papey, in theſe Words:

A Grant to the Papey.

Be it remembred, that where now of late the Maſter and Wardens of the Fraternity of the Papey have made a Brick Wall, cloſing in the Chapel of St. Auguſtine, called Papey Chapel, ſituate in the Pariſh of All Saints in the Wall, in the Ward of Limeſtreet of the City of London: from the South Eaſt Corner of the which Brick Wall, is a Scutcheon of 21 Foot of Aſſize from the ſaid Corner Eaſtward: And from the ſame Scutcheon there to a Meſſage of 55 Foot and an half Weſtward: the ſaid Scutcheon breaketh out of Line right Southward, betwixt the Meaſures aforeſaid, three Foot and five Inches of Aſſize, upon the common Ground of the City aforeſaid: Ralph Verney, Maior, and the Aldermen of the ſame City, the 22. day of October, the ſixth year of Edward IV. granted to John Hod, Prieſt, Mr. John Bolt, and Tho. Pachet, Prieſts, Wardens of the Fraternity of Papey aforeſaid, and to their Succeſſors for ever, &c. yielding 4 d. Sterling yearling at Michaelmas. And this is (ſaith my Book) inrolled in the Guildhall of London. Which is a ſufficient Proof, the ſame Plot of Ground to be of Limeſtreet Ward.

Lib. Papey.

An old large Meſſuage.

On the South ſide of this Street, ſtretching Weſt from St. Mary Street, towards Biſhopſgate Street, there was (of old time) one large Meſſuage builded of Stone and Timber in the Pariſh of St. Auguſtine in the Wall, now in the Pariſh of Allhallows in the ſame Wall, belonging to the Earl of Oxford, (for Richard de Vere, Earl of Oxford, poſſeſſed it in the fourth of Henry V.) but in Proceſs of Time, the Lands of the Earl fell to Females; amongſt the which, one being married to Wingfield of Suffolk, this Houſe with the Appurtenances fell to his Lot, and was by his Heir, Sir Robert Wingfield, ſold to Mr. Edward Cooke, at this time the Queen's Attorney General. This Houſe being greatly ruinated of late time, for the moſt part hath been letten out to Poulterers, for Stabling of Horſes and Stowage of Poultry. But now lately new builded into a number of ſmall Tenements, letten out to Strangers, and other mean People.

Patent Oxford Place.

Who was afterward Lord Chief Juſtice Cooke.

The Scavenger of Limeſtreet Ward Hum. Dyſon.

It was ordered by the Lord Maior and Aldermen, at a Court holden on Thurſday the 24. of April, in the fourth Year of Edward VI. That the Chamberlain of London ſhould yearly pay unto the Scavenger of Limeſtreet Ward 20 s. by even Portions, out of the Profit coming by the Butchers Stalls in Leadenhall, toward the cleanſing and ſweet keeping of the ſame Ward.

One Note more of this Ward, and ſo an End: I find of Record, that in the Year 1371. the 45th of Edward III. a great Subſidy of 100000 Pounds was granted towards the King's Wars in France. Whereof the Clergy payed 50000 Pounds, and the Laity 50000 Pounds, to be levied in 39 Shires of England, containing Pariſhes 8600. Of every Pariſh, 5 l. 16 s. the greater to help the leſſer. This City (as one of the Shires) then containing 24 Wards, and in them 110 Pariſhes, was therefore aſſeſſed to 635 l. 12 s. whereof Limeſtreet Ward did bear 34 s. and no more; ſo ſmall a Ward it was, and ſo accounted, as having no one whole Pariſh therein, but ſmall Portions only, of two Pariſhes in that Ward.

Subſidy of Limeſtreet Ward, in the Year 1371.

The preſent State of this Ward.

R. B.

Leadenhall Street.

Now to deſcribe the modern State of this Ward: We begin with Leadenhall Street; which is ſpacious, populous, and well inhabited: but the Houſes eſcaping the great Fire Ann. 1666. are not ſo ſightly and uniform. In this Street are theſe Places: Sharp's Alley ſeated againſt the Eaſt India Houſe indifferent good. Token-Houſe Yard, but ſmall; hath a Paſſage in Leadenhall. The King's Arms Inn, on the North of the Street, near unto St. Mary Axe; of a good Trade for Stage Coaches and Waggons out of Eſſex. The Eaſt India Houſe on the South Side of the Street, formerly Sir William Craven's, a very large Building, with ſpacious Rooms very commodious for ſuch a publick Concern. It hath a large Hall and Court Yard for the Reception of People, who who hath Buſineſs here, to attend on the Company on their Court Days. There belongs to it alſo a Garden, with Warehouſes in the back part toward Limeſtreet; into which there is a back Gate for the Entrance of Carts to bring their Goods into their Warehouſes. This Houſe doth, or did belong to the Earl of Craven, and let by him to this Company at a yearly Rent.

The preſent State of Leadenhall Market.

Leadenhall is a very large Building of Free Stone, containing within it three large Courts, or Yards, all encompaſſed with Buildings; wherein is kept a Market, one of the greateſt, the beſt, and the moſt general for all Proviſions in the City of London, nay of the Kingdom; and if I ſhould ſay of all Europe, I ſhould not give it too great a Praiſe. The Building hath flat Battlements leaded at the Top: And for the Conveniency of People's coming to this great Market, (which is kept every Day of the Week except Sundays) for one thing or the other) beſides the principal Entrance out of Leadenhall Street, there are two or three others, one out of Limeſtreet, and the reſt out of Gracechurch Street.

The Yards belonging to it.

Of the three Courts or Yards that it conſiſts of, the firſt is that at the North Eaſt Corner of Gracechurch Street, and opens into Leadenhall Street: This Court or Yard contains in Length from North to South 164 Foot, and in Breadth from Eaſt to Weſt 80 Foot; within this Court or Yard round about the ſame, are about 100 Standing Stalls for Butchers for the ſelling only of Beef, and therefore this Court is called the Beef Market, many of which Stalls are 8, 10, or 12 Foot long, and 4, 5, or 6 Foot broad, with Racks, Hooks, Blocks, and all other Conveniences for the Sale of their Meat. All which Stalls are either under Warehouſes above Head, or ſheltred from the Weather by Roofs over them. This Yard is on Tueſdays a Market for Leather, to which the Tanners do reſort. On Thurſdays the Waggons from Colcheſter and other Parts come with Bayes, &c. and alſo the Felmongers with their Wool; and on Fridays it is a Market for Raw Hides, beſides Saturdays for Beef, as alſo other Proviſions.

The Green Yard for ſmall Meat.

The ſecond Market Yard is called the Green Yard, as being once a green Plot of Ground. Afterwards it was the City's Store Yard for Materials for Building and the like, but now a Market only for Veal, Mutton, Lamb, &c. This Yard is 170 Foot in Length from Eaſt to Weſt, and 90 Foot Broad from North to South. It hath in it 140 Stalls for the Butchers all covered over, and of the Bigneſs of thoſe in the Beef Market. In the middle of this Green Yard Market North to South is a Row of Shops, with Kitchins, or Rooms over them for Fiſhmongers; and alſo on the South Side and Weſt End are Houſes and Shops alſo for Fiſhmongers. Towards the Eaſt End of this Yard is erected a fair Market Houſe ſtanding upon Columns, with Vaults underneath, and Rooms above, with a Bell Tower, and a Clock, and under it are Butchers Stalls. The Tenements round about this Yard are for the moſt part inhabited by Cooks, Victuallers, and ſuch like; and in the Paſſages leading out of the Streets into this Market are Fiſhmongers, Poulterers, Cheeſmongers, and ſuch like Traders for Proviſion.

Fiſhmongers in this Green Yard.

The Herb Market.

The third Market belonging to Leadenhall is called the Herb Market, for that Herbs, Roots, Fruit, &c. are only there ſold. This Market is about 140 Foot Square, the Weſt, Eaſt, and North Sides have Walks round them covered over for Shelter, and ſtanding upon Columns; in which Walks there are 28 Stalls for Gardiners, with Cellars under them. There is alſo in this Yard one Range of Stalls covered over for ſuch as ſell Tripe, Neats Feet, Sheep's Trotters, &c. And on the South Side, the Tenements are taken up by Victuallers, Poulterers, Cheeſemongers, Butchers, and ſuch like. And for the regular ordering of this Market, and thoſe Numbers of People that reſort thither with their Goods, ſee in the Chapter of Civil Government.

Sellers of Tripe, Neats Feet, &c.

The Rooms how employed.

The Rooms in the Stone Building about the Beef Market (which is properly Leadenhall) is employed for ſeveral Uſes, as the Weſt Side is wholly uſed for the Stowage of Wares belonging to the old Eaſt India Company; on the Eaſt Side is the Meal Warehouſe, and the Wool Hall; on the South End is the Colcheſter Bay Hall; and at the North End is the Warehouſe for the Sealing of Leather.

The general Conflagration of this City in 1666 terminated in that Part of the City near adjoining to this Hall: all the Houſes about it, and within the Yards belonging unto it, being deſtroyed, there did (of this Fabrick) only remain the Stone Work. Since which, the Courts and Yards belonging to this Building, and ſome other adjacent Grounds purchaſed by the City, are wholly converted into a Market for the City's Uſe; the Place for the Reception of Country Butchers, and others who brought Proviſions before to the City, being then only in Leadenhall Street, between Gracechurch Street and Limeſtreet, which was very incommodious both to the Market People as well as to the Paſſengers.

Limeſtreet.

Pewterers Hall.

Limeſtreet, a Place well inhabited by Merchants and others of Repute. At the End towards Fenchurch Street is Pewterers Hall, a pretty handſome Building, with a Court of a Free Stone Pavement. Near unto this Hall is the Paſſage into Leadenhall Market; a little more South is a good Houſe, the Seat of Sir Robert Jeffreys Knt. and Alderman; over againſt which is Cullum Street, made a Street ſince the Fire, which with a turning Paſſage falls into Fenchurch Street. Which Street being the greateſt part in Langborn Ward is there treated of. About the Middle of the Street is a Place called Queens Square, or Queens Square Paſſage, as leading into Leadenhall Market, a well built Place, with a Free Stone Pavement; on the Ground, on which this Place is built, was a large Houſe, the Habitation of a Merchant, and anciently ſuppoſed to belong to the Kings and Queens.

Queens Square.

St. Mary Axe.

St. Mary Axe goes out of Leadenhall Street, and runs Northwards to Camomile Street by London Wall. It is a Street graced with good Buildings, and much inhabited by eminent Merchants. Out of this Street, and almoſt over againſt St. Andrew's Underſhaft Church, is a Paſſage into Great St. Helens; and towards the North End is Sopers Yard, a very mean Place, oppoſite to which is Fletchers Hall.

Sopers Yard.
Fletchers Hall.

Camomile Street hath but a ſmall Part in this Ward, not above 200 Foot from St. Mary Axe; and the reſt in Aldgate Ward.]

To this Ward belongeth an Alderman and his Deputy, 4 Common Council Men, 4 Conſtables, 2 Scavengers, 16 for the Wardmote Inqueſt, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen at 1 l. 19 s. 2 d. ob. q. But in the firſt Edition it was ſaid to be taxed to the Fifteen at 40 s. or thereabout.

R. B.

There are to watch at the ſeveral Stands in this Ward, every Night, a Conſtable, the Beadle, and 11 Watchmen.

The Jury Men returned by the Wardmote Inqueſt for this Ward are to ſerve as Jurors in the ſeveral Courts in Guild Hall in the Month of November.]

The Alderman of this Ward is Sir Robert Beachcroft Knt.

This Gift is performed by the Company of Tallow Chandlers yearly.

John Styward, Citizen and Alderman of London, had his laſt Will and Teſtament enrolled in the Court of Huſtings in the Guild Hall of London, on Monday next before the Feaſt of St. Cuthbert the Biſhop, in the 13th Year of Edward IV. after the Conqueſt.

24 Quarters. Former Edit. p. 316.

Wherein he gave to the poor People of this Pariſh five and twenty Quarters of Charcoales, yearly to be delivered by the Company of Tallow Chandlers, betwixt the Feaſt of All Saints and the Nativity of our bleſſed Saviour, with a Penalty of Forfeiture of 20 s. for the firſt Quarter, if they be not delivered as aforeſaid: And 40 s. for the ſecond Quarter; 4 l. for the third Quarter; and 8 l. for the whole Year, if they be not delivered: And ſo double ſtill from Quarter to Quarter, if defect of Payment herein be made.

Provided that out of each Load, the Overſeers of the Precinct of Norton Folgate ſhall have 10 Sacks to be by them given to the Poor of that Precinct.

Likewiſe is paid yearly by the Company of Ironmongers, * the Sum of thirty Shillings per Annum, of the Gift of Sir William Allen, to be diſtributed among the Poor in Bread.

Alſo of the Company of Vintners, the Sum of twenty Shillings, yearly for ever, of the Gift of Sir Stephen Scudamore, Knt. and Alderman of London.

Alſo of Mrs. Wood, the Relict of Mr. Thomas Wood, late of St. Buttolph's without Ealdgate, the Sum of ten Shillings yearly for ever, to be received on St. Thomas's Day, iſſuing out of certain Tenements in Katharine Wheel Alley, in this Pariſh, of the Gift of Mary Webſter, Widow.

The Miror of this Age for a matchleſs Woman.

Mrs. Price, in the time of her Widowhood, did at her own Charge new build the Pulpit, in the Year of our Lord, 1614. and ſhortly after, did likewiſe ſend (to furniſh the ſame) fair and rich Ornaments for the ſaid Pulpit, as alſo for the Communion Table. For the Pulpit, a coſtly Cloth of Crimſon Velvet, edged in the Bottom with a deep Gold Fringe, and laced about with a fair Gold Lace.

Likewiſe, a Cuſhion ſutable to the ſame, with a very fair Verge to adorn the upper part of the Pulpit, edged likewiſe with a deep Gold Fringe.

Nor did ſhe this worthy Service to God here only, but in other Pariſhes beſide, as at Paul's, Chriſt-Church, &c.

And for the Communion Table, a goodly large Carpet of Crimſon Velvet, edged with a deep Gold Fringe; alſo a fair Table Cloth of fine Cambrick, to be uſed upon the Communion Days, with a Cambrick Cloth laced, to cover the Bread upon the Table: Alſo a fair Surplice of Cambrick, for the Parſon's Uſe: All which were, with a new Hair Bruſh, kept in a Sarſanet Caſe, to be locked up in a new Wainſcot Cheſt, by her bought for the ſame purpoſe, and ſo carefully kept for their ſeveral Uſes. To the which Cheſt was ſet two Locks; the two ſeveral Keys whereof, the one to be kept by the Parſon of the Pariſh, the other by the Church Warden of the ſame Pariſh, for the ſafe keeping thereof.

The thankful Gratitude to God of Humfrey Swanne Imbroiderer.

As for the King's Arms imbroidred upon the ſaid Pulpit Cloth; it was made, ſet on and freely given by Humfrey Swan of this Pariſh, Imbroiderer, in remembrance of God's great Mercy extended towards him, in the Year of the great Viſitation, 1625. For in that Year he had buried his Wife, with divers of his Family; himſelf alſo, lying a long while under the Lord's heavy Hand, without all hope of Recovery. By God's gracious Providence he was at the laſt reſtored to his former Health. In regard whereof, and to expreſs his further Thankfulneſs to Almighty God, he adorned the ſaid Pulpit Cloth as now it is.

Moreover, in the ſame Pariſh Church of St. Buttolph, among other Benevolences given thereto, to, may not be omitted the bountiful Gift of Mr. William Hobby, Citizen and Ale Brewer of London; to wit, the Tenor Bell in the Steeple, bearing his own Name, and called Hobby. Which he cauſed to be founded at his own Coſt and Charges: And afterwards to be re-caſt two ſeveral times, only to make it tunable with the other Bells in the Steeple; which was performed accordingly. And they are now as perfect and pleaſing a ring of Bells, as can be wiſhed.

A fine Ring of Bells in St. Botolph's Church.

When he gave this Bell to the Pariſh, he enjoined this Condition, that at what time ſoever any Man deceaſed, that had born any place of Eminence and Office in the Pariſh, and afterward hapned (by any Croſs or Miſadventure) to fall in decay; that yet he ſhould have the benefit of the Bell's Service freely beſtowed on him at his Burial, not paying any Coſts or Duties therefore to the Church. No doubt but this Man had an honeſt Meaning, and moſt charitable Mind, both in the Promiſe (which was in Merriment, and when he expected not Place of degree or Office to fall on him) and likewiſe in the Performance; wherein he ſhewed himſelf no way ſlack, but ſo forward as any Man could be. Let his worthy Example incite on others, to the like good Inclination (one way or other) towards the Church.

M. Pinder's Gift of threeſcore Pounds.

Mr. Ralph Pinder, Citizen and Draper of London, Alderman's Deputy of this Ward, who was buried the 28th of May, 1622. gave to the Poor of this Pariſh in Money 60 l. for which is given to thirteen poor People every Sunday in the Year for ever two Pence a piece in good Wheaten Bread.

The Benevolence of Nicholas Reive a Scrivener in Cornhill.

In the Year, 1626. Nicholas Reive, Scrivener in Cornhill (whoſe Father was Clerk of this Pariſh) gave by his laſt Will and Teſtament, the Sum of 406 l. 5 s. to the ſaid Pariſh. To buy ſo much Land as the ſaid Monies will extend unto: and the Rents and Profits thereof to be given and diſtributed to the Comfort of ſuch [poor] People within this Pariſh. With which Monies was purchaſed certain Lands lying at Stratford Bow, now in the tenure of Henry Cheſter, the Rent of which Lands is 25 l. per annum.

The Charity of the Earl of Devonſhire.

In the Year, 1628. the 20th of June, William Earl of Devonſhire dyed at Devonſhire Houſe without Biſhopſgate, and gave 100 l. for ever, to the uſe of the Poor of this Pariſh. For which the Church Wardens do give every Sunday in the Year to fifteen poor People of this Pariſh two Pence a piece in good wheaten Bread.

T. C's Gift to five poor Widows. An Extract of the Deed, and his Will concerning the diſpoſing thereof.

W*Hereas the ſixth Day of* November laſt paſt, T. C. Citizen and Armourer of London, humbly petitioned unto the Court, that they would be pleaſed to receive into the Chamber of London the Sum of 100l. preſently to be paid, in allowing and paying therefore yearly from the Birth of our Lord God 1629. for ever to the Relief and and Comfort of five aged poor Widows of the Pariſh of St. Buttolph without Biſhopſgate, London, the Sum of five Pounds to be given and equally diſtributed to and amongſt them, eighteen Days before Chriſtmas yearly, as of the free Gift and Benevolence of him the ſaid T. C. during his Life, and after his deceaſe by the Parſon and Church Wardens of the ſaid Pariſh of St. Buttolph without Biſhopſgate aforeſaid for the time being, and their Succeſſors, five Waſtcoats aud five Kirtles, ready made up of good Kerſey or Cloth, the Kerſy or Cloth of every Waſtcoat and Kirtle to be worth fifteen Shillings at the leaſt, and five pair of Stockings and five pair of Shoes, every pair of the ſame Stockings to be worth eighteen Pence at the leaſt, and every pair of the ſaid Shoes to be worth two Shillings at the leaſt. Wherein the meaning and deſire of the ſaid T. C. is, that thoſe five poor Widows, or ſo many of them which ſhall be living at the time of his deceaſe, that ſhall be nominated by him in his Life time, for to have and receive the Gifts and Benevolences aforeſaid, ſhall and may every one of them yearly, during their Lives, reſpectively have and receive one Waſtcoat and Kirtle, a pair of Stockings and a pair of Shoes, of the Gift aforeſaid; Provided that they and either of them be of good Life and Converſation.]

Other Benefactors. J. S.

Now beſides theſe Benefactors, as the Edition of this Book Anno 1618. had no mention of ſome of them, ſo that Edition gave the Names of ſome others, which the Edition afterwards, viz. 1633. was ſilent of. But wherefore, I know not. I think it but juſtice to make a remembrance of them in this Place.

Katharine Webſter, Widow, gave 10*s.* yearly for ever, to be diſtributed every St. Thomas's Day.

John Armſtrong, Citizen and Carpenter of London, gave a ſmall Tenement for the Poors Relief.

Mr. William Allen hath given weekly for ever two Shillings in Bread to the Poor.

His Banners and Arms are there, but no Monument.

John Morgan, Citizen and Merchant Taylor of London, hath given for ever 13*s.* in Bread, to be diſtributed among the Poor.

Peter Colet, Grocer, hath in the like manner given quarterly to the Poor for ever, 16*s.*

Robert Carleil alſo in the ſame manner quarterly to the Poor hath given, 25*s.*

Mr. John Threel hath alſo in the Month of November, yearly for ever given to the Poor, two Loads of good Charcole.

A late account of the Charities of this Pariſh.

The Account of the preſent Charities of Saint Botolph Biſhopſgate, as it was lately given in by the Church Wardens at a Parochial Viſitation, was as follows: But ſurely defective.

Sir William Allen paid     to the Skinners

Company, for which they by Indenture an. 1657. pay 2 s. a Week in Bread: 7 s. for Reparation of the Body of the Church: 4 s. to the Clark: 2 s. 6 d. to the Church Wardens.

Joan Wood, by her laſt Will in the Year 1600. gave an annual Rent Charge of 5 s. iſſuing out of an Houſe in Half Moon Alley: And a Rent Charge of 20 s. iſſuing out of a Brewhouſe, called Half Moon Brewhouſe. She gave alſo all her other Lands and Tenements, lying in the ſame Pariſh, not otherwiſe bequeathed, for ſeveral Uſes, viz. To find a Preacher to preach a Sermon on the Nativity of St. John Baptiſt, 10 s. to the Miniſter and Church Wardens, 30 s. to the Clerk, 6 s. 8 d. to the Sexton, 5 s. The reſt of the Premiſſes, after ſeveral other Legacies, to be employed in the common Stock of the ſaid Pariſh: to repair the Church and other neceſſary Uſes, for the good of the Pariſh.

Joan Ford, by her laſt Will dated 1644. gave divers Houſes to the Miniſter and Church Wardens, ſituate in Half Moon Alley: For a Sermon every Michaelmas Day; or, if it fall on a Sunday, the Day after, 20 s. to the Clerk, 3 s. 4 d. to the Sexton, 18 d. And the reſidue of the Profits to either Uſes ſpecified.

John Quince, by his Will dated 1656. gave 40 s. to be ſpent on a Dinner on the 5th of November. To the Parſon for a Sermon, 10 s. to the Clerk, 16 d. and to the Sexton, 8 d.

Parſonage Houſe and Glebe.

There belongs a Parſonage Houſe to the Miniſter: And for more Glebe, an Houſe now in Poſſeſſion of Sir Francis Daſhwood, Kt.]

Petty France, near to the Town Ditch.

Now without this Churchyard Wall, was a Cawſway, leading to a Quadrant called Petty-France, of Frenchmen dwelling there; and to other dwelling Houſes, lately builded on the Bank of the ſaid Ditch by ſome Citizens of London, that more regarded their own private Gain, than the common good of the City. For by means of this Cawſway raiſed on the Bank, and ſoylage of Houſes, with other Filthineſs caſt into the Ditch, the ſame is now forced to a narrow Chanel, and almoſt filled up with unſavory things, to the danger of impoiſoning the whole City.

A. M.

A new place of Burial, made by the other Churchyard.

For prevention whereof, and in a worthy charitable Diſpoſition of ſo honourable a City (in regard that this Pariſh was greatly unprovided of the Burial for their Dead) that needleſs Cawſey or Paſſage to Petty France, was given by the City to the ſaid Pariſh, for the ſame intent; which they have (ſince then) made good and firm Ground, walling it about with a good ſtrong Brick Wall, ſerving as a lower and ſupplying Churchyard by it ſelf. And towards the Charge whereof, divers good Pariſhioners (that deſire to be nameleſs) gave large and honeſt Contribution. And becauſe they would not ſhew themſelves unthankful to the City for ſo great a Benefit, their Expreſſion ſtandeth thus fixed over the Gate, at entrance into the ſaid Churchyard.

The Memory of a Perſian buried out of the Churchyard. This was thus Engliſhed by his Interpreter.

In Petty France, out of Chriſtian Burial, was buried Hodges Shaughſware a Perſian Merchant, who with his Son came over with the Perſian Ambaſſador, and was buried by his own Son, who read certain Prayers, and uſed other Ceremonies, according to the Cuſtom of their own Country, Morning and Evening, for a whole Month after the Burial: For whom is ſet up at the Charge of his Son, a Tomb of Stone with certain Perſian Characters thereon; the Expoſition thus, This Grave is made for Hodges Shaughſware, the chiefeſt Servant to the King of Perſia, for the ſpace of twenty Years, who came from the King of Perſia and dyed in his Service. If any Perſian cometh out of that Country, let him read this and a Prayer for him; the Lord receive his Soul, for here lyeth Maghmote Shaughſware, who was born in the Town of Novoy in Perſia.

But take the Figure of the Monument, with ſome farther Account thereof.

THIS Monument, with the Characters ingraven about it, ſtands in Petty France, at the Weſt End of the lower Churchyard of St. Botolph's Biſhopſgate (not within, but without the Walls, out of the Bounds of our conſecrated Ground.) Erected to the Memory of Coya Shawſware, a Perſian Merchant, and a principal Servant and Secretary to the Perſian Ambaſſador; with whom he and his Son came over. He was aged 44. and buried the 10th of Auguſt 1626. The Ambaſſador himſelf, young Shawſware his Son, and many other Perſians, (with many Expreſſions of their infinite Love and Sorrow) following him to the Ground between eight and nine of the Clock in the Morning. The Rites and Ceremonies that (with them) are due to the dead, were chiefly performed by his Son, who ſitting croſs-legged at the North End of the Grave, (for his Tomb ſtands North and South) did one while read, another while ſing; his reading and ſinging intermixed with ſighing and weeping. And this, with other things that were done in the Grave in private (to prevent with the ſight the relation) continued about half an Hour.

But this was but this Day's Buſineſs: for, as tho' this had not been enough to perform to their Friend departed, to this place and to this end (that is Prayer, and other Funeral Devotions) ſome of them came every Morning and Evening at ſix and ſix, for the Space of a Month together. And had come (as it was then imagined) the whole time of their abode here in England, had not the Rudeneſs of our People diſturbed and prevented their Purpoſe.

107 Meſſuages here belonging to the City. J. S.

In Petty France are divers Pieces and Parcels of Ground, and 107 Meſſuages or Tenements erected, and divers Yards and Gardens belonging to the City. Now or late in the Poſſeſſion of Sir Tho. Frankland, and Tho. Hatton, or their Under-Tenants. Theſe were declared by the Chamberlain of the City to be lett in the Gazette April 4. 1719.]

The Bounds of St. Botolph Biſhopſgate.

The Bounds of St. Botolph's Pariſh without Biſhopſgate, London, are thus: From Biſhopſgate (under a part of which the City Ditch runneth) Weſtward, cloſe by the Ditch, they paſs along by Petty France, into Moorfield: Under the Wall and Cawſey thereof (towards Bethelem) there did run a Ditch, and from the North part of the ſaid Field, ſtill doth, ſo far as Hog Lane, which is at the upper end of the Garden Alleys. Cloſe to which Ditch, the Pariſh extended all along on the inſide, and taketh in one ſide of Hog Lane.

Thence ſtraight forth, it beginneth on the further ſide of Norton Folgate: Thence into Saint Mary Spittle, and thence into a part of Petticoat Lane, ſo far as Gravel Lane end: And ſo through divers Gardens on the back ſide of Fiſher's Folly, into Houndſditch, at the Sign of the Hand and Still. So to the Ditch and City Wall: Thence right oppoſite, on to Biſhopſgate again. My friendly furtherance here, was by Mr. Stephen Goſſon, Parſon of St. Botolph, Thomas Collins the Clark, and John Sparrow, Sexton.]

Hoſpital of Bethelem.

Next unto the Pariſh Church of St. Botolph, is a fair Inn for receipt of Travellors: Then an Hoſpital of St. Mary of Bethlem, founded by Simon Fitz Mary, one of the Sheriffs of London, in the Year 1246. He founded it to have been a Priory of Canons, with Brethren and Siſters: And King Edward III. granted a Protection (which I have ſeen) for the Brethren, Militiæ beatæ Mariæ de Bethlem, within the City of London, the fourteenth Year of his Reign. It was an Hoſpital afterwards for diſtracted People.

But the Deſign of the Foundation will more largely appear by this original Deed following:

The Copy of an ancient Deed of Gift, given to Bethlem or Bedlem, by Simon the Son of Mary.

Simon Fitz Maries Gift to Bethlem.

TO all the Children of our Mother Holy Church, to whom this preſent Writing ſhall come; Simon the Son of Mary ſendeth greeting in our Lord. Where among other things, and before other other Lands, the high Altitude of the heavenly Counſels, marvelouſly wrought by ſome readier Devotion, it ought to be more worſhipped; of which things the mortal Sickneſs (after the Fall of our firſt Father Adam) hath taken the beginning of this new repairing: Therefore forſooth, it beſeemeth worthy, that the place, in which the Sonne of God is become Man, and hath proceeded from the Virgins Womb, which is increaſer and beginner of Man's Redemption, namely ought to be with Reverence worſhipped, and with beneficial Portions to be increaſed. Therefore it is, that the ſaid Simon, Sonne of Mary; having ſpecial and ſingular Devotion to the Church of the glorious Virgin at Bethelem, where the ſame Virgin of her brought forth our Saviour incarnate, and lying in the Cratch, and with her own Milk nouriſhed; and where the ſame Child to us there born, the Chivalrie of the heavenly Company ſang the new Hymne, Gloria in excelſis Deo. The ſame time, the increaſer of our Health, (as a King, and his Mother a Queene) willed to be worſhipped of Kings: A new Starre going before them at the Honour and Reverence of the ſame Child, and his moſt meek Mother: And to the Exaltation of my moſt noble Lord, Henry, King of England; whoſe Wife and Child the foreſaid Mother of God, and her only Son, have in their keeping and protection: And to the manifold increaſe of this City of London, in which I was born: And alſo for the health of my Soul, and the Souls of my Predeceſſors and Succeſſors, my Father, Mother, and my Friends: And eſpecially for the Souls of Guy of Marlowe, John Durant, Ralph Aſhwye, Maud, Margaret, and Dennis, Women: Have given, granted, and by this my preſent Charter, here have confirmed to God, and to the Church of St. Mary of Bethelem, all my Lands which I have in the Pariſh of St. Botolph without Biſhopſgate of London; that is to ſay, whatſoever I there now have, or had, or in time to come may have, in Houſes, Gardens, Pools, Ponds, Ditches and Pits, and all their Appurtenances, as they be cloſed in by their Bounds; which now extend in length from the Kings high Street Eaſt, to the great Ditch in the Weſt, the which is called Deep Ditch: And in breadth, to the Lands of Raph Downing in the North: And to the Land of the Church of St. Buttolph in the South. To have and to hold the foreſaid Church of Bethelem in free and perpetual Alms: And alſo to make there a Priory, and to ordain a Prior and Canons, Brothers and alſo Siſters, when Jeſus Chriſt ſhall enlarge his Grace upon it. And in the ſame place, the Rule and Order of the ſaid Church of Bethelem ſolemnly profeſſing, which ſhall bear the token of a Starre openly in their Copes and Mantles of Profeſſion, and for to ſay divine Service there for the Souls aforeſaid, and all Chriſtian Soules: And ſpecially to receive there the Biſhop of Bethelem, Canons, Brothers and Meſſengers of the Church of Bethelem for evermore, as often as they ſhall come thither. And that a Church or Oratory there ſhall be builded, as ſoone as our Lord ſhall enlarge his Grace: Under ſuch forme, that the Order, Inſtitution of Priors, Canons, Brothers, Siſters of the Viſitation, Correction and Reformation of the ſaid Place, to the Biſhop of Bethelem and his Succeſſors, and to the Charter of his Church, and of his Meſſengers, as often as they ſhall come hither, as ſhall ſeeme them expedient, no Man's contradiction notwithſtanding, ſhall pertain evermore, Saving alway the Services of the chiefe Lords, as much as pertaineth to the ſaid Land. And to the more Surety of this thing, I have put my ſelf out of this Land, and all mine: And Lord Godfrey, then choſen of the Nobles of the City of Rome, Biſhop of Bethelem, and of the Pope confirmed then by his Name in England, in his Name, and of his Succeſſors, and of his Chapter of his Church of Bethelem, into bodily Poſſeſſion: I have indented and given to his Poſſeſſion, all the foreſaid Lands, which Poſſeſſion he hath received, and entred in form aboveſaid. And in token of Subjection and Reverence, the ſaid Place in London without Biſhopſgate, ſhall pay yearly in the ſaid Citie, a Mark Sterling at Eaſter, to the Biſhop of Bethelem, his Succeſſors or his Meſſengers, in the Name of a Penſion. And if the Faculties or Goods of the ſaid Place (our Lord granting) happen to grow more; the ſaid Place ſhall pay more, in the name of Penſion, at the ſaid term, to the Mother Church of Bethelem. This (forſooth) Gift and Confirmation of my Deed, and the putting to of my Seal for me and mine Heires, I have ſtedfaſtly made ſtrong, the Year of our Lord God, A thouſand, two hundred, forty ſeven, the Wedneſday after the Feaſt of St. Luke the Evangeliſt: Theſe being Witneſſes, Peter the Sonne of Allen, then Maior of London, Nicholas Bet, then Sheriffe of the ſaid Citie, and Alderman of the ſaid Ward; Raph Sparling, Alderman; Godfrey of Campes, Simon Comicent, Simon Ronner, Rob. of Woodford, Thomas of Woodford, Walter Pointell, Walter of Woodford, &c.

In the Year 1551. a Protection was granted by Letters Patents from King Edward VI. dated March 7th, to John Whitehead, Proctor for this Hoſpital of Bethelem, to beg within the Counties of Lincoln and Cambridge, the City of London, and the Iſle of Ely, to endure for an whole Year. The Church and Chapel of this Hoſpital were taken down in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and Houſes builded there, by the Governors of Chriſt's Hoſpital in London. Alſo, at a Court of Aldermen, holden on Tueſday the 7th of April, An. 5. Ed. 6. A Sermon here on Whitſunday. J. S.

This was called New Churchyard near Bethelem. Where upon Whitſunday, the Lord Maior, and his Brethren the Aldermen, uſed to reſort to hear a Sermon. And this was practiſed Anno 1584, “When (according to a Letter from Recorder Fleetwood to the Lord Treaſurer) a very good Sermon was preached at this new Churchyard before the Lord Maior Sir Edward Osborn, and his Brethren. And by reaſon no Plays were the ſame Day [i. e. Whitſunday, as there uſed to be] all the City was quiet.”

Which Inſcription even in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, began to decay, and ſome Letters were utterly defaced. Which was the cauſe that A. F. one of the Compilers of Hollingſhed's Chronicle, inſerted it into the ſaid Book: That ſo the Memory of the worthy Benefactor might not vaniſh and be loſt with the fading Inſcription.]

Buildings in Bethlem.

From this Hoſpital Northward upon the Streets ſide, many Houſes have been builded with Alleys backward, of late time too much peſtered with People (a great cauſe of Infection) up to the Bars.

The other Side of this high Street from Biſhopſgate and Houndſditch, the firſt building is, a large Inn for receipt of Travellers, and is called the Dolphin, of ſuch a Sign.

Fiſhers Folly.

Then is there a fair Houſe of late builded by the Lord John Powlet. Next to that, a far more large and beautiful Houſe, with Gardens of Pleaſure, Bowling Alleys, and ſuch like, builded by Jaſper Fiſher, free of the Goldſmiths, late one of the ſixe Clerkes of the Chancery, and a Juſtice of Peace. It hath ſince (for a time) been the Earl of Oxford's Place. The Queen's Majeſty Elizabeth hath lodged there: It belonged to Mr. Cornwallis: Then to Sir Roger Manners. Afterwards it was the Earl of Oxford's, and after the Earl of Devon's. This Houſe being ſo largely and ſumptuouſly builded, by a Man of no greater Calling, or Poſſeſſions, [or Wealth, for he was indebted to many] was mockingly called Fiſher's Folly, and a Rhyme was made of it, and other the like, in this manner;

Kirkebies Caſtle, and Fiſhers Folly,
Spinolas Pleaſure, and Megſes Glory.

And ſo of other like Buildings about the City Men have not letted to ſpeak their Pleaſure.

Berwards Yards.

From Fiſher's Folly up to the Weſt end of Berward's Lane, (of old time ſo called, but now Hog Lane, becauſe it meeteth with Hog Lane) which cometh from the Bars without Aldgate, as is afore ſhewed; is a continual building of Tenements, with Alleys of Cottages, peſtered, &c. Then is there a large Cloſe, called Taſell Cloſe, ſometime, for that there were Taſells planted for the uſe of Clothworkers: Since letten to the Croſs-bow Makers, wherein they uſed to ſhoot for Games at the Popingey. Now the ſame being incloſed with a Brick Wall, ſerveth to be an Artillery Yard, [or Garden] whereunto the Gunners of the Tower weekly do repair; namely, every Thurſday, and there levelling certain Braſs Pieces of great Artillery againſt a Butt of Earth, made for that Purpoſe, they diſcharged them for their Exerciſe. [Preſent uſe is made thereof, by divers worthy Citizens, Gentlemen and Captains, uſing Martial Diſcipline, and where they meet (well near) weekly, to their great Commendation in ſo worthy an Exerciſe.

J. S.

William, the laſt Prior of St. Mary Spittal, with his Convent, granted over this Artillery Garden for thrice 99 Years, for the Uſe and Practice of great and ſmall Artillery.

A Charter for the Fraternity of Artillery.

There was a Charter granted to the Fraternity of Artillery in great and ſmall Ordinance by the famous Prince King Henry VIII. And the Piece of Ground, called the Artillery Garden, mentioned before, by his Grace's Means was appointed for the Exerciſe of the ſame Fraternity; as by the Leaſe thereof appeared, granted to the ſame Fraternity. Which Leaſe was put into the Hands of Sir William Pelham, Lieutenant of the Ordinance. And the ſame Charter ſince was delivered to the Lord Burghley, Lord Treaſurer under Queen Elizabeth.

The Art of Gunnery to be taught in this Fraternity.

Now for the farther Improvement of this Fraternity, and to make it uſeful to the Kingdom, one William Thomas, Maſter Gunner of the Queen's Ship the Victory, in the Year 1584. moved the Lords of her Council, that the ſame Charter might be confirmed, and new eſtabliſhed, with other needful Additions thereto: and chiefly, for the increaſing of Good Gunners for the Queen's Navy and Forts, viz. That ſome of their Honours, with the Earl of Warwick (who was Maſter of the Ordonance) ſhould be the chief Maſters or Governors of the ſaid Fraternity. That there might by the chief Maſters or Governors be choſen four of the chiefeſt of her Majeſty's Gunners to be Under-maſters. Who, with the Maſter Gunner of England, might have the teaching of all the Scholars, and the proving of all ſuch Men, as ſhould take upon them the Charge of a Gunner in any of her Majeſty's Ships, Forts or Caſtles, or ſhould have any Gunners Fee: and to make report to the chief Maſters of their Knowledge, before they ſhould be admitted to any Service. That no Ship or Veſſel, having Ordonance in her, ſhould croſs the Seas, without the ſame had in her ſuch number of Gunners, as followeth, viz. That every Ship of the Burthen of 60 Tun, have three Gunners; whereof the Chief or Maſter Gunner to be ſuch an one, as ſhould be tried, allowed and licenſed by ſuch as ſhould be for that Purpoſe appointed. And every Ship of 80 Tuns, four Gunners, to be tried, as aforeſaid. And ſo for every 20 Tun, one Gunner more. That the chief Officers in the Havens, Towns, Ports and Places, where Shipping is uſed, ſhould take the Names of all Perſons in the ſame Towns, Ports and Places, which took Charge or ſerved as Gunners in any Ship or Veſſel; and the ſame to regiſter in a Book for that Purpoſe. And in every Eaſter Term to ſend up the ſame Names, and their Dwelling-places to the Maſter Gunner and his four Aſſociates. By which it might be known, where to have ſkilful Gunners, to ſerve her Majeſty, when Opportunity required. That all ſuch Ships as ſhould be freighted within the River of Thames with Merchandizes or Goods, ſhould for the Safeguard thereof, have, for every two Pieces, one ſuch Sea-faring Man as ſhould be a Scholar, to be taught and inſtructed in the Science of ſhooting in great and ſmall Ordonance, according to the Intent of her Majeſty's Allowance for the ſame Purpoſe. That there might be, by the chief Maſters, ſuch ſtrait Commandment given to the four Under-maſters and the Maſter Gunner, that that Powder and other her Majeſty's Allowances, for teaching and inſtructing of Scholars in the Science or Myſtery of Shooting in great and ſmall Ordonance, be by them juſtly and truly expended about the ſame Purpoſe that it was allowed for, and not otherwiſe, upon ſome Pain and Penalty. That the four Aſſociates or Under-maſters, with the Maſter Gunner, for the better Service of her Majeſty, might have the Proof of all ſuch Saltpetre, Coal, Sulphur, Powder, Match, Ordonance, Carriages, Wheels, Stocks and Iron-work, as ſhould be for her Majeſty's Service and Store: and that none ſhould be received, but that which they ſhould find to be good and fit for Service; and that upon a Penalty to be appointed by their Honours. Laſtly, that there might be ſet down ſuch a perfect Government in every of her Majeſty's Ships by their Honours, both for their own Safe-guards, and for a Terror to the Enemy, as heretofore was never put in practice by any.

And all this, this Thomas the rather offered at this Time, ſince the Queen had now gotten a puiſſant Navy of Ships for Defence, and the Nobility, at their own great Charges, had furniſhed it with great and terrible Ordonance, for the Terror of her Enemies; but there was a great want of skilful Men to ſupply the room of Gunners: So that, if Proof were made, he aſſerted, there would not be found skilful Gunners ſufficient for four of her Men of War. But this Motion I think came to Nothing.]

The Foundation of the Armoury there. R.

There was alſo afterwards, for the laying up and preſerving of the Arms, an Armoury built. The Foundation of this Armoury of that remarkable Nurſery of Military Diſcipline, called The Artillery Garden, London, was begun to be erected the firſt Day of May, An. Dom. 1622. and was finiſhed the laſt of November then next following, Colonel Hugh Hamerſley being then Preſident, Edward Pierſe Treaſurer, Henry Petowe Marſhal, and John Bingham Eſq; Captain, and one of the Council of War for this Kingdom.

St. Mary Spittle.

Walter Brune Mercer, one of the Sheriffs of London 1203.

Then have ye the late diſſolved Priory and Hoſpital of our bleſſed Lady, commonly called, Saint Mary Spittle, founded by Walter Brune, and Roſia his Wife, for Canons Regular Walter, Archdeacon of London, laid the firſt Stone in the Year 1197. William of Saint Mary Church, then Biſhop of London, dedicated it to the Honour of Jeſus Chriſt, and his Mother the perpetual Virgin Mary, by the Name of Domus Dei, and Beatæ Mariæ, extra Biſhopſgate, in the Pariſh of St. Buttolph. The Bounds whereof, as appeareth by Compoſition betwixt the Parſon and Prior of the ſaid Hoſpital, concerning Tithes, beginning at Berward's Lane toward the South, and extendeth in breadth to the Pariſh of St. Leonard of Soreſditch towards the North; and in length, from the King's Street on the Weſt to the Biſhop of London's Field, called Lolleſworth on the Eaſt. The Prior of this St. Mary Spittle, for the emortiſing and propriation of the Priory of Bikenacar in Eſſex, to his ſaid Houſe of St. Mary Spittle, gave to Henry VII. 400 l. in the 22^d^ of his Reign.

Berwards Lane.

This Hoſpital ſurrendred to H. VIII. was valued to diſpend 478 l. Wherein, beſides Ornaments of the Church, and other Goods pertaining to the Hoſpital, there were found ſtanding 180 Beds well furniſhed, for Receipt of the Poor of Charity. For it was an Hoſpital of great Relief. Sir Henry Pleſington, Kt. was buried there 1452.

In Place of this Hoſpital, and near adjoining, are now many fair Houſes builded, for Receipt and Lodging of worſhipful and honourable Perſons.

Sir Hor. Pallavicini's Houſe. J. S.

Here was the Houſe of a famous Italian Merchant, and Ambaſſador, much employed by Queen Elizabeth, namely Sir Horatio Pallavicini. And in this ſame Houſe in the firſt Year of K. James I. the Ambaſſador from the Archduke of Auſtria lodged with his Company.

Queen Elizabeth at St. Mary Spittle.

I find Queen Elizabeth in the Month of April 1559. coming in great State from St. Mary Spittle attended with a thouſand Men in Harneſs, with Shirts of Mail, and Corſlets and Morice Pikes; and ten great Pieces carried through London unto the Court, with Drums and Flutes and Trumpets ſounding, and two Morice-Dancings.

And in a Cart two white Bears. The Occaſion whereof I do not pretend to ſhew.]

Sermons in the Eaſter Holidays at the Spittle.

A part of the large Churchyard pertaining to this Hoſpital, and ſevered from the reſt with a Brick Wall, yet remaineth as of old time, with a Pulpit Croſs therein, ſomewhat like to that in Paul's Church-yard. And againſt the ſaid Pulpit on the South Side before the Charnel and Chapel of St. Edmond the Biſhop, and Mary Magdalen, (which Chapel was founded about the Year 1391. by W. Eveſham, Citizen and Pepperer of London, who was there buried) remaineth alſo one fair builded Houſe of two Stories in height for the Maior, and other honourable Perſons, with the Aldermen and Sheriffs to ſit in, there to hear the Sermons preached upon Eaſter Holidays. In the Loft over them ſtood the Biſhop of London, and other Prelates; now the Ladies and Aldermen's Wives do there ſtand at a fair Window, or ſit at their Pleaſure.

Cuſtomary Sermons at Paul's Croſs and the Spittle.

The Rehearſal Sermon.

And here it is to be noted, that time out of mind it hath been a laudable Cuſtom, that on Good Friday in the Afternoon, ſome eſpecial learned Man, by Appointment of the Prelates, doth preach a Sermon at Paul's Croſs, treating of Chriſt's Paſſion: and upon the three next Eaſter Holidays, Monday, Tueſday, and Wedneſday, the like learned Men, by the like Appointment, do uſe to preach on the Forenoon at the ſaid Spittle, to perſuade the Articles of Chriſt's Reſurrection: and then on Low Sunday, before Noon, one other learned Man at Paul's Croſs is to make Rehearſal of thoſe four former Sermons, either commending or reproving them, as to him (by Judgment of the learned Divines) is thought convenient. And that done, he is to make a Sermon of himſelf, which in all were five Sermons in one. At theſe Sermons ſo ſeverally preached, the Maior with his Brethren the Aldermen are accuſtomed to be preſent in their Violets at Paul's on Good Friday; and in their Scarlets, both they and their Wives, at the Spittle in the Holidays, except Wedneſday, in Violet: and the Maior with his Brethren on Low Sunday in Scarlet at Paul's Croſs, continued until this Day.

The Antiquity of it.

Houſe in St. Mary Spittle Churchyard builded for the Maior and Aldermen.

Pulpit Croſs in Spittle Churchyard new builded. A Houſe in Spittle Churchyard builded for the Governors and Children of Chriſt's Hoſpital.

Touching the Antiquity of this Cuſtom, I find none other than that in the Year 1398. King Richard having procured from Rome Confirmation of ſuch Statutes and Ordinances as were made in the Parliament begun at Weſtminſter, and ended at Shrewsbury, he cauſed the ſame Confirmation to be read and pronounced at Paul's Croſs and at St. Mary Spittle, in the Sermons before all the People. Philip Malpas, one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1439. the 18th of Henry VII. gave 20*s*. by the Year to the three Preachers at the Spittle. Stephen Forſter Maior in the Year 1454. gave 40*l*. to the Preachers of Paul's Croſs and Spittle. I find alſo, that the aforeſaid Houſe, wherein the Maior and Aldermen do ſit at the Spittle, was builded (for that purpoſe) of the Goods, and by the Executors of Rich. Rawſon Alderman, and Iſabel his Wife, in the Year 1488. In the Year 1594. this Pulpit being old, was taken down, and a new one ſet up, the Preachers Face turned towards the South, which was before toward the Weſt. Alſo a large houſe (on the Eaſt ſide of the ſaid Pulpit) was then builded, for the Governors and Children of Chriſt's Hoſpital to ſit in: and this was done of the Goods of William Elkins Alderman, late deceaſed. But within the firſt Year, the ſame Houſe decaying, and like to have fallen, was again (with great Coſt) repaired at the City's Charge.

A. M.

On Monday in Eaſter Week. An. Dom. 1617. At St. Mary Spittle, the Nobility entertain'd by Lemman, Maior.

Here I may not omit an eſpecial Matter, becauſe in my remembrance, nor elſe (in my reading) I find not the like. On Monday in Eaſter Week, being April 21. 1617. our moſt gracious Sovereign King James being gone on his Journey to Scotland; it pleaſed divers Lords and others of his Majeſty's moſt honourable Privy Council to viſit this Place of St. Mary Spittle, and there to remain in Company (during the Sermon time) with the Lord Maior, Sir John Lemman, and his worthy Brethren the Aldermen of this City. The Sermon being ended, they rode home with the Lord Maior to his Houſe near Belinſgate. Where they were lovingly and honourably both welcomed and entertained with a moſt liberal and bountiful Dinner, and all the Gentlemen attending on them. The Lords were the right Reverend Father in God George Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Sir Francis Bacon, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England; the Earl of Worceſter; the Lord Liſle, Lord Chamberlain to her Majeſty; the Lord Biſhop of London; the Lord Carew; the Lord Knivet; Sir Julius Cæſar; Sir Thomas Edmonds; Sir John Digby, with divers other Knights and worthy Gentlemen, &c. And the Preacher that then preached, was Maſter Doctor Page, of Deptford in Kent.]

Three Brothers preach the three Spittle Sermons. R.

Among theſe, and other memorable things concerning theſe Spittle Sermons, it deſerves to be recorded, that in the Year 1632. three worthy Brethren, Dr. Samuel Wincope, Mr. Thomas Wincope, Mr. John Wincope, learned and reverend Divines, preached at St. Mary Spittle, upon Monday, Tueſday and Wedneſday in Eaſter Week. They were called to preach from the divers Places of their Habitations, diſtant many Miles from one another. And as they happily met here to preach, ſo did the Matter upon which they preached not leſs happily concurr. For though their Texts were ſeveral, yet their Diſcourſes were upon the ſame Subject with an apt dependance upon one another; like the Links of a golden Chain; the ſecond beginning where the firſt ended; and the third, where the ſecond ended, and making a ſuitable and excellent Concluſion of the two former Sermons with his own.]

Loleſworth Field.

Burial of the Romans in this Field.

Old Monuments of the Romans found.

On the Eaſt Side of this Churchyard lyeth a large Field, of old time called Loleſworth, now Spittlefield, which about the Year 1576. was broken up for Clay to make Brick: In the digging whereof many earthen Pots called Urnæ, were found full of Aſhes, and burnt Bones of Men, to wit of the Romans that inhabited here. For it was the Cuſtom of the Romans, to burn their Dead, to put their Aſhes in an Urn, and then to bury the ſame with certain Ceremonies, in ſome Field appointed for that purpoſe near unto their City.

Urnes found.

And Vials.

Every of theſe Pots had in them (with the Aſhes of the Dead) one Piece of Copper Money, with the Inſcription of the Emperour then reigning: Some of them were of Claudius, ſome of Veſpaſian, ſome of Nero, of Antoninus Pius, of Trajanus, and others. Beſides thoſe Urns, many other Pots were found in the ſame place, made of a white Earth, with long Necks, and Handles, like to our Stone Jugs: Theſe were empty, but ſeemed to be buried full of ſome liquid Matter, long ſince conſumed and ſoked through. For there were found divers Vials, and other faſhioned Glaſſes, ſome moſt cunningly wrought, ſuch as I have not ſeen the like, and ſome of Cryſtal, all which had Water in them, nothing differing in clearneſs, taſte, or ſavour from common Spring Water, whatſoever it was at the firſt. Some of theſe Glaſſes had Oil in them very thick, and earthy in ſavour. Some were ſuppoſed to have Balm in them, but had loſt the Virtue: Many of theſe Pots and Glaſſes were broken in cutting of the Clay, ſo that few were taken up whole.

Diſhes and Cups found here,

There were alſo found divers Diſhes and Cups, of a fine red coloured Earth, which ſhewed outwardly ſuch a ſhining ſmoothneſs, as if they had been of Corral. Thoſe had (in the bottoms) Roman Letters printed, there were alſo Lamps of white Earth, and red artificially wrought with divers Antiques about them, ſome three or four Images, made of white Earth, about a Span long each of them: One I remember was of Pallas, the reſt I have forgotten. I my ſelf have reſerved (amongſt divers of thoſe Antiquities there found) one Urna, with the Aſhes and Bones, and one Pot of white Earth very ſmall, not exceeding the quantity of a quarter of a wine Pint, made in ſhape of a Hare, ſquatted upon her Legs, and between her Ears is the Mouth of the Pot.

And Lamps.

Troughs of Stone found in the Spittle Field.

There hath alſo been found (in the ſame Field) divers Coffins of Stone, containing the Bones of Men: Theſe I ſuppoſe to be the Burials of ſome ſpecial Perſons, in time of the Britons, or Saxons, after that the Romans had left to govern here. Moreover, there were alſo found the Skulls and Bones of Men, without Coffins, or rather whoſe Coffins (being of great Timber) were conſumed. Divers great Nails of Iron were there found, ſuch as are uſed in the Wheels of ſhod Carts, being each of them as big as a Man's Finger, and a quarter of a Yard long, the Heads two Inches over. Thoſe Nails were more wondered at than the reſt of the things there found, and many Opinions of Men were uttered of them; namely, that the Men there buried, were murthered by driving thoſe Nails into their Heads; a thing unlikely: For a ſmaller Nail would more aptly ſerve to ſo bad a purpoſe, and a more ſecret place would lightly be employed for their burial.

Great Nails of Iron found in the Field. Fond Opinions of Men.

A Conjecture what they ſhould be.

But to ſet down what I have obſerved concerning this Matter. I there beheld the Bones of a Man lying (as I noted) the Head North, the Feet South, and round about him (as thwart his Head, along both his Sides, and thwart his Feet) ſuch Nails were found. Wherefore I conjectured them to be the Nails of his Coffin, which had been a Trough, cut out of ſome great Tree, and the ſame covered with a Plank of a great thickneſs, faſtened with ſuch Nails, and therefore I cauſed ſome of the Nails to be reached up to me; and found under the broad Heads of of them, the old Wood, ſkant turned into Duſt or Earth, but ſtill retaining both the grain and proper colour. Of theſe Nails (with the Wood under the Head thereof) I reſerved one, as alſo the nether Jaw-bone of the Man, the Teeth being very great, ſound, and faſt fixed; which (amongſt many other Monuments there found) I have yet to ſhew; but the Naile lying dry, is by ſcaling greatly waſted.

A Skull here found as big as a Buſhel.
J. S.
Dr. Caſaubon of Credulity.

Dr. Meric Caſaubon, (ſince thoſe times wherein the things beforementioned were obſerved) came into theſe Fields, being but a Boy, and ſaw one of theſe Graves newly opened; where was a Skull Bone broken by him that digged the Ground, and the pieces ſcattered, and ſome carried away. But being obſerved to be beyond the ordinary ſize, the King was acquainted with it, who appointed that the pieces ſhould be retrieved as many as might be, and ſet together. Which was done, and then being drawn out according to Art, the proportion equalled a Buſhel in the compaſs of it. There were Coins alſo found in that Grave. Some whereof the ſaid Caſaubon had: And as for the Skull he conjectured it was once a Giants, though ſome thought it might be an Elephants. Such another Grave he ſpeaks of, found in Dauphiné in France with old Coins about it: The Bones and Skeleton about 25 Foot in length. Which he ſuppoſed might be a certain ancient Giant, named Teutelochus; of which they had Traditions.]

And thus much for this part of Biſhopſgate Ward, without the Gate: For I have in another place ſpoken of the Gate, and therefore I am now to ſpeak of that other part of this Ward, which lyeth within the Gate.

The Ward within the Gate.

Clerks Hall and their Almſhouſes in Biſhopſgate Street.

And firſt to begin on the left hand of Biſhopſgate Street, from the Gate ye have certain Tenements of old time pertaining to a Brotherhood of St. Nicholas, granted to the Pariſh Clerks of London for two Chaplains to be kept in the Chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, near unto the Guild Hall of London, in the 27th of Henry the Sixth. The firſt of theſe Houſes towards the North, and againſt the Wall of the City, was ſometime a large Inn or Court, called the Wreſtlers of ſuch a Sign, and the laſt in the high Street towards the South, was ſometime alſo a fair Inn called the Angel, of ſuch a Sign. Amongſt theſe ſaid Tenements was (on the ſame Street ſide) a fair Entry or Court to the common Hall of the ſaid Pariſh Clerks, with proper Almſhouſes, ſeven in number, adjoining, for Pariſh Clerks, and their Wives, their Widows, ſuch as were in great Years not able to labour. One of theſe, by the ſaid Brotherhood of Pariſh Clerks, was allowed ſixteen Pence the Week, the other ſix had each of them nine Pence the Week, according to the Patent thereof granted. This Brotherhood (amongſt other) being ſuppreſſed: In the reign of Edward VI. the ſaid Hall with the other Buildings there, was given to Sir Robert Cheſire, a Knight of Cambridgeſhire. Againſt whom the Pariſh Clerks commencing Sute, in the Reign of Queen Mary, and being like to have prevailed, the ſaid Sir Robert Cheſter pulled down the Hall, ſold the Timber, Stone and Lead, and thereupon the Sute was ended. The Almſhouſes remained in the Queen's Hands, and People are there placed, ſuch as can make beſt Friends. Some of them taking the Penſion appointed, have let forth their Houſes for great Rent, giving occaſion to the Parſon of the Pariſh, to challenge Tithes of the Poor, &c.

Sir Rob. Cheſter obtains the Pariſh Clerks Hall.

The Priory.

The ſaid Priory long ſince was founded before the Reign of Henry III. as I have found in Records, William Baſing, Dean of St. Paul's, was the firſt Founder, and was there buried, and William Baſing, one of the Sheriffs of London, in the ſecond Year of Edward II. was holden alſo to be a Founder, or rather an helper there. This Priory being valued at 314 l. 2 s. 6 d. was ſurrendred the 25th of November, the 30th of Henry VIII. The whole Church, the Partition betwixt the Nuns Church and the Pariſh Church being taken down, remaineth now to the Pariſh, and is a fair Pariſh Church, but wanteth ſuch a Steeple, as Sir Thomas Greſham promiſed to have builded, in recompence of Ground in their Church filled up with his Monument.

Cæſar Adelmare had the Rectory.

A young

A printed Memory hanging up in a Table, at the entrance into the Church. A. M.

A young new born Child was taken up, between the great Warehouſe aud Sir John Spencer's back Gate, being (by a moſt unnatural Mother) there buried in a great Dunghill of Sea Coal Aſhes, with the Face upward; yet found alive by Richard Atkinſon, who uſed to make clean this Paſſage there of the Soil, carrying it thence with his Wheelbarrow. The Child had not any Rag or Cloth about it, but was all bloodied, by reaſon that the Navel String was untyed, and the Body meerly cruſted over with the Sea Coal Duſt. Yet being made clean by the poor Man's Wife, it was found to be a moſt goodly Man Child, ſtrong and well featur'd, without any blemiſh or harm upon it: But ſtrangled inwardly, by ſucking in the noiſome Filth and Aſhes.

It was chriſtened, and named Job cinere extractus; Job taken out of the Aſhes. It lived three Days, and dying, lyes buried in the Churchyard, the 5th of September, 1612. Richard Ball, Miniſter; William Robinſon, and Richard Weſtney, Churchwardens; Thomas Edwards and Abraham Gramer, Side Men; John Harvey, Clerk.

But the Manor of Kennington being veſted in the Crown; and by reaſon of the Change of Government and Confuſion in thoſe Times, the ſaid Decree was never put in Execution, or revived until the Year 1702. when the Vicar and Churchwardens ſued out a Writ of Scire facias, to revive the ſame Decree. The Rectory of St. Helen's let to the Pariſh. J. S.

This Church of St. Helen's and Rectory was once in the Pariſh, if they could but have kept it, being held of the Crown by Leaſe. And there is, in a Pariſh Book, belonging to this Pariſh, the Copy of a Leaſe, from Queen Elizabeth to Cæzar Aldermarie [as it is writ for Adelmare] Eſq; and Thomas Colcel [or Colſhill] Pariſhioners and Inhabitants of St. Helen's Pariſh in the City of London, for and in the Name of all the Pariſhioners and Inhabitants there, upon their Deſire, to be to them granted, of the Rectory of the ſaid Pariſh: for that Intent and purpoſe, that the Rents, Iſſues and Profits of the ſame ſhall from time to time riſe, grow and increaſe, to the Uſe, Profit and Commodity of the Pariſhioners there. Therefore in Conſideration of 17 l. 12 s. 2 d. paid by the ſaid Cæzar Aldermarie and Tho. Colcel at the Receipt of the Exchequer, ſhe, (the ſaid Queen Elizabeth) granted, and to Ferme deviſed to them, all that Rectory and Parſonage and Church of St. Ellen's in the ſaid City: Except and reſerved unto her Majeſty and her Heirs, the Advowſon of the Vicarage there. To have and to hold the ſaid Rectory, Pariſh and Church, Meſſuages, Houſes, Tithes, Oblations and other Profits, to the ſaid Cæzar and Thomas, their Executors and Aſſigns, from the Feaſt of St. Michael the Archangel, unto the Term of one and twenty Years: Yielding and paying therefore yearly unto her, her Heirs and Succeſſors 8 l. 16 s. 1 d. The ſaid Cæzar and Thomas to pay as well the Prieſts Wages, there doing divine Service, and all other Sums of Money for Bread and Wine and other Neceſſaries in the Church, to be expended and paid.

Then there was a Clauſe, that the ſaid Farmers ſhall repair the Chancel and Houſing to the ſaid Rectory belonging. And likewiſe a Clauſe, that after ſuch reaſonable Sums of Money received, paid and deducted, as they laid out, as well for the Fine of this Leaſe or otherwiſe about the Sum and obtaining the ſame, or of theſe Letters Patents; and from thenceforth, all ſuch Iſſues and Profits coming and iſſuing of the ſame Parſonage, all Charges of the ſaid Parſonage being deducted, they ſhall convert and diſpoſe to the Uſe and Commodity of the Pariſhioners, or cauſe to be converted or diſpoſed, during the ſaid Term. This was dated May the 27. in the tenth Year of that Queen's Reign.

The Pariſh ſeems to have this Rectory in Leaſe before. For I find, that March 21. 1564. the Pariſh paid Mr. Colſhill, for the Charge of the Leaſe of the ſaid Parſonage, 20 l. according to an Order taken in Veſtry.

One of theſe Farmers of the Rectory, viz. Mr. Cæzar, died ſoon after the foreſaid Leaſe, namely Anno 1569. And ſeems to have been the Father of Sir Julius Cæzar, a Civilian, and a great Man under Queen Elizabeth and King James I. being Judge of the Admiralty and a Privy Counſellor: who lies buried in St. Helen's Church under a fair Monument: Where, in the Inſcription his Character and Quality is told.

This Rectory came afterwards into the Poſſeſſion of the Stanhope's, viz. in the 41. of Queen Elizabeth. The Pariſh have the Copy of her Sale thereof for the Sum of 610*l.* 18*s.* 7*d. ob. q.* paid by Michael Stanhope Eſq; one of the Grooms of the Privy Chamber, and Edward Stanhope Doctor of Law, and one of the Maſters of the Court of Chancery: "Granting to them "the whole Rectory and Church of St. Helen's, "with their Rights, Members, and Appurtenances, late belonging to the Priory of St. Helen's, and all the Meſſuages, Houſes, Edifices, "Gardens, Tithes, Oblations, Rents, Fruits, "Profits, Commodities, Advantages, &c. be"longing to the ſaid Rectory and Church; And "the annual Rent of 8*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.* formerly be"longing to the ſaid Priory, and Parcel of the "Poſſeſſions. Which Priory, Rectory and "Church, is extended to the clear yearly Value "of 8*l.* 16*s.* 1*d. per Ann.* To hold by Fealty "in free and common Sockage, and not in Capite, nor by Military Service. And moreover "ſhe gave and granted all the Rents, Iſſues, Re"venues, Profits, &c. of all and ſingular the "Premiſſes from the Feaſt of the Annunciation "of our Bleſſed Lady laſt paſt by her Gift abſq; "compotor 20*l.* to be iſſuing from the ſaid Re"ctory pro Stipendio ſive Salario, i. e. for a Sti"pend or Salary for a ſufficient Preacher of "God's Word within the ſaid Church, to preach "from time to time, to be allowed by the Biſhop "of London for the time being; to be paid him "Quarterly by equal Portions: and from the "ſaid Payments to free and indemnify her and "her Succeſſors. This bore Date at Weſtminſter the 13th of Sept. 41. Regin.]

The Bounds of this Pariſh.

The Bounds and Limits of St. Helen's Pariſh, called Biſhopſgate Street. The furtheſt Houſe on the Eaſt ſide, wherein Thomas Childe now dwelleth, towards the South, abutteth upon the Tenement now in the Occupation of James Auſten, in the Pariſh of St. Martin Oteſwich. The furtheſt Houſe, wherein Edward Higges, Sadler, now dwelleth, towards the North, abutteth upon the Parſonage Houſe of St. Ethelburge Pariſh: encloſing (withal) little St. Helen's Cloſe, wherein the Leather-ſellers Hall, other Tenements, and Almſhouſes belonging to the ſaid Company, do ſtand. On the Weſt ſide of the Street, called Biſhopſgate Street, the furtheſt Houſe, wherein Thomas Goodſon now dwelleth, (towards the South) abutteth upon the Gate, wherein Mr. Richard Foxe, Alderman's Deputy, then dwelled in the Pariſh of St. Martin Oteſwich. And the furtheſt Houſe, wherein Nathaniel Wright then alſo dwelled, towards the North, abutteth upon the Meſſuage or Tenement Inn, called the Black Bull, in the ſaid Pariſh of St. Ethelburge.

Croſby Place. Sir John Croſby.

Then have ye one great Houſe, called Croſby Place, becauſe the ſame was builded by Sir John Croſby, Grocer and Woolman, in place of certain Tenements, with their Appurtenances, letten to him by Alice Aſhfeld, Prioreſs of St. Helen's, and the Covent, for 99 Years, from the Year 1466. unto the Year 1565. for the annual Rent of 11*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* This Houſe he builded of Stone and Timber, very large and beautiful, and the higheſt at that time in London: He was one of the Sheriffs, and an Alderman in the Year 1470. Knighted by Edw. IV. in the Year 1471. and deceaſed in the Year 1475. So ſhort a time enjoyed he that his large and ſumptuous Building.

What was granted to Croſby by the Prioreſs.
J. S. Int. Record. Paroch.

What the Contents and Particulars of the Demiſes granted to Croſby by the Prioreſs were, may be underſtood by the Grant of Croſby Place and the Appurtenances made by King Henry VIII. to Anthony Bonvixi the Italian Merchant. Rex omnibus, &c. cum Alicia Aſhfeld, &c. Wherein are mentioned firſt, the great Meſſuage or Tenement now commonly called Croſby Place, with a certain Venell, i. e. Lane or Paſſage that extended in Length from the Eaſt Part of the ſaid Tenement to the Corner or South End of a certain little Lane North, bending unto the Priory Cloſe: Alſo nine Meſſuages ſituate and lying in the ſaid Pariſh of St. Helen's: Whereof ſix were ſituate and lying between the Front of the ſaid Tenement, and the Front of the Bell-houſe or Steeple of the ſaid Church: And another Meſſuage of the ſaid nine Meſſuages, which Katharine Cateſby Widow formerly held, ſituate within the Gate and the Steeple aforeſaid, and the ſix Meſſuages mentioned before; together with a certain Void Place of Land ſituate in the ſaid Pariſh, extending in Length toward the Eaſt by the ſaid Meſſuage which the ſaid Katharine Cateſby formerly held, from the outward Part of the Plat or Poſt of the Bell-houſe, abutting upon the North Part of the ſaid ſix Meſſuages, and the Kings Street, unto the Churchyard there, five Foot and an half Aſſize: and thence extending in Breadth toward the South directly unto a certain Tenement there, formerly in the Tenure of Robert Smith: And two Meſſuages more of the ſaid nine Meſſuages jointly, ſituate within the Cloſe of the ſaid Priory. Of which one heretofore was in the Tenure of John Croſby by the Demiſe of Alice Woodhouſe late Prioreſs; and the other heretofore in the Tenure of the ſaid Robert Smith. And theſe were the Tenements and Appurtenances held of the Priory of St. Helen's by Sir John Croſby.]

His Monument.

He was buried in St. Helen's, the Pariſh Church, a fair Monument of him and his Lady is raiſed there: He gave towards the reforming of that Church five hundred Marks, which was beſtowed with the better, as appeareth by his Armes, both in the Stone-work, Roof of Timber, and Glaſing.

I hold it a Fable ſaid of him, to be named Croſby, of being found by a Croſs; for I have read of other to have that Name of Croſby before him; namely, in the Year 1406. the 7th of Henry IV. the ſaid King gave to his Servant John Croſby the Wardſhip of Joan, Daughter and ſole Heir to John Jordaine, Fiſhmonger, &c. This Croſby might be Father or Grandfather to Sir John Croſby.

Another Sir John Croſby more ancient.
J. S. Rec. Turr.

And before him in the Reign of King Edward III. was another John Croſby, a Knight and Alderman of London, and had a Son and Heir called John. Of this Sir John I find this Record. Edwardus Princeps Wallie, Dux Cornubie conceſſit, &c. Edward Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwal, hath granted to Thomas Rigby, &c. "The Cuſtody of the Manor of Haneworth, and "the Advowſon of the Church of Haneworth; "which lately was John Croſby's Knt. late Al"derman of London; which he held of the ſame "Prince Edward the Day wherein he died: to "have and hold until the lawful Age of John his "Son and Heir, called John Croſby. It was confirmed by the King. This Hanworth is placed on the River of Thames not far from Hampton Court,

Bonvice an Italian lived here, and others.
J. S.

Since which Time, among other, Anthonio Bonvice, a rich Merchant of Italy, dwelled there. On whom it ſeems King Henry VIII. beſtowed it Ann. 1542. with all belonging to it: as appears by the Copy of the Grant which I have ſeen, running thus, Sciatis, &c. "Know ye, that "we of our ſpecial Grace, certain Knowledge "and mere Motion, give and grant unto the "ſaid Anthony Bonvice the Reverſion and Re"verſions of the ſaid Meſſuage and Tenement "with the Appurtenances, commonly called "Crosby Place, and of all the ſaid Houſes, So"lars, Cellars, Gardens, Lanes, Meſſuages, Te"nements, void Places of Land, and all other "and ſingular Premiſſes with the Appurtenances, "lying and ſituate in St. Helen's, and Parcel of "the ſaid late Priory, *&c. After him German Cioll dwelt here.

Then William Bond, Alderman, increaſed this Houſe in Height, with building a Turret on the top thereof: He deceaſed in the Year 1576. and was buried in St. Helen's Church. Divers Ambaſſadors have been lodged there; namely, in the Year 1586. Henry Rameltus, Chancellor of Denmark, Ambaſſador unto the Queen's Majeſty of England from Frederick II. King of Denmark: An Ambaſſador of France, &c. Sir John Spencer, Alderman, lately purchaſed this Houſe, made great Reparations, kept his Maioralty there, and ſince builded a moſt large Warehouſe near thereunto.

Ambaſſadors to King James I. lodged here.
J. S.

In the firſt of King James I. when divers Ambaſſadors came into England, Monſieur de Roſney, Great Treaſurer of France, with his Retinue (which was very ſplendid) was there harboured, the Houſe then belonging to Sir John Spencer. Within Biſhopſgate alſo (and I know not where elſe, unleſs here) the ſame Year were lodged the youngeſt Son of William Prince of Orange, Monſieur Fulke, and the learned Monſieur Barnevelt, who came from the States of Holland and Zealand: This large and convenient Houſe is now built into a Square of good Houſes, and called Crosby Square.]

Croſby Square.

From this Crosby Place up to Leadenhall Corner, and ſo down Graſs Street, among other Tenements, are divers fair and large builded Houſes for Merchants and ſuch like.

Water Conduit at Biſhopſgate.

Now for the other Side of this Ward, namely the Right Hand, hard by within the Gate, is one fair Water-Conduit, which Tho. Kneſworth, Maior in the Year 1505. founded. He gave 60 Pounds, the reſt was furniſhed at the common Charges of the City. This Conduit hath ſince been taken down, and new builded. David Woodroffe, Alderman, gave 20 Pounds towards the Conveyance of more Water thereto.

Sir Thomas Greſham's Houſe.

From this Conduit have ye (amongſt many fair Tenements) divers fair Inns, large for Receipt of Travellers, and ſome Houſes for Men of Worſhip; namely, one moſt ſpacious of all other thereabout, builded of Brick and Timber, by Sir Thomas Greſham Knt. who deceaſed in the Year 1579. and was buried in St. Helen's Church, under a fair Monument, by him prepared in his Life: He appointed by his Teſtament this Houſe to be made a College of Readers, as before is ſaid in the Chapter of Schools and Houſes of Learning.

Sir Andrew Jud his Almſhouſes.

Somewhat Weſt from this Houſe, is one other fair Houſe, wherein Sir William Hollis kept his Maioralty, and was buried in the Pariſh Church of St. Helen. Sir Andrew Jud alſo kept his Maioralty there, and was buried at St. Helen's. He builded Almſhouſes for ſix poor Alms-People near to the ſaid Pariſh Church, and gave Lands to the Skinners, out of which they are to give 4 s. every Week to the ſix poor Alms-People 8 d. the Piece, and 25 s. 4 d. the Year in Coals amongſt them for ever.

Alice Smith's Addition to Jud's Almſhouſes.
J. S.

Alice Smith of London Widow, late Wife of Thomas Smith of the ſame City, Eſq; and Cuſtomer of the Port of London, in her laſt Will and Teſtament bequeathed Lands to the Value of 15 l. by the Year for ever, to the Company of Skinners, for the augmenting of the Penſions of certain Poor, inhabiting in eight Almſhouſes, erected by Sir Andrew Jud Knt. her Father, in the Pariſh of Great St. Helen's in Biſhopſgate Street in London. She hath alſo given in her ſaid laſt Will and Teſtament to other charitable Uſes, as to the Hoſpitals, and to the Poor of other Pariſhes, and good Preachers, the Sum of 300 l. As alſo to the poor Scholars in the two Univerſities of Oxford and Cambridge, the Sum of 200 l. Of which her laſt Will and Teſtament ſhe made her Son Thomas Smith late Sheriff of London, and Richard and Robert Smith her Executors. Who have performed the ſame according to her godly and charitable Mind. This Paragraph was expreſly by Stow himſelf ordered to be here inſerted; whatever the Reaſon was that it happened to be left out in the after-Editions.]

The Well with two Buckets.

Then in the very Weſt Corner, over againſt the Eaſt End of St. Martin Oteſwich, (from whence the Street windeth towards the South) you had, of old time, a fair Well with two Buckets, ſo faſtned, that the drawing up of the one let down the other; but now of late that Well is turned into a Pump.

From this to the Corner over againſt the Leadenhall, and ſo down Graſs Street, are many fair Houſes for Merchants and Artificers, and many fair Inns for Travellers, even to the Corner where that Ward endeth, over againſt Graſs Church.

The modern Eſtate of this Ward.
R. B.

Now to deſcribe the Streets and Places of this Ward, as they ſtand at this preſent Time.

This Ward within the Wall ſuffered not much by the Fire of London, 1666. and the Parts without nothing at all.

Of theſe two general Parts I ſhall firſt begin with that within the Wall, wherein are thoſe Streets, Lanes, and Alleys in whole, or in part, viz.

Places within Biſhopſgate.

Graſs Church Street on both ſides the way from Cornhill to Lombard Street, and Fenchurch Street.

Biſhopſgate Street in the whole.

St. Helen's, both the great and ſmall, in whole.

Crosby Square in the whole.

Camomile Street in the whole.

Wormwood Street, but a ſmall part. And in theſe Streets are divers Courts and Alleys.

Graſs Church Street.

Graſs Church Street, a large and ſpacious Street, with well built and lofty Houſes, inhabited by good Tradeſmen, the whole Street begins at Eaſtcheap, and falls into Leadenhall Street at the four croſs Streets. But the part in this Ward begins at Lombard Street End, as before noted.

Croſs Keys Inn.

In this Street on the Weſt ſide are theſe Courts and Places of name, viz. Croſs Keys Inn, a place of a great reſort, large and well built, hath

Bell Yard.
CorbetsCourt.
Tobacco Roll Court.
Church Alley.

hath a Paſſage into George Yard. Bell Yard, a good, large and well built Place, having a Paſſage into St. Peter's Churchyard. Which Church, although in part ſtanding in this Street, yet being in Cornhill Ward is there treated of. Corbet's Court, a good, large, open, well built and inhabited place. Near unto this Court is Tobacco Roll Court, which hath but one good Houſe in it. Church Alley, adjoining to St. Peter's Church, treated of in Cornhill Ward. This Alley with a turning Paſſage falls into Cornhill.

Boars Head Court.

Then on the Eaſt ſide of this Street, within the Limits of this Ward which begins at Fenchurch Street, is Bores Head Court, an open place taken up with Ware Houſes, for whole Sale Dealers.

Leadenhall Herb Market.

Leadenhall Herb Market, large, and not inferior to any in London, is in this Ward; but the other parts of Leadenhall, viz. the Fleſh Market, and the Fiſh Market, &c. are in Limeſtreet Ward. From this Street the Ward, with ſomewhat a narrow Paſſage betwixt Cornhill, and Leadenhall Street, falleth into Biſhopſgate Street.

Biſhopſgate Street.

Biſhopſgate Street is large, long and ſpacious, and generally well inhabited. But the Fire of London, 1666, not coming into theſe Parts, the Houſes for the moſt part are old Timber Buildings and nothing uniform. The like are the Parts without the Gate, but not ſo good, except in ſome places, as Devonſhire Square, &c.

Sun Yard.

In this Street are theſe Courts, Alleys and Places of name, beginning on the Southern part, and ſo towards the Gate North. Sun Yard, a large place with a Paſſage into Broadſtreet, taken up for Stablings and Coach Houſes, and a Coach Maker, and ſome private Houſes.

Greſham Colledge.

Greſham College, a large but old Building, which encompaſſeth a large ſquare Court; this being anciently the Seat of Sir Tho. Greſham, Kt. and now called Greſham College.

Bull Inn.
Green Dragon Inn.
Four Swans Inn.
Queens Head Alley.
Sutton Court.
Peahen Alley.
Vine Inn.
Wormwood Street.

A little beyond this College are divers great Inns, viz. the Bull Inn, the Green Dragon, and the Four Swans, all three large, and of a conſiderable Trade, and reſort for Waggons and Stage Coaches that go Northwards. Here is the Queen's Head Tavern, which hath a Paſſage into Queen's Head Alley, leading into Broadſtreet. Sutton Court, but narrow, with a Free Stone Pavement, being a new built Court, with neat Brick Houſes. Peahen Alley, but ordinary. The Vine Inn, but indifferent, ſeated near unto Biſhopſgate. Some part of Wormwood Street is in this Ward: But the greateſt part is in Broadſtreet Ward.

The places Eaſt of Biſhopſgate Street, beginning at the Gate within, are as followeth;

Camomile Street.
Clarks Alley.
Angel Court.
St. Ethelburge Church.

Camomile Street, which runneth beyond Saint Mary Axe, but the part in this Ward goeth but a little beyond Cook's Court. This is a Street but of ſmall account either as to its Buildings or Inhabitants. Clark's Alley, but ordinary, eſpecially that part which leadeth to Camomile Street. Angel Court, both ſmall and ordinary. St. Ethelborough Church, a ſmall old built Church, hath a Spire Steeple, and a Dial hanging over the Street. It is in the Dioceſs of London. The Prioreſs of St. Helen's was Patroneſs.

Little St. Helen's
Leatherſellers Hall.

Little St. Helen's, a good large place, having one or two Courts within it, with good old Timber Houſes, well inhabited; ſome by Merchants; at the lower End of which is ſeated Leatherſellers Hall, a very large and handſome Pile of Building with a Garden. And here were Almſhouſes built for ſome Poor of the Company of Leatherſellers.

Great St. Helen's.
St. Helen's Church.

Great St. Helen's, a handſome open and large Court, with rows of good Houſes, well inhabited, on the Eaſt ſide of the Church and Churchyard: which is gracefully ſeated in the midſt of the Court, with rows of Trees round about the Churchyard, very pleaſant in the Summer Seaſon; the Church is large and comely, and adorned with many ſtately Monuments, but wants a Steeple, the Bells hanging in a poor wooden Frame, ſome diſtance from the Church. Over the Church Door on the South is this Inſcription:

Laus Deo. St. HELENA.

Croſby Square.

Paſſing this Court the Paſſenger is led to two others, both of the ſame name, alſo well inhabited; which with a winding Paſſage leads into St. Mary Axe, over againſt St. Andrew Underſhaft Church; and in this part of St. Helen's, on the South ſide is a Paſſage to Croſby Square, which is the next place of remark on the Eaſt ſide of Biſhopſgate Street, anciently a great Meſſuage. This large Building hath been of late Years converted into a curious open Square, with fair Brick Buildings, well inhabited by Gentry and Merchants, the Houſes having Paliſado Pales before, and Gardens behind them. Out of this Square is a Paſſage through a Back-gateway, paſſing by a large Warehouſe belonging to the Eaſt India Company, and ſo into Great St. Helen's. This Croſby Houſe, before its Building, was the Habitation of Sir James Langham that eminent Citizen.

Biſhopſgate Street Without.

Having viewed the Ward within the Gate, we paſs now to that part that ſtands without it.

Biſhopſgate Street without the Gate.

This is alſo a very broad and ſpacious Street, but not ſo well built and inhabited as that within the Wall. It runs Northwards a great length, but no further in the Freedom then unto the Bars. In the Deſcription of this Street, I begin next the Gate, with Saint Buttolph Biſhopſgate Church, and ſo take in all Places to the Bars on that ſide; and then I ſhall come back from the Bars on the other ſide unto Biſhopſgate again.

St. Botolph's Biſhopſgate Church.

St. Buttolph Biſhopſgate Church large but old, built with Galleries round to the darkening of it, ſeated in the middle of the Churchyard encloſed with a Brick Wall.

The Rector's Houſe.

Adjoining to this Churchyard is the Rector's Houſe. And here an open Paſſage leads to a ſpacious Houſe, with a fine Garden, and Yard before it graced with Trees, and a handſome Stone Figure ſtanding on a Pedeſtal in the middle of the Court, the Seat of Francis Daſhwood, Eſq; deceaſed.

White Hart Court.

White Hart Court, a good large open Place, with handſome Buildings, eſpecially the Houſe that fronts the Court, which takes up the breadth thereof.

Bethlem.
The preſent State of Bethlem.

Then you come to Bethlem, vulgarly called Bedlam. A Lane, where in ſtood an ancient charitable Houſe for the keeping and cure of Lunaticks. But this Hoſpital being grown very old and much decayed in its Buildings, and likewiſe its Situation being very cloſe and pent up with Houſes, the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen (to whoſe care it belonged) thought fit to erect another more commodious, which they finiſhed ſoon after the late dreadful Fire of London, being now built in Morefields, contiguous to London Wall: It is a very ſpacious ſubſtantial Building, with a Wall before it, paved with Free Stone, and encloſed with a Brick Wall; very commodious for the Uſe and Purpoſe intended by it.

Old Bethlem.

Upon the finiſhing of this new Bethlem, this old Houſe became diſuſed, and is now converted into Buildings. The Place which generally goeth by the name of Bethlem, is very large, containing ſeveral Courts and Alleys. The principal Street comes out of Biſhopſgate Street and runs into Moorfields, being a good Thoroughfare and of ſome note for its Inhabitants, who drive a good Trade, being Flax and Hemp Dreſſers, Shoemakers, Yarn and Worſted Sellers, and Turners. In this Place are divers Courts and Alleys as aforeſaid, which ſo run into one another that it is ſomething intricate to give a true Deſcription or Account of their Situation; I ſhall give the Names of them. Bethlem Court, a pretty open place where the Hoſpital ſtood, at the upper end of which is a Paſſage out of the principal Street of Bethlem. Crown Court, pretty large, with indifferent Buildings. Loom Alley, narrow, and very ordinary. Houſewives Alley, narrow, which with a turning Paſſage runs a great length. Half Moon Alley, pretty long, but narrow and ordinary, and falls into Round Court; ſomething open, but ordinary. And out of this Court is a Paſſage into Petty France. Bullock Court, hath a Paſſage by Bethlem Churchyard into Cole's Rents, where are ſeveral Alleys and Courts within it; ſome without, and ſome with Names, as Roſe and Crown Court, a large and open Place, but ordinary, leading into Moorfields, and alſo into Half Moon Alley, which leadeth into Biſhopſgate Street. Near to this Alley is Baker's Court, which hath a Paſſage into Half Moon Alley, as alſo into Vine Court, and Chequer Court. Bell Court, but ſmall, and oppoſite to Bethlem Churchyard; as is Three Leg Alley which is narrow and ordinary with a turning Paſſage. Likewiſe Dyer's Court, but ordinary, ſo called, as having a Dyer's Houſe at the upper End.

Petty France, a large Place, and generally well built. And into this Place is a Paſſage from Bethlem Street, through Round Court; the Weſt end comes into Moorfields by the Poſtern Gate: and the Eaſt end runneth up to St. Buttolph's Churchyard which fronts one ſide of it; the other ſide being a row of nine Alms Houſes, of which five belong to Dulwich College; and each Houſe hath four poor Women, of which one in each of the five Houſes hath a Gown. The other four Houſes, was the Gift of one Mr. Edward Underwood, Apothecary, Grandfather of Mr. Edward Underwood, alſo Apothecary in Biſhopſgate Street living An. 1700. Boarded Alley, a ſmall Place in Petty France.

Northwards of Bethlem in Biſhopſgate Street is Still Alley, which is but ſmall. Garland Alley, an open place, at the upper End of which is an Inn, as alſo a large Yard for Stabling and Coaches, and but ordinarily inhabited. Bottle Alley, hath a narrow entrance, but openeth into a Free Stone Court, with well built Houſes, which ſaid Alley leadeth into another down Steps bearing the ſame name, and out of this is a Paſſage into Garland Alley. Swan Yard Inn, at the lower end hath Stables and Coach Houſes. Crown Yard, indifferent good with an entrance for Carts. Half Moon Alley, very ordinary, and ill inhabited; almoſt at the entrance it divides it ſelf, one part falling into Half Moon Court which is a good large place; and the other part in a ſtreight Line runs Weſtwards into Moorfields: On the South ſide of this place is Stone Cutters Yard, a pretty open, but ordinary place; and on the North ſide is a ſmall Alley that leads unto Dunning's Alley. Three Tun Alley, but indifferent. White Hind Court, an open place, with a narrow Paſſage into it, and indifferent as to its Houſes and Inhabitants. Sweet Apple Court, ſo called from Sir John Sweetapple, Goldſmith, the Owner thereof, a good handſome new built place, with an open Paſſage for Carts: This Place before its new building was two, viz. Soper's Alley and Horſeſhoe Yard; the upper end of this Court, or rather Lane, is taken up for Stables for Livery Horſes, with Coach Houſes. Dunning's Alley, very large and ordinary; the Weſt end divides it ſelf, and falls into Half Moon Alley which leads into Moorfields: In this Alley are theſe Courts, Tripe Yard, very ſmall and ordinary. Adam's Court, but ſmall, with a Paſſage into Sweet Apple Court. Pump Court, but mean. Weſtminſter Hall Court, indifferent with a Free Stone Pavement. Cripple Court, very ſmall and mean, with about two Houſes. Harrow Yard, alſo ſmall and ordinary. Bell Yard, inconſiderable. Lamb Alley, very narrow and ordinary, which running a great length, divides it ſelf, one part falling into Sugar Loaf Court, and the othet into Long Alley. In this Alley are Courts, Paved Court, Lamb Yard, and White Yard, all three very mean. Angel Court, likewiſe very ordinary. Angel Alley, long and mean, at the upper end of which is Timber Yard, and on the Weſt ſide is a ſmall Court, and paſſing further leads into Angel Court, which is very inconſiderable. In this Alley theſe Courts, Brown's Court, but ſmall. Balam's Court. Sugar Loaf Yard. Pheſant Cock Yard. Three Colts Alley, all four but ſmall and ordinary. Jews Harp Court, a pretty handſome new built Place with a Free Stone Pavement. Brown's Yard, but ordinary. Cock Yard, very mean, at the upper end of which is Thacker's Court, but mean. Acorn Court, very narrow and ordinary; at the upper end it opens into a little Court, and out of this is a Paſſage into Skinner's Street. George Yard, very inconſiderable. Skinner's Street, a very handſome open place with well built Houſes. Ship Yard, hath indifferent good Buildings, with a Free Stone Pavement. Primroſe Alley, very long, narrow and ordinary, hath a Paſſage into Long Alley. Gun Yard, indifferent long; at the upper End it opens it ſelf into two parts.

Thus having enumerated the various Alleys, Courts, &c. on the Weſt ſide of Biſhopſgate Street; I ſhall now proceed to theſe on the Eaſt ſide, beginning next the Bars.

Biſhopſgate Street, Without, the Eaſt Side.

Mountague Court, a very handſome open place with a Free Stone Pavement, and good Buildings. Katharine Wheel, and George Yard, very long, hath a Paſſage into Mountague Court, and another into the Artillery Ground. Red Lyon Brewhouſe, pretty good, near which is Red Lyon Inn.

Devonſhire Square, [made out of an Houſe called Fiſher's Folly, an airy and creditable Place, and where the Counteſs of Devonſhire in my Memory dwelt in great repute for her Hoſpitality;] It conſiſteth of good Buildings, and they well inhabited by Merchants and Perſons of Wealth. In this Square on the North Weſt Corner, is a very large Houſe which is ſevered from the reſt by a pair of great Gates, being the Seat of Sir Samuel Daſhwood, Knt. and Alderman, now deceaſed. In the midſt of the Square, upon a Pedeſtal carved with Figures on each ſide, and aſcended by three Steps, and encloſed with Iron Bars, ſtands a naked Figure guilt. Sir William Powlet's Garden,

A Lane ſtopped up there.

Then Eaſt from the Curriers Row, is a long and high Wall of Stone, incloſing the North ſide of a large Garden, adjoining to as large an Houſe, builded in the Reigns of Henry VIII. and of Edward VI. by Sir William Powlet [Earl of Wilts, and after, Marquis of Wincheſter] Lord Treaſurer of England. Thorough this Garden, which (of old time) conſiſted of divers parts, now united, was ſometimes a Foot Way, leading by the Weſt end of the Auguſtine Friers Church ſtraight North, and opened ſomewhat Weſt from Alhallows Church againſt London Wall, towards Moorgate, which Foot Way had Gates at either end, locked up every Night; but now the ſame way (being taken into thoſe Gardens) the Gates are cloſed up with Stone, whereby the People are inforced to go about by St. Peter's Church, and the Eaſt end of the ſaid Friers Church, and all the ſaid great Place and Garden of Sir William Powlet to London Wall, and ſo to Moorgate.

Here was a great Meſſuage called the Spaniſh Ambaſſador's Houſe, of late inhabited by Sir James Houblon, Kt. and Alderman of London: And alſo other fair Houſes of Sir John Buckworth, and other Merchants.]

This great Houſe adjoining to the Garden aforſaid, ſtretcheth to the North Corner of Broadſtreet, and then turneth up Broadſtreet, all that ſide, to the Eaſt end of the ſaid Friers Church. It was builded by the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, in place of Auguſtine Friers Houſe, Cloyſter, and Gardens, &c. The Friers Church he pulled not down, but the Weſt end thereof, incloſed from the Steeple and Quire, was in the Year 1550. letten to the Dutch Nation in London, to be their Preaching Place.

The Dutch Church, a Part of the Friars Church. K. Edward his Charter for this Church. J. S.

But in the Fourth of King Edward VI. he granted, by Letters Patents dated the 24th of July, 1551. all that Church, except the Quire, to John A Laſco, and a Congregation of Germans and other Strangers, fled hither for the ſake of Religion, and to their Succeſſors, in puram & liberam Eleemoſynam, and the Church to be called the Temple of the Lord Jeſus; and A Laſco to be the firſt Superintendent, and Gualter de Leone, Martinus Flandrus, Francis Riverius and Richardus Gallus, to be the four firſt Miniſters. And this Gift hath been confirmed by the ſucceſſive Princes to the Dutch Strangers, and remains to them to this Day; for the holy Uſes of Prayer, Preaching and Adminiſtration of the Sacraments. This is a very ſpacious and comely Church, tho' but a part of that Church that belonged to the Auguſtine Friers. There is a fair Library erected on the Weſt part of it, which is very ornamental as well as uſeful. And the Miniſters which are now reduced to two, have convenient Houſes allotted them in the ſaid Friers.

The aforeſaid Charter is extant in the Collection of Records to the Hiſtory of the Reformation. Vol. II. Book I. Num. LI.

The Dutch Congregations Addreſs to the Biſhop and Maior. J. S. Archiv. Eccleſ. Belgic.

It has been cuſtomary for the Dutch and Walloon Churches to pay a Deference to every Biſhop of London, and to each Lord Maior, upon their firſt Acceſs to their Dignity and Charge: and to preſent them with a Piece of Plate. Their Miniſters and Elders of both Churches, as Repreſentatives of the whole, at ſome convenient time make their Appearance before them, and one of the Miniſters makes a ſhort Speech, to the Biſhop in Latin, to the Maior in Engliſh. The Sum of what is ſpoken to the Biſhop is, “To ſhew “ Year 1558. upon the happy Succeſs of the Re-

“ they began to fly hither again by little and lit-

“ Dioceſe of London, it appeared from their Re-

“ the next Biſhop moſt prudently performed in “ Prayer that God would endue him with his holy “ Spirit, that by his Miniſtry the Glory of God “ might be promoted and his Church edified.

The Import of their Addreſs to the Lord Maior is, “That they appear there before his Ho“ nour, to congratulate him in the Name of their “ Congregations according to their yearly Cu-
“ ſtom. They pray Almighty God by his holy Spi“ rit to qualify him for the great Duties belong-

“ And then they dine with the Lord Maior.

Queen Elizabeth's Favour to this Church. MSS. in Archiv. Eccleſ. Belgic.

To which let me add a Word or two more of the Countenance Authority hath always given to this Dutch Church. When upon the Acceſs of King James I. to the Crown of Great Britain An. 1603. the ſaid Church made their humble Addreſs to him, he anſwered them in French,
“ That the Queen departed made her ſelf re“ nowned through the whole World by two “ Things; The one was, that ſhe always enter“ tained and cheriſhed the Service of God in her “ Kingdom, and the other, her Hoſpitality to“ wards Strangers. Which Commendation of “ hers he was deſirous to inherit. That if Oc-
“ caſion had offered itſelf, when he was at a Di-
“ ſtance, and lived as in a Corner of the World,
“ he would have made known his good Affecti-
“ on to them: but now that it had pleaſed God

King James's Proteſtation to them.

“ to conſtitute him King of this Country, he “ ſwore to them, that if any moleſted them in “ their Churches, they addreſſing to him, he “ would avenge them. And that tho' they were “ not his proper Subjects, yet he would maintain
“ and cheriſh them, as much as any Prince in “ the World. He took notice alſo of their former good Deſerts to the Queen and Kingdom: that is, “ How they had always prayed for the “ late Queen, and never gone beyond the Limits
“ of their Duty; and how they had enriched
“ the Realm with many Arts, Manufactures,
“ and Sciences uſeful to the Publick.

This Church petitions the Houſe of Lords An. 1642.

Further, in the Year 1642. they preferred a Petition to the Houſe of Lords, in behalf of themſelves and of the Reformed Foreign Churches in the Realm; as in Norwich, Colcheſter, Canterbury, Sandwich, &c. to this Purpoſe: “ That “ there might be an Ordinance of Parliament for “ ſettling the Liberty and Exerciſe of their Re“ ligion and Diſcipline, as they were uſed be“ yond the Seas reſpectively in the Reformed “ Churches of their ſeveral Nations: and which “ they had hitherto enjoyed by the Charter of “ King Edward VI. of ever bleſſed Memory;
“ authorized by his Parliament, and the graci“ ous Favour of all the ſucceeding Princes. Particularly,

“ Firſt, That they might have free Liberty to “ chuſe and appoint their own Miniſters, and all
“ other Officers belonging to their Churches,
“ according to their Diſcipline.

“ Secondly, That no Member of their Con“ gregations, being under the Cenſure of their “ Diſcipline, by reaſon of ſome ſcandalous Of“ fence committed, might be received as Mem“ ber of any other Church without a Certifica“ tion from his own Church.

“ Thirdly, That no Church or Congregation
“ of Foreigners ſhould be authorized in this “ Realm, which was not ſubject reſpectively to “ the Synods of their ſeveral Nations. They added Reaſons for the third Article.

The Lords Order hereupon.

Hereupon on Saturday Jan. 21. 1642. (by Report of the Earl of Northumberland) the Houſe ordered, “ That there be an Ordinance of Par“ liament, for ſettling of the Liberty and Exer-
“ ciſe of their Religion and Diſcipline, as they “ are uſed beyond the Seas reſpectively in the “ Reformed Churches of their ſeveral Nations,
“ which they have hitherto enjoyed by the Char“ ter of King Edward VI. authorized by Par“ liament, and the Favour of all ſucceeding
“ Princes of the Reformed Religion, Queen “ Elizabeth, King James, and his Majeſty that “ now is. In particular Firſt, &c. as above in “ the three Articles.

The Dutch Church Almſhouſe.

About 16 or 18 years ago this Dutch Congregation in Auguſtin Fryers built at their common Charge, upon a Piece of Ground in Middle Moorfields, purchaſed by them, a fair Almſhouſe, containing 26 Rooms, for the harbouring their Poor, either Men or Women, beſides one complete Room, where the Elders and Deacons meet Weekly to pay the Penſions of the Almsfolks there, or to do other Buſineſs relating to their Poor. The Penſions are either more or leſs according as their Neceſſities require. The Rooms are not ſo appropriated to the Dutch Nation, but that any Engliſh Woman, whoſe Huſband had been a Member of the ſaid Church, is capable of being admitted. And oftentimes it happens that there be more Engliſh than Dutch harboured there.]

That Portion of this Church which was Eaſt, and not granted to theſe Strangers, the foreſaid Powlet Earl of Wilts obtained in the fourth alſo of the ſaid King: Who of his ſpecial Grace granted him totam ſuperiorem partem Eccleſiæ nuper fratrum Auguſtinen. infra Civitatem London. viz. Le Quere, La Cros Ile, & capellas ibidem. As I find it entred in a MS. Journal of King Edward's Gifts and Sales: Where the Teſt of his Patent is the $22^{d}$ of July; that is, two Days before that to the Strangers.]

The Quire granted to Powlet.

This other part then, namely, the Steeple, Quire, and ſide Iles to the Quire adjoining, the Earl reſerved to houſhold Uſes, as for ſtowage of Corn, Coal, and other things. His Son and Heir, Marqueſſe of Wincheſter, ſold the Monuments of Noblemen (there buried) in great number, the paving Stone, and whatſoever, (which coſt many thouſands) for one hundred Pounds, and in place thereof made fair ſtabling for Horſes. He cauſed the Lead to be taken off the Roofs of the Church, and laid Tile in place thereof; which exchange of Lead for Tile proved not ſo profitable as he looked for, but rather to his diſadvantage.

The Monuments ſold.

Glaſshouſe. J. S.

Here was a Glaſs Houſe; where Venice Glaſſes were made; and Venetians employed in the Work: And Mr. James Howel, an ingenious Man in King James the Firſt his Reign, was Steward to this Houſe (who was afterwards Clark to the Council to K. Charles I.) When he left this Place, ſcarce able to bear the continual Heat of it, he thus wittily expreſt himſelf, that had he continued ſtill Steward, he ſhould in a ſhort time have melted away to nothing among thoſe hot Venetians. This Place afterwards became Pinners Hall: And of later Years ſome part of it hath been fitted up with a Pulpit and Pews for Diſſenters from the Church of England to meet in, and where is preached on Tueſdays, The Merchants Lecture, as it is called.]

The Pariſh Church of St. PETER the Poor.

Church of St. Peter the Poor.

Next unto Powlet Houſe, is the Pariſh Church of St. Peter the Poor; ſo called for a difference from other of that Name; ſometime (peradventure) a poor Pariſh, but at this preſent there be many fair Houſes, poſſeſſed by rich Merchants, and others.

This Pariſh hath been alſo called St. Peter's by S. Auſtine Friers. As appears by an Inſtrument I have ſeen in the Tower Records, for founding of a Chauntry at St. Botolph's Billinſgate. Repaired. R.

There hath been in this Church ſince the beginning of the Year 1615. to the Year 1630. many coſtly Repairs and Charges. In the Year 1615. this Church was on the Weſt Side enlarged, in the Breadth 8 Foot and better, by the taking down of the North Wall, and over a Slip of Ground that formerly lay behind it ſo far outward, erecting another. Upon the Foundation of the old Wall were erected new Pillars and Arches, and from them to the new, a fair Roof.

This empty, uſeleſs and rude Piece of Ground, being turned to this Uſe and Beauty (with the very fair Windows in it) at the ſole Coſt and Charges of Sir William Garway, Kt. who at the Eaſt End of this Wall, in a Vault, (made likewiſe at his own Coſt) lyes under his fair Monument interred. The Charge of this Ile was 400*l.*

In the Year 1616. this new Ile and the whole Church was new pewed, and the great Window in the Chancel enlarged.

In the Year 1617. the Roof and the Inſide of the Church throughout was richly and very worthily beautified.

In the year 1629, and 1630. the Steeple and a very coſtly Gallery at the Weſt end of the Church, were new built and beautified, and the Bells new caſt and hung.

The Charge of all this amounting to the Sum of 1587 l. and upwards. All which (deducting the 400 l. (Coſt of the Iſle) was the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſh.

This Church was again repaired, and both in the Inſide and Outſide, beautified, and new pewed, Anno 1716.

AUGUSTINE FRIERS.

Friers Auguſtines Church, part whereof is the Dutch Church.
A fine ſpired Steeple.

Then next have ye the Auguſtin Friers Church and Churchyard; the entring thereunto being by a South Gate. The Friers Church is a large thing, having a moſt fine ſpired Steeple, ſmall, high, and ſtreight; I have not ſeen the like: founded by Humphrey Bohun, Earle of Hereford and Eſſex, in the yeere 1253. Reginald Cobham gave his Meſſuage in London, to the inlarging thereof, in the yeere 1344. Humphrey Bohun, Earle of Hereford and Eſſex, re-edified this Church in the yeere 1354. whoſe Body was there buried in the Quire. The ſmall ſpired Steeple of this Church was overthrown by Tempeſt of Wind, in the yeere 1362. but was raiſed of new, as now it ſtandeth, to the beautifying of the City. And ſtill it might have ſtood [as was added in the third Edition of this Book] had not private Benefit (the only devourer of Antiquity) pulled it downe. Both that goodly Steeple, and all that Eaſt part of the Church, hath lately been taken downe, and Houſes (for one Man's Commodity) raiſed in the place, whereby London hath loſt ſo goodly an Ornament, and times hereafter may more talke of it.

A. M.

Motion made by the City for Repair thereof. J. S.

And according as A. M. conjectured, how After-times might talk more of this beautiful Steeple, and the neglect of it, however highly eſteemed by the Citizens, I ſhall bring to mind after this diſtance of Years, a memorable Paſſage relating to it. It was ſtanding in the Year 1603. when Stow ſet forth his ſecond Edition: But even then in a very dangerous tottering Condition. But ſuch was the venerable regard the City had of it, that a Petition being preferred to the Lord Maior and Aldermen by the Inhabitants of St. Peter the Poor, (in which Pariſh that Church of St. Auguſtine's ſtood) they readily concurred to promote the Repair thereof all they could, by uſing their Intereſt with the Marquis of Wincheſter, to whom the Propriety of that Monaſtery and the Lands adjoining belonged, (being granted to his Anceſtors at the Diſſolution of Monaſteries) and for that Purpoſe drew up a large Letter to him in the moſt pathetic Words, and moving Arguments, exciting him to go in hand with that Work. The very Original whereof was ſhewn me by my worthy Friend, one of the Heralds, the Owner thereof; with Leave given to inſert a true Copy of it. Which was as followeth.

The Maior and Alderman their Letter to the Marqueſs of Wincheſter about it. Mr. Hare, Herald.

Right Honorable, my very good Lord;

“THERE hath been offered of late unto this Court a moſt juſt and earneſt Petition by divers of the chiefeſt of the Pariſh of St. Peter the Poor in London, to move us to be humble Suitors unto your Lordſhip in a Cauſe, which is ſufficient to ſpeak for itſelf, without the Mediation of any other, viz. for the repairing of the ruinous Steeple of the Church, ſometime called, The Auguſtine Friers, now belonging to the Dutch Nation, ſituate in the ſame Pariſh of St. Peter the Poor. The Fall whereof (which without ſpeedy Prevention is near at hand) muſt needs bring with it not only a great Deformitie to the whole City; it being for Architecture one of the beautifulleſt and rareſt Spectacles thereof, but alſo a fearful eminent danger to all the Inhabitants next adjoining. The Communion Table.

At the Eaſt End of this Dutch Church between the two Iſles, is a Riſing with ſeveral Steps both from the North and South Sides, and likewiſe on the Weſt, unto a large Platform, whereon is placed a long Table with Seats againſt the Wall, and Formes round, for the Uſe of the holy Communion. On the Eaſt Wall at a due Height are the Ten Commandments in Dutch largely written in Golden Letters.

The Library.

On the Weſt End over the Skreen is a fair Library, inſcribed thus, Eccleſiæ Londino-Belgicæ Bibliotheca, extructa, ſumptibus MARIÆ DUBOIS 1659.

In this Library are divers valuable MSS. and Letters of Calvin, Peter Martyr, and others Foreign Reformers.

The Church is very large and ſpacious, ſupported with two Rows of Stone Pillars. The Seats are all long Benches lined with green Cloth, ſtuffed for eaſy ſitting. The Floor with Deal-Boards laid over the Stones for Warmth: The Windows on the South ſide have painted on them JESUS TEMPLE.

The State of the Dutch Congregation.

The preſent State of this Dutch Church in Auguſtin Friers, and the Congregation of Strangers or the Children of Strangers belonging to it, is thus.

They have two Miniſters, Mr. Biſcop was lately one, and another who is his Aſſiſtant. They preach twice every Lord's-Day, and once in the Week beſides; and they adminiſter the Holy Sacrament Monthly, the laſt Sunday in the Month. And lend their Church every firſt Sunday in the Month to the Walloon Congregation, for their Reception of the Sacrament; their own Church in Thredneedle Street being too ſtrait for them. The Miniſters have allowed them a good yearly Salary, and Houſes to dwell in, conveniently ſituate neer the ſaid Church: and competent Subſiſtance allowed alſo to their Widows. M. Vendermerſh, a Merchant and one of their Elders, at his own Coſt, built a good Houſe for one of their Miniſters: which coſt 400 l. and after, finiſhed it within, at a conſiderable further Expence; very much to his Commendation, and the laſting Memory of his Charity and good Will to this Church.

Their Poor.

Their Almeſ-houſe.

They maintain their Poor at their own Charge, which ſtands them in neer 1200 l. per ann. Part of which they collect every Sunday, and Week Day cuſtomarily, whenſoever there is a Sermon, at the Church Door, by Deacons of the Church, who ſtand there with Baſins to receive what the People are pleaſed to throw in. They have a fair Almeſhouſe built by themſelves, ſtanding in Moorfields, to contain 26 Poor: together with a very handſome Room, for their Elders and Overſeers to meet in, to conſult together for the good Eſtate and Ordering of theſe Poor, as Occaſion may require.]

Throkmorton Street.

T. Cromwel his Houſe.

Stow's Fathers Houſe.

On the South ſide, and at the Weſt end of this Church, many fair Houſes are builded: namely in Throkmorton Street, one very large and ſpacious, builded in the Place of old and ſmall Tenements, by Thomas Cromwell, Maſter of the Kings Jewel-houſe; after that, Maſter of the Rolls, then Lord Cromwell, Knight, Lord Privie Seale, Vicar General, Earl of Eſſex, high Chamberlain of England, &c. This Houſe being finiſhed, and having ſome reaſonable Plot of Ground left for a Garden, he cauſed the Pales of the Gardens adjoining to the North Part thereof, on a ſudden to be taken down, 22 Foot to be meaſured forth-right into the North of every Mans Ground, a Line there to be drawn, a Trench to be caſt, a Foundation laid, and an high Brick Wall to be builded. My Father had a Garden there; and a Houſe ſtanding cloſe to his South Pale: this Houſe they looſed from the Ground, and carried on Rowlers into my Father's Garden 22 Foot, ere my Father heard thereof: no Warning was given him, nor other Anſwer, (when he heard thereof and ſpake to the Surveyers of that Worke) but that their Maſter, Sir Thomas, commanded them ſo to do. No Man durſt goe to argue the Matter, but each Man loſt his Land; and my Father paid his whole Rent, which was 6 Shillings 8 Pence the year, for that half which was left. And ſo much of mine owne Knowledge have I thought good to note, that the ſudden riſing of ſome Men cauſeth them to forget themſelves.

The Drapers-Hall.

The Drapers Armes.

The Company of Drapers in London bought this Houſe, and now the ſame is their common Hall. This Company obtained of King Henry the 6. in the ſeventeenth of his Reigne, to be incorporate. John Gedney was choſen to be their firſt Maſter; and the 4 Wardens were, I. Wotton, *I. In this Lane alſo are divers fair builded Houſes on both Sides, and ſo likewiſe have ye in the other Street, which ſtretcheth from the Friers Auguſtines South Gate, to the Corner over againſt Saint Bennets Church. In this Street, amongſt other fair Buildings, the moſt ancient was (of old time) an Houſe pertaining to the Abbot of Saint Albans. John Catcher, Alderman, now dwelleth there. Then is there a large Free School, pertaining to the late diſſolved Hoſpitall of Saint Anthony. In this School hath been many good Scholars trained up. Whereof more ſhall be ſhewed in another Place. And ſo up to Three Needle Street.

The aforeſaid John Churchman, for William and John Oteſwich, (by Licence of H. IV. the ſixth of his Reigne) gave the Advouſon or Patronage of this Church, four Meſſuages and 17 Shops with the Appurtenances, in the Pariſh of St. Martins Oteſwich, &c. to the Maſter and Wardens of Taylors and Linnen Armorers, Keepers of the Guild and Fraternity of St. John Baptiſt in London, and to their Succeſſors, in perpetual Almes; to be imployed upon the poor Brethren and Siſters. Whereupon, adjoining upon the Weſt End of this Pariſh Church, the ſaid Maſter and Wardens builded, about a proper quadrant or ſquared Court, ſeven Almes-houſes. Wherein they placed ſeven Almes-men of that Company, and their Wives, (if they had Wives) Each of theſe ſeven, of old time, had 14 Pence the Week; but now of later time, their Stipend by the ſaid Maſter and Wardens hath been augmented to the Sum of 26 Shillings the Quarter, which is 5 l. 4 s. the Year, to each of them, beſide Coales. Taylors and Linnen Armorers Hall. Guild of St. John Baptiſt.

Some ſmall diſtance from thence is the Merchant-Taylors Hall, pertaining to the Guild and Fraternity of St. John Baptiſt, time out of mind called of Taylors and Linnen Armorers of London. For I find that King Edward the firſt, in the 28. of his Reigne, confirmed this Guild by the Name of Taylors and Linnen Armorers, and alſo gave to the Brethren thereof, Authority every yeere at Midſummer to hold a Feaſt, and to chooſe unto them a Governour or Maſter, with Wardens. Whereupon, the ſame yeere, 1300. on the Feaſt Day of the Nativity of Saint John Baptiſt, they choſe Henry de Ryall to be their Pilgrim. For the Maſter of this Myſtery (as one that travelled for the whole Company) was then ſo called, untill the 11. Yeere of Richard the ſecond: and the foure Wardens were then called Purveyors of Almes, (now called Quarterage) of the ſaid Fraternity.

The Antiquity of the Tailors Feaſt by Authority.

The Maſter of this Company called their Pilgrim. The Wardens Purveyors of Alms.

Tailors purchaſe their Hall.

This Merchant-Taylors Hall, ſometime pertaining to a worſhipful Gentleman, named Edmond Crepin, [Dominus Crepin, after ſome Record] he, in the yeere of Chriſt, 1331. the ſixth of Edward the third, for a certaine Summe of Money to him paid, made his Grant thereof, by the Name of his principal Meſſuage, in the Wards of Cornhill and Broadſtreet, (which Sir Oliver Ingham, Knight, did then hold) to John of Taylors Inn.

Yakeſly, the King's Pavilion-maker. This was called the New Hall, or Taylors Inne, for a difference from their old Hall, which was about the back ſide of the Red Lion in Baſing Lane, and in the Ward of Cordwayner Street.

The Mer-chant Tay-lors Arms.

The 21. of Edward the fourth, Thomas [Holme, alias] Clarentius, Principal King of Armes for the South part of England, granted by his Patents to the ſaid Fraternity and Guild of Saint John Baptiſt, of Tailors and Linnen Armorers, to beare in a Field Silver, a Pavilion betweene two Mantles Imperiall, Purple, garniſhed with Gold, in a chiefe Azure, a holy Lambe, ſet within a Sunne, the Creaſt upon the Helme, a Pavilion Purple, garniſhed with Gold, &c.

K. Henry 7. incorporates them under the Name of Merchant Taylers.

After this, King Henry the 7. being himſelf a Brother of this Fraternity, or Guild of S. John Baptiſt, of Tailors or Linnen Armorers, (as divers others his Predeceſſours Kings had beene) to wit, Richard the 3. Edward the 4. Henry the 6. Henry the 5. Henry the 4. and Richard the 2. And for that divers of that Fraternity had (time out of minde) bin great Merchants, and had frequented all ſorts of Merchandiſes into moſt Parts of the World, to the Honour of the King's Realme, and to the great Profit of his Subjects, and of his Progenitors, and the Men of the ſaid Myſtery, (during the time aforeſaid) had exerciſed the buying and ſelling of all Wares and Merchandiſes; eſpecially, of Woollen Cloth, as well in Groſſe, as by Retaile, throughout all this Realme of England, and chiefly within the ſaid Citie: therefore he of his eſpecial Grace, did change, transferre and tranſlate the Guild aforeſaid, and did incorporate them into the Name of the Maſter and Wardens of the Merchant-Taylors, of the Fraternity of St. John Baptiſt, in the Citie of London.

Finke Lane.

Some diſtance Weſt from this, the Merchant Merchant Taylors Hall, is Finkes Lane, ſo called of Robert Finke, and Robert Finke his Sonne, James Finke, and Roſamond Finke. Robert Finke the elder, new builded the Pariſh Church of Saint Bennet commonly called Finke, of the Founder; his Tenements were both of Saint Bennets Pariſh, and Saint Martins Oteſwich Pariſh: the one halfe of this Finke Lane is of Broadſtreet Ward; to wit, on the Weſt ſide, up to the great and principall Houſe, wherein the ſaid Finke dwelled: But on the other ſide, namely the Eaſt, not ſo much towards Cornhill.

Repaired. R.

This Church is now repairing. They began in March laſt 1633. and by Michaelmas at the fartheſt do make account (God willing) it will be finiſhed: and ſo compleatly and abſolutely, with all things befitting, furniſhed, that we may for that Time ſay of this, as of the reſt; This Church was repaired, at the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners, richly and very worthily beautified in the Year of our Lord 1633. The Charge of this Repair and beautifying, by what they have don, and what they have to do very probably imagined, likely to amount to 400*l.* and upwards.

Hoſpital of Saint Anthony: ſometime a Synagogue of the Jews.

On the North ſide of this Street, from over againſt the Eaſt Corner of St. Martins Oteſwich Church, have yee divers fair and large Houſes, til you come to the Hoſpitall of St. Anthony, ſometime a Cell to of St. Anthonies of Vienna. For I read, that King Henry the third, granted to the Brotherhood of Saint Anthony of Vienna, a Place amongſt the Jews, which was ſometime their Synagogue, and had been builded by them, about the yeere 1231. But the Chriſtians obtained of the King, that it ſhould be dedicated to our bleſſed Lady: and ſince, an Hoſpital being there builded, was called St. Anthonies in London. It was founded in the Pariſh of St. Bennet Finke, for a Maſter, two Prieſts, one Schoole-maſter, and twelve poore Men: After which Foundation, amongſt other things given to this Hoſpitall, one was a Meſſuage and Garden, [whereon was builded the faire large Free-School] and one other parcel of Ground containing 37. Foot in Length, and 18. Foot in Bredth, in the Pariſh of Benet Fink. This was given to the Maſter of the Hoſpital, to the enlarging of their Church, and Houſe to the ſame belonging, for a Maſter, 14 Prieſts, &c. in the ſeventh of Henry the ſixth.

Gift of Henry the ſixth to St. Anthonies.

Moreover King Henry the ſixth, in the 20. of his Reigne, gave unto John Carpenter, Doctor of Divinity, Maſter of St. Anthonies Hoſpitall, and to his Brethren and their Succeſſors for ever, his Mannor of Ponington, with the Appurtenances, with certaine Penſions and Portions of Milburn, Turneworth, Charlton, and Up-wimburne, in the County of Southampton, towards the Maintenance of five Scholars in the Univerſity of Oxford, to be brought up in the Faculty of Arts, after the rate of tenne Pence the Week for every Scholar: ſo that the ſaid Scholars, before their going to Oxford, be firſt inſtructed in the Rudiments of Grammar at the College of Eaton, founded by the ſaid King.

In the yeere 1474. Edward the fourth granted to William Say, Batcheler of Divinity, Maſter of the Hoſpital of St. Anthonies, to have Prieſts, Clerkes, Scholars, poore Men, and Brethren of the ſame, Clerkes, or Lay-men, Queriſters, Proctors, Meſſengers, Servants in Houſhold, and other things whatſoever, like as the Prior, and Covent of St. Anthonies of Vienna, &c. This Hoſpital was annexed, united, and appropriated unto the Collegiate Church of St. George in Windſor, about the Year 1485. as was reported by Sir Anthony Baker, Maſter of the ſaid Hoſpital to Sir John Woolſborne Knt. and other Commiſſioners in the 37. of Henry VIII.

St. Anthonie Pigs fed on the Dunghills.

The Proctors of this Houſe were to collect the Benevolence of charitable Perſons, towards the building and ſupporting thereof. And amongſt other things obſerved in my Youth, I remember, that the Officers (charged with overſight of the Markets in this City) did divers time take from the Market-people, Pigs ſtarved, or otherwiſe unwholſome for Man's Suſtenance: theſe they did ſlit in the Ear. One of the Proctors for St. Anthonies tyed a Bell about the Necke, and let it feed on the Dunghils, no Man would hurt, or take it up: but if any gave to them Bread, or other Feeding, ſuch would they know, watch for, and daily follow, whining till they had ſomewhat given them: whereupon was raiſed a Proverbe, Such an one will follow ſuch an one, and whine as it were an Anthonie Pig: but if ſuch a Pig grew to be fat, and came to good liking, (as oft times they did) then the Proctor would take him up to the Uſe of the Hoſpital.

Sir John Tate a great Benefactor to St. Anthonies.

Since the ſaid annexing this Hoſpital to Windſor College, to wit, in the Year 1499, the 14. of Henry VII. Sir John Tate, ſometime Alebrewer, then a Mercer, cauſed his Brewhouſe, called the Swan, neere adjoining to the ſaid Free Chappell, College, or Hoſpital of St. Anthony, to be taken down for the enlarging of the Church, which was then newly builded; toward the building whereof, the ſaid Tate gave great Summes of Money.

A new Church built here. J. S.

This goodly Foundation having a Free-School and Almeſhouſes for poor Men, builded of hard Stone, adjoining to the Weſt End of the Church, was of old Time confirmed by Henry VI. in the Year 1447. The outward Work of this new Church was finiſhed in the Year 1501.]

Sir John Tate deceaſed 1514. and was there buried in a Monument by him prepared, as appeareth by an Indenture Tripartite, made between the ſaid John Tate, the Dean of Windſor, and William Milbourne Chamberlain.

Walter Champion, Draper, one of the Sheriffs of London, 1529. was buried there, and gave to the Beadmen twenty Pounds. The Lands by yeere of this Hoſpitall, were valued in the 37. yeere of Henry the 8. to be 55. Pounds, 6. Shillings, 8. Pence.

Here was alſo an antient Marble Tomb of John Taylor, ſometime Maſter of the Rolls, remaining long after the French enjoyed the Church, viz.

Schoolemaſter of St. Anthonies made Prebendary of Windſor, ſpoiled the School and Hoſpital.

One Johnſon (a Schoolmaſter here) became a Prebendary of Windſor, and then (by little and little) followed the Spoile of this Hoſpitall: He firſt diſſolved the Quire, conveyed away the Plate and Ornaments, then the Bels, and laſtly put out the Almes-men from their Houſes, appointing them Portions of 12 Pence the Week to each. But now I heare of no ſuch matter performed; for their Houſes, with other, be letten out for Rent, and the Church is a Preaching-place for the French Nation, who hold it at this Day of the Church of Windſor.

This Schoole was commended in the Reigne of Henry the ſixth, and ſithence alſo commended above other; but now it is decayed, and come to nothing, by taking that from it which thereunto belonged.

St. Pauls and St. Anthonies Schools. J. S.

This School kept equal Credit with that of Pauls; both which had the greateſt Reputation in the City in former Times. I meet with a merry Retainer at Q. Elizabeths Court, giving an Account of the great Entertainment ſhe had in her Progreſs Anno 1575. at Kenelworth Caſtle by the Earl of Leiceſter: where he ſpeaks of his going to this School: “Yee mervail perchance, “ſaith he, to ſee me ſo bookiſh. Let me tel “you in few Words. I went to School, forſooth, both at Polles and alſo at St. Antonies: “[was] in the fifth Forme, paſt Eſops Fables, red “Terence. Vos iſthæc intro auferte: And began “with my Virgil; Tityre tu patulæ. I could my “Rules, could conſtrue and pars with the beſt “of them, &c.

Theſe Scholars go in Proceſſion.

The Scholars of this School uſed at a certain time of the Year to go in Proceſſion. Thus I find in the Year 1562 on the 15 day of September, there ſet out from Mile End two hundred Children of this St. Anthonies School, all well be ſeen, and ſo along through Algate, down Cornhil, to the Stocks; and ſo to the Freer Auſtins, with Streamers and Flags, and Drums beating. And after, every Child went home to their Fathers and Friends.

The French Church.

The French or Walloon Church is ſtill in this Place, having been new built after the Ruines of the former Church by the great Fire. Formerly three Paſtors belonged to it. And in the Year 1652. the Paſtors were Delmey, Ciſner, and Stouppe. In thoſe times the two latter diſagreed with the firſt: Whom at length they with the Conſiſtory ſuſpended from his Miniſtry, upon pretence of Non-ſubmiſſion to certain Acts made by the Conſiſtory. And when he acquieſced not in their Cenſure, they ſummoned him to appear before the Cœtus of the Strangers Churches in London, as the true and competent Judge in ſuch Caſes, according to the Patent of King Edward VI. This Delmey had confuted in the Pulpit ſome Points that Ciſner and the other had preached. They had preached for the Obſervation of Holidays; and did moreover obſerve and keep ſuch Days: ſaying, that if they ſhould ſcruple to preach on thoſe Days, they ſhould ſcandalize the Churches of France and Geneva. But on the other hand Delmey urged, that in the Acts of two Colloquies of all the foreign Churches in this Realm, viz. that were kept Anno 1644. and Anno 1654. the Obſervation of Holidays were prohibited and all publick Exerciſes thereon. And therefore he thought it his Duty to oppoſe them and their Doctrines, who thereby had made an Irruption upon the Churches Diſcipline and Government. This gave the firſt ground of Offence between them. After Delmeys Suſpenſion, many of the Congregation were his Friends, (for he was a pious Man and good Preacher) and ſided with him, and required him to be reſtored to his Preaching. And he appealed to a Colloquy of all the French Churches within the Kingdom, at Southampton, Norwich, Canterbury, Sandwich, &c. according to the right and uſual way in ſuch Caſes. But Ciſner refuſed it, and declined their Judgment herein: and would have all Matters decided by themſelves and the Dutch Church in London; contrary to their Diſcipline and Government: which had been made by Conſent of all the ſaid Churches. Upon this a great many Families of this Congregation preferred a Petition An. 1656. to Oliver the Protector, that Delmeys Cauſe might be heard before a Colloquy. Which he granted: A Colloquy conſiſted of a Miniſter and an Elder of each Church. And in ſeventy ſix Years there had been twenty nine Colloquies. This Conteſt held for ſome Years.]

Kendricks Will. Preſent at this godly Work, Jo. Skinner, Andrew Kendrick, Tho. Singleton, &c.

IN the Name of God, Amen. The nine and twentieth of December, Anno Domini, 1624. And in the two and twentieth Yeere of the Reigne of our Soveraigne Lord King James, &c.

I John Kendrick, of the Citie of London, Draper, being ſicke in Body; but of good and perfect Memory, (for which I give moſt humble and hearty Thankes to Almighty God) doe make, ordaine and declare this my laſt Will and Teſtament, in manner and forme following: That is to ſay:

Diſpoſition of his Soule to God.

Firſt, and before all things, I commend and commit my Soule to Almighty God, my Creator; truſting moſt aſſuredly to be ſaved by the Death, Paſſion and onely merits of Jeſus Chriſt my Saviour and Redeemer.

For burial of his body.

And I will that my Body be decently interred in Chriſtian buriall, in the Pariſh Church of S. Chriſtopher, where I dwell; as mine Executor, hereafter named, ſhall order and appoint.

For poore Mourners.

Item, I give and bequeath to threeſcore Poore Men, to every of them a Gowne of Broadcloth, to weare on the Day of my Buriall: and twelve Pence apiece in Money to pay for their Dinners. The ſame poore Men to bee ſuch as my Executor ſhall appoint.

For Kindred, Friends, and Servants Mourners.

Item, I give and bequeath blacke Gownes and Cloakes, to be worne at my buriall by my Kindred, Friends, and Servants, as my Executor ſhall thinke meet: Not exceeding the Summe of ſixe hundred Pounds in the ſaid Gownes and Cloakes, and the reſt of the Charges of my Funerall.

A Dinner for his Friends, and the Pariſh Inhabitants.

Item, I give and bequeath the Sum of threeſcore Pounds, to bee beſtowed upon a Dinner, to be provided for my Friends, and the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of Saint Chriſtopher, where I now dwell, upon the Day of my Buriall, and in ſuch place as my Executor ſhall thinke meet and convenient.

His Gift to the Maior and Burgeſſes of Reading.

Item, I give and bequeath to the Maior and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Reading, in the County of Berkſhire, (I meane, to the Body corporate, or Corporation of the ſaid Towne of Reading, by whatſoever name or addition the ſame is made knowne) the Summe of ſeven thouſand and five hundred Pounds, upon ſpeciall Truſt and Confidence, that they ſhall therewith performe the Uſes following: That is to ſay:

The Uſes intended for the ſaid Sum.

The ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes ſhall buy and purchaſe unto them and their Succeſſors for ever, (I ſay, to the Body corporate of the ſaid Towne of Reading, by whatſoever name or addition the ſame is made or knowne) Lands and Hereditaments, of the cleere value of fifty Pounds by the Yeere, over and above all Charges and Repriſes. Which Summe of fifty Pounds a Yeere, my will and meaning is, ſhall bee paid by the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſours, unto my Siſter Anne Newman, yeerely during her naturall Life. And after her deceaſe, the ſame yeerely Sum of fifty Pounds, ſhall bee paid by the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſors, to the Overſeers of the Poore of the ſaid Towne of Reading (for the time being) yeerely for ever: And by them the ſaid Overſeers (for the time being) ſhall be beſtowed and diſtributed to and among the poore People of the ſaid Towne for ever: To wit, the moity thereof every halfe Yeere, in ſuch Sums, and to ſuch Perſons, as the ſaid Overſeers (for the time being) ſhall thinke meet, according to the neceſſity and deſert of the ſame ſeverall Perſons.

Care of his Siſter.

The uſual Benevolence of the rich is not to be hindred by this Gift.

Provided alwayes, and my meaning is, that this my yeerely Gift ſhall not any way abridge the ſaid Poore of the ordinary allowances, uſually aſſeſſed and collected of the wealthier ſort of the Inhabitants of the ſaid Towne, towards the reliefe of the ſaid poore People: But ſhal be unto them as an additament, and cleere increaſe of relief yeerly for ever.

For negligence in the diſtribution of this Gift.

And if this my Gift and Proviſion ſhall happen (which I truſt it ſhall not) to be by the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, or by the ſaid Overſeers for the time being, ordered and diſpoſed contrary to my meaning thus declared; or that my will and deſire above expreſſed, touching the beſtowing and diſtribution of the ſaid Summe of fifty Pounds yeerely, bee omitted, neglected, or left unperformed by the ſpace of one whole Yeere, after it is by this my Will appointed to be diſtributed and beſtowed as aforeſaid: Then my will and meaning is, that the ſaid Summe and Revenue of fifty Pounds a Yeere, ſhall be by the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſors for the time being for ever, paid unto the Treaſurer of Chriſts Hoſpitall: And by the Governours of the ſame Hoſpitall, imployed and beſtowed in the reliefe and education of the poore Children, of the ſaid Hoſpitall. Or elſe, that the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes for the time being; ſhall by their Deed in Law, conveigh and make over the Lands and Hereditaments of the ſaid yeerely value of fifty Pounds, unto the Maior

Maior and Commonalty and Citizens of the Citie of London, and their Succeſſors for ever, unto the uſe of the ſaid Hopitall, to be imployed as aforeſaid.

Payment to his Siſter during her natural Life.

Provided alwaies, that the ſaid fifty Pounds a Yeere, bee yeerely paid unto my ſaid Siſter Anna Newman, during her naturall Life: And after her deceaſe, to the charitable Uſes aforeſaid.

A houſe to be purchaſed for ſetting the poore to worke.

Moreover, my Will and Meaning is, as alſo my Truſt and Confidence in the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes of the Town of Reading is, that with another competent part of the ſaid Summe of ſeven thouſand five hundred Pounds, ſo by me deviſed as aforeſaid; they the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes ſhall buy and purchaſe unto them and their Succeſſors for ever, a faire Plot of Ground, within the ſaid Town of Reading, or the Liberties thereof. And thereupon ſhall erect and build a ſtrong Houſe of Bricke, fit and commodious for ſetting the Poor on work therein: Or elſe ſhall buy and purchaſe ſuch an Houſe, being already built, if they can finde one already fitting, or that may with a reaſonable Sum be made fit for the ſaid uſe. The ſame Houſe to have a faire Garden adjoyning, and to bee from time to time kept in good and ſufficient Reparations, by the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes for the time being, for ever. Which Houſe and Garden, my Will is, ſhall be uſed and occupied by ſuch as the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſors from time to time for ever ſhall appoint and ordaine, for the imploying and handling of the Stocke of Money, by mee hereby left and deviſed to that purpoſe.

The houſe is to have a Garden thereto adjoining.

Imploying and uſing the Stock of Money.

How the remainder of the Money is to be imployed for a common Stock.

And my Will and Meaning is, that the ſaid Lands and Hereditaments of the yeerly value of fifty Pounds, and alſo the ſaid Houſe and Garden, being bought and purchaſed as aforeſaid, with parcell of the ſaid Summe of ſeven thouſand five hundred Pounds: Then the whole reſidue and remainder of the ſame ſeven thouſand and five hundred Pounds, ſhall make and be a common Stocke, to be imployed and beſtowed in Trades of clothing; either in making of coloured Clothes, or Whites, as the time ſhall require. And alſo in working of Wooll, Hemp, Flax, Iron, grinding of Brazill Woods, and other Stuffes for dying, or otherwiſe, as to the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes aforeſaid, and their Succeſſors for ever ſhall ſeeme meet and convenient, for the Imployment of poor People, and for the preſervation and increaſe of the ſaid common Stock.

For handling and huſbanding the common Stock in the houſe.

And the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſors for ever, ſhall have the election, placing and ordering, as alſo the diſplacing (if cauſe bee) of all and every Perſon and Perſons, to bee imployed in the handling and huſbanding, of the common Stock in the Houſe aforeſaid: According to their the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes good Diſcretion, from time to time for ever.

Wherein yet my deſire is, that they ſhall prefer the Poore of the ſaid Town to the ſaid Worke and Imployment; before others of other Places.

In what manner the 7500 pounds is to be paid.

And for the performance of theſe Premiſſes, my Will is, that the Summe of ſeven thouſand and five hundred Pounds, before (for this end) by mee bequeathed to the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, or their Succeſſors: Shall be paid unto them or their Succeſſors, in manner and forme following; that is to ſay, two thouſand Pounds thereof at the end of one Yeere next after my deceaſe: Other two thouſand Pounds thereof, at the end of two yeeres, next after the Day of my deceaſe. And the reſidue of the whole Sum, being three thouſand and five hundred Pounds, at the end of three yeeres next enſuing, after and from the Day of my deceaſe.

For miſimploying the Stock contrary to the Doners Will.

But if it ſhall happen (as my Truſt is it will not) that the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, or their Succeſſors, ſhall neglect, omit or faile to performe the Premiſſes, according to my Will and Meaning above declared; or ſhall miſimploy the ſaid Stocke, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this my Device and Diſpoſition, for the good of the Poore, and their honeſt imployment and maintenance as aforeſaid; and that ſuch their neglect ſhall continue at any time, by the ſpace of one whole Yeere together: Then my Will and Meaning is, that my ſaid whole Legacy of ſeven thouſand and five hundred Pounds, and every part and parcell thereof, ſhall be thence utterly void, fruſtrate and of none effect, as to, for and concerning the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes and their Succeſſors; and as to, for and concerning the Uſes thereof before limitted and expreſſed. And that the ſaid whole common Stocke, ſhall bee by them the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſors for the time being; forthwith paid unto the Maior and Communalty and Citizens of the City of London, to the uſe of Chriſts Hoſpitall in London, according as I have above deviſed and diſpoſed, touching the revenue of fifty Pounds a Yeere for ever, firſt bequeathed to the Uſe and Reliefe of the poore People of the Towne of Reading.

His intent for London upon their failing.

Concerning the houſe and Garden at Reading deviſed.

As alſo my Will and Meaning is, that in this caſe of Non-performance by the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, the Houſe and Garden to be purchaſed in Reading, as aforeſaid: Shal be by the ſaid Maior and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſors, conveyed and made over by their Deed ſufficient in Law, unto the ſaid Maior and Communalty and Citizens of the City of London, and their Succeſſors for ever, to the like uſe of Chriſts Hoſpitall in London, as aforeſaid.

For purchaſing a Houſe and Garden at Newbery to ſet the poore on worke.

Item, I give and bequeath to the Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Newbury in the County of Berks (I meane the Body corporate of the ſame Towne) the Summe of foure thouſand Pounds, to buy and purchaſe therewith a commodious Houſe, and Garden within the ſame Towne, or the Liberties thereof; to ſet the Poore on worke. And with the reſidue of the ſame Summe, to make a common Stock, for the Imployment of the Poore in the ſaid Houſe; according to the good Diſcretion of the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes from time to time for ever. And according to my meaning before declared, in the deviſing of the Summe of ſeven thouſand and five hundred Pounds, to the Maior and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Reading, to the like uſe.

For neglect and miſimployment of the Stock committed unto their truſt.

But my Will and Meaning is, that if it ſhall happen (which I truſt will not) that the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Newbury, or their Succeſſors, ſhall neglect or faile to performe my Truſt and Meaning, hereby committed unto them, or ſhall miſimploy the ſaid Stocke, contrary to my good intent to the Poore before declared, by the ſpace of one whole Yeere (at any time) after my ſaid Legacy ſhall be paid unto them: Then my Will and Meaning is, that my ſaid whole Legacy of foure thouſand Pounds, and every part and parcell thereof, ſhall thenceforth be utterly void, and of none effect, as to, for and concerning the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Newbury, and their Succeſſors for ever. And that the ſaid whole common Stocke, be by them the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of Newbury, and their Succeſſors for the time being, forthwith paid over unto the Maior and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Reading in the ſame County. For non-performance of the Teſtators Will and Intent in the Towne of Newbury.

In the like manner alſo my Will and Meaning is, that in caſe of ſuch Non-performance of my Will and Intent, by the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Newbury, the Houſe and Garden by them ſo to bee purchaſed and built, as aforeſaid: Shall be by the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Newbury, and their Succeſſors; conveyed and made over by their Deed ſufficient in Law, unto the Maior and Burgeſſes of the ſaid Towne of Reading, and their Succeſſors for ever; to be by them ſold and converted into Money, and the ſame Money to be uſed and imployed in their common Stocke for the Poore in the ſaid Towne of Reading aforeſaid, in ſuch ſort, as I have formerly hereby expreſſed.

In what manner the foure thouſand pounds is to be paid to the Town of Newbury.

And for the performance of the ſaid Truſt and Uſes, by the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Towne of Newbury aforeſaid, my will and meaning is: That the ſaid Summe of foure thouſand Pounds ſo to them bequeathed and deviſed as aforeſaid; ſhall be paid unto them, or their Succeſſors, in manner as followeth; that is to ſay, one thouſand Pounds thereof at the end of one yeere, next enſuing after the Day of my deceaſe: One other thouſand Pounds thereof, at the end of two Yeers from and after my ſaid deceaſe. Scalding houſe or Scalding wicke.

Weſt from this Church have yee Scalding Alley, of old time called Scalding Houſe, or Scalding Wicke, becauſe that Ground (for the moſt part) was then employed by Poulters, that dwelled in the high Street, from the Stocks Market to the great Conduit. The Street doth yet bear the name of the Poultrie. And the Poulters are but lately departed from thence into other Streets: As into Graſſe Street, and to the Ends of *S. Tokenhouſe Yard.
Whalebone Court.

Next Throgmorton Street Weſt is Lothbury, a Street of a pretty good Trade, eſpecially for Founders for the making of Candleſticks, Bells, and divers Utenſils of Braſs and Copper; the part of this Street which is in this Ward goeth but to the Corner of St. Margarets Lothbury Church, which it takes in but a ſmall part of, the reſt is in Coleman Street Ward: The Courts in this part are, Greens Court but ordinary. Princes Court, likewiſe but ordinary. Faulcon Court, but ſmall, with a Free Stone Pavement. Token-houſe Yard, a large Place, with well built Houſes fit for good Inhabitants, eſpecially the Row on the Eaſt ſide, which have Court Yards, with Brick Walls before them; At the upper end of this Yard is a ſmall Paſſage down Steps into Bell Alley in Coleman Street Ward. This Place took its Name from an old Houſe there ſtanding, which anciently was the Office for delivering out of Farthings. Whalebone Court, large, with a Free Stone Pavement, hath good Houſes, pretty well tenanted.

St. Bartholomew Lane.
Ship Yard.
Nags Head Court.

Coming back we paſs up St. Bartholomew Lane, which runs up to the North ſide of the Royal Exchange; a Place well built and inhabited, and of a good Trade, and the rather for being ſo great a Throughfare to and from the Exchange. In this Lane are Ship Yard, which hath a wide Entrance, is repleniſhed with good Buildings, which are well inhabited; and the Court, which is ſpacious, hath a Free Stone Pavement. Nags Head Court is large, pretty well built and tenanted, with a Free Stone Pavement.

St. Bartholomews Church.

Then we come to St. Bartholomews Church ſeated at the South Eaſt Corner. This Church was deſtroyed in the Fire of London 1666. and is rebuilt of Free Stone, with a Towred Steeple.

Thredneedle Street.
Princes Street.
Drapers Court.
Katherine Court.

Out of Bartholomew Lane we come into Thredneedle Street: which takes its beginning on the Weſt in the Poultrey, and paſſing by St. Bartholomew Lane, and leaving Little Broadſtreet on the North ſide, and Finch Lane on the South, falleth into Biſhopſgate Street: In this Street are ſeveral good Buildings, well inhabited with divers noted Places, with Taverns, Coffee-houſes, and other publick Places of Entertainment. At the Weſt End of this Street is Princes Street, which with a turning Paſſage falls into Lothbury; this Street is very well built and inhabited; but the part next to Lothbury is in Coleman Street Ward. In the Part in this Ward is Drapers Court, which is pretty handſome, with a Free Stone Pavement, which with a turning Paſſage leads into Lothbury. Alſo Katharine Court, which is but ſmall and ordinary.

Three Nun Court.

But to go back again into Thredneedle Street, wherein are theſe Courts and Places, at the Weſt End Three Nun Court, pretty large and indifferent good, with a Free Stone Pavement.

St. Chriſtophers Church.

Next Eaſtward is S. Chriſtophers Church, a good Structure, new built ſince the great Fire, wherein the old Church was conſumed. On the North ſide it hath a good Churchyard encloſed with a Wall with Rows of Trees about it.

At the Eaſt End of this Church is another narrow Alley, which bears the Name of St. Chriſtophers Alley. At the upper End whereof, going down Steps, is a handſome open Court, with good Houſes, leaving alſo the ſame Name. This Church is in the Dioceſs of London, the Biſhop of London the Patron.

Caſtle Alley.

Next is Caſtle Alley on the other ſide: which falls into Cornhill. And to that Ward ſome part of it belongs.

Then is there a Paſſage into Cornhill on the Weſt ſide of the Exchange. Then further on the Eaſt ſide are Sweetings Rents and Alley, both narrow Places; with Free Stone Pavements, which alſo gives Paſſages into Cornhill: being Places taken up by Coffee-houſes, Eating-houſes and Shops.

St. Benet Fink Church.

A little further Eaſtward is the Pariſh Church of St. Benet Fink, a very handſome Free Stone Building, built Cupulo Faſhion. It is in the Dioceſs of London, the Maſter of S. Anthony was Patron. It was conſumed in the Fire of London 1666, and rebuilt as now it is.

Finch Lane.

Spread Eagle Court.

Then ſtill further Eaſt on the ſame ſide is Finch, or Finck Lane, and falls into Cornhill. This Lane is of no great Trade, the part next to Cornhill is out of this Ward. On the Weſt ſide is Spread Eagle Court, but ordinary, which with a turning Paſſage falls into Thredneedle Street againſt Little Broadſtreet.

French Church.

Hatton Court. Crown Court. Merchant Taylors Hall.

St. Martins Outwich Church.

At the very Corner of Thredneedle Street Eaſtward, where it fronts Biſhopſgate Street, is ſeated the Pariſh Church of St. Martins Outwich. It is in the Dioceſs of London, the Merchant Taylors Company the Patrons.

There are to watch at the ſeveral Stands in this Ward, every Night a Conſtable, the Beadle, and 30 Watchmen.

Cornehill Ward.

A Market place upon Cornhill.

THE next Ward towards the South, is Cornehill Ward: ſo called of a Corn-market, time out of mind there holden, and is a part of the principal high Street, beginning at the Weſt end of Leadenhall, ſtretching downe Weſt on both the ſides, by the South end of Finkes Lane on the right Hand, and by the North end of Birchovers Lane, on the left part; of which Lanes, to wit, to the middle of them, is of this Ward, and ſo downe to the Stockes Market; and this is the Bounds of this Ward. The upper or Eaſt part of this Ward, and alſo a part of Limeſtreet Ward, hath beene (as I ſaid) a Market-place, eſpecially for Corne, and ſince for all kinde of Victuals, as is partly ſhewed in Limeſtreet Ward.

Fiſh Market.

Fleſh Market at Leadenhall.

Yet it appeareth of Record, that in the Yeere 1522. the Rippiers of Rie and other Places ſold their freſh Fiſh in Leadenhall Market, upon Cornehill; but forraigne Butchers were not admitted there to ſell Fleſh, till the Yeere 1533.

Alteration of Prizes in ſhort time.

The Prizes of Fleſh.

And ſhortly after it was enacted, that the ſaid Butchers and others ſhould ſell their Beef and Mutton by Weight: to wit, Beef not above a halfe penny the pound; and Mutton, halfe penny, halfe farthing. Which Act being deviſed for the great commodity of the Realme, (as it was then thought) hath ſince proved farre otherwiſe: For before that time, a fat Oxe was ſold at London for 26 s. 8 d. at the moſt: a fat Weather for 3 s. 4 d. a fat Calfe the like Price; a fat Lambe for 12 d. Pieces of Beef weighed two pounds and a halfe at the leaſt; yea, three pound or better, for a penny, on every Butchers Stall in this Citie; and of thoſe pieces of Beef thirteen or fourteen for twelve pence: fat Mutton for eight pence the Quarter, and one hundred weight of Beef for 4 s. 8 d. at the deareſt.

A. M.

What the Price is now, I neede not to ſet downe, many Men thought the ſame to riſe in Price, by meane, that Graſiers knew, or ſuppoſed, what weight every their Beaſts contained, and ſo raiſing their price thereafter. The Butcher could be no gainer, but by likewiſe raiſing his Price. But the true Cauſes of enhancing the Prices both of thoſe and other Victuals, are not to be diſputed here.]

The number of Butchers then in the Citie and Suburbs was accounted ſixe ſcore, of which every one killed 6 Oxen a peece weekely: which is in 46 Weekes 3120 Oxen, or 720 Oxen weekely.]

The forraigne Butchers (for a long time) ſtood in the high Street of Limeſtreet Ward, twice every Weeke, viz. Wedneſday and Saturday, and were ſome gaine to the Tenants, before whoſe Doors they ſtood, and into whoſe Houſes they ſet their Blockes and Stalles, on the North ſide of that Street. But that advantage being eſpied, they were taken into Leadenhall, there to pay for their ſtanding to the Chamber of London.

Thus much for the Market upon Cornehill.

Standard of Thames-water by Leadenhall.

The chiefe Ornaments in Cornehill Ward are theſe: Firſt, at the Eaſt end thereof, in the middle of the high Street, and at the parting of foure wayes, have ye a Water-ſtandard, placed there in the Yeere 1582. in manner following: A certain German, or Dutch Man born, named Peter Morris, having made an artificiall Forcier for that purpoſe, conveyed Thames Water in Pipes of Lead, over the Steeple of St. Magnus Church, at the North end of London Bridge, and from thence into divers Mens Houſes in Thames-ſtreet, new Fiſh-ſtreet, and Graſs-ſtreet, up to the North Weſt Corner of Leadenhall, the higheſt Ground of all the Citie. Where the waſte of the maine Pipe riſing into this Standard, (provided at the Charges of the Citie) with foure Spouts, runneth four ways, at every Tide, according to Covenant, plentifully ſerving to the commodity of the Inhabitants neere adjoyning in their Houſes, and alſo cleanſing the Chanels of the Street toward Biſhopſgate, Aldgate, the Bridge, and the Stocks Market. But now no ſuch Matter: by whoſe default I know not.

Peter Morris.

The higheſt Ground of the Citie of London.

A Conduit here.

Then have ye a faire Conduit, of ſweet Water, caſtellated in the midſt of that Ward and Street. This Conduit was firſt builded of Stone, in the yeere 1282. by Henry Wallis, Maior of London, to be a Priſon for Night-walkers, and other ſuſpicious Perſons, and was called the Tunne upon Cornehill, becauſe the ſame was builded ſomewhat in faſhion of a Tunne, ſtanding on the one end.

The Tun upon Cornehill, a priſon-houſe for night-walkers.

Alſo without the Weſt ſide of this Tun was a fair Well of Springing Water, curbed round with hard Stone.

Temporal Men puniſh Spiritual Perſons for Incontinency. The Biſhop complaineth. The King forbids the Laity for puniſhing the Clergymen.

To this Priſon of the Tun the Night Watches of this Citie committed not onely Night-walkers, but alſo other Perſons, as well Spiritual as Temporal, whom they ſuſpected of Incontinencie, and puniſhed them according to the Cuſtomes of this Citie: but complaint thereof being made, about the yeere of Chriſt, 1297. King Edward the firſt writeth to his Citizens thus:

Edward by the Grace of God, &c. Whereas Richard Graveſend, Biſhop of London, hath ſhewed unto us, that by the great Charter of England, the Church hath a Priviledge, that no Clerke ſhould be impriſoned by a Lay-man, without our Commandment, and Breach of Peace; which notwithſtanding, ſome Citizens of London, upon meere ſpight, doe enter in their Watches into Clerks Chambers, and then (like Felons) carry them to the Tunne, which Henry le Wallis, ſometime Maior, built for Night-walkers. Wherefore wee will that this our Commaundement be proclaimed in a full Hoyſtings; and that no Watch hereafter enter into any Clerks Chamber, under the forfeit of 30 pound. Dated at Carlile the 18. of March, the 25. of our Reigne.

Citizens of London break up the Tun upon Cornhill.

More I read that about the yeere of Chriſt, 1299. the 27. of Edward the firſt, certain principal Citizens of London, to wit, T. Romane, Richard Glouceſter, Nicholas Faringdon, Adam Helingbury, T. Saly, John Dunſtable, Richard Aſhwy, John Wade, and William Strotford brake up this Priſon, called the Tunne, and tooke out certaine Priſoners. For the which they were ſharply puniſhed, by long Impriſonment, and great Fines, as in another Place I have ſhewed. It coſt the Citizens (as ſome have written) more than 20000 Markes, which they were amerced in, before William de March, Treaſurer of the Kings Exchequer, to purchaſe the Kings Favour, and the Confirmation of their Liberties.

Tho. Walſingham.

Citizens of London puniſhed Fornication and Adultery in Prieſts as well as others, without partiality.

Alſo, that in the yeere 1383. the ſeventh of Richard the ſecond, the Citizens of London taking upon them the Rights that belonged to their Biſhops, firſt impriſoned ſuch Women as were taken in Fornication or Adultery, in the ſaid Tunne; and after, bringing them forth to the Sight of the World, they cauſed their Heads to be ſhaven, after the manner of Theeves, whom they named Appellators, and ſo to be led about the City, in Sight of all the Inhabitants, with Trumpets and Pipes ſounding before them, that their Perſons might be the more largely knowne: Neither did they ſpare ſuch kind of Men a whit the more, but uſed them as hardly, ſaying; They abhorred not only the Negligence of their Prelates, but alſo deteſted their Avarice, that ſtudied for Money, omitted the Puniſhment limited by Law, and permitted thoſe that were found guilty to live favourably by their Fines. Wherefore they would themſelves, they ſaid, purge their Citie from ſuch Filthineſs, leſt through Gods Vengeance, either the Peſtilence or Sword ſhould happen to them, or that the Earth ſhould ſwallow them. Laſt of all to be noted, I reade in the Charge of the Wardmote Inqueſt in every Ward in this Citie, theſe Words: If there bee any Prieſt in Service within the Ward, which before-time hath beene ſet in the Tunne in Cornehill for his Diſhoneſty, and hath forſworne the Citie, all ſuch ſhall bee preſented.

Prieſts puniſhed in the Tun upon Cornhill forced to forſweare this City.

Thus much for the Tunne in Cornhill have I read.

Now, for the Puniſhment of Prieſts, in my Youth, one Note and no more. John Atwod, Draper, dwelling in the Pariſh of St. Michael upon Cornehill, directly againſt the Church, having a proper Woman to his Wife, ſuch an one as ſeemed the holieſt amongſt a thouſand, had alſo a luſty Chauntry Prieſt of the ſaid Pariſh Church, repairing to his Houſe, with the which Prieſt, the ſaid Atwod would ſometime after ſupper play a Game at Tables for a pint of Ale. It chanced on a time, having haſte of worke, and his Game proving long, he left his Wife to play it out, and went downe to his Shop: but returning to fetch a preſſing-iron, he found ſuch play (to his miſliking) that hee forced the Prieſt to leap out at a Window, over the Penthouſe into the Street, and ſo to run to his Lodging in the Churchyard. Atwod and his Wife were ſoon reconciled, ſo that he would not ſuffer her to be called in queſtion; but the Prieſt being apprehended and committed, I ſaw his Puniſhment to be thus: He was on three Market Days conveyed thorow the high Street and Markets of the Citie, with a Paper on his Head, wherein was written his Treſpaſſe. The firſt Day hee rode in a Carry; the ſecond, on a Horſe, his Face to the Horſe Taile; the third, led betwixt twaine, and every day rung with Baſons, and Proclamations made of his Fact at every turning of the Streets, and alſo before John Atwod's Stall, and the Church Doore of his Service, where he loſt his Chauntry of twenty Nobles the Yeere, and was baniſhed the Citie for ever.

A Prieſt puniſhed for Lechery.

The Conduit upon Cornhill.

In the yeere 1401. the ſaid Priſon-houſe, called the Tunne, was made a Ceſterne for ſweet Water, conveyed by Pipes of Lead from Tyborne, and was from thenceforth called the Conduit upon Cornehill. Then was the Wall plancked over, and a ſtrong Priſon made of Timber, called a Cage, with a Pair of Stocks ſet upon it; and this was for Night-walkers. On the top of which Cage was placed a Pillory, for the Puniſhment of Bakers, offending in the Aſſiſe of Bread; for Millers ſtealing of Corne at the Mill, and for Bawds and Scolds, and other Offenders.

Cage, Stocks and pillory in Cornhill.

Bakers, Millers, Bauds, Scolds, and common Jurors for Rewards, puniſhed on the pillory.

As in the yeere 1468. the 7. of Ed. 4. divers Perſons, being common Jurors, ſuch as at Aſſiſes were forſworne for Rewards, or Favour of Parties, were judged to ride from Newgate to the Pillorie in Cornhill, with Miters of Paper on their Heads: there to ſtand, and from thence againe to Newgate. And this Judgment was given by the Maior of London.

Ringleaders of falſe Inqueſts ſo ſerved.

In the Yeere 1509. the firſt of Henry the 8. Darby, Smith, and Simſon, Ringleaders of falſe Inqueſts in London, rode about the Citie with their Faces to the Horſes Tailes, and Papers on their Heads, and were ſet on the Pillorie in Cornehill, and after brought againe to Newgate, where they dyed for very Shame, ſaith Robert Fabian. A Ring-leader of Inqueſts, as I take it, is he, that making a gainful Occupation thereof, will appeare upon Niſi prius's ere he be warned, or procure himſelfe to be warned to come on by a Tallis. Hee will alſo procure himſelf to be Fore-man, when hee can, and take upon him to over-rule the reſt to his Opinion: ſuch an one ſhall be laboured by Plantifes and Defendants, not without Promiſe of Rewards; and therefore to be ſuſpected of a bad Conſcience. I would wiſh a more careful choice of Jurors to bee had: for I have knowne a Man carted, rung with Baſons, and baniſhed out of Biſhopſgate Ward, and afterward, in Aldgate Ward admitted to be Conſtable, a Grand Jury Man, and Foreman of their Wardmote Inqueſt. What I know of the like, or worſe Men, preferred to the like Offices, I forbeare to write, but wiſh to be reformed.

Ring-leaders of Inqueſts will proffer their Service, and bend every way for gaine. Careful choice of Jurors is to be had: a Man detected, and that had ſworne fooliſhly againſt his Brother, is not to be admitted a common Juror. Neither Butcher nor Surgeon is to be admitted.

Conduit on Cornhill inlarged.

The foreſaid Conduit upon Cornehill was in the yeer 1475 inlarged by Robert Drope, Draper, Maior, that then dwelt in that Ward; he inlarged the Ceſtern of this Conduit with an Eaſt End of Stone, and Lead, and caſtellated it in comely manner.

In the yeere 1546. Sir Martin Bowes, Maior, dwelling in Lumbard Street, and having his back Gate opening into Cornhill, againſt the ſaid Conduit, minded to have inlarged the Ceſterne thereof with a Weſt end, like as Robert Drope before had done towards the Eaſt. View and Meaſure of the Plot was taken for this Worke: but the Pillory and Cage being removed, they found the Ground planked, and the Well aforeſaid worne out of Memory. Which Well they revived and reſtored to uſe; [it is ſince made a Pumpe:] They ſet the Pillorie ſomewhat Weſt from the Well, and ſo this Work ceaſed.

The Wey-houſe or Kings Beame upon Cornhill.

On the North ſide of this Street, from the Eaſt unto the Weſt, have ye faire Houſes for Merchants and others; amongſt the which, one large Houſe is called the Wey-houſe; where Merchandiſes brought from beyond Seas, are to be weighed at the Kings Beame. This Houſe hath a Maſter, and under him foure Maſter Porters, with Porters under them; they have a ſtrong Cart, and were uſed to have foure great Horſes, to draw and carry the Wares from the Merchants Houſes to the Beame, and back againe; now three Horſes ſerve the turn. Sir Tho. Lovell, Kt. builded this Houſe, with a faire front of Tenements toward the Street. All which he gave to the Grocers of London, himſelf being free of the Citie, and a Brother of that Company.

Drapers of Cornhill. Tow. Record. J. S.

Drapers from ancient times have had their Dwellings and Shops here in Cornhill: There was one John Olyver Pannarius de Cornhull. Between three and four hundred Years ago we meet with the Drapers of Cornhull: Who were of the Fraternity of S. Mary of Bethlehem. As appears by this Record. “On Honour, &c. To the Honour of our Lord Jhu Criſt and his ſwete Moder Seint Marie owr Ladie of Bethlem; in which moſt holie place our ſeid Lord Jhu Criſt was choſen to be born in hys Salvacion of al his People: In which place of Bethlem the Starre apperyd to the Shepherds, and gave and ſhewed Lyght to the three Kyngys of Coloyne, who offered in the ſame place of Bethlem three Gyftes, Golde, Myrrhe, and Inſenſe; one Fraternite is begon, for the ſame Honour, in amendment of their Lyves, by the Aſſent of the Fryar Wyllyam Titte, Fryar of the Hoſpital of owr Ladie of Bethlem of London. Which is a Cell of the Place of Bethlem: And for other good People DRAPERS of CORNHULL, and other good Men and Women, which will be Broders and Syſters, and maintein the ſame Fraternite for the term of their Lives, and al the Points that follow, &c. To pay xx Shillings entrance, and every year two Shillings, and every quarter ſix Pence. Which Fraternite was extant 1361. and their Feaſt was on the Purification of our Lady.]

Then have ye the ſaid Finkes Lane, the South end of which Lane on both the ſides, is in Cornehill Ward.

The Burſe upon Cornhill, or the Royal Exchange.

Swan Alley. New Alley.

St. Chriſtophers Alley. Houſholders diſplaced for building of the Burſe.

Then next is the Royall Exchange, erected in the Yeere 1566. after this order, viz. Certaine Houſes upon Cornehill, and the like upon the backe thereof, in the Ward of Broadſtreet, with three Alleys; the firſt called Swan Alley, opening into Cornehill; the ſecond, New Alley, paſſing thorow out of Cornehill into Broadſtreet Ward, over againſt St. Bartholomew Lane; the third, S. Chriſtophers Alley, opening into Broadſtreet Ward, and into Saint Chriſtophers Pariſh, containing in all fourſcore Houſholds; were firſt purchaſed by the Citizens of London, for more than 3532. * Pounds, and were ſold for 478. Pounds, to ſuch Perſons as ſhould take them downe, and carry them thence. Alſo the Ground or Plot was made plaine at the Charges of the Citie, and then Poſſeſſion thereof was by certaine Aldermen (in the name of the whole Citizens) given to Sir Thomas Greſham, Kt. Agent to the Queens Highneſſe, thereupon to build a Burſe, or place for Merchants to aſſemble in, at his owne proper Charges: And hee, on the ſeventh of June, laying the firſt Stone of the Foundation, beeing Bricke, accompanied with ſome Aldermen, every of them laid a piece of Gold, which the Workmen tooke up, and forthwith followed upon the ſame with ſuch diligence, that by the Moneth of November, in the yeere 1567. the ſame was covered with Slate, and ſhortly after fully finiſhed.

* It was above 4000 l. as the Maior and Aldermen did ſet forth in their Anſwer to the Lady Greſhams Supplication. J. S.

The Cities Charges. The Ground given by the City to Sir Tho Greſham, to build the Exchange.

Queen Elizabeth came to the Burſe.

In the yeere 1570. on the 23. of January, the Queens Majeſtie, attended with her Nobility, came from her Houſe at the Strand, called Somerſet Houſe, and entred the City by Temple-Barre, through Fleetſtreet, Cheape, and ſo by the North ſide of the Burſe, through Three Needle Street, to Sir Thomas Greſhams in Biſhopſgate Street, where ſhe dined. After Dinner, her Majeſty returning through Cornehill, entred the Burſe on the South ſide. And after ſhee had viewed every part thereof above the Ground; eſpecially the Pawne, which was richly furniſhed with all ſorts of the fineſt Wares in the Citie; She cauſed the ſame Burſe, by an Herauld and a Trumpet, to be proclaimed the Royall Exchange, and to bee ſo called from thenceforth, and not otherwiſe.

The Burſe called the Royal Exchange.

J. S.

E. Howes.

The Rent of the Shops here brought in conſiderable Gains to Sir Thomas Greſham the Builder. And about five or ſix Years after the Shops were all furniſhed with Wares, Greſham conſtrained all the Shopkeepers that had Shops above, to take Shops below, in the loweſt Vaults of the Exchange, where was an equal number of Shops to thoſe above. At which time every one paid four Marks a Year for every Shop above; and he would have as much Rent for every Shop below, or elſe they ſhould not have a Shop above. But after they had kept Shop below a little while, what with the damp of the Vault, the darkneſs of the Place, and the unwillingneſs of Cuſtomers to buy their Wares there, they were ſo wearied, that they agreed among themſelves to give 4 l. a Year for a Shop above, ſo that they might be freed from keeping Shop below: And ſo Sir Thomas ſhould turn the Vault to what other uſe he would, either for Merchants Goods, or otherwiſe. Which offer he accepted; and ſo the Tenants only furniſhed the Shops above; And as they remain to this day. And the Vaults have been uſed now a long time for ſtowing of Merchandizes, and chiefly Pepper.

A Burſe much wanted before this was built. J. S.

Before this Exchange was thus built and compleated, there had been many Thoughts and Counſels among the Citizens and Merchants about the effecting of it; it being a thing greatly needed by thoſe that followed Merchandize, ſince it could not be carried on conveniently without ſuch a Place for meeting and conference together. And among the reſt, Richard Clough, Sir Thomas Greſham's Correſpondent in Antwerp in the Year 1561. wrote a Letter to him, blaming the City of London for neglecting ſo neceſſary a thing: Calling the Governours of the ſaid City, a Company that did ſtudy for nothing elſe than their own private Profit? “Conſidering, added he, what a City London is; and that in ſo many Years the ſame found not the means to make a Burſe, but Merchants muſt be contented to ſtand and walk in the Rain, more like Pedlars than Merchants. In this Country, ſaid he, [meaning Antwerp] and in all other, there is no kind of People that have occaſion to meet, but ye have a Place meet for that purpoſe. Indeed, and if your Buſineſs were done [here] and that I might have the leiſure to go about it, and that I would be a means to Mr. Secretary to have his Favour therein; I would not doubt but to make ſo fair a Burſe in London, as the great Burſe is in Antwerp without ſoliciting of any Man more than he ſhall be well diſpoſed to give, &c. Whence one may conjecture that Greſham had it in his Thoughts ſometime before, and wanted only a Contribution from ſome wealthy Citizens to aſſiſt in ſo expenſive a Work: Which he obtained at laſt: The Citizens having purchaſed the Fee Simple of the Ground and Houſes, by certain Truſtees, conveyed it over to him to build the ſaid Burſe upon: And in the Conveyance he was to make a Re-aſſurance again to them upon certain Conditions. But he dying before this was done, ſome difference happened between the Lady Greſham and the City.

Greſham gets Glory hereby.

Sir Thomas Greſham got great Fame and Glory by this magnificent Work, and every one took their occaſions to extol him. Thus one Hugh Gough, in a Book dedicated to him ſoon after his finiſhing this Structure, entertained him with Words to this Tenor: “That few had flouriſhed in whom all theſe commendable Qualities had reigned; as both to be beneficial to their Country by ſafe Counſel, procuring of ſafeguard for the ſame, and beſtowing of their ſubſtance, to the building of ſuch famous and magnificent Works as might ſerve for common Utility unto all Men. And by the diſcretion of thoſe Men that be learned and wiſe, if ever any Subject hath enjoyed them, they attribute it unto you. For what is he, which is ignorant of the Policies and Travails that your Works have uſed and ſuſtained, for to get Safeguard, and requiſite Furniture to the Realm. Beſide the infinite Riches given to the building of that princely Work, commonly call'd the Burſe. Which already declareth, and in London is openly to be ſeen, what Commodity generally it will bring to the Citizens thereof. To what end ſhould I rehearſe or make mention of the great diverſity, which Men account to be betwixt it and the huge Tower of Babylon, or the outragious Buildings in Egypt, named Pyramides; or of the exceeding difference, wherein it excelleth the intricate Labyrinths, and monſtrous Pillars erected in divers Parts of the World? Conſidering that it is unknown unto few, that theſe were builded for a vain Oſtentation, or frivolous Memorial, without any profitable Uſe; or of Envy, becauſe the Founders thereof would not leave ſuch ſtore of worldy Treaſure unto their Succeſſors. I need not make rehearſal of their Courteſy, Gentleneſs, Friendſhip and Liberality towards all Men; yea, and, which deſerveth no ſmall Commendation, towards the Unknown and Strangers, &c.

The Lady Greſham contends for the Exchange.

After the Death of Sir Thomas Greſham, the Founder of the Exchange, in the Year 1592. Lady Greſham, his Widow, contended with the Maior and Truſtees for the Exchange; endeavouring to get an Act of Parliament to empower her and her Heirs to make Leaſes from time to time of twenty one Years or three Lives, of the Shops in the Exchange, keeping the Fines to her ſelf. Which was ſuppoſed to be againſt the laſt Will of Sir Thomas, and contrary to an Act of Parliament made in the 23. of the Queen. She alſo complained, that the City did not, or would not, employ the Profits of the Exchange according to Sir Thomas's Will. This ſhe exhibited by way of Supplication to the Council againſt the Lord Maior and his Brethren, the Aldermen.

The Cities Vindication of themſelves againſt her.

To which they ſubjoyned this Anſwer; “That whereas the Lady Greſham had deſired to have an Act of Parliament to authorize her and her Heirs from time to time to makes Leaſes of twenty one Years, or three Lives, of the Shops in the Royal Exchange, keeping the Fines thereof to her ſelf, and reſerving as many Rents as is now reſerved to remain to the City of London: It is thereunto aunſwered, That the ſame her Demand is utterly againſt both the laſt Will and Teſtament of Sir Thomas Greſham, her late Husband, as alſo expreſly againſt an Act of Parliament made in the 23. Year of her Majeſties Reign. Unto which Act the ſaid Lady Greſham was privy, and her Council was heard, what they could ſay, before the ſaid Act paſſed. And they ſay alſo, the ſame Requeſt of the Lady Greſham is againſt all Reaſon and Equity. For that the Citizens of the City of London purchaſed in Fee Simple, in the name of Livers Feoffees, the Soyl whereupon the Royal Exchange is builded, and paid for the ſame above 4000 l. And in the eighth Year of her Majeſties Reign conveyed the ſame to Sir Thomas Greſham, upon Condition to have Re-aſſurance made according to certain Covenants: Which was not done. And albeit the Citizens might lawfully have entred for Breach of the ſaid Condition, and preſently taken the Rents and Profits of the whole; yet they have contented themſelves to accept of the ſame according to the laſt Will, and Act of Parliament, and have ſuffered the ſaid Lady Greſham to take the whole Profits: And yet they have been at great Charges in the defending of Titles made to ſome part of the ſame, and in paying of Quit-Rents, Tithes and Widows Dowers: Which they ſtill continue to this Day.

“Touching the Employments of the Profits of the Exchange according to the Purport of the Teſtament of Sir Thomas Greſham; it is thereunto aunſwered, that it it meant, and ſo it ſhall be performed, that the ſame after the Death of the Lady Greſham, ſhal be employed

“ juſtly and truly, according to the Truſt and “ Confidence in them repoſed. Which if they “ ſhould break, there are Courts of Equity that “ can take order for remedy thereof. But for-“ aſmuch as the ſaid Lady Greſham is to have “ the ſame during her Life, and the Employ“ ments are not to be made till after her Death:
“ Thereſore this Complaint is now made, before
“ any Injury be offered. And as it is now cauſeleſs;
“ ſo the ſaid Lord Maior and Aldermen do aſ-“ ſuredly perſuade themſelves, there ſhall not at “ any time be any Cauſe given, of their Parts,
“ to complain againſt them. Wherefore their “ moſt humble ſuite is, that the ſaid Exchange
“ may be by them enjoyed, according to the “ ſaid Will, and Act of Parliament.

This Lady Greſham dyed Anno 1596. as Sir Thomas did Anno 1579.

Rents of the Exchange.

The Rents of this Royal Exchange, which the Lady Greſham enjoyed during her Life, with all Houſes, Buildings, Vaults and Profits thereof, amounted to the yearly value of 751 l. 5 s. per annum, over all Charges and Reprizes.

The Exchange burnt down.

This Royal Exchange was burnt down in the great Fire; but is riſen again in much greater Splendor than it was before; and the lively Effigies of Sir Thomas Greſham under one of the Piazzas is reſtored as it ſtood at firſt.

The Charge of building the Exchange. Mr. Thomas Blackmore.

This moſt magnificent Structure coſt the City and Company of Mercers between them 80000 l. as I have been told by a judicious Citizen that knew, and a Mercer. The Model was firſt ſhewn to King Charles II. who liked it well. But it was debated, whether they ſhould build after this Model, for fear of launching too deep in the Expences. Several therefore were againſt it, but the Majority prevailed, having their Eye upon the Honour of the City, and ſuppoſing the Rents of the Shops above Stairs and below, would in time re-emburſe them; which it appears now (too late) it will not: And ſo they are left in Debt for it.

There be Committees for this Exchange, and that other publick Building of Sir Thomas Greſham, called Greſham College: Who manage the Rents and Payments thereof. Theſe Committees conſiſt of the Lord Maior for the time being, and two Aldermen; and a certain number of the Company of Mercers, and the like of Citizens, commonly one of each of the eleven Companies.]

The Statues of the Kings.

In the outward Structure of this Exchange are many Niches; wherein are fixed well wrought Statues of the Kings and Queens of this Land, as there were in the old Exchange, conſumed by the great Fire. And as King Edward the Confeſſor then was the firſt Statue placed in the North Eaſt Corner, ſo now the firſt is Edward I. placed on the South Eaſt Corner: that ſo room might be left on the Eaſt ſide for the ſucceeding Kings of England, where ſome Niches are void for that purpoſe. Beſides which are three or four others empty, being the places of Edward II. Richard II. Henry IV. and Richard III. Theſe fine Stone Figures were given by the City, and ſome of the twelve Companies of London: Whereof that of King James I. was at the Charge of the Clothworkers. But it ſeems none of them had any mind to ſhew their Reſpects to thoſe ſaid Kings; two whereof took away the Cities Charter, and the two others were Uſurpers. There be Inſcriptions under the Statues, denoting what Kings and Queens they were, and the time of their acceſs to the Crown. I ſhall only mention the Inſcription under K. Charles I. being Hiſtorical. Who after he had loſt his Head, the Zealots of thoſe Times ſhewed their Rage and Malice by climbing up where his Effigies ſtood, and throwing it down and breaking it, and cauſing to be writ under the Place where he ſtood, Exit Tyrannorum ultimus, &c. Now under the preſent Figure of him, (ſet up by the Grocers) to vindicate his Memory, (where he is repreſented holding his Sceptre not upright, but ſtretched downward towards the People,) is this Inſcription.

Ἐικὼν Βασιλικὴ Sereniſſimi ac Religioſiſſimi Principis CAROLI I. Angliæ, Scotiæ, Franciæ & Hib. Regis, Fidei Defenſoris (bis Martyris, Corpore & Effigie) impiis Rebellium manibus ex hoc loco deturbata & confracta, Anno Domini MDCXLVIII. Reſtituta & hic demum collocata Anno Domini MDCLXXXIII.

Gloria Martyrii, qui te fregêre Rebelles,
Non potuëre ipſum, quem voluere, DEUM.

To which I will ſubjoyn the Inſcription under the Statues of King William and Queen Mary, thoſe two moſt excellent Princes.

S. P. Q. Londinen. Opt. Principibus P. C. MDCXCV.

By which it appears they were ſet up by the City, of which they had deſerved ſo paſſing well: Having reſtored to it its Charter and ancient Privileges.

The Statue of Queen Anne is the next that appears there.

And now lately that of King GEORGE her Succeſſor, is erected.

The Exchange opened.

Sept. 28. 1669. was the day the Exchange new built was opened for the Merchants again to meet in; where, was expected the King, but he did not come. But the Lord Maior, Sir Will. Turner came, and walked twice about it, and congratulated the Merchants their Change again. There was written upon it this Inſcription;

Hoc GRESHAMII Periſtyllium,
Gentium Commerciis Sacrum,
Flammis extinctum 1666.
Auguſtius è cinere reſurrexit 1669.
Willᵒ Turnero Milite Prætore.

Statue of K. Charles II.

In the middle of the Exchange Walk, on a Pedeſtal ſtands a fair Stone Statue, repreſenting King CHARLES II. in the Habit of a Roman Emperor, with a Laurel about his Head, and a Truncheon in his Hand: It was ſet up by the Merchants in Honour of that King, Anno 1684. Under him on the ſame Pedeſtal on the South ſide facing Cornhil, is this Inſcription:

CAROLO CÆSARI BRITANNICO,

Patriæ Patri, Regum Optimo, Clementiſſimo, Auguſtiſſimo, Generis Humani Deliciis, Utriuſq; Fortunæ Victori, Pacis Europæ Arbitro, Maris Domino & Vindici.

Societas Mercatorum Adventuror. Angliæ, (quæ per CCCC jam propè annos, regia benignitate floret) Fidei intemeratæ, Gratitudinis æternæ Teſtimonium, venerabunda poſuit.

On the top of this Inſcription a Crown adorned with Palm Branches, Scepter, Sword and Trumpets of Fame. On the Weſt ſide of the Pedeſtal a Boy winged, laying his right Hand upon the Crown ſet over the Arms of England, and holding in its left a Branch with two Roſes, viz. of York and Lancaſter. On the North ſide the like Boy with Wings, holding the Crown reſting upon the Iriſh Harp. On the Eaſt ſide the winged Boy, holding the Armes of Scotland crowned: Having a Thiſtle with the Stalk in his right Hand.]

The Caſtle a large Stone Houſe.

Next adjoyning to this Royall Exchange, remaineth one part of a large Stone Houſe, and is now called the Caſtle, of ſuch a Signe at a Taverne Doore; there is a Paſſage thorow, out of Cornehill into Three-needle Street: The other part of the ſaid Stone Houſe was taken downe, for enlarging the Royall Exchange. This Stone Houſe was ſaid of ſome to have bin a Church, whereof it had no proportion. Of others, a Jews Houſe, as though none but Jews had dwelt in Stone Houſes: But that Opinion is without warrant.

The cauſe of Stone Houſes builded in London.

For, beſide the ſtrong building of Stone Houſes, againſt invaſion of Theeves in the Night, when no Watches were kept, in the firſt Yeere of Richard the Firſt, (to prevent the Caſualties of fire, which often had happened in the Citie, when the Houſes were builded of Timber, and covered with Reed or Straw, (Henry Fitz Alwine being Maior) it was decreed, that from thenceforth, no Man ſhould build within the Citie, but of Stone, untill a certaine heighth, and to cover the ſame Building with Slate, or brent Tile. And this was the very cauſe of ſuch Stone Buildings, whereof many have remained till our time; but for winning of Ground, they have been taken down, and in place of ſome one of them, being low (as but two Stories above the Ground) many Houſes of four or five Stories high are placed.

From this Stone Houſe downe to the Stockes, are divers large Houſes, eſpecially for height, for Merchants and Artificers.

The Pariſh of S. PETERS upon Cornhill.

Pariſh Church of S. Peter upon Cornehill.

On the South ſide of this high Street, is the Pariſh Church of Saint Peter upon Cornehill, which ſeemeth to be an ancient building, but yet not ſo ancient as Fame reporteth: For it hath beene lately repaired, if not new builded, except the Steeple, which is ancient.

* Of a late hand. Second Edit.

The Roofe of this Church, and glaſing, was finiſhed in the Reign of Edward the Fourth, as appeareth by Armes of Noblemen, and Aldermen of London then living. There remaineth in this Church a Table, wherin it is written, I know not by what Authority, but of no late Hand*; that King Lucius founded the ſame Church, to bee an Archbiſhops Sea, and made it the Metropolitane and chiefe Church of his Kingdome, and that it ſo endured the ſpace of foure hundred Yeeres, unto the comming of Auguſtine the Monke.

A. M.

[Now, becauſe many have urged it very earneſtly to me, to let them be further acquainted therewith; I have here inſerted the ſame verbatim, as it is there recorded in the Table.

Library of S. Peters upon Cornehill, now a Grammar Schoole.

Joceline of Furneis writeth, that Thean, the firſt Archbiſhop of London in the Reigne of Lucius, builded the ſaid Church, by the aide of Ciran, chiefe Butler to King Lucius. And alſo that Elvanus, the ſecond Archbiſhop, builded a Library to the ſame Church adjoyning, and converted many of the Druides, learned Men in the Pagan Law, to Chriſtianity.

Out of the Deſcription of Britaine, written by William Harriſon.

A. M.

William Harriſon, diſcourſing hereon more at large, hath theſe very words:

There is a Controverſie (ſaith hee) moved among our Hiſtoriographers, whether the Church that Lucius builded at London, ſtood at Weſtminſter, or in Cornehill. For, there is ſome cauſe, why the Metropolitane Church ſhould be thought to ſtand where Saint Peters now doth, by the ſpace of foure hundred and odd Yeeres, before it was removed to Canterbury by Auſtin the Monke, if a Man would leane to one ſide, without any Conference of the Aſſeverations of the other. But herein (as I take it) there lurketh ſome ſcruple: For, beſide that S. Peters Church ſtood in the Eaſt end of the Citie, and that of Apollo in the Weſt, the word Cornehill, a denomination given of late (to ſpeake of) to one Street, may eaſily be miſtaken for Thorney.

Cornhill perhaps for Thorney.

No Street in London called Cornhill, before the Normans Conqueſt.

* There were three Archflamines, 1. at London, the 2. at Yorke, the 3. at Caerlheon upon the River Uſke, builded by Belinus, and called Glamorgantia, now Cheſter, all deſtroyed by Lucius, becauſe they were erected to Apollo, Mars and Minerva: Hee builded three other Churches in their ſtead. Jo. Leyland.

For, as the word Thorney proceedeth from the Saxons, who called the Weſt end of City by that name, where Weſtminſter now ſtandeth, becauſe of the wilderneſſe and buſhineſſe of the Soile: So doe I not read of any Street in London called Cornehill, before the Conqueſt of the Normans. Wherefore, I hold with them, which make Weſtminſter to be the place, where Lucius builded his Church, upon the Ruines of that * Flamine, 264. Yeeres (as Malmesbury ſaith) before the comming of the Saxons, and 411. before the arrivall of Auguſtine. Read alſo his Appendix in Lib. 4. Pontif. where he noteth the time of the Saxons in the 444. of Grace, and of Auguſtine in 596. of Chriſt, which is a manifeſt Accompt, though ſome Copies have 499. for the one, but not without manifeſt Corruption and Error.]

And now to returne where we left: True it is, that a Library there was pertaining to this Pariſh Church, of old time builded of Stone, and of late repaired with Bricke, by the Executors of Sir John Crosby, Alderman, as his Armes on the South end doe witneſſe.

* Reckoning from the Year 1598. when Stow firſt ſet forth his Survey.

This Library hath bin (of late time) to wit, within theſe fifty Yeeres*, well furniſhed of Books, John Leyland viewed and commended them; but now thoſe Books are gone. And the place is occupied by a Schoolmaſter, and his Uſher, for a number of Scholars learning their Grammar Rules, &c. Notwithſtanding, before that time, a Grammar Schoole had beene kept in Grammar Schooles commanded by Parliament.

in this Pariſh, as appeareth in the Yeere 1425. I read, that John Whitby was Rector, and John Steward Schoolemaſter there: and in the 25. of Henry the Sixth it was enacted by Parliament, that four Grammar Scholes in London, ſhould be maintained, viz. In the Pariſhes of Alhallowes in Thames Street: Saint Andrews in Olborne: Saint Peters upon Cornehill; and Saint Thomas of Acars.

This Church when repaired. R.

This Church is yet in Repair. The Steeple began to be repaired in the Year of our Lord 1628. and was finiſhed 1629. The Church it ſelf was begun to be repaired in March 1632. and is (as they make account) about All Saints Day in this preſent Year 1633. to be finiſhed; and, at the ſole Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners, without, within, in all and every part of it, richly and very worthily beautified. The certain Charge cannot yet be known, but as I have heard probably imagined by what is done and to do, it is about 1400*l.* The Churchwardens this Year of finiſhing are

Which Sermons were all preached by Dr. Aſhbold, Parſon there. Alſo he gave 100 l. to the Drapers Company, and they to allow 5 l. yeerely for ever, for Bread and Coales for the poore of the ſaid Pariſh.

Boniface Tatam of London, Vintner, buried in the ſaid Pariſh the third of February, 1606. gave 40 s. yeerely to the Parſon, for preaching foure Sermons every yeere, ſo long as the Leaſe of the Marmaid in Cornehill, (a Taverne ſo called) ſhall endure. Alſo he gave two hundred Pounds, to bee imployed as followeth: Tenne young Men, trading and dwelling in the Pariſh, with two ſufficient Sureties, each Man, from foure yeeres to foure yeeres, to enjoy the Benefit thereof. And every one of them, for the time being, having the Uſage of the ſaid Money, is to pay yeerely to the good of the Poore of the ſaid Pariſh, for Bread and Coales, the Summe of thirteene Shillings foure Pence. Which amounteth in the whole to the Summe of ſix Pounds, thirteene Shillings, foure Pence. He hath alſo allowed to the Churchwardens and Overſeers for the Poore, five Shillings yeerely among them, to ſee his good Meaning effectually performed.

Robert Warden, of London, Poulter, buried in the ſame Church the 18. of November, 1609. hath given out of one Meſſuage or Tenement, lying and being in Biſhopſgate Street, in the ſaid Pariſh, the Summe of three Pounds twelve Shillings, yeerely for ever, viz. 52 s. in Wheaten Bread every Sunday, for the Poore of the Pariſh, 10 s. a yeere for two Sermons, to bee preached to the Company of Poulters, 4 s. for the Clerks Attendance at the ſaid Sermons, and 2 s. a yeere for the Sexton, allowed by the ſaid Company.

A Liſt of Gifts of Charities. J. S.

A modern Account of the charitable Gifts beſtowed upon this Pariſh of St. Peters Cornhil, as brought into the Biſhop of London in the Parochial Viſitation 1693. was as follows.

About 1602. Lancelot Thomſon gave to the Poor for ever 5 l. paid by the Drapers.

1608. William Walthall gave 200 l. to be lent to ten young Shopkeepers: 20 l. to each, with good Security, for 4 Years at 13 s. 4 d. or a Mark, for each 20 l. per Ann. All which Marks to be diſtributed among the Poor in Bread and Charcoal every Year.

1609. Robert Warden 3 l. 12 s. Of which 52 s. to the Poor in Bread; 12 d. every Sunday. And the other 20 s. to the Parſon for preaching two Sermons, on Aſhwedneſday, and the 10th of March every Year. Paid by the Company of Poulterers.

1635. Thomas Hind per Ann. 6 l. out of the Rent of the Black Bull in Leadenhall Street. Whereof 5 l. to the Poor, and 20 s. to the Miniſter, for preaching a Sermon every Eve of Palm-Sunday.

About 1630. Luce Edge, per Ann. 21 l. 10 s. 20 l. to the Lecture. 20 s. to the Poor. 6 s. 8 d. to the Clerk, and 3 s. 4 d. to the Sexton.

1637. William Dwight 1 l. 10 s. among the Poor every Year in Sea-coal: Charged upon the Houſe in Leadenhall Street, where Mr. Trunket late of this Pariſh dwelt.

1657. Tho. Hawks of Lincolns Inn gave 50 l. to be put to Intereſt, or otherwiſe, as the Churchwardens ſhall think fit, for the Uſe of the Poor for ever. Which was received till 1681. But then with ſome Trouble recovered and received. The Veſtry ordered 50 s. per Ann. for ever to be paid to the Poor, out of the Rents of a certain Meſſuage belonging to the Pariſh, every St. Thomas Day, as the Gifts of the ſaid Thomas Hawks.

1682. Sir Benjamin Thorowgood Knt. and Alderman, built three Shops at the Weſt End of the Church, and ſettled them upon the Pariſh, for the Maintenance of the Organ and an Organiſt, to play in time of Divive Service, on Sundays and Holidays. The ſaid Shops now let for, per Ann. 24 l.

Parſonage and Glebe.

As for Parſonage Houſe and Glebe; the former was burnt down in the great Fire: and the Ground was let out by Dr. Hodges, then Rector to Samuel Purchaſe Anno 1670. for 40 years at the Rent of 15 l. per Ann. It lyes at the Weſt End of the Church and Churchyard in St. Peters Alley; and contains in length about 70 Foot from John Smiths Houſe at the South, to one of the Glebe Houſes, where Mr. Elford now liveth, to the North: now ſtanding upon a Barbers Shop, with a Door and a Paſſage into another Man's Houſe beyond; a Coffee-Houſe with a little Yard, a Back-Houſe, and two Warehouſes running along the back ſide of the Glebe-Houſes.

The Rent of 15 l. per Ann. reſerved upon this Leaſe for the Parſonage Houſe Ground, was parted withal by the then preſent Incumbent [Dr. Beveridge] upon Condition that the Pariſh would make it up ſo much as to purchaſe the Leaſe of the Houſe where he then dwelt. Which being accordingly done, the Leaſe of the Houſe where he then dwellt in Corbet Court was aſſigned over by Purchaſe, in whoſe Hands it was, to Mr. Hinton and others, for the Parſon of Saint Peters Cornhill, and Succeſſors, by a Deed dated Feb. 8. 1675. for the Term of 40 Years, commencing 1674. at a Pepper-Corn per Ann.

There belong to this Parſonage three Glebe Houſes, joyning to the North End of the Church fronting Cornhil. The Ground of which Houſes was leaſed by Dr. Hodges to the ſaid Purchaſe for 56 Years Ann. 1668. at the old Rent of 50 l. per Ann. according to a Decree of the Judges at Clifford's Inn.

The Clarks of S. Peters. Lib. Alb. J. S.

To this Church of St. Peters in Cornhil in former Time belonged divers Clerks and Chaplains. Among whom happened once a diſmal Diſturbance ending in the Blood of one of them. Whereof Examination was taken before the Kings Juſtices at the Pleas of the Crown held at the Tower the 28 Hen. 3. It was this. On the Eve of St. Luke, Amice Deacon of the Church of St. Peter de Cornhulle was found ſlain in the Door of the Houſe of Martin, Prieſt in the Soke of Cornhulle. Walkelin Vicar of St. Pauls kill'd him with one Avelac, and fled. And Martin, John and Peter, Chaplains of the ſaid Church of St. Peter, and Robert, Clerk of the ſaid Church, who were in the Houſe (before whoſe Door the Perſon ſlain was found) were taken upon Suſpicion of that Murther, and were delivered to Mr. John de Ponte, Official of the Archdeacon of London, by Henry Fitz Aucher Chamberlain, and Stephen Buckerel Sheriff, and James Blund, John de Sabio, Bartholomew de Cornhulle; &c. Aldermen.

One takes Sanctuary at S. Peters. Lib. Alb.

Another Matter happened in this Church of St. Peters. In the 15 Hen. 3. one Ralph de Wainefuntaines was ſtruck with a Knife by ſome unknown Perſon in Pauls Churchyard; ſo that he died the next Day. One Geffrey Ruſſel Clerk was with him when he was ſtruck, and fled to the Church of St. Peters: and would not come to the Peace of our Lord the King, nor go out of the Church. But afterwards eſcaped: The Sheriffs having cauſed the Churchyard to be kept. But notwithſtanding he eſcaped under the Cuſtody.

Roland.

Before I leave this Pariſh of St. Peters, an ancient Will (a true Copy whereof I had from Mr. Roland, formerly a Pariſhioner here) made by one William Elliot, with large Gifts and Grants to the Rector and Pariſh, for a Chantry to celebrate his Anniverſary, and for procuring divers Ceremonies in this Church.

So as they pay and perform the ſaid Legacies, and my Will in this my Teſtament contained.

“Item, I bequeath to the four ſaid Truſty Men, which for the time ſhall be Collectors and Receivers of the Rents and Profits whatſoever, coming of the Tenements, &c. and of the Reverſions, &c. ſhalbe choſen immediately after my Deceaſe, by the ſaid Parſon of the Church, and by eight of the better ſort of the Pariſhioners, and of my Executors. “Item, I bequeath 20 l. of Silver, to the Suſtentation and Reparation of my Tenements aforeſaid, when need ſhall be. Which ſaid Money I do will ſhall remain in a Box in the Cuſtody of the four Collectors, until my ſaid Tenements ſhall happen to be repaired and amended. And in the mean time the poor Pariſhioners ſhall have the Uſe of the ſaid Money, by the Delivery of the four Collectors, upon ſufficient Pledge, or other ſufficient Security, &c.

The Pariſh Church of St. MICHAELS Cornhil.

S. Michael on Cornhil. Repairs. R.

Then have ye the Pariſh Church of St. Michael the Archangel.

Here a Repair follows a Repair ſo cloſe, that while I ſpeak of the one, I muſt not forget the other; the former being in the Years of our Lord 1618, 1619, 1620. At the finiſhing

Of the Beauty conceive by the Coſt, the Charge of it amounting to 644 l.

The other in this preſent year of our Lord 1633. In which the Roof over the Chancel was new trim'd; the Chancel likewiſe enriched with a fair and very curious Table of Commandments. The Windows about it were new glazed; the Stones thorow the whole Body of the Church taken up, new laid and levelled: and in a word every part of it, at the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners, was well and very worthily beautified;

The Charge of this ariſing to 300 l. and upwards.]

Rebuilt. J. S.

This Church was burnt down in the great Fire: and rebuilt and finiſhed 1672. Towards the Charge of rebuilding and beautifying thereof, theſe were ſome of the Benefactors, whoſe Names hang up in a Table in the Church.

| Benefactors. | Gifts. |
|---|---|
| Sir John Langham Knt. and Bart. | 500 l. |
| Sir John Mounſon | 20 l. |
| Sir John Cutler | 20 l. |
| Sir Andrew Riccard | 100 l. |
| James Clitherow | 50 l. |
| Mary Scottow | 20 l. |

It was again repaired and beautified Anno 1701. This Church hath a very large pair of Organs. The Altar aſcending up three or four Steps, hath a very noble Altar-piece; and on each ſide a Column in imitation of Marble or Porphyry, reaching up to the Ceiling of the Church.

The Steeple was lately quite taken down and rebuilt.]

For the Antiquity thereof, I find that Alnothus the Prieſt gave it to the Abbot and Covent of *Coveſham; Reynold Abbot, and the Covent there, did grant the ſame to Sparling the Prieſt, in all meaſures, as he and his Predeceſſors before had held it: to the which Sparling alſo, they granted all their Lands which they there had, except certaine Lands which Orgar le Prowde held of them, and paid two Shillings yeerely. For the which Grant, the ſaid Sparling ſhould yeerely pay one Marke of Rent to the ſaid Abbot of Coveſham, and finde him his Lodging, Salt, Water, and Fire, when he came to London; this was granted 1133. about the 34 of Henry the firſt. Thus much for Antiquity.

* No ſuch Abbey in England. It ſeems it ſhould be Eoveſham, or Eveſham.

Of later Times I find, that Elizabeth Peake Widow, gave the Patronage or Gift of this Benefice to the Drapers in London. She lyeth buried in the Belfrey: 1518. Her Monument yet remaineth.

A fair Church.

This hath been a fair and beautifull Pariſh Church, but of late years, ſince the Surrender of their Lands to Edward the ſixth, greatly blemiſhed by the building of four Tenements on the North ſide thereof, towards the high Street, in place of a green Churchyard, whereby the Church is greatly darkened and other ways annoyed. The fair new Steeple, or Bell-Tower of this Church, was begun to be builded in the year 1421. which being finiſhed, and a fair Ring of five Bells therein placed; a ſixth Bell was added, and given by John Whitwel, Iſabel his Wife, and William Rus, or Rous, Alderman and Goldſmith*, about the Year 1430. which Bell named Rus (Nightly to be rung at eight of the Clock, and otherwiſe for Knels, and in Peals uſually rung by one Man, more than an 100 years) of late over-haled by foure or five at once, hath been thrice broken; and therefore not rung as heretofore; and new caſt, within the ſpace of ten years, to the Charges of that Pariſh, more than an 100 Marks,

The Steeple.

This was accounted the beſt Ring of ſix Bells to be rung by ſix Men that was in England for harmony, ſweetneſs of ſound and tune.

* One Ruſſe a Draper gave a ſixth Bell; Which he named Ruſſe after his own name; firſt Edit.

And

Lightning and Thunder, with ugly Shaps ſeen in St. Michaels Steeple. The Print of Claws to be ſeen in hard Stone.

And here a Note of this Steeple, as I have oft heard my Father report. Upon Saint James Night, certain Men in the Loft next under the Bells, ringing of a Peal, a Tempeſt of Lightning and Thunder did ariſe, and an ugly ſhapen Sight appeared to them, coming in at the South Window, and lighted on the North. For fear whereof, they all fell down, and lay as dead for the time, letting the Bells ring and ceaſe of their own accord. When the Ringers came to themſelves, they found certain Stones of the North Window to be raiſed and ſcrat, as if they had been ſo much Butter printed with a Lyons Claw: the ſame Stones were faſtned there again, and ſo remain till this Day. I have ſeen them oft, and have put a Feather or ſmall Stick into the Holes, where the Claws had entred 3 or 4 Inches deep.

Pulpit Croſs in Pauls Churchyard overturned.

At the ſame time, certain maine Timber Poſts at Queen Hith, were ſcrat and cleft from the top to the bottom, and the Pulpit Croſs in Pauls Churchyard was likewiſe ſcat, cleft, and overturned. One of the Ringers lived in my youth, whom I have oft heard to verifie the ſame to be true; but to returne.

* or Rous, an Alderman of London.

*William Rus, was a ſpecial Benefactor to this Church. His Arms yet remain in the Windows.

Will. Rus Regiſt. Lond. J. S.

William Rus, Alderman of London, Goldſmith and Sheriff, 1429. buried in the Chapel of Saint Mary in S. Michael Cornhill. He gave, by his Will, dated June 5. 1433. to find to all the Chaplains of the ſaid Church Bread, called Synging Brede.

Will. Rus S. Mich. Cornhil.

By a Codicil to his Will dat. July 5. 1433. Gives, out of the Debt due to him by the Duke of Orleans, in caſe it be received, an 100 l. to be laid out, ad faciend. unum Dorſum Altaris in the Chancel of the Church of S. Michael Cornhill, after the form of the Altar in Chriſt's Church, Canterbury. And 40 l. out of the ſame Debt to be laid out about the Ornaments of the Altar in S. Maries Chapel in the ſaid Church of S. Michael. Alſo, 20 l. more thence, to be laid out about the building of the new Steeple of the ſaid Church. Alſo he willed, that in caſe the Debt that was due to him and Iſabel his Wife by the Executors of Rich. Whittington were recovered, it be laid out about the Fabric of the Chapel of the Bl. Mary in the ſaid Church.

Regiſt. Ep. Lond.

He gave alſo by his ſaid Will, Deo & Eccleſiæ St. Michaelis aforeſaid, and to the Rector, Guardians and Keepers of the Work and Goods of the ſaid Church for the time being, all his Lands and Tenements with their Appurtenances, which he had jointly with Iſabel his Wife, for her Life, and his Heirs and Aſſigns, in the Pariſh of S. Michael. To have to them, the Rector and Guardians, for ever. On Condition that they find one Chaplain to celebrate Divine Offices in the Chapel of S. Mary aforeſaid in the ſaid Church: To pray for his Soul, and his Wife Iſabel's; and for the Souls of Humfrey Duke of Glouceſter, Gerard Afflete, Knt. Robert Rus his Father, and Katharine his Mother, and Joh. Whiſtwell his Maſter. And that the Chaplain received for his Salary out of the Profits of the ſaid Lands, &c. eleven Marks Sterling at the four Terms of the Year.

A Chaplain to the Chapel of St. Mary.

Pulpit Croſs in S. Michael Churchyard.

This Pariſh Church hath on the South ſide thereof a proper Cloyſter, and a fair Churchyard, with a Pulpit Croſs, not much unlike to that in Pauls Churchyard. Sir John Rudſton * Maior, caused the ſame Pulpit Croſs, in his Life time to be builded, the Churchyard to be enlarged, by Ground purchaſed of the next Pariſh, and alſo proper Houſes to be raiſed, for lodging of Quire Men, ſuch as at that time were aſſiſtants to Divine Service, then daily ſung by Note, in that Church.

The Quire here diſſolved.

The Quire of that Church being diſſolved, the Lodgings of the Quire Men were (by the grave Fathers of that time) charitably appointed for receipt of ancient decayed Pariſhioners; namely, Widows, ſuch as were not able to bear the charge of greater Rents abroad, which bleſſed work of harbouring the harbourleſs, is promiſed to be rewarded in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Birchovers Lane.

Then have ye Birchover Lane, ſo called of Birchover, the firſt builder and owner thereof, now corruptly called Birchin Lane, the North half whereof is of the ſaid Cornhil Ward, the other part is of Langborne Ward.

The ill Example of a great Man in Birchin Lane. J. S.

Aſcham's Schoolmaſt. fo. 21. b.

In this Birchin Lane in the later time of King Henry VIII. a certain great Man of the Court had his Houſe; who practiſed a Diſorder: And his Example was ſo prevalent, that no Proclamations or Laws could redreſs it. Inſomuch that a Writer of thoſe days could not but take notice of it, in theſe Words: "Not fully twenty four years ago [that is about 1540.] when all the Acts of Parliament, many good Proclamations, divers ſtrait Commandments, ſore Puniſhments openly, ſpecial Words privately, could not do ſo much, to take away one Miſorder, as the Example of one big one of this Court did, ſtill to keep up the ſame [perhaps it was the exceſs of Apparel.] The Memory whereof doth yet remain in a common Proverb of Birchin Lane.]

Upholders Sellers of old Stuffe in Cornhil.

This Lane and the high Street near adjoining, hath been inhabited (for the moſt part) with wealthy Drapers, from Birchovers Lane on that ſide the Street, down to the Stocks. In the Reign of Henry VI. had ye (for the moſt part) dwelling there, Fripperers or Upholders, that ſold Apparel and old Houſhold Stuff.

A Country-man that loſt his Hood.

Popes Head Tavern on Cornhil.

Wine one Pint for a Penny, and Bread given free.

I have read of a Country Man, that then having loſt his Hood in Weſtminſter Hall, found the ſame in Cornhil, hanged out to be ſold, which he challenged, but was forced to buy, or go without it: For their Stall (they ſaid) was their Market. About this time alſo, the Wine-drawer of the Popes Head Tavern, (ſtanding without the Door in the high Street) took the ſame Man by the Sleeve, and ſaid, Sir, Will you drink a Pint of Wine? Whereunto he anſwered, A Penny ſpend I may: And ſo drank his Pint: For Bread nothing did he pay. For that was then allowed free.

The Kings Houſe in Cornhil.

This Popes Head Tavern, with other Houſes adjoining, ſtrongly builded of Stone, hath of old time been all in one, pertaining to ſome great Eſtate, or rather the King of this Realm, as may be ſuppoſed, both by largeneſs thereof, and by the Armes; to wit, Three Lions paſſant gardant, which was the whole Arms of England, before the Reign of Edward III. that quartered them with the Arms of France, three Flower de Luces.

Armes of England ſupported by Angels.

Hubert de Burgo, Earl of Kent, ſent into Cornhil.

Theſe Arms of England, ſupported between two Angels, are fair and largely graven in Stone on the fore-front towards the high Street, over the Door or Stall of one great Houſe, lately (for many years) poſſeſſed by Mr. Philip Gunter. The Popes Head Tavern is on the back part thereof, towards the South, as alſo one other Houſe, called the Stone Houſe in Lombard Street. Others ſay this was King John's Houſe; which might ſo be: For I find in a written Copy of Matthew Paris his Hiſtory, that in the year 1232. Henry the third ſent Hubert de Burgho, Earl of Kent, to Cornhil in London, there to anſwer all Matters objected againſt him: Where he wiſely acquitted himſelf. The Popes Head Tavern hath a Foot-way through from Cornhil into Lombard Street. And down lower on the high Street of Cornhil, is there one other way thorow by the Cardinals Hat Tavern, into Lombard Street.

The Cardinals Hat Tavern.

As for the modern State of this Ward, take this Account of it.

Cornhil. R. B.

This is but a ſmall Ward, having but one principal Street, which is Cornhil, from whence the Ward hath its Name. But this Street is very ſpacious, and repleniſhed with lofty Houſes, graced with good Fronts, and inhabited by Traders of good Note, and chiefly with Linen Drapers (who alſo deal much in India Silks and Muzlins) on the North ſide, and Upholſters on the South; and many Bookſellers about the Exchange. And by reaſon of its Vicinity to which Place, not only this Street, but all the adjacent Parts are of a great reſort, and crouded with Merchants, and Tradeſmen, inſomuch that the Taverns, Coffee-houſes, Eating-houſes, and other ſuch like Places of publick Reception, as they make conſiderable Gains, ſo they pay vaſt Rents.

The Places of Name and Note in this Street, beginning Weſtwardly on the South ſide, are firſt, Cardinals Cap Tavern and Alley: the greateſt Part in Langborn Ward; and only the narrow Entrance from Cornhil being in this.

Exchange Alley.

Popes Head Alley a little more Eaſtward, (from an ancient Tavern that had that Sign) being a narrow Paſſage into Lombard Street, but well inhabited by Tradeſmen, chiefly Cutlers, and ſuch as keep Toyſhops: but far ſhort to what it was before the building of Exchange Alley, that lies next Eaſtward. Which hath two Paſſages out of Cornhil: one into Lombard Street, and another bending Eaſt into Birchin Lane.

Fleece Tavern.

It is a large Place vaſtly improved, chiefly out of an Houſe of Alderman Backwel's a Goldſmith before the great Fire, well built, inhabited by Tradeſmen; eſpecially that Paſſage into Lombard Street againſt the Exchange, and is a Place of a very conſiderable Concourſe of Merchants, Seafaring Men and other Traders, occaſioned by the great Coffee-houſes (Jonathans and Garways) that ſtand there. Chiefly now Brokers, and ſuch as deal in buying and ſelling of Stocks, frequent it. The Alley is broad and well paved with Free Stones, neatly kept. The Fleece Tavern ſeated in Cornhil, hath a Paſſage into this Alley, being a very large Houſe and of a great Reſort.

Globe Tavern.

Going over on the North ſide of the Street, moſt Weſtward is the Globe Tavern, large and of a good Trade.

Caſtle Alley.

Caſtle Alley, adjoyning Weſtward of the Exchange, being a great Thorough-fare. In this Alley is a ſmall Court ſo called.

The Exchange built very ſtately.

Then the Royal Exchange. Which before the Fire was a ſtately Building, in a Quadrilateral Form, having a ſpacious Court or Area in the midſt thereof, and round about the ſame, Piazza's, or Walks covered, and ſtanding on Columns and Arches, over every one of the ſaid Arches were Niches, in which were the Statues of all the Kings and Queens from Edward the Confeſſor to King Charles II. Over theſe Piazzas or Walks were broad Galleries round about, with Shops on each ſide furniſhed with rich Commodities, chiefly relating to Apparel for the Body, and is ſtill much reſorted unto by the City Dames for the ſame. Underneath the ſaid Walks were Vaults made uſe of by Merchants for the Storing of choice Goods, eſpecially the Spices of the Indies. For the Paſſage to theſe upper Galleries there were two large and ſpacious Pairs of Stairs; the one at the South Entrance, and the other at the North Entrance into the Exchange, as alſo two ſtately Portacoes into the Exchange on the ſame Sides. And by the Southern Portacoe a lofty Tower with a Clock and Chimes: and at the top of it a Graſhopper for the Vane, or Girella. And although the Building was of Brick and Wood, it was ſo covered with Plaiſter that it imitated Stone-work.

Of this Burſe or Royal Exchange Sir Thomas Greſham ſettled the one Moiety of the Profits on the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen, and the other Moiety of the Profits on the Company of Mercers, of which he was a Member. And thus did this Royal Exchange continue in its Luſtre juſt a Century of Years. For as it was erected in the Year 1566, ſo it was deſtroyed by the Fire of London Anno 1666; and whereas the former was built

New built.

built of Brick and Timber, it is now rebuilt of excellent Portland Stone (except the Vaults under Ground) and with ſuch curious Architecture, eſpecially the South Front and the two pair of open Newell Stairs, with half Paces, Columns, Pillaſters, with Architraves, Frizes, Cornices, and Nices between them, that it far exceeds all other Exchanges in Europe; Quantum lenta ſolent inter viburna cupreſſi.

Improved.

At the new building King Charles II. came and laid the firſt Stone.

Proſpect of the Royal Exchange.

The Form of it now, as to the open Court and Piazza's, is much the ſame as before; but without it is much enlarged, having new Piazza's both on the South and North Sides, wherein are Shops and Walks, and alſo Shops on the Eaſt and Weſt Ends: And whereas before there was but one ſingle Row of Shops above Stairs, there are now double Rooms, which encreaſe the Shops to double the Number. In the new Erection of this ſtately Fabrick, King Charles II. with his Brother, his Royal Highneſs then Duke of York, did honour the Work ſo far, as when they began to erect the Columns, the King laid the firſt Stone of the Column on the Weſt ſide, and the Duke of York that on the Eaſt ſide of the Entrance on the North ſide of the Court. And in Memory thereof thoſe two Columns have Royal Ornaments for their Capitals, as Imperial Crowns and Scepters. It is built as before Quadrangular, with a large Court, wherein the Merchants may aſſemble, and the greateſt part, in caſe of Rain, or hot Sun-ſhine, may be ſheltered under the Galleries in the Piazza's. A Proſpect of this noble Structure, as it now is built, taken from a Loſt from the South Side thereof, is here inſerted.

The Charges of the Exchange new built.

The Charges of the erecting of this Building as before deſcribed did amount unto about 55000 l. whereof the one Moiety was diſburſed by the City, out of the Chamber of London, and the other Moiety by the Company of Mercers, and to reimburſe themſelves, there are let 190 Shops above Stairs at 20 l. per ann. and a Fine of 30 l. beſides the Shops with low Chambers over them fronting the Streets and Paſſages round about the Change, and the huge vaulted Cellars under Ground whereon this Structure is erected; ſo that (poſſibly) it is the richeſt piece of Ground in the World; for the Ground on which it ſtands is but 203 Foot in Length from Eaſt to Weſt, and 171 Foot in Breadth from North to South, containing but 34713 ſuperficial Feet, which is but 8 Perches, or Poles, above three quarters of an Acre, and it doth produce above 4000 l. yearly Rent.

A Statue of K. Charles II.

In the middle or centre of the Court, is erected at the ſole Charges of the Merchant Adventurers of London, a ſtately Monument of the Effigies of King Charles II. in a Roman Habit and Poſture, ſtanding upon a four ſquare Pedeſtal, all of white Marble 7 foot high, three Sides of the Pedeſtal curiouſly carved with Angels holding Imperial Crowns over three Eſcutcheons; on the Weſt ſide are the Arms of England quartered with France; on the North ſide the Arms of Ireland; and on the Eaſt ſide the Arms of Scotland: And on the South ſide of the Pedeſtal is an Inſcription, Page 137, mentioned before.

The whole encloſed with Iron Bars of good Workmanſhip.

Sweetings Rents or Alley.

Sweetings Alley or Rents, being two narrow Paſſages into Thredneedle Street, with Free Stone Pavements. Which Alleys are generally inhabited by Coffee-houſes, and other publick Houſes; but the greateſt part of theſe Alleys towards Thredneedle Street are in Broadſtreet Ward.

Freemans Yard.

Newmans Yard.

Next Eaſtward is Freemans Yard, a large open Court, with a Free Stone Pavement, well built, and inhabited. Newmans Yard likewiſe, an open Place with good Houſes, well inhabited.

Finch Lane.

Finch, or Fink Lane, comes out of Cornhil, and falls into Thredneedle Street, overagainſt the French Church. Of this Lane the Part from Spread Eagle Court unto the Corner by Cornhil, which is about 112 Foot on both ſides, is in this Ward. The reſt in Broadſtreet Ward.

Weigh-houſe Yard.

The Weigh-houſe Yard, a pretty open Place, with good Buildings: This was the Place where the Merchandizes brought from beyond Seas were to be weighed by the Kings Beam. But now the ſaid Houſe is converted into other Uſes, and there is a new Weigh-houſe built in little Eaſtcheap for the ſaid Uſe; but little regarded, for that the Power doth not compel the Merchants to that great Trouble of ſending their Goods ſo to be weighed.

Star Court.

Star Court Eaſtwards of Weigh-houſe Yard, a large open Place, well built and inhabited; at the upper End of which was kept the General Penny-Poſt Office for theſe Parts: and on the Weſt ſide is a genteel Houſe, encloſed from the reſt with handſome Pales.

Birchin Lane.

Caſtle Alley.

White Lyon Alley.

Cock Court.

Birchin Lane hath not above 170 Feet on both ſides of the Way in this Ward; the reſt toward Lombard Street being in Langborn Ward. It is a Place of a conſiderable Trade, eſpecially for Men's Apparel; the greateſt part of the Shopkeepers being Saleſmen: In this Lane are theſe Alleys, viz. Caſtle Alley, but ordinary: It falls into St. Michaels Alley. White Lyon Alley alſo but ordinary, at the upper End is a Paſſage into George Yard, and in this Alley is Cock Court, which is but ſmall, and on the other ſide is a Paſſage unto Caſtle Alley.

St. Michaels Church.

Burnt down by the Fire.

Beyond Birchin Lane is St. Michaels Cornhil Church, in the Dioceſs of London, the Abbot of Eveſham was the Patron. It was deſtroyed in the general Fire of London 1666, and was rebuilt very handſomely, having a lofty towered Steeple, with a curious Ring of Bells, eſteemed the beſt in the City. Yet ſome think thoſe of S. Mary le Bow in Cheapſide to ſurpaſs them; and towards the rebuilding of this Church and beautifying it within, beſides the Impoſition raiſed by Coals, the Pariſhioners were liberal Encouragers. and in particular ſome Perſons mentioned before.

St. Michaels Alley.

This Church is ſeated backwards, but its chief Door for Entrance is in Cornhil: and behind the Church is a handſome Churchyard encloſed with a Brick Wall. Adjoining to this Church Weſtward is a Paſſage out of Cornhil called St. Michaels Alley, which runs by the Churchyard, and turning Eaſtwards falls into Bell Yard, which leadeth to Graſschurch Street: In this Alley the Houſes ſtand on the Weſt and South ſides, the other ſides lying open, and looking into the Churchyard. Out of this Alley is a Paſſage into George Yard, and another into Birchin Lane.

S. Peter's.

More Eaſtward, not far from the Church of St. Michaels, and at the very Corner of Graſschurch Street is the Pariſh Church of St. Peters Cornhil, being in the Dioceſs of London. The Maior and Aldermen of London are Patrons. It was deſtroyed by the Fire of London, and again rebuilt of Brick, with a Spire Steeple covered with Lead; and St. Peters Key for the Weather Cock. Adjoining to this Church is St. Peters Alley, well inhabited: and hath a Paſſage with a Free Stone Pavement into Graſschurch Street.

There are to watch in the ſeveral Stands in this Ward every Night, one Conſtable with the Beadle and 16 Watchmen.

The Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inqueſt for this Ward, are to ſerve as Jurors in the ſeveral

Langborne Ward is ſo called, of a long Bourn of ſweet Water, which (of old Time) breaking out into Fenchurch ſtreet, ran down the ſame Street, and Lombard ſtreet, to the Weſt end of S. Mary Woolnoth's Church, where turning South, and breaking into many ſmall Shares, Rils or Streams, it left the Name of Shareborne Lane, or Southborne Lane, (as I have read) becauſe it ran South to the River of Thames. This Ward beginneth at the Weſt end of Aldgate Ward in Fenchurch ſtreet, by the Ironmongers Hall, which is on the North ſide of that Street, at a Place called Culver Alley, where ſometime was a Lane, through the which Men went into Lime ſtreet; but that being long ſince ſtopped up, for Suſpicion of Thieves that lurked there by Night, as is ſhewed in Lime ſtreet Ward; there is now in this ſaid Alley, a Tennis Court, &c.

Conſultation for a new Burſe in K. Henry VIII. his Time. R.

Before the building of the Exchange, it was by divers Common Councils about the 26th Year of King Henry VIII. conſulted upon, whether there ſhould be a Burſe, or convenient Place of meeting for Merchants, to treat of their Feat of Merchandize. The ſame Year the King ſent his Letters to the City for the making of a new Burſe at Leaden Hall. Whereupon it being put to Hands, whether the new Burſe ſhould be removed out of Lumbard ſtreet; it was agreed, that it ſhould not.] So that the Merchants Meeting continued there, till the Royal Exchange was builded:] That is, until the 22d. of December, in the Year 1568. on the which Day the ſaid Merchants began to make their Meetings at the Burſe, a Place then new builded for that purpoſe, in the Ward of Cornhil, and was ſince by her Majeſty Queen Elizabeth, named the Royal Exchange. So that here anciently the Lombards or Bankers dwelt, and ſo they did to the Days of Queen Elizabeth, and even to this Day. It was about the middle of that Queen's Reign, that there was a Project for the Queen's Factors, (whereof Sir Thomas Greſham was chief) to take up all the Money here in Lombard ſtreet, and alſo in Antwerp (where the great Bank was) and ſo to make her own Benefit, and the Merchants Benefit thereof; by taking it up at the proper Juncture. That is to ſay, That her Majeſty's Factor ſhould take up all Money in Antwerp that might be gotten, when ſtore of foreign Wares were there to be ſold to the Queen's Subjects; that by Scantneſs of Money they might be ſold to them the cheaper, and for Time alſo. And that the ſaid Factor ſhould take up again all the Money in Lumbard ſtreet that might be gotten, when the ſame bought foreign Wares be coming home, that her Subjects that bought them might be driven for Scantneſs of Money, to ſell them here the cheaper, and for Time. The ſaid Factor ſhould take up all the Money in Lumbard ſtreet that might be gotten, every Monday, Tueſday, Wedneſday and Thurſday; both to raiſe the Exchange and to make Money ſcant, that the Clothiers weekly at Blackwel hall, might ſell the cheaper, and for Time alſo. That the ſaid Factor ſhould ſtore the Burſe of Antwerp ſo with Money again, when the ſame Cloths were come thither, that our Merchants might ſell the ſame there the dearer, and for leſs Time alſo. The ſame Factor ſhould by all poſſible Means get up the Money in Lumbard ſtreet, by Exchange from all the Merchants Strangers, that they might not buy weekly any great Quantity of Cloths at the Clothiers Hands for ready Money, and to keep up the Price of Cloth; but buy at the ſecond, the third, and fourth Hands of her Majeſty's Merchants upon Credit. Her Majeſty ſhould deliver her Factor a Maſs of Money on this ſide the Sea, and beyond Sea by his Travail and Skill, to employ about the Feats of Exchange; as to raiſe the Exchange for England with all Countries of the World, according to our Standard; to deliver out Money by Exchange to her Highneſs's Profit, to furniſh her ſelf with any Sum of Money of a ſudden; to unfurniſh her Majeſty's Enemy [the Spainard] of any Money he ſhould ſeek; to bring home any Prince's Money in the World there might be Gain by; to drive all Merchants Strangers, and her Majeſty's own Merchants, from Exchange for England, that they might occupy Commodities, and ſo pay Cuſtom and Subſidy to her both inward and outward, and to do all other Feats of Exchange that be infinite, and offered daily to be travailed in, for the Benefit of the Realm, and her Majeſty. This ſeems to have been Greſham's Device.]

The middle Ile of this Church was new laid in the Year of our Lord 1629. The Steeple was repaired, a new Turret built, new Frames were made for the Bells, and this Church was decently beautified in the Year of our Lord 1632.]

ALHALLOWS LUMBARD STREET.

The four Corners, a place ſo called, of four Ways meeting.

Pariſh Church of Alhallowes in Lombard Street. Lib. Trinit.

Then by the four Corners (ſo called of Fenchurch Street in the Eaſt, Bridge Street on the South, Graſs Street on the North, and Lombard Street on the Weſt) in Lombard Street is one fair Pariſh Church, called Alhallows Graſs Church in Lombard Street. I ſo read it in Evidences of Record, for that the Graſs Market went down that way, and was there kept, but the Street was far larger in breadth; being ſince ſtraightned by Incroachments.

This Church was lately new builded. John Warner, Armouror, and then Grocer, Sheriff, 1494. builded the South Ile; his Son Robert Warner, Eſq; finiſhed it, in the year 1516. The Pewterers were Benefactors towards the North Ile, &c. The Steeple or Bell-tower thereof was finiſhed in the year 1544. about the thirty ſixth of Henry VIII.

A fair Stone Porch in this Church.

The fair Stone Porch of this Church, was brought from the late diſſolved Priory of S. John of Jeruſalem by Smithfield. So was the Frame for their Bells. But the Bells being bought, were never brought thither, by reaſon that one old Warner, Draper, of that Pariſh deceaſing, his Son young Mark Warner would not perform what his Father had begun and appointed; ſo that fair Steeple hath but one Bell, as Friers were wont to uſe.

Witneſs among others Lieſſtane, Portreve. This Gift was Anno 1053. This Brihtmer gave alſo his Meſſuage at Gerſchercke [Graſs Church] to the ſame Church of Canterbury.

Green Acre in Graſs Church Street.

In Graſs Church Street was an Houſe with a Shop and Warehouſe, called Green Acre. For which a Rent of 5 l. had been reſerved time out of mind. But the Rent afterwards advancing (beſides a Fine) to 30 l. yearly, a great Suit was commenced for the encreaſe of the Tythe proportionable.

And it came at laſt to a general Matter, wherein all the City Clergy were concerned, viz. for the encreaſe of the Tythe of Houſes in London, according to the Improvement of Rent. For Dun, Parſon of Graſs Church, petitioned the Lord Maior in King James I. his time, that whereas the Tythe of the ſaid Green Acre was paid to him only according to the rate of 5 l. whereas he ought to have allowance according the rate of 30 l. by the year, &c. But the Lord Maior allowing the old rate, Dun went into the Chancery, Sir Francis Bacon being then Lord Chancellor. And the Caſe was found ſo difficult, that a ſpecial Commiſſion was granted unto the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and many others, both great Officers of the King's Court, and chief Judges; having full Power given them for the hearing and determining of this Buſineſs, between the Citizens of London and the Parſons of the ſeveral Pariſhes, and to make an arbitrary End between them. They ſate at York Houſe; but the main Queſtion remained undetermined; and no Reſolution was given. So the Caſe divided into ſix parts, and argued, in Calthorp's Reports of ſpecial Caſes.]

This Picture is for others,
not for me,
For in my breaſt
I weare thy memory.
It is here plac'd,
that paſſengers may know,
Within thy ground no Weeds,
but Corne, did grow.
That there did flow
within thy vitall blood,
All that could make one
honeſt, juſt, and good.
Heere is no Elbow roome to write of more,
An Epitaph yeelds taſte,
but ſeldom ſtore.
Thy troope of Vertues
grac'd thee amongſt men,
And now attend thee
at the Court in Heaven.
Thy worth, ſweet Charles,
deſerves the rareſt wit,
Thy Jane, for ſuch a taske, is moſt unfit.

The Pariſh Church of St. MARY WOOLNOTH.

Then is there (in the high Street) a proper Pariſh Church of St. Mary Woolnoth of the Nativity; the reaſon of which Name I have not yet learned. [Probably becauſe this Church was dedicated to the Virgin Mary with the Infant Jeſus in her Arms; as ſhe is often pictured.] S. Mary Woolnoth. J. S.

This Church is lately new builded. Sir Hugh Brice, Goldſmith, Maior in the firſt year of Hen. VII. Keeper of the Kings Exchange at London, and one of the Governours of the Kings Mint in the Tower of London, under William Lord Haſtings, the fifth of Edward IV. deceaſed, 1496. He builded in this Church a Chapel, called the Charnel, as alſo part of the Body of the Church and of the Steeple, and gave Money toward the finiſhing thereof, beſides the Stone that he had prepared. Brice Keeper of the King's Exchange.

It is ſo long ſince this Church was repaired and beautified, that we now rather look upon what it is, than what it was; and forward to a Repair to come, than backward to that that is gone. We ſee, it ſeems to call upon the Pariſhioners for it, and hear it is ſhortly to have it. For (as I am informed) it is promiſed and preparing: the Preparation likewiſe promiſing a great deal of Coſt and Beauty.] Repair. R.

This Church was burnt down in the great Fire; but rebuilt. Sir Robert Viner Goldſmith and Alderman of London, contributed largely towards the Building; a Memorial whereof are the Vines that adorn and ſpread about that part of the Church that fronts his Houſe and the Street. Inſomuch that the Church was uſed to be called Sir Robert Viners Church. Rebuilt. J. S.

This Church with the Steeple is pulled down, and rebuilding again very ſplendidly.

A great Houſe of King Edward III. given to St. Steven's Chapel.

Somewhere in Lombardſtreet (and, if I miſtake not, in this Pariſh of St. Mary Woolnoth) King Edward III. had a great Houſe: Which he gave to the Dean and Chapter of his Chapel of Saint Steven by Letters Patents in the 22. of his Reign. Likewiſe hard by he had a Tower, called Sewtes Tower, ſtanding in Bokeles Bury, which he gave alſo to St. Stevens Chapel, the 32. of his Reign.]

The ſeveral Wills made by them both in ancient Writing, are (to the Pariſhes great Commendation) very carefully kept and preſerved in this Church, in a goodly Encloſure made for the purpoſe, and to be turned open like folding Tables: I have not ſeen the like in any other Church.

An obſervation out of Richard Grafton.

John Percival, Carver to the Lord Maior, choſen Sheriff of London.

Moreover I read (concerning this Man) that he was one of the Maior of Londons Officers, and Carver at his Table. And when the Maior (as the Cuſtom of London is) doth elect one of the Sheriffs of London for the year enſuing, by taking and drinking a Cup of Wine to ſuch a Man as he pleaſeth to name; the Maior at that time) whoſe Name was Sir Henry Collet Knt. and free of the Mercers) took the Cup of Wine and drank to the aforeſaid John Percivall, his Carver, ſtanding bare-headed waiting before him, and called him Sheriff of London for the year enſuing: forthwith the ſaid Maior cauſed the ſame Percivall to ſit down at his own Table, and to cover his Head. And the ſame Percivall took upon him the Office of Sheriffalty, and afterward was Lord Maior of London, and made Knight. Regiſter of Maiors.

The old Church taken down to be rebuilt.

This Church and Steeple being of late years found very decayed and dangerous to reſort to, is now pulled down in order to be new built: and in digging deep for a good Foundation, at the depth of 15 Foot, and ſo deeper at about 20 Foot, ſpecially under the Steeple, were found a vaſt number of ancient Roman Earthen Veſſels, all broken into Sheards; ſome of finer Earth and ſome of coarſer, ſerving both for Sacred and Houſhold Uſes. Which have exerciſed the Speculations of learned Antiquaries. Some Medals alſo were taken up, and ſome Bones and Tusks.

An Account whereof ſhall be given in due Place.

And towards the Charge of the Rebuilding, this Proviſion was made in an Act of Parliament, 9 Reg. Annæ, out of a Duty laid upon Coals, viz.

“ That the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Biſhop of London, and the Lord Maior, or any two of them, may by Warrants under their Hands and Seals appropriate out of the Surplus of the Money, ariſing by the Duty of 12 d. per Chalder, or per Tun on Coals, applicable for the Purpoſes in the Act 1 Jac. II. after the Cathedral of St. Pauls ſhall be finiſhed and adorned, ſo much Money as ſhall be ſufficient for building and finiſhing the Pariſh Church of St. Mary Woolnoth, and the Tower thereof.]

Thus have ye in this Ward ſeven Pariſh Churches; one Hall of a Company; divers fair Houſes for Merchants; and other Monuments none.

Now, as this Langborne Ward ſtands at this preſent, take this Account following:

R. B.

Places in this Ward.

This Ward conſiſts of theſe following Streets, Lanes and Alleys in whole, or in part.

Lombard Street, on the North ſide thereof, beginning 100 Foot from the Weſt Corner thereof, and extending Eaſtward within 35 Foot of the Weſt ſide of Graſschurch Street. And on the South ſide from within 125 Foot of the Weſt Corner of the Street to Graſschurch Street. Fenchurch Street, on the North ſide, from Graſschurch Street in the Weſt unto Smiths Buildings on the North ſide of the Eaſt End, and unto Mark Lane on the South ſide. Beſides theſe two main Streets, theſe following: St. Swithins Lane, Abchurch Lane, St. Nicolas Lane, St. Clements Lane; all which are on the South ſide of Lombardſtreet; and on the North ſide are Popes Head Alley, Exchange Alley, Birchin Lane, and George Yard. Then in Fenchurch Street on the North ſide, Lime Street, Cullum Street, and Smiths Buildings: And on the South ſide Philpot Lane, Rood Lane, Minchin Lane, and Mark Lane: In all which ſaid Streets, Lanes and Alleys, there are ſeveral Courts; and of theſe in order.

Smiths Buildings.

Lombard-ſtreet.

Lombard Street. It is throughout graced with good and lofty Buildings, amongſt which are many that ſurpaſs thoſe in other Streets, and generally is inhabited by Goldſmiths, Bankers, Mercers, and other eminent Tradeſmen. At the Eaſt End near unto Graſschurch Street, on the North Side, is the Church of St. Alhallows Lombardſtreet, a Peculiar of the Archbiſhop's of Canterbury, the Prior of Chriſt Church in Canterbury anciently Patron. It is ſeated very obſcurely, ſo as not to be ſeen by Paſſengers, being built backwards, having two Doors for Entrance, the one in Lombardſtreet, and the other in Graſschurch Street through narrow Paſſages like Entries; it was deſtroyed in the general Fire of London 1666, and ſince rebuilt.

Alhallows Lombard-ſtreet Church.

Ball Alley not broad, but ſomewhat long, hath an Entrance by Alhallows Church; and with ſome Turnings falls into the Croſs Keys Inn: from whence it hath a Paſſage into Graſschurch Street. Near was the George Inn; ſince the Fire rebuilt with very good Houſes, well inhabited; and Warehouſes: being a large open Yard, and now called George Yard: At the farther end of which is the George and Vulture Tavern; which is a large Houſe, and of a great Trade, having a Paſſage into St. Michaels Alley: and ſo ſtrait forward into Cornhil: on the Right Hand the Paſſage leads into Graſschurch Street; on the Left into Birchin Lane through Caſtle Alley, and alſo through White Lyon Court.

George Yard. Vulture Tavern.

St. Edmond's Lombard-ſtreet Church.

Then next on the North ſide is the Church of St. Edmund Lombard Street, which fronts St. Clements Lane on the South. It is a Peculiar, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury and the Prior of Chriſt Church were Patrons. It was burnt in the Fire of London 1666, and is rebuilt. And to this is now joyned, or united, the Pariſh of St. Nicolas Acon, that Church not being rebuilt; the Ground ſerving for a Churchyard.

A little farther Weſt on the ſame Side of the Way is Birchin Lane, which runs into Cornhil: a great Through-fare to and from the Exchange.

It is well inhabited, eſpecially by Saleſmen for Mens Apparel. In this Lane are ſeveral Courts and Alleys, viz. Exchange Alley, Caſtle Alley, and White Lyon Court. But are in Cornhil Ward.

White Hart Court.

Quakers Meeting-houſe.

Plough Yard.

Three Kings Court.

But now for the South ſide of Lombard Street. Betwixt Graſschurch Street and St. Clements Lane, are theſe Courts and Alleys, viz. White Hart Court, which hath a Paſſage through an Entry, into another Court ſo called, which leadeth into Graſschurch Street, a Place well inhabited by Wholeſale Dealers, and moſt by Quakers, where they have their Meeting-houſe. But of this Court, the greateſt part is in Bridge Ward within, that which is in this Ward being next to Lombard Street. Plough Yard hath a good Free Stone Pavement, and the Houſes well built and inhabited. Three Kings Court, well inhabited by Wholeſale Dealers and others. Out of this Court is a Paſſage into two others, the one leading into St. Clements Lane, narrow and ordinary; but the other is large and open, and well Tenanted; and this Court hath a Paſſage into Nags Head Court, which is long and large, and another Paſſage into St. Clements Lane. George Alley but ſmall.

Nags Head Court.

Exchange Alley.

Stepping over the Way again, to the North ſide, Weſtward of Birching Lane, are theſe following Places. Exchange Alley, which paſſeth ſtrait through into Cornhil: Here are divers eminent Coffee Houſes, as Garways, Jonathans, Bakers, Elmers, chiefly frequented by Brokers, Stockjobbers, Frenchmen, Jews, as well as other Merchants and Gentlemen.

Popes Head Alley.

Popes Head Alley hath a good Paſſage into Cornhil, ſo called from the Popes Head Tavern therein ſeated, being of a very conſiderable Trade: This Alley ſtill enjoys a good Trade for Toys and Turners Wares there ſold; but not ſo much as before the great Fire. Here is Bridges Coffeehouſe and Warehouſe. On the other ſide of the way the Poſt-Office, built by Sir Robert Vyner Goldſmith, Alderman of the City of London, Knt. and Bart. on the Ground, where ſtood a great Tavern before the Fire: This was his Dwelling, being a very large and curious Building, with good Rooms: The firſt Entrance out of Lombard Street into this Houſe is through a large Gate and broad Entry, which leadeth into a handſome Court neatly paved with Free Stone, encloſed in with the Buildings belonging unto it; and behind the Houſe is a Yard for Stabling and Coaches, where there is a back Gate into Sherborn Lane: This Houſe is very convenient for the Management of this great Buſineſs of the General Poſt-Office.

Poſt Office.

St. Mary Woolnoth Church.

Near adjoining to this Houſe is the Church of S. Mary Woolnoth, ſeated at the corner of Sherborn Lane; It is in the Dioceſs of London, the Prioreſs of St. Helen was the Patroneſs.

This Church was burnt in the Fire of London 1666: Towards its Rebuilding, Beautifying, and the Organs, Sir Robert Vyner aforeſaid was a very liberal Benefactor. This Church being found very defective, with the Steeple, was pulled down in the year 1716, to be new built.

Stocks Market.

To this Pariſh that of Woolchurch is united: The Place whereon that Church ſtood being now the Stocks Market.

Cardinals Cap Tavern ſeated in an Alley ſo called, which hath a very narrow Paſſage into Cornhil, with a Tenement thereunto annexed, and another Houſe behind the ſaid Tavern, with another ſmall Alley near adjoining. This Tavern was formerly of more Repute than at preſent.

Dove Court.

Then again on the South ſide is Dove Court, a good handſome ſquare Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement, having a Paſſage into Bearbinder Lane, and another into the upper end of Swithing Lane near its falling into Sherborn Lane, and another into Lombard Street; but part of this Court, as alſo Swithen's Lane, and Bearbinder Lane, are in Walbrook Ward.

Out of Lombard Street, on the South ſide, Sherborn Lane, Abchurch Lane, St. Nicolas Lane, and St. Clements Lane take their Riſe, and run Southward into Cannon Street.

Sherborn Lane.

Abchurch Lane.

Sherborn Lane hath the greateſt Part in Walbrook Ward, where it is taken notice of.

Abchurch Lane hath the greateſt Part in Candlewick Ward, where it is treated of.

St. Nicolas Lane.

Foxes Ordinary.

St. Nicolas Acons Churchyard.

St. Nicolas Lane, well built and inhabited by Merchants and wholeſale Dealers. The South end beyond Fox's Ordinary, is in Candlewick Ward. On the Weſt ſide near unto Lombard Street, is a ſmall Alley without a Name; and a little more Southwards, is the Church Yard of St. Nicolas Acons, the Church not being built ſince the great Fire of London, whereby it was demoliſhed, and the Pariſh united to S. Edmund's Lombard Street. This Church was in the Dioceſs of London, the Abbot of Malmeſbury anciently the Patron.

Foxes Court.

More South, on the ſame ſide of the Way, is Fox's Court, or Ordinary (from a publick Eating Houſe formerly there) a handſome Place with good built Houſes well inhabited by Merchants, and People of Repute. Near unto this Court is the Bell Tavern, which hath a Paſſage through Bell Alley into Cannon Street.

Bell Tavern and Alley.

St. Clements Lane.

More Eaſt from Nicolas Lane, is St. Clement's Lane, well built and inhabited by Merchants, and Perſons of Repute. The South Part, which is next to Cannon Street, is in Candlewick Ward; to wit, from the North ſide of St. Clement's Eaſtcheap Church, which is a handſome Brick Building with Freeſtone Work at the Corners; of which Church, more in Candlewick Ward, in which it is ſeated.

The Church.

Church Alley.

Adjoining to this Church, is a good handſome Place called Church Alley, the North ſide having a Row of Houſes; the South ſide lying open to the Church and Churchyard.

Nags Head Court.

A little more Northwards, and on the ſame ſide, is Nagshead Court, a very large Place, well built and inhabited, having a Paſſage into Graſſechurch Street. About the middle of this Court is an open ſquare Place well built and inhabited. Out of this Court is alſo a Paſſage into Three Kings Court, which is likewiſe a good ſquare Place well tenanted; and out of this Court are likewiſe two others which bear the ſame Name of Nagshead Court, the one leading to Lombard Street, and the other into St. Clement's Lane. And thus much for Lombard Street.

Three Kings Court.

Fenchurch Street.

BILLINGSGATE WARD,

The Bounds thereof. A Free Market for Fiſh here. St. Botolph's Church.
St. Mary at Hill. The Corps of a Woman found whole 170 Years after her Death. St. Margaret Pattens. St. Andrew Hubbert. St. George in Botolph Lane. The preſent State of this Ward.

Billingſgate Ward.

The Bounds thereof.

BILLINSGATE Ward beginneth at the Weſt end of Tower Street Ward in Thames Street, about Smarts Key, and runneth down along that Street, on the South ſide, to Saint Magnus Church at the Bridge foot, and on the North ſide of the ſaid Thames Street, from over againſt Smarts Key, till over againſt the North Weſt Corner of St. Magnus Church aforeſaid.

On this North ſide of Thames Street is S. Mary Hill Lane, up to St. Margaret's Church, and then part of St. Margaret Pattens Street, at the end of St. Mary Hill Lane. Next out of Thames Street is Lucas Lane, and then Botulph Lane, and at the North end thereof Philpot Lane: Then is there Rother Lane, of old time ſo called, and thwart the ſame Lane is Little Eaſtcheap: And theſe be the Bounds of this Billinſgate Ward.

Touching the principal Ornaments within this Ward: On the South ſide of Thames Street, beginning at the Eaſt end thereof, there is firſt the ſaid Smarts Key, ſo called, of one Smart, ſometime owner thereof.

Smarts Key.

Billingſgate.

The next is Billinſgate, whereof the whole Ward taketh name; the which (leaving out of the Fable thereof, faining it to be builded by King Belin, a Britain, long before the Incarnation of Chriſt) is at this preſent a large Water Gate, Port or Harbrough for Ships and Boats, commonly arriving there with Fiſh, both freſh and ſalt, Shell-fiſhes, Salt, Oranges, Onions, and other Fruits and Roots; Wheat, Rye, and Grain of divers ſorts for ſervice of the Citie, and the Parts of this Realm adjoining. This Gate is now more frequented than of old time, when the Queens Hith was more uſed, as being appointed by the Kings of this Realm, to be the ſpecial or only Port for taking up of all ſuch kind of Merchandizes, brought to this City by Strangers and Foreigners; and the Draw-bridge of Timber at London Bridge was then to be raiſed, or drawn up for Paſſage of Ships with tops thither.

Cuſtoms of Billingſgate.

*Strandage, Firſt Edit.

Touching the ancient Cuſtoms of this Billingſgate, I have not read in any Record more than that in the Reign of Edward III. every great Ship landing there, paid for Standage * two Pence; every little Ship with Orelockes, a Penny; the leſſer Boat, called a Battle, a halfpenny. Of two Quarters of Corn meaſured, the King was to have one Farthing; of a Comb of Corn a Penny; of every Weight going out of the City, a Halfpenny; of two Quarters of Sea-coals meaſured, a Farthing; and of every Tun of Ale going out of England beyond the Seas, by Merchant Strangers four Pence; of every thouſand Herring, a Farthing, except the Franchiſes, &c.

Cuſtoms paid here in King Ethelred's Time. J. S.

These Payments were made in the Reign of King Edward III. beyond which Stow ſaith he had not met with any Records relating to the ſaid Cuſtoms. But they were paid long before, as appears in Brompton's Chronicle inter Leges Ethelredi, which was Ann. 1016. namely, that Tolls were then paid at Billingſgate: as Mr. Bellamy, the City Remembrancer hath well obſerved to me.]

Billingſgate a free Market for Fiſh. J. S.

Of late an Act of Parliament was made, (to wit 10. and 11. Will. III.) to make Billinſgate a free Market for ſale of Fiſh, Then it was enacted, “ That after 10. of May, 1699. Billinſgate Market ſhould be every day in the Week (except Sunday) a free and open Market for all ſorts of Fiſh. And that it ſhould be lawful for any Perſon to buy or ſell any ſort of Fiſh without diſturbance.

This Act alſo ſettled the Tolls to be paid by the Fiſher Boats: Enacting, “ That after the ſaid 10th of May, no Perſon ſelling any ſort of Fiſh in the ſaid Market, ſhould pay any other Toll or Duty to any Perſon or Perſons, for coming with his Boat or Veſſel, or landing, ſtanding or ſelling in or at this Market, than it was hereafter expreſſed; viz. For every Veſſel of ſalt Fiſh, for Groundage, 8 d. per Day, and 20 d. per Voyage, and no more in full of all Duties and Demands; to be diſtributed and diſpoſed of, as the L. Maior, &c. ſhall yearly order and direct, according to the right of the reſpective Perſons thereunto. For a Lobſter Boat, for Groundage per Day 2 d. and per Voyage 13 d. and no more, in full, as aforeſaid. For every Veſſel of freſh Sea Fiſh, Groundage per Day 2 d. and per Voyage 13 d. For every Dogger Boat, or Smack with Sea Fiſh, for Groundage per Day, 2 d. and per Voyage, 13 d. For every Oiſter Veſſel, or Cock, for Groundage per Day, 2 d. for Metage one Halfpenny per Buſhel.

“ And that it ſhould be lawful for any Perſon, that bought any Fiſh in the ſaid Market to ſell the ſame again in any other Market, Place or Places within the City of London, or elſewhere, by retail, being ſound and wholeſome Fiſh, without any diſturbance or moleſtation.

“ And that from and after the 10th of May, that Perſon that ſhould take or demand any Toll or Sample, or any Impoſition or Set-price of Sea Fiſh, of Engliſh catching, ſhould forfeit the ſum of 10 l. the one half to his Majeſty, and the other half to him that will ſue for the ſame.

Fiſhmongers not to engroſs.

And becauſe the Fiſhmongers cauſed the greateſt part of the Fiſh to be bought up at Belinſgate, and then divided the ſame by Lot among themſelves, in order to buy and ſell at what rate they pleaſed, it was alſo enacted, “ That no Perſon “ whatſoever ſhould after the ſaid 10th of May,

“ buy or cauſe to be bought at the ſaid Market
“ of Billinſgate, any quantity of Fiſh to be divided
“ by Lot among any Fiſhmongers or other
“ Perſons, with an intent to be put afterwards
“ to ſale by retail, or otherwiſe. Nor any Fiſhmonger
“ to engroſs or buy in the ſaid Market
“ any quantity of Fiſh, but what ſhall be for his “ own ſale or uſe, and not on the behalf of any “ other Fiſhmongers expoſed to ſale, on pain of “ forfeiting 20*l.* for every ſuch Offence, the “ one half to the uſe of the Poor of the Pariſh
“ where he lives, the other half to his own uſe
“ that ſhall ſue for it. Provided, nothing contained “ in this Act ſhould be conſtrued to prohibit “ the ſelling of Mackrel before or after Divine “ Service on Sundays.

Mackrel.

Afterwards upon the Ingroſſing of great quantities of Fiſh by ſome Perſons, to the violation of this Act, this Order came forth Anno 1707. Sir Robert Bedingfield, Maior.

Jovis Viceſimo ſexto die Junij, 1707. Annoq; Regni Reginæ ANNÆ Magnæ Britanniæ, &c. Sexto.

WHEREAS in and by an Act of Parliament made in the Tenth and Eleventh Years of the Reign of King William the Third, Intituled, An Act to make Billingſgate a Free Market for Sale of Fiſh, It is Enacted, That it ſhall, and may be lawful for any Perſon or Perſons, to Buy or Sell any ſort of Fiſh, in the ſaid Market, without any Diſturbance or Moleſtation whatſoever, and to Sell the ſame again in any other Market Place or Places within the City of London, or elſewere by Retail. But contrary to the true intent and meaning of the ſaid Act, divers Perſons do frequently Buy and Ingroſs to themſelves great quantities of Fiſh, in, or at Billingſgate Market, and Sell the ſame again in the ſaid Market; which Practice tends greatly to the Enhanſing the Prices of Fiſh, and is puniſhable by the Statute made againſt Regrators, in the Fifth and Sixth Years of the Reign of King Edward the Sixth, Chapter the Fourteenth.

For prevention whereof for the future, It is now ordered by this Court, That no Fiſhmonger, Fiſhwoman, or other Perſon or Perſons whatſoever, do, or ſhall hereafter Sell or expoſe to Sale any Fiſh, in, or at Billingſgate Market, which was then before bought in the ſame Market; and that none but Fiſhermen, their Wives, Apprentices or Servants, be permitted to ſtand, ſtay or remain there to Sell by Retail the Fiſh by them taken, and brought to the ſaid Market to be Sold, ſo that the Citizens may have Fiſh at the firſt hand for their own uſe, according to the true meaning of the Law: And it is further ordered by this Court, That the Hours limitted for beginning of the ſaid Fiſh Market at Billingſgate, ſhall hereafter be ſtrictly obſerved, (that is to ſay) from Lady-Day to Michaelmas, at Four of the Clock in the Morning, and from Michaelmas to Lady-Day at Six of the Clock in the Morning; and that before thoſe Hours none do preſume to Buy or Sell any ſort of Fiſh at the ſaid Market, (except Herrings, Sprats, Mackarel and Shell-Fiſh) on pain of being proceeded againſt as Foreſtallers of the Market. And the Yeomen of the Waterſide are ſtrictly enjoyned and required to ſee this Order duly and conſtantly obſerved; and alſo, conſtantly to Ring the Bell at Billingſgate preciſely at the Times aforeſaid, for the beginning of the Market there; and that without fail they cauſe all Perſons that ſhall Buy or Sell Fiſh there, before the ſaid Hours, and Ringing of the ſaid Bell, or ſhall Regrate Fiſh, (that is to ſay, Buy Fiſh, and Sell the ſame again in the ſaid Market) to be apprehended, and brought before the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor of this City, for the time being, or ſome Juſtice of the Peace, to be bound over to the Seſſions, there to anſwer the ſame: And it is further Ordered, That no Fiſh (except Herrings, Sprats, Mackarel and Shell Fiſh) be Sold aboard any Veſſel or Boat at Billingſgate, which the ſaid Yeomen of the Waterſide, and the Under-Water-Bayliff are likewiſe carefully to ſee obſerved, as they will anſwer the contrary at their Perils.

Then is there a fair Wharf or Key, called Botolph's Gate, by that Name ſo called in the Times of William the Conqueror, and of Edward the Confeſſor, as I have ſhewed already in the Deſcription of the Gates.

Butolph Wharf was in the Crown in Edward the Firſt's time, who granted it to Richard de Kingſton in theſe Words: “ Our common Key
“ of St. Butolph next Billingſgate, London, with “ free going in and out to the ſame, in the Eaſt “ Head of the ſame Place. Which place hath “ Land contained from the Tenement of the

The Pariſh Church of St. BUTOLPH Billingſgate.

This Church was burnt in the great Fire, and rebuilt. An Encroachment upon the Church was preſented in the Parochial Viſitation 1693. namely, that moſt part of the Ground, on which the Chancel ſtood was taken by Sir Joſiah Child into the Paſſage to Butolph Wharf: For which he was to pay to the Pariſh an 100*l.* which then was not paid: Tho' I make no doubt before this time it is: As likewiſe for Encroachments upon the City Ground.

Parſonage Houſe.

The Parſonage Houſe was burnt Anno 1666. Rebuilt and let out by Leaſe for the Term of 40 Years, for the Sum of 6 l. per Ann.

The number of Strangers lately increaſed in this City.

* That is before the Year 1598.

This Pariſh of St. Butolph is no great thing; notwithſtanding divers Strangers are there harboured, as may appear by a Preſentment, not many years * ſince made, of Strangers Inhabitants in the Ward of Billingſgate, in theſe Words:

In Billingſgate Ward were one and fiftie Houſholds of Strangers; whereof thirty of theſe Houſholds inhabited in the Pariſh of Saint Butolph, in the chiefe and principal Houſes, where they give 20 Pound a Yere for an Houſe lately letten for foure Markes. The neerer they dwell to the Water ſide, the more they give for Houſes, and within thirty Yeeres before, there was not in the whole Ward above three Netherlanders, at which time, there was within the ſaid Pariſh levied for the helpe of the Poore, ſeven and twenty Pounds by the Yeere; but ſince they came ſo plentifully thither, there cannot be gathered above eleven Pounds: For the Strangers will not contribute to ſuch Charges as other Citizens doe.

Thus much for that South ſide of this Ward.

Boſſe Alley, and the Boſſe of Billingſgate.

On the North ſide is Boſſe Alley, ſo called of a Boſſe of Spring Water continually running, which ſtandeth by Billingſgate, againſt this Alley, and was ſometimes made by the Executors of Richard Whittington.

The Boars Head for Maintenance of a Chantry J. S.

In this Ward there was a Houſe called the Boars Head, inhabited by William Sanderſon, which came to King Edward VI. by the Statute about Chantries. Which with the Shops, Cellars, Solers, and other Commodities and Eaſements, he ſold in the ſecond of his Reign, (together with other Lands and Tenements) to John Sicklemore and Walter Williams for 2668 l. and upwards.]

St. Mary Hill Lane.

Then is S. Mary Hill Lane, which runneth up North from Billingſgate, to the end of S. Margaret Pattens, commonly called Rood Lane, and the greateſt half of that Lane is alſo of Billingſgate Ward.

The Pariſh Church of St. MARY HILL.

In this St. Mary Hill Lane, is the fair Pariſh Church of St. Mary, called on the Hill, becauſe of the Aſcent from Billingſgate.

Repaired. R.

This Church in the many decayed Parts and Places of it, was repaired richly, and very worthily beautified at the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners, in the Year of our Lord 1616.

To the continuing of which, the careful Overſeers of it, every third or fourth Year ever ſince, have beſtowed a new Trimming upon it. No ſooner (as I am informed) finding any Defect, Failing, or Declining of it, than applying their Care to revive, refreſh and reſtore it; which appears in its preſent Beauty.

Septem Cameræ a Chantry. J. S.

In this Pariſh of St. Mary at Hill, there was a Place called Septem Cameræ; which was either one Houſe, or elſe ſo many Rooms or Chambers, which formerly belonged to ſome Chantry. The Rent whereof went towards the maintaining of a Prieſt to pray ſuperſtitiouſly for the Soul of the deceaſed, who left thoſe Septem Cameræ for that Uſe. Theſe with other Lands and Tenements in the City and elſewhere, were ſold by King Edward VI. to Tho. Heybarn and Tho. Brand for the Sum of 988 l. 8. 12.]

This Church hath been lately builded, as may appear by this that followeth.

Richard Hackney, one of the Sheriffes in the Year 1322, and Alice his Wife, were there buried, as Robert Fabian writeth, ſaying thus:

Alice Hackney found uncorrupted, more than 170 years after ſhe was buried.

In the Year 1497, in the Month of April, as Labourers digged for the Foundation of a Wall, within the Church of St. Mary Hill, near unto Billingſgate, they found a Coffin of rotten Timber, and therein the Corps of a Woman, whole of Skin, and of Bones undiſſevered, and the Joynts of her Arms pliable, without breaking of the Skin; upon whoſe Sepulcher this was engraven:

In this Place lyen the Bodies of Richard Hackney, Fiſhmonger, and Alice his Wife. The which Richard was Sheriffe in the 15. of Edward the ſecond.

Her Body was kept above above Ground three or four Days without Noiſance; but then it waxed unſavory, and ſo was again buried.

So that ſhe find one Chaplain in the Chapel of S. Catharine in the ſaid Church of S. Mary, daily to celebrate Divine Offices for his Soul, and his Fathers, Mothers, Roſe his former Wife, John and William Weſton their Souls. He gave a Tenement in S. Vedaſt Lane, in the Pariſh of S. Leonard, London, to the Rector and Pariſh of S. Mary Hill, to find a Chaplain ad divina celebrand. This Man was Sheriff of London An. 1422.]

The Pariſh of St. MARGARET PATTENS.

S. Margaret Pattens Lane.

Pariſh Church of St. Margaret Pattens.

This Lane [of S. Mary Hill] on both ſides is furniſhed with many fair Houſes for Merchants, and hath at the North end thereof one other Lane, called S. Margaret Pattens, becauſe of old time Pattens were uſually there made and ſold: but of latter time this is called Rood Lane, of a Rood there placed, in the Churchyard of St. Margaret, whilſt the old Church was taken down, and again new builded; during which time, the Oblations made to this Rood were employed towards building of the Church. But in the year 1538. about the 23d of May in the Morning, the ſaid Rood was found to have been in the Night preceding (by People unknown) broken all to pieces, together with the Tabernacle, wherein it had been placed.

The Rood there.

Fire in Rood Lane.

Alſo on the 27th of the ſame Month, in the ſame Pariſh, amongſt the Basket-makers, a great and ſudden Fire happened in the Night Seaſon, which within the ſpace of three Hours conſumed more than a dozen Houſes, and nine Perſons were brent to death there. And thus ceaſed that Work of this Church, being at that time nigh finiſhed to the Steeple.

She deſcended of worſhipful Parents: And as ſhe was vertuouſly bred, ſo lived and dyed, full of Faith, Hope, and Charity, as was known to many that had made uſe thereof to their great Comfort in time of Neceſſity. For her only Study was to ſerve God, and do good to others. She was of the Age of 35 Years, and departed this Life to a better the 21ſt of February 1631.

Parſonage.

There was a Parſonage Houſe before the Fire. The Ground was leaſed by Dr. Sherlock the Incumbent for 40 Years, at the yearly Rent of 4 l.]

Rother Lane, now Pudding Lane.

Then have ye one other Lane called Rother Lane, or Redroſe Lane, of ſuch a Sign there; now commonly called Pudding Lane, becauſe the Butchers of Eaſtcheap have their Scalding Houſe for Hogs there, and their Puddings with other Filth of Beaſts, are voided down that way to their Dung Boats on the Thames.

This Lane ſtretcheth from Thamesſtreet to Little Eaſtcheap, chiefly inhabited by Basket Makers, Turners and Butchers, and is all of Billingſgate Ward.

The Garland.

The Garland in Little Eaſtcheap, ſometime a Brewhouſe, with a Garden on the Backſide, adjoining to the Garden of Sir John Philpot, was the chief Houſe in this Eaſtcheap. It is now divided into ſundry ſmall Tenements, &c.

Now for the preſent State and Condition of this Ward.

Its Bounds. R. B.

In this Ward the dreadful Fire of London began, and in a few Hours it was wholly laid in Aſhes. This Ward hath for its Weſtern Bounds Bridge Ward within; for its Northern Langborne Ward; for its Eaſtern Towerſtreet Ward; and for its Southern the River of Thames, as appears by the Map.

Places in this Ward.

The chief Places in this Ward are, Thamesſtreet, Little Eaſtcheap, Pudding Lane, Botolphs Lane, Love Lane, St. Mary Hill, Rood Lane for about 200 Foot, and Philpot Lane for about 150 Foot; the reſt of theſe Lanes being in Langborn Ward. And in theſe Places are ſeveral Courts and Places of Name; of which in order.

Thamesſtreet.

Thamesſtreet, a place of a very conſiderable Trade, and that by reaſon of Billingſgate therein ſeated. In this part of the Street there are ſeveral Keys and Wharfs for the lading and unlading of Merchandizes, there being Cranes, Keys, and other Conveniences for the ſaid Purpoſe.

The preſent Keys allowed by Parliament. J. S.

The Keys, Wharfs and Docks, which are now aſſigned and allowed to be lawful by an Act of Parliament, for ſhipping, lading and landing of Goods and Merchandizes, are theſe; 1. Brewers Key, 2. Cheſters Key, 3. Gally Key, 4. Wool Dock, 5. Cuſtom Houſe Key, 6. Porters Key, 7. Bears Key, 8. Sabs Key, 9. Wiggans Key, 10. Youngs Key, 11. Raſes Key, 12. Dice Key, 13. Smarts Key, 14. Billingſgate, 15. Somers Key, 16. Lions Key, 17. Buttolphs Key, 18. Hamons Key, 19. Gaunts Key, 20. Cocks Key and Freſh Wharf.]

Billingſgate

Billingſgate is that from which the Ward takes its Name, being a large Water Gate, Port, or Harbour for ſmall Veſſels which here arrive with Fiſh, Salt, Oranges, Lemons, Onions, and ſeveral other Commodities; and in the Summer Seaſon with abundance of Cherries from Kent. Likewiſe Wheat and other Grain at Smarts Key. And theſe Stairs of Billingſgate are very much reſorted unto by the Graveſend Watermen, this being the noted Place to land and take water at, for that and other Eaſtern Towns down the River. And here the Coalmen and Woodmongers meet every Morning about 8 or 9 a Clock, this Place being their Exchange for the Coal Trade, which brings a great reſort of People, and occaſions a great Trade to the Inhabitants. And this Place is now more frequented than in ancient time when Queen Hithe was made uſe of for the ſaid Purpoſe, this being more commodious. And therefore it was ordained to be the only Port for all ſuch ſorts of Merchandizes.

Graveſend Watermen.

The Woodmongers meet here.

Boſs Alley.

Boſs Alley being long, but very ordinary and narrow.

St. Margaret Pattens Church.

Near unto this Alley is St. Mary Hill, which runneth Northwards unto St. Margaret Pattens

Church in the Dioceſs of London; the Maior and Aldermen of London are Patrons; which ſaid Church being conſumed by the Fire of London 1666, is now rebuilt; to this Pariſh is St. Gabriel Fenchurch Pariſh united.

Croſs Lane.
St. Auſtin's Court.
Maſſies Court.

This St. Mary Hill is well furniſhed with good Houſes, inhabited by divers Merchants. On the Eaſt ſide is Croſs Lane, which falls into Idle Lane againſt St. Dunſtan's Church. Auſtins Court but mean, lying Northwards of Croſs Lane. Maſſies Court a little more Northwards, hath a dark Paſſage up Steps, and then is an open Court, but mean.

St. Mary Hill Church.
Church Alley.

St. Mary Hill Church ſo called, as ſeated on the Aſcent from Billingſgate; the back part alſo ſtands in Love Lane, and adjoining to the Church is an Alley called Church Alley, which leadeth into Love Lane, and hath Buildings only on the South ſide, which are pretty good; the other ſide lying open to the Churchyard. This Church is built of Free Stone with a towred Steeple, and a handſome Dial hanging into the Street. It is in the Dioceſs of London, one Mr. Page of Dartford in Kent was Patron: It is now in Conteſt.

This Church was deſtroyed by the Conflagration of London 1666. And ſince its rebuilding as aforeſaid, the Pariſh of St. Andrew Hubbard (whoſe Church is not rebuilt) is united to it.

Love Lane.
The Weigh-houſe.

Love Lane comes out of Little Eaſtcheap, and falls into Thamesſtreet, where it hath but a narrow Entrance only for a Coach or Cart: In this Lane on the North Weſt Corner entering into Little Eaſtcheap, is the Weighouſe built on the Ground, where the Church of St. Andrew Hubbard ſtood before the Fire of London 1666. Which ſaid Weighouſe was before in Cornhil. In this Houſe are weighed Merchandizes brought from beyond the Seas by the Kings Beam, to which doth belong a Maſter, and under him four Maſter Porters, with labouring Porters under them. They have Carts and Horſes to fetch the Goods from the Merchants Warehouſes to the Beam, and to carry them back. The Houſe belongeth to the Company of Grocers, in whoſe Gifts the ſeveral Porters, &c. Places are. But of late years little is done in this Office, as wanting a compulſive Power to conſtrain the Merchants to have their Goods weighed; they alledging it to be an unneceſſary trouble and Charge. Over this Office or Weigh-houſe is a large Room, now made uſe of for a Presbyterian Meeting-houſe. On the back ſide of this Building is a Paſſage into St. Botolphs Lane; but the chief Entrance into this Weigh-houſe is in Little Eaſtcheap.

St. Botolph's Lane.
George Lane.
St. Botolph Billingſgate Church.
St. Botolph's Alley.

St. Botolphs Lane. The Pariſh Church here is a good handſome Free Stone Building: adjoining to which is George Lane on the North ſide, which gives an Entrance into the Church, and this Lane hath a narrow Paſſage into Pudding Lane. Over againſt this Church is St. Botolphs Alley, indifferently well inhabited; with a pretty broad Free Stone Paſſage into Love Lane. More Southward is St. Botolphs Churchyard, at the upper end of which is 2 or 3 ordinary Houſes. This Lane, except the part towards Thamesſtreet, pretty broad, and well inhabited by Merchants. This Church of St. George Botolphs is in the Dioceſs of London, the Abbot of Bermundſey was anciently Patron.

Pudding Lane

Pudding Lane. In this Lane it was that the dreadful Fire of London on the ſecond of Sept. 1666 firſt began, which conſumed about 13000 dwelling Houſes.

Fiſh Yard.
Butchers Hall.

And in Commemoration thereof, there is erected hard by a ſtately Monument of Free Stone, of a vaſt height, which taketh up a good part of the Eaſt ſide of Fiſhſtreet Hill; to the end it may be obvious to all that paſs that way, being a very great Through-fare to and from Southwark. Of this Monument more in Bridge Ward within. On the Eaſt ſide of this Lane is Fiſh Yard, a very ſmall Court, with a Free Stone Pavement. On the Weſt ſide is a Paſſage into Fiſhſtreet Hill by the Monument; and more Northwards on the Eaſt ſide is Butchers Hall, a pretty handſome ſmall Building, with a Free Stone paved Court before it, and hath a back Paſſage into Pudding Lane.

Turners Alley.

Little Eaſtcheap ſevered from Great Eaſtcheap by Graſschurch Street and Fiſhſtreet Hill: It is of chief account for Butchers there inhabiting; on the North ſide and at the Corner of Rood Lane ſtood St. Margaret Pattens Church as aforeſaid; and betwixt Rood Lane and Philpot Lane is Turners Alley, both ſmall and narrow. At the upper end of which is a Garden belonging to a Merchants Houſe.

Rood Lane.

Rood Lane. This Lane is well built, and inhabited, with ſeveral Merchants Houſes.

Philpot Lane.

Philpot Lane hath the greateſt part in Langborne Ward, where it is ſpoke of.

Talbot Court.

The Pariſh Church of St. LEONARD in EASTCHEAP.

St. Leonard's Milk Church.

Up higher on this Hill, is the Pariſh Church of St. Leonard Milk Church, ſo termed of one William Melker, an eſpecial builder thereof, but commonly called St. Leonard's in Eaſtcheap, becauſe it ſtandeth at Eaſtcheap Corner.

The Steeple fired 1618. R.

In the Year of our Lord 1618. this Church by a caſualty of Fire, happening by whiting of Baskets, in the Houſe of one Jerome Baynton a Turner, (ſituate in Little Eaſtceap, on the North ſide of the ſaid Church, whoſe Houſe was burned down, and in the place thereof another built with Brick) was fired in the Steeple thereof, being a Spire covered with Lead; it was quenched, but not without great pains and much danger to ſome Perſons, (who were not unrewarded by the Pariſh) before any great hurt was done to it by the Fire, more than the defacing of it, and other parts of the Church; but for that the ſaid Steeple was very old, much ruined and decayed in the ſtone Work thereof, to prevent further danger, it was pulled down, and all the Weſt end of the Church thereto adjoining, a new Foundation laid, inlarged three Foot toward the Eaſt, and new built, not without great Charge to the Inhabitants of the Pariſh, who were all willing and ready to contribute towards the rebuilding, repairing, and beautifying the Houſe of God; and the better to ſet forward the Work, the Inhabitants of the Pariſh did tax themſelves toward the Charge at 198*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* but for that the Pariſh is but ſmall, and the greater part of the Inhabitants poor, they were inforced by their Petition to ſeek help from his Majeſty, who was graciouſly pleaſed to grant them his Letters Patents (for their relief) to collect and gather in ſeveral Counties within this Kingdom towards the Charge of the rebuilding the Steeple, and the repairing of the Church.

A Brief granted towards the rebuilding of it.

The Steeple being finiſhed as it now ſtandeth, the South Wall toward the Churchyard being much decayed, was alſo taken down and new built, and the Church in other parts repaired, the Charge thereof amounting to above 850*l.* of which the Pariſh received by way of Collection (toward their Charge) in London, and other Places, the Sum of 170*l.* 1*s.* 9*d.* and of other Benefactors, 10*l.* 15*s.* they having one Patent for ſix Shires alſo, the Party that was imployed to lay the Briefs, and gather the Collections, went away with all, and brought to the Pariſh neither Brief nor Penny. The Steeple of this Church, and the Wall on the South ſide (toward the Churchyard) was builded, and the Church in other parts repaired and beautified, in the Years 1618, 1619, 1620, 1621.

So much beholden are we to ſome in former Times, whoſe Inclinations led them to take notice of, and to tranſcribe Funeral Inſcriptions.

The Nine Worthies in Graſschurch. J. S.

At this S. Benets Graſschurch were the Pictures of the Nine Worthies; and amongſt them King Henry VIII. ſtanding with the Bible in his Hands and VERBUM DEI written upon it. All theſe Cuſtoms of Graſs-ſtreet Market. Lib. Alb.

J. S.

The Cuſtoms of Graſschurch Market, in the Reign of Edward the third, as I have read in a Book of Cuſtoms, were theſe: [Cet la Cuſtume de Ger [or] Gerſcherche, Cheſcune carecte de foreyn que meiſte blee ou brees dorra ab Cheſcune carecte que meiſtie furmage 2 deniers, &c.] i. e. Every foreign Cart laden with Corn or Malt, coming thither to be ſold, was to pay one halfpenny. Every foreign Cart bringing Cheeſe, two pence. Every Cart of Corn and Cheeſe together (if the Cheeſe be more worth than the Corn) two pence; and if the Corn be more worth than the Cheeſe, it was to pay a halfpenny. Of two Horſes laden with Corn or Malt, the Bailiffe had one farthing. The Cart of the Franchiſe of the Temple, and of S. Martin le Grand, paid a farthing. The Cart of the Hoſpital of S. John of Jeruſalem, paid nothing for their proper Goods. And if the Corne were brought by Merchants to ſell again, the Load paid a halfpenny, &c.

On the Weſt ſide of this Ward, at the North end of London Bridge, is a Part of Thames Street, which is alſo of this Ward; to wit, ſo much as of old time was called Stockfiſhmonger Row, of the Stockfiſhmongers dwelling there: down Weſt to a Water-gate, of old time called Ebgate, ſince Ebgate Lane, and now the Old Swan, which is a common Stair on the Thames, but the Paſſage is very narrow, by means of Encroachments.

Fiſhmongers Hall.

On the South ſide of Thames ſtreet, about the midway betwixt the Bridge Foot and Ebgate Lane, ſtandeth the Fiſhmongers Hall, and divers other fair Houſes for Merchants.

Antiquities of the Fiſhmongers, 1290.

A triumphant Shew made by the Fiſhmongers for the Victory of the King.

Theſe Fiſhmongers were ſometimes of two ſeveral Companies, to wit, Stockfiſhmongers and Saltfiſhmongers. Of whoſe Antiquity I read, that by the Name of Fiſhmongers of London, they were for foreſtalling, &c. contrary to the Laws and Conſtitutions of the City, fined to the King at 500 Marks, the 18th of King Edward the firſt. More, that the ſaid Fiſhmongers hearing of the great Victory obtained by the ſame King againſt the Scots, in the 26th of his Reign, made a triumphant and ſolemn Shew thorough the City, with divers Pageants, and more than 1000 Horſemen, &c. as in the Chapter of Sports and Paſtimes.

Fiſhmongers had 6 Halls in London.

Theſe two Companies of Stockfiſhmongers and Saltfiſhmongers, of old time had their ſeveral Halls, to wit, in Thames ſtreet, twaine, in New Fiſhſtreet twaine, and in Old Fiſhſtreet twaine; in each Place, one for either Company: In all, ſix ſeveral Halls, the Company was ſo great, as I have read in the Records of the Tower, now worn out of Knowledge to the Company.

Fiſhmongers, 6 of them Maiors in 24 years.

Fiſhmongers for their Greetings envied of the other Companies.

Nicolas Exton for the Fiſhmongers craved the Kings Protection.

Theſe Fiſhmongers have been jolly Citizens, and 6 Maiors of their Company in 24 Years; to wit, Walter Turke, 1350. John Loſkin, 1359. John Wroth, 1361. John Pechie, 1362. Simon Morden, 1369. And William Walworth, 1374. It followed, that in the Year 1382, through the Counſel of John Northampton, Draper, then being Maior, William Eſſex, John More, Mercer, and Rich. Northbury, the ſaid Fiſhmongers were greatly troubled, hindred of their Liberties, and almoſt deſtroyed by Congregations made againſt them: So that in a Parliament at London, the Controverſie depending between the Maior and Aldermen of London, and the Fiſhmongers there, Nic. Exton, Speaker for the Fiſhmongers, prayeth the King to receive him and his Company into his Protection, for fear of corporal Hurt. Whereupon it was commanded, either part to keep the Peace, upon Pain of loſing all they had. Hereupon a Fiſhmonger ſtarting up, replyed, That the Complaint brought againſt them by the Movers, &c. was but matter of Malice; for that the Fiſhmongers, in the Reign of Edward the third, being chief Officers of the City, had for their Miſdemeanors then done, committed the chief Exhibitors of thoſe Petitions to Priſon. In this Parliament, the Fiſhmongers (by the King's Charter Patents) were reſtored to their Liberties. Notwithſtanding in the Year next following, to wit, 1383, John Cavendiſh Fiſhmonger, craveth the Peace againſt the Chancellor of England, which was granted. And he put in Sureties, the Earls of Stafford and Salisbury,. Cavendiſh challengeth the Chancellor for taking a Bribe of 10 l. for favour of his Caſe; which the Chancellor by Oath upon the Sacrament avoideth. In farther trial, it was found that the Chancellor's Man (without his Maſter's Privity) had taken it. Whereupon Cavendiſh was adjudged to Priſon, and to pay the Chancellor 1000 Marks for ſlandering him.

Fiſhmongers by Parliament reſtored to their Liberties.

John Cavendiſh craved the Peace againſt the Chancellor. Challenged him of taking a Bribe.

After this, many of the Nobles aſſembled at Reding, to ſuppreſs the ſeditious Stirs of the ſaid John Northampton, or Combarton, late Maior, that had attempted great and heinous Enterprizes, of the which he was convict. And when he ſtood mute, nor could utter one Word, it was decreed, That he ſhould be committed to perpetual Priſon, his Goods confiſcate to the King's Uſe, and that he ſhould not come within 100 Miles of London during his Life. He was therefore ſent to the Caſtle of Tintegall, in the Confines of Cornwal, and in the mean ſpace the King's Servants ſpoiled his Goods. John More, Richard Northbury, and other, were likewiſe there convict, and condemned to perpetual Priſon, and their Goods confiſcate, for certain Congregations by them made againſt the Fiſhmongers in the City of London, as is aforeſaid; but they obtained and had the King's Pardon, in the 14th of his Reign, as appeareth of Record: And thus were all theſe Troubles quieted.

Northampton, and other Principal Adverſaries to the Fiſhmongers condemned to perpetual Priſon.

Patent. Stock-fiſhmongers and Salt-fiſhmongers united.

Sir Job Cornwall created Baron Fanhope in the 6. of Edw. 6.

Thoſe Stockfiſhmongers and Saltfiſhmongers were united in the Year 1536, the 28th of Henry 8. their Hall to be but one, in the Houſe given unto them by Sir John Cornwall, Lord Fanhope, and of Ampthull in the Pariſh of S. Michael in Crooked Lane, in the Reign of Henry 6.

W. Walworth ſlandred by a Fable of Jack Straw.

T. Walſin.
H. Knighton.
Lib. Ebor.

Thus much have I thought good to note of the Fiſhmongers, Men ignorant of their own Antiquities, and not able ſo much as to ſhew the Reaſon why, or when they were joyned in Amity with the Goldſmiths, and do give part of their Arms, &c. Neither to ſay ought of Sir William Walworth (the Glory of their Company) more, than that he ſlew Jack Straw, which is a mere Fable: For the ſaid Jack Straw, was after the Overthrow of the Rebels, taken, and by Judgment of the Maior beheaded, which Confeſſion at the Gallows is extant in my Annals. Where alſo is ſet down the moſt valiant and praiſe worthy Act of Sir William Walworth, againſt the principal Rebel, Walter Tighler; as in Reproof of Walworth's Monument in S. Michael's Church, I have declared, and wiſhed to be reformed there as in other Places.

Drinkwater Wharf.

St. Martin's Lane.

On that South ſide of Thames ſtreet, have ye Drinkwater Wharf, and Fiſh Wharf, in the Pariſh of S. Magnus. On the South ſide Thames ſtreet, is S. Martins Lane; a Part of which Lane is alſo of this Ward; to wit, on one ſide to a Well of Water; and on the other ſide as far up as againſt the ſaid Well. Then is S. Michael's Lane, part whereof is alſo of this Ward up to a Well there, &c.

Crooked Lane.

Then at the upper end of New Fiſhſtreet, is a Lane turning towards S. Michael's Lane, and is called Crooked Lane of the Crooked Windings thereof. Above this Lane's end, upon Fiſhſtreet Hill, is one great Houſe, for the moſt part builded of Stone, which pertained ſometime to Edward the Black Prince, Son to Edward III. who was in his Life-time lodged there. It is now altered to a common Hoſtery, having the Black Bell for a Sign.

Crooked Lane about 120 Foot of the Eaſt end of it.

London Bridge.

We begin with London Bridge; a Bridge not inferior to any in Europe for its Length, Breadth and Buildings thereon, being ſuſtained by nineteen great Stone Arches, ſecured by Piles of Timber drove to the bottom of the River, having a Draw Bridge towards Southwark, as alſo ſtrong Gates; and by its Houſes built thereon on both ſides, it ſeemeth rather a Street than a Bridge, being now garniſhed with good Timber Buildings, which are very well inhabited by ſufficient Tradeſmen; who have very conſiderable Dealings, as being ſo great a Thoroughfare from Southwark into London. And amongſt theſe Buildings ſome are very large with curious Fronts in that part near the Draw Bridge, where it hath an open Proſpect on both ſides into the River Thames. The Rents of theſe Houſes on the Bridge do belong to the City for and towards the maintenance of the ſaid Bridge, the Bridge Houſe and Officers thereto belonging, which are very conſiderable. But of this Bridge ſee more in the firſt Book where the Bridges of the City are treated of.

Rents of the Houſes here.

Fiſhſtreet Hill.

Fiſh Street Hill is a Street very well built, and inhabited by great Dealers, and the rather as being ſo great a Thoroughfare in and out of the City Southwards.

St. Magnus Church.

On the Eaſt ſide near the Bridge is St. Magnus Church, ſeated in the Corner going into Thames Street; it is in the Dioceſs of London, the Abbots of Weſtminſter and Bermundſey were Patrons. It was deſtroyed by the Fire of London; ſince which it is rebuilt with Free Stone, and a Tower Steeple all of a curious Workmanſhip; to which Church is united the Pariſh of St. Margaret New Fiſh Street, that Church not being rebuilt.

The Water-Houſe.

On the Weſt ſide of the Bridge is the Water Houſe, being a lofty wooden Building which by Wheels, Iron Chains, &c. drinketh, or rather forceth up Water through leaden Pipes to the top, where there is a Ciſtern, and from thence deſcendeth in other leaden Pipes to the bottom, and thence received by other Pipes, is conveyed under the Pavements of the Streets, and ſo ſerveth many Families in this part of the City with Water; who have Branches, or ſmall Pipes laid from the main ones unto their Houſes to their great conveniency, and no ſmall profit to the City.

Hoop Tavern.

Then paſſing Thames Street, on the Eaſt ſide of Fiſh Street Hill is the Hoop Tavern, of a pretty good trade, hath a Paſſage into Thames Street.

Kings Head Court. Pudding Lane.

Kings Head Court, pretty open, with indifferent good Buildings, hath a Paſſage into Pudding Lane.

Globe Yard.

Globe Yard, a open and ſomewhat large place, having ſeveral Turnings, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and is indifferently well inhabited.

Crooked Lane.

Crooked Lane on the Weſt ſide of the Street hath a turning Paſſage into St. Michael's Lane, but the greateſt part being in Candlewick Ward is there treated of.

The Monument on Fiſhſtreet Hill.

On the Eaſt ſide ſtands the Monument ſeated in a Square open to the Street; erected in perpetual Memory of the dreadful Fire of London, that happened the ſecond Day of September, 1666. with Inſcriptions and divers Figures artificially cut out in Stone, importing the Hiſtory thereof. Which ſaid Monument was by Act of Parliament ordered to be erected near the place where the Conflagration began, and was accordingly ſet up where the Church of St. Margaret New Fiſh Street ſtood: Which is not above 130 Foot from the very Houſe where the Fire firſt broke out. And againſt the ſide of the ſaid Houſe now erected is cut in a Stone the Inſcription before mentioned importing the ſame.

This Monument ſtands upon an Aſcent from the Street three or four Steps of Stone, upon a large Vault of Stone arched. The Column is of the Dorick Order, built all of excellent Portland Stone, the Plinth whereof is twenty ſeven Foot ſquare. Upon three ſides of the Pedeſtal which is twenty one Foot and half ſquare, there are Inſcriptions. On the Weſt ſide Figures.

Of this Column there is a fair Print extant, with this Inſcription:

Inſcription upon a Print of the Column. J. S.

> This famous Column was erected in perpetual Remembrance of the dreadful Fire. It conſumed 89 Churches, the City Gates, many public Hoſpitals, Schools, Libraries, 13200 Houſes, 400 Streets. The Ruines of the City were 436 Acres. Of the 26 Wards, it utterly deſtroyed 15. And left eight others ſhattered and half burnt.

The Baſis is ſaid to be 27 Foot, and from the Baſis the heighth 202 Foot: Begun Sir Richard Ford, Maior, 1671. Finiſhed Sir Joſeph Shelden, Maior, 1676.

The Figures upon the Baſis of the Monument.

The Baſis of the Monument on that ſide toward the Street hath a Repreſentation of the Deſtruction of the City by the Fire, and the Reſtitution of it, by ſeveral curiouſly engraven Figures in ful proportion. Firſt is the Figure of a Woman, repreſenting LONDON, ſitting on Ruines, in a moſt diſconſolate Poſture, her Head hanging down, and her Hair all looſe about her; the Sword lying by her, and her left Hand careleſly laid upon it. A ſecond Figure is Time, with his Wings and bald Head, coming behind her, and gently lifting her up. Another Female Figure on the ſide of her, laying her Hand upon her, and with a Sceptre winged in her other Hand, directing her to look upwards; for it points up to two beautiful Goddeſſes ſitting in the Clouds; one leaning upon a Cornucopia, denoting PLENTY; the other having a Palm Branch in her left Hand, ſignifying VICTORY, or TRIUMPH. Underneath this Figure of LONDON, in the midſt of the Ruins is a Dragon with his Paw upon the Shield of a Red Croſs, London's Arms: Over her Head is the Deſcription of Houſes burning, and Flames breaking out through the Windows. Behind her are

Vo1 B p180pag:

Citizens looking on, and ſome lifting up their Hands.

Oppoſite againſt theſe Figures is a Pavement of Stone raiſed with three or four Steps. On which appears King CHARRES II. in Roman Habit, with a Truncheon in his right Hand, and a Laurel about his Head, coming towards the Woman in the foreſaid deſpairing Poſture: And giving Order to three others to deſcend the Steps towards her: The firſt hath Wings on her Head, and a Crown of naked Boys dancing, and in her Hand ſomething reſembling an Harp. Then another Figure of one going down the Steps following her, reſembling Architecture, ſhewing a Scheme or Model for building of the City, held in the right Hand, and the left holding a Square and Compaſſes. Behind theſe two ſtands another Figure more obſcure holding up an Hat, denoting Liberty. Next, behind the King is the Duke of York, holding a Garland ready to crown the riſing City, and a Sword lifted up in the other Hand, to defend her. Behind this, a third Figure with an Earls Coronet on his Head. A fourth Figure behind all, holding a Lion with a Bridle in his Mouth. Over theſe Figures is repreſented an Houſe in building, and a Labourer going up a Ladder with an Hodd upon his Back. Laſtly, underneath the Stone Pavement whereon the King ſtands, is a good Figure of ENVY peeping forth, gnawing an Heart.

But behold the Figures in this Plate.

The Inſcription.

The Inſcription is in Latin, engraven in Capital Letters, ſetting forth at large an account of the ſaid firing of London, and of the rebuilding and reſtauration of it. Which, ſince it is already printed in the Preſent State of England, ſhall be here omitted. I ſhall only inſert a few Engliſh Lines engraven round the bottom of the Pedeſtal, which in the aforeſaid Book is left out: And the rather becauſe it hath ſomething of Remark. Theſe Lines had charged the Papiſts with the burning of the City; as in the time of the Fire and for ſome ſpace afterward, was generally believed; and many were taken up upon Suſpicion of being employed therein, and one tryed, condemned and executed for it. The ſaid Lines remained for ſome time, but upon the beginning of the Acceſs of King James II. to the Crown, they were thought fit to be beaten out and utterly defaced; and ſo by order they were. But when King William came to reign, then the ſame Words were deeply engraven anew. And are as follows:

> “ This Pillar was ſet up in perpetual Remembrance of the moſt dreadful Burning of this Proteſtant City, begun and carried on by the Treachery and Malice of the Popiſh Faction, in the beginning of September in the Year of our Lord MDCLXVI. in order to the effecting their horrid Plot for the extirpating the Proteſtant Religion and Engliſh Liberties, and to introduce Popery and Slavery.]

Upon the Pedeſtal is the Column erected; the Body or Shaft whereof is fluited and contains in length from the Pedeſtal to the Balcony 133 Foot, and from the Balcony to the top of the Flame is 38 Foot; and the whole height of this Monument from the Ground (beſides the Vault and Foundation) to the top of the Flame 202 Foot; the Circumference of the Shaft is 47½ Foot: Its Diameter is 15 Foot; the hollow Cylinder is nine Foot Diameter; the thickneſs of the Stone Wall of the Cylinder, or Shaft, is three Foot; it hath 345 Steps, or Stairs from the Ground up to the Balcony; and Nices in the Wall with Seats to reſt in as People go up; and from the Balcony upwards is a Ladder of Iron Steps to go into the Urn, out of which the Flame all gilt with Gold iſſueth; and to the Stairs having an open Newel there is a Rail of Iron to reſt the Hand upon all way up. This Monument is not unlike thoſe two ancient white Marble Pillars at Rome, erected in Honour of the Emperors Trajan and Antoninus, which were built above 1500 Years ſince, and are ſtill ſtanding entire.

All this Monument taken together is a curious Piece of Workmanſhip, and the Charges in erecting the ſame amounted to 13700 l. and upwards. This Building loftily ſhews it ſelf above the Houſes, and gives a gallant Proſpect for many Miles round to thoſe that are in the Balcony; And it being ſuch a Curioſity, and that ſo many People have a deſire to go up and look about them from thence; there is one that hath the keeping it, with a Salary allowed for his attendance, beſides the Money that People give him.

Star Inn.

But to proceed to the Deſcription of the Places. Star Inn Northwards from this Monument, very large, and much reſorted unto by Stage Coaches, hath a Paſſage into Pudding Lane.

Bell Yard.

Bell Yard, ſeated almoſt againſt the Monument, a good and open Court, containing three or four good large Houſes, well inhabited.

St. Leonard Eaſtcheap Church.

St. Leonard Eaſtcheap Church. It is in the Dioceſs of Canterbury, the Prior of Chriſtchirche in Canterbury was Patron. Which ſaid Church being deſtroyed in the Fire of London is not rebuilt, but the Pariſh united to St. Bennet Graſs Church, and the place where the Church ſtood being encloſed is reſerved for the burial of the Dead of the Pariſh.

Graſsehurch Street.

Graſſechurch Street is a very handſome ſpacious Street, graced with good Buildings, which are well inhabited by able Tradeſmen, being a Street of a great reſort. In that part of the Street lying in this Ward, are theſe Places; Talbot Court, with a wide Entrance for a Coach or Cart, being large and well inhabited. Out of this Court is a narrow Paſſage into another of the ſame Name which leadeth into Little Eaſtcheap, there alſo taken notice of. Crown Court, neat, with a Free Stone Pavement well inhabited, but ſmall.

Talbot Court.

Crown Court.

Jeruſalem Court.

Jeruſalem Court, indifferent long, with an open Paſſage, a Free Stone Pavement, and reaſonable good Houſes.

White Hart Court.

On the Weſt ſide of the Street White Hart Court; a pretty good open Place, well inhabited by Wholeſale Dealers, hath a Paſſage into another Court ſo called, which leadeth into Lombardſtreet, mentioned in Langborne Ward. Near unto this is a ſmall Court with about two or three Houſes, but without a Name.

Nags Head Court.

Nags head Court, very long, well built and inhabited, hath a Paſſage into St. Clements Lane, where it is mentioned; the greateſt part being in Langborne Ward.

St. Bennets Gracechurch.

Graſſechurch. It is in the Dioceſs of London, the Dean and Chapter of St. Pauls is Patron. It was deſtroyed by the great Fire. And ſince its Rebuilding, is a very handſome Free Stone Structure, with a Leaden Spire, and from the Steeple hangs a very curious Dial into the Street, on the top of which is the Figure of Time ſtanding with the uſual Emblems, viz. a Scithe and an Hour-glaſs, and on each ſide the figure of Fame ſtanding with a Trumpet all gilt with Gold.

Thames ſtreet.

Now back to Thameſſtreet, a Place of good Trade, the Part thereof in this Ward begins on the Eaſt ſide of the Old Swan Lane, and goeth Eaſtward to Fiſhſtreet Hill.

Gully Hole.

Places of Name in this Part of the Street, are Gully Hole, being a Paſſage to the Water-houſe, and ſo to the Thames Side, which lyeth open to the Wharfs as far as the Stylliard in Dowgate Ward.

Three Tun Alley.

Three Tun Alley on the North ſide, which is but ſmall.

Churchyard Alley.

Churchyard Alley, but narrow and indifferent, falls down into the new Paſſage being the open Ground next the Thames, which ſaid Paſſage leads to the Old Swan Stairs Weſtward, and to the Water-houſe Eaſtward as aforeſaid.

Fiſhmongers Hall.

Fiſhmongers Hall, a curious large Building, with a handſome Paſſage paved with Free Stone, which leadeth into a large Square Court alſo paved, ſurrounded by the Hall, the Court Room, and other Apartments. The Front of this Hall towards the Thames is very graceful, giving a pleaſant Proſpect. And to it belongs a curious pair of Stairs to take Water at.

St. Michaels Lane.

Fen Court.

North from Thamesſtreet is St. Michaels Lane; which hath the greateſt Part in Candlewick Ward. In the part of this Lane belonging to this Ward, is Fen Court, a handſome, open and well built Place with a Free Stone Pavement.

Three Tun Court.

Three Tun Court, a good ſquare Place, with an open Entrance for Carts.

Ebgate Lane.

Ebgate Lane runs down to the Thames, and unto the Old Swan Stairs, much reſorted unto by Watermen, and is of good Note.

Old Swan Lane.

The Old Swan Lane alſo runs down to the Water ſide, and leadeth to the ſaid Stairs: The Weſt ſide of this Lane is in Dowgate Ward.

St. Martins Lane, another Lane North from Thamesſtreet, hath but a ſmall part in this Ward, the greateſt being in Candlewick Ward, as it was ſaid of St. Michaels Lane.

There are to watch in this Ward at the ſeveral Stands every Night, beſides the Conſtable and the Beadle, 25 Watchmen.

The Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inqueſt for this Ward, are to ſerve in the ſeveral Courts in Guildhall in the Month of July.

CANDLEWICKE STREET WARD.

Weavers foreigners, anciently in Candlewicke Street. S. Clement Eaſtcheap. S. Mary Abchurch. S. Michael Crooked Lane. Sir William Walworth's Story. The Arms of the City. S. Martin Orgars. S. Laurence Pountney. Elizabeth Lucar qualified to a Wonder. The Modern State of this Ward.

Candlewickſtreet, or Candlewrightſtreet Ward. The Bounds.

CANDLEWICKE Street, or Candlewright Street Ward, beginneth at the Eaſt end of Great Eaſtcheap, it paſſeth Weſt through Eaſtcheap to Candlewright Street, and through the ſame down to the North end of Suffolk Lane, on the South ſide, and down that Lane, by the Weſt end of St. Laurence Churchyard; and that is the fartheſt Weſt part of that Ward. The Street of Great Eaſtcheap is ſo called of the Market there kept in the Eaſt part of the City, as Weſtcheap is a Market ſo called, being in the Weſt.

Great Eaſtcheap.

Eaſtcheap a Cookes Row.

This Eaſtcheap is now a Fleſh-Market of Butchers, there dwelling on both ſides of the Street; it had ſometime alſo Cooks mixed amongſt the Butchers, and ſuch other as ſold Victuals ready dreſſed of all ſorts. For of old time, when Friends did meet, and were diſpoſed to be merry, they went not to dine and ſup in Taverns, (for they dreſſed not Meats to be ſold) but to the Cooks, where they called for Meat what them liked, which they always found ready dreſſed, and at a reaſonable rate, as I have before ſhewed.

The Kings Sons beaten in Eaſtcheap. There was no Tavern then in Eaſtcheap.

In the year 1410. the 11th of Henry IV. upon the Even of St. John Baptiſt, the Kings Sons, Thomas and John, being in Eaſtcheap at Supper, (or rather at Breakfaſt; for it was after the Watch was broken up, betwixt two and three of the Clock after Midnight) a great Debate happened between their Men, and other of the Court, which laſted one hour, even till the Maior and Sheriffs with other Citizens appeaſed the ſame: for the which afterwards, the ſaid Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs, were ſent for to anſwer before the King; his Sons and divers Lords being highly moved againſt the City. At which time, William Gaſcoigne, Chief Juſtice, required the Maior and Aldermen, for the Citizens, to put them in the Kings Grace. Whereunto they anſwered, that they had not offended, but (according to the Law) had done their beſt in ſtinting Debate, and maintaining of the Peace: upon which Anſwer the King remitted all his Ire, and diſmiſſed them.

London Lickpenny.

In Weſtcheap Linen Cloth ſold, but no Silks ſpoken of.

Frippraria. Upholders upon Cornhill, Sellers of old Apparel and Houſhold Stuff. Eaſtcheap.

And to prove this Eaſtcheap to be a Place repleniſhed with Cooks, it may appear by a Song, called London Lickpenny, made by Lidgate a Monk of Bury, in the Reign of Henry V. in the Perſon of a Countrey-man coming to London, and travelling through the ſame. In Weſtcheap (ſaith the Song) he was called on to buy fine Lawne, Paris Thread, Cotton Umble, and other Linen Clothes, and ſuch like: (he ſpeaketh of no Silks) In Cornhil, to buy old Apparel, and Houſhold Stuff; where he was forced to buy his own Hood, which he had loſt in Weſtminſter Hall. In Candlewright Street, Drapers profered him cheap Cloth: In Eaſtcheap, the Cooks cryed Hot Ribs of Beef roſted, Pyes well baked, and other Victuals: There was clattering of Pots, Harp, Pipe and Sawtrie; yea yea by cock, nay by cock, for other greater Oaths were ſpared: Some ſang of Jenkin and Julian, &c. all which Melody liked well the Paſſenger, but he wanted Money to abide by it, and therefore gat him into Graveſend Barge, and home into Kent.

Candlewright or Candlewick Street is a working place.

Candlewright, ſo called in old Records of the Guildhall, of St. Mary Overies, and other, or Candlewicke Street, took that Name (as may be ſuppoſed) either of Chaundlers, or Makers of Candles, both of Wax and Tallow: for Candlewright is a Maker of Candles, or of Weeke, which is the Cotten or Yarn thereof: or otherwiſe Wike, which is the Place where they uſed to work them; as Scalding-wike by the Stocks Market was called of the Poulters dreſſing and ſcalding their Poultry there. And in divers Countries, Dayrie-houſes, or Cottages wherein they make Butter and Cheeſe, are uſually called Wickes. There dwelled alſo of old time divers Weavers of Woollen Clothes, brought in by Edward III. For I read that in the 44th of his Reign, the Weavers, brought out of Flanders, were appointed their Meetings to be in the Churchyard of Saint Laurence Poultney; and the Weavers of Brabant in the Churchyard of St. Mary Sommerſet. There were then in this City Weavers of divers Sorts, to wit, of Drapery, of Tapery, and Napery. Theſe Weavers of Candlewright Street being in ſhort time worn out, there Place is now poſſeſſed by rich Drapers, Sellers of Woollen Cloth, &c.

Weavers in Candlewick Street. Brought out of Flanders and Brabant.

Drapers in their rooms.

The Pariſh Church of St. CLEMENT Eaſtcheap.

St. Clements Lane.

On the North ſide of this Ward, at the Weſt end of Eaſtcheap, have ye St. Clements Lane, a part whereof, on both Sides, is of Candlewicke Street Ward; to wit, ſomewhat North, beyond the Pariſh Church of St. Clement in Eaſtcheap.

Since the rebuilding of this Church, there is but one Monument ſet up in it: which is againſt the South Wall, for the beloved Wife of John Cater of this Pariſh Merchant. This new Church appears a goodly fair Church: and hath a pair of Organs.

There was no Parſonage Houſe; but only one Room reſerved to the Rector before the Fire. And ſince the rebuilding of the City, the Rector receiveth 5 l. yearly in conſideration of the ſaid Room. But it appears by a Parochial Viſitation An. 1636. that there was a Parſonage Houſe, which was let for 10 l. per Ann.

On the South ſide of this Ward, beginning again at the Eaſt, is St. Michaels Lane. Which Lane is almoſt wholly of this Ward, on both ſides down towards Thames Street, to a Well or Pump there. On the Eaſt ſide of this Lane is Crooked Lane aforeſaid, by St. Michaels Church, towards New Fiſh Street. One of the moſt ancient Houſes in this Lane, is called the Leaden Porch, and belonged ſometime to Sir John Merſton, Kt. the firſt of Edward the Fourth: It is now called the Swan in Crooked Lane, poſſeſſed of Strangers, and for ſelling of Rheniſh Wine.

The Pariſh Church of S. MICHAEL Crooked Lane.

St. Michael in Crooked Lane.

The Pariſh Church of S. Michael's, was ſometime but a ſmall and homely thing, ſtanding upon part of that Ground, wherein now ſtandeth the Parſonage Houſe: And the Ground thereabout was a filthy Plot, by reaſon of the Butchers in Eaſtcheap, who made the ſame their Layſtall.

Loveken the Founder.

W. de Burgo gave two Meſſuages to that Church in Candlewick Street, 1317. John Loveken, Stockfiſhmonger, four times Maior, builded (in the ſame Ground) this fair Church of S. Michael, and was there buried in the Quire, under a fair Tomb, with the Images of him and his Wife in Alabaſter. The ſaid Church hath been ſince increaſed with a new Quire, and ſide Chapels by Sir. W. Walworth, Stockfiſhmonger, Maior, ſometime Servant to the foreſaid John Loveken.

Repaired. R.

This Church was repaired and beautified in the Year of our Lord God, 1610. In the Year 1621. the whole Roof of it, found to be greatly decayed and periſhed, was taken down, and with ſtrong and ſufficient Timber rebuilded, and with the Lead new caſt covered again: The Charge of it amounting to 500 l. Not long after this, two Windows at the Eaſt end of the Church, very much defaced and decayed, were repaired; the Charge of it 40 l.]

New built. J. S.

This new rebuilt Church of S. Michaels Crooked Lane was finiſhed Anno 1688. Beautified, and the Steeple finiſhed Anno 1698. It is a fair Church, built without Pillars.]

Loveken the Founders Tomb.

The Tomb of Loveken was removed, and a flat Stone of grey Marble, garniſhed with Plates of Copper laid on him, as it yet remaineth in the body of the Church.

William Walworth aforeſaid, is reported to have ſlain Jack Straw in Smithfield, and there to have been therefore Knighted by the King. But that is not true: For Jack Straw being afterward taken, was firſt adjudged by the ſaid Maior, and then executed by the loſs of his Head in Smithfield. How be it, true it is, that this William Walworth, being a Man wiſe, learned, and of an incomparable Manhood, arreſted Wat Tyler, a preſumptuous Rebel, upon whom no Man durſt lay Hand. Whereby he delivered the King and Kingdom from moſt wicked tyranny of Traytors. The Maior arreſted him on the Head with a ſound Blow: Whereupon Wat Tyler furiouſly ſtruck the Maior with his Dagger, but hurt him not, by reaſon he was well armed. The Maior having received his Stroke, drew his Baſiliard, and grievouſly wounded Wat in the Neck, and withal, gave him a great Blow on the Head: In the which Conflict, an Eſquire of the King's Houſe, called John Cavendiſh, drew his Sword, and wounded Wat twice or thrice, even to the death: And Wat ſpurring his Horſe, cryed to the Commons to revenge him: The Horſe bare him about eighty Foot from the place, and there he fell down half dead: And by and by, they which attended on the King, environed him about, ſo as he was not ſeen of his Company: Many of them thruſt him in, in divers places of his Body, and drew him into the Hoſpital of St. Bartholomew, from whence again the Maior cauſed him to be drawn into Smithfield, and there to be beheaded. In reward of this Service (the People being diſperſed) the King commanded the Maior to put a Baſenet on his Head: And the Maior requeſting, why he ſhould ſo do, the King anſwered, he being much bound unto him, would make him Knight. The Maior anſwered, that he was neither worthy, nor able to take ſuch an Eſtate upon him; for he was but a Merchant, and had to live by his Merchandiſe only. Notwithſtanding, the King made him to put on his Baſenet, and then with a Sword in both his Hands, he ſtrongly ſtroke him on the Neck, as the manner was then. And the ſame Day he made three other Citizens Knights (for his ſake) in the ſame place, to wit, John Philpot, Nicolas Brember, and Robert Launde, Aldermen. The King gave to the Maior 100 l. Land by year, and to each of the other 40 l. Land yearly to them and their Heirs for ever.

A College founded in St. Michaels Crooked Lane.

Monument of Sir W. Walworth defaced, and ſince falſified, and ſo remaineth.

After this, in the ſame year, the ſaid Sir William Walworth founded in the ſaid Pariſh Church of St. Michael, a College, of a Maſter and nine Prieſts or Chaplains, and deceaſing 1385. was there buried in the North Chapel by the Quire: But this Monument being amongſt other (by bad People) defaced in the Reign of Edward VI. was again ſince renewed by the Fiſhmongers. Who for lack of knowledge, whatſoever before had been written in his Epitaph, followed a fabulous Book, and wrote Jack Straw, inſtead of Wat Tyler, a great Error, meet to be reformed there, and elſewhere. And therefore have I the more at large diſcourſed of this Matter.

Walworth's Monument ſet up anew, Ann. 1562. J. S.

This ſecond Monument, after the profane demoliſhing of the firſt, was ſet up in June 1562. with his Effigies in Alabaſter in Armour gilt richly; by the Fiſhmongers, ſaith Stow; at the Coſt of William Parvis Fiſhmonger, that dwelt at the Caſtle in New Fiſhſtreet, ſaith a MS. in the Cotton Library: perhaps he was the Maſter of the Company at that time. The Epitaph of ſo memorable a Citizen, being omitted in Stow, I ſhall ſet down:

Here under lyth a Man of Fame,
William Walworth callyd by Name.

Fiſhmonger he was in Lyfftime here,
And twiſe Lord Maior, as in Books appere;
Who with courage ſtout and manly Myght
Slew Jack Straw in King Richards Syght.
For which Act done and trew Entent,
The Kyng made hym Knight incontinent.
And gave hym Armes, as here you ſee,
To declare his Fact and Chivaldrie.
He left this Lyff the Yere of our God
Thirteen hondred fourſcore and three odd.]

Whether a Dagger was added to the City's Coat. Dunthorne.

Old Seal of the Maioralty broken, and a new Seal made.

The Arms of this City were not altered, but remain as afore: to wit, Argent, a plain Croſſe Gules, a Sword of St. Paul in the firſt quarter, and no Dagger of W. Walworth, as is fabuled.

It hath alſo been, and is now grown to a common Opinion, that in reward of this Service done by the ſaid William Walworth againſt the Rebel; that King Richard added to the Arms of this City (which was Argent, a plain Croſs Gules) a Sword, or Dagger, (for ſo they term it.) Whereof I have read no ſuch Record, but rather that which ſoundeth to the contrary. For I find, that in the fourth year of Richard II. in a full Aſſembly made in the upper Chamber of the Guildhall, ſummoned by this William Walworth, then Maior, as well of Aldermen, as of the Common Council in every Ward, for certain Affairs concerning the King; it was there by common conſent agreed and ordained, that the old Seal of the Office of the Maioralty of the City, being very ſmall, old, unapt, and uncomly for the Honour of the City, ſhould be broken, and one other new ſhould be had. Which the ſaid Maior commanded to be made artificially, and honourable for the exerciſe of the ſaid Office thereafter in place of the other. In which new Seal, beſides the Images of Peter and Paul, which of old were rudely engraven, there ſhould be under the Feet of the ſaid Images, a Shield of the Arms of the ſaid City perfectly graved with two Lions ſupporting the ſame, with two Serjeants of Arms, on either part, one, and two Tabernacles, in which, above, ſhould ſtand two Angels, between whom (above the ſaid Images of Peter and Paul) ſhould be ſet the glorious Virgin. This being done, the old Seal of the Office was delivered to Richard Odiham Chamberlain, who brake it, and in place thereof, was delivered the new Seal to the ſaid Maior, to uſe in his Office of Maioralty, as occaſion ſhould require. This new Seal ſeemeth to be made before William Walworth was Knighted. For he is not there intituled Sir, as afterwards he was: And certain it is, that the ſame new Seal then made, is now in uſe, and none other in that Office of Maioralty. Which may ſuffice to anſwer the former Fable, without ſhewing of any Evidence ſealed with the old Seal which was the Croſs, and Sword as now, &c. of St. Paul, and not the Dagger of William Walworth.

This Church damaged by a Gun. J. S.

A very unhappy Accident happened to this Church, as well as to other Perſons in the year 1560. July the 5th. There came then certain Men into Crooked Lane, to buy a Gun or two. And ſhooting off a Piece, it burſt in pieces: Went through the Houſe, and ſpoiled about five Houſes more: and of that goodly Church adjoining it threw down a great part on one ſide, and left never a Glaſs window whole. And by it eight Men and one Maid, were ſlain and divers hurt: And another dyed within a Sevennight after by the ſame Miſchance.]

EPITAPH.

Honour, Integrity,
Compaſſion,
Thoſe three fill'd up
the life time of this Man:
Of Honour, the grave
Prætorſhip he bare,
Which he diſcharg'd with Conſcience, Truth, and Care.
He poſſes'd Earth,
as he might Heaven poſſeſſe,
Wiſe to doe right,
but never to oppreſſe.

His Charity was better felt than knowne,
For when he gave,
there was no Trumpet blown.
What more can be compriz'd
in one Mans Fame,
To crown a Soule,
and leave a living Name?
All his juſt Praiſe
in her Life may be read,
The true Wife of his Worth,
as of his Bed.

Over againſt the other, in the ſame Ile, is a fair Monument, with this Inſcription.

Modern Monuments. J. S.

The modern MONUMENTS here in this Church of St. Swithen, are theſe.

On the North ſide of the Table. Michael Godfrey, of London, Merchant, the eleventh Son of Tho. Godfrey of Hoddiford, in the County of Kent, Eſq; deceaſed Decemb. 3. 1689. And his Daughter Elizabeth, 1691. And Heſter his other Daughter, married to Hugh Smithſon of Tottenham, Eſq; dying in Childbed, 1698.

Upon a Pillar near the Gallery, a Monument for Michael Godfrey, Merchant, Son of the aboveſaid Michael Godfrey. He was a memorable and very worthy Man; being elected the firſt Deputy Governor of the Bank of England. Attending his Majeſty King William encamped before Namur was ſlain by a Canon Ball from the Works of the beſieged, 17. July, 1695. His Body was brought over, and here buried.

On a blue Stone before the Communion Rail.

Here lyeth the Body of Mrs Agnes Reid, Daughter of the Honourable John Reid, Eſq; one of his Majeſties Judges in the Iſland Barbadoes, who departed this Life the firſt day of January, in the Year of our Lord, 1685.

Virtue and Beauty here doth lye,

Judgments to uſe or want her Parts.
When ſuch vaniſh; then what can ſave
The moſt ingenious from the Grave.

On the North ſide over the Communion Table hangs a Hatchment with the Arms of the Holworthys.

On the South near the Communion Table, another with this Inſcription.

Sir John Bolle, Baronet, dyed March the Third, 1685. He lyes underneath in the Vault belonging to his Family.

Charities.

CHARITIES belonging to this Pariſh are as follow:

The Poor have 12 d. per Week in Bread. 50 s. per ann. allowed them in Coals; the Gift of Henry Hobener.

A weekly Lecture formerly 14 l. per ann. now reduced to 10 l. 10 s. being the Gift of Tho. Wetnal, in the Reign of K. James I. It is in the Hands of Truſtees.

Parſonage.

There was a Parſonage Houſe before the Fire: But burnt down; rebuilt by Henry Whiſler of S. Mary Abchurch, on a Leaſe for forty Years, commencing March the 25th 1675. Ground Rent 4 l. per ann. The Dimenſions in front 13 Foot, in length 30 Foot, in breadth backward 10 Foot 9 Inches, little more or leſs.]

Prior of Tortington's Inn. Oxford Place by London Stone.

On the North ſide of this Church and Churchyard, is one fair and large builded Houſe, ſometime pertaining to the Prior of Tortington in Suſſex, ſince that to the Earls of Oxford, Anno 1598. to Sir John Hart, Alderman, [after him to Mr. Humfrey Smith, Alderman of this City, who married a Daughter of the ſaid Hart.] Which Houſe hath a fair Garden belonging thereunto, lying on the Weſt ſide thereof. On the backſide two other fair Houſes in Walbrook. In the Reign of King Henry VII. Sir Richard Empſon, Knt. [Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter] dwelled in one of them, and Edmond Dudley, Eſq; in the other: Either of them had a Door of entercourſe into this Garden, wherein they met, and conſulted on Matters at their pleaſures. In this Oxford Place Sir Ambroſe Nicolas kept his Maioralty: Since him, the ſaid Sir John Hart did likewiſe.

Empſon and Dudley dwelt hereabouts.

London Stone.

On the South ſide of this high Street, near unto the Chanel, is pitched upright a great Stone, called London Stone, fixed in the Ground very deep, faſtned with Bars of Iron, and otherwiſe ſo ſtrongly ſet, that if Carts do run againſt it through negligence, the Wheels be broken, and the Stone it ſelf unſhaken.

The cauſe why this Stone was there ſet, the very time When, or other Memory hereof is there none. But that the ſame hath long continued there, is manifeſt, namely, ſince (or rather before) the time of the Conqueſt. For in the end of a fair written Goſpel Book, given to Chriſt's Church in Canterbury, by Ethelſtane, King of the Weſt Saxons, I find noted of Lands or Rents in London belonging to the ſaid Church, whereof one Parcel is deſcribed to lye near unto London Stone. Of later time we read, that in the year of Chriſt, 1135. the firſt of King Stephen, a Fire, which began in the Houſe of one Ailward, near unto London Stone, conſumed all Eaſt to Ealdgate. In which fire the Priory of the holy Trinity was burnt, and Weſt to S. Erkenwald's Shrine in S. Paul's Church: And theſe be the eldeſt Notes that I read thereof.

Lib. Trin. Antiquity of London Stone.

Read Mr. John Speed, what he ſaith thereof, and of the like Stones.

Some have ſaid, this Stone to have been ſet as a Mark in the middle of the City within the Wall: But in truth it ſtandeth far nearer to the River of Thames, than to the Wall of the City.

Some others have ſaid, the ſame to be ſet, for the tendering and making of payment by Debtors to their Creditors, at their appointed days and times, till of later time, payments were more uſually made at the Font in Ponts * Church, and now moſt commonly at the Royal Exchange. Some again have imagined, the ſame to be ſet up by one John or Thomas Londonſtone, dwelling there againſt it. But more likely it is, that ſuch Men have taken Name of the Stone, than the Stone of them; as did John at Noke, Thomas at Stile, William at Wall, or Well, &c.

* So writ in all the Editions, for Pauls undoubtedly.

J. S.

Methinks, ſome of our Forefathers had a Conceit, that London Stone was ſet up in ſignification of the City's Devotion towards Chriſt and his Care and Protection of the City; under the Notion of a Stone, on which it was founded, and by his Favour ſo long preſerved. For that Way thoſe Rhimes of Fabian in the Praiſe of London, ſeem to look.

Wev. Monum. p. 352.

It is ſo ſure a STONE that that is upon

For though ſome have it thrette
With Manaſes grym and grette
Yet hurte had it none:
CRYSTE is the very STONE
That the Citie is ſet uppon

London Stone for meaſuring Miles.

*And for publick Declarations.

And ſince others have caſt in their Conjectures in a Matter ſo obſcure, by reaſon of the Antiquity of it, let me add one or two of mine own. The Romans reckoned their Miles from all great Towns and Places by Stones pitched; and ſo they did in Britain. And perhaps this might be the Stone for London; from which preciſe Place to meaſure their Miles from this City towards the other Parts of the Land. And this Street in former Times being the chief Street of London, as Cheapſide now is, this Londonſtone ſeems to have been the Place (and likely enough upon this Stone) whence Proclamations and publick Notices of Things were given to the Citizens. There is a Paſſage in our Chronicles that favours this Conceit. In Henry VI. his Time, Anno 1450. when Jack Cade the Kentiſh Rebel, who feigned himſelf the Lord Mortimer, came through Southwark into London, he marched to this Stone; where was a great Confluence of People, and the Lord Maior among the reſt: Here he ſtruck his Sword upon it, and ſaid, Now is Mortimer Lord of this City: And there making a formal, but lying Declaration to the Maior, departed back again to Southwark.

London Stone ſet up perhaps for religious Worſhip.
Mr. Owen of Shrewſbury.

Perhaps this Stone may be of greater Antiquity than the Times of the Romans, and was an Object or Monument of Heathen Worſhip: If any be moved ſo to think from what an exquiſite Britiſh Antiquitarian aſſerts, that the Britains erected Stones for religious Worſhip, and that the Druids had Pillars of Stone in Veneration. Which Cuſtom, he ſaith, they borrowed from the Greeks, who, as Pauſanias writeth, adored rude and unpoliſhed Stones.]

Walbrook Street.
Walbrook Conduit.
J. S.

Down Weſt from this Pariſh Church, and from London Stone, have ye Walbrook Corner. [Here was a Conduit before the great Fire: Which was new built in the year 1568. at the Cities charge: But not rebuilt.] From whence runneth up a Street North, to the Stocks, called Walbrook, becauſe it ſtandeth on the Eaſt ſide of the ſame Brook, by the Bank thereof: And the whole Ward taketh Name of that Street. On the Eaſt ſide of this Street, and at the North Corner thereof, is the Stocks Market, which had this beginning.

Stockes Market.
* Wales. Firſt Edit.

About the year of Chriſt, 1282. Henry Wallis *, Maior, cauſed divers Houſes in this City to be builded towards the maintenance of London Bridge; namely, one void place, near unto the Pariſh Church, called Wooll Church, on the North ſide thereof, where ſometime (the Way being very large and broad) had ſtood a pair of Stocks, for puniſhment of Offenders. This Building took name of thoſe Stocks, and was appointed (by him) to be a Market-place for Fiſh and Fleſh in the midſt of the City. Other Houſes be builded in other Places, as by Patent of Edward the Firſt it doth appear, dated the Tenth of his Reign.

Shops in the Stocks Market.
Lib. Horn.
J. S.

This Stocks Market was ſometime belonging to the Keepers of the Bridge of London, and they let the Shops for Term of their Lives to the Butchers and Fiſhmongers, at certain Rents, which were appropriated for the Uſe of the ſaid Bridge. But afterwards it was concluded, that no Keeper of the ſaid Bridge ſhould let the ſaid Shops for Life, without the Concurrence of the Maior and Commonalty, as appears by this Record.

John de Giſors being Maior [about the Year 1312 or 1313.] there was a Congregation of honeſt Men of the Commonalty met, to treat concerning the State of the Butchers and Fiſhmongers holding Places at the Stocks. And it was agreed by the whole Commonalty, that all they who took their Places by the Demiſe of John le Bevere, and of other ſix honeſt Men, to whom Henry le Galeys heretofore Maior, and the whole Commonalty granted and demiſed the ſame Places, viz. That whole Houſe which is called the Stocks, for the Term of the Life of the ſaid John Bevere and his Companions, for a certain Sum of Money, which they rendred yearly to London Bridge, that they may enjoy the ſame. And the ſame John and the others, may demiſe thoſe Places to the Butchers and Fiſhmongers, according to what was indented in a certain Writing between the ſaid Henry, the Maior and the Commonalty, on the one Part, and the ſaid John, &c. on the other, and enrolled in the Huſtengs. And it was likewiſe agreed, that other Butchers who have ſince taken Places by the Demiſe of other Keepers of the Bridge, and have paid certain Sums, to have for the Term of their Lives, and can ſhew it, may have and hold them. And that for the future, thoſe Places which are not held in the aforeſaid Market, be taken into the Hands of the Commonalty, and be demiſed by the Keepers of the Bridge, who are now Tenants yearly. [the Bridge Keepers being from that time yearly choſen] And it is agreed, that no ſuch Keepers for the time to come, have Power of letting any Places for Term of Life, without the Aſſent and Will of the Maior, Aldermen and Commonalty.]

Ro. Fabian.

* Coutes. Firſt Edit.

After this, in the year 1322. the 17th of Edw. 2. a Decree was made by Hamond Chickwell, Maior, that none ſhould ſell Fiſh or Fleſh out of the Markets appointed, to wit, Bridge Street, Eaſtcheap, Old Fiſh Street, S. Nicolas Shambles, and the ſaid Stocks, on pain to forfeit ſuch Fiſh or Fleſh as were ſold, for the firſt time, and the ſecond time to loſe their Freedom. Which Act was made by commandment of the King, under his Letters Patents, dated at the Tower the 17. of his Reign: And then was this Stocks let to Farm for 46 l. 13 s. 4 d. by year. This Stocks Market was again begun to be builded, in the year 1410. in the 11th of Henry IV. and was clean finiſhed in the year next following. In the year 1507. the ſame was rented at 56 l. 19 s. 10 d. And in the year 1543. John Cotes being Maior, there was in this Stocks Market for Fiſhmongers, twenty five Boards or Stalls, which rented yearly to 34 l. 13 s. 4 d. There were for Butchers eighteen Boards or Stalls, rented at 40 l. 16 s. 4 d. and there were alſo Chambers above, ſixteen, rented at 5 l. 13 s. 4 d. in all, 82 l. 3 s.

Conduit by the Stocks.
R.

By the Stocks was a Stone Conduit ſet up by the Inhabitants, where before was only a Pipe of Lead. As appears by an Act of Common Council, viz.

At a Common Council held on Tueſday, November the 27th. 1 Hen. 8. this Petition was preferred and granted:

“ To the Right Honourable the Lord Maior,

“ Lead beſide the Stockes; which pipe of Lead,
“ by reaſon that it is not cloſed, is daily hurt
“ with Horſes and Carts: It may therefore pleaſe
“ your good Lordſhip and Maſterſhips, and all
“ our Maſters of the Common Councell, to “ grant and give licence unto the ſaid Inhabi-

“ to make or cauſe to bee made, a little Poſterne

“ that the ſaid water ſhall bee therein preſerved

“ Cocks, to the Common weale of all the ſaid “ Inhabitants thereabout dwelling. Thus at the “ reverence of God, and in the way of charity.

This is the Poſtern now preſently there ſtanding over againſt the South Eaſt.]

The Pariſh Church of S. MARY WOOLCHURCH.

Pariſh Church of S. Mary Woolchurch. Tronage or weighing of Wool, cauſed the Church to be called Woolchurch Haw.

Next unto this Stocks is the Pariſh Church of S. Mary Woolchurch, ſo called of a Beam placed there ever in the Churchyard, as it ſeemeth: for the ſame was thereof called Woollchurch Haw, of the Tronage or weighing of Wooll there uſed. And to verifie this, I find amongſt the Cuſtoms of London, written in French, in the Reign of Edward II. a Chapter intituled, Les Cuſtomes de Woollchurch Haw, wherein is ſet down, what was there to be paid for every Parcel of Wooll weighed, [viz. Ceo eſt la Cuſtume de Wollecherch: De une libre de Leyne a foreyne, ob. Et de un Sak fors, ob. &c.] This Tronage, or weighing of Wooll, till the ſixth of Richard II. was there continued; and until that John Churchman builded the Cuſtom Houſe upon Wooll Key, to ſerve for the ſaid Tronage, as is before ſhewed in Tower Street Ward.

Of the Gifts and Legacies belonging to this Pariſh, the Churchwardens in the Parochial Viſitation, Ann. 1693, brought in no other Account, but that they were too long to be inſerted in their Preſentment; and that a View might be had of them in their Pariſh Books.

The Pariſh Church of St. STEPHEN Walbrook.

PariſhChurch of St. Stephen by Walbrook.

Then down lower in the Street, called Walbrook, is one other fair Church of St. Stephen, lately builded on the Eaſt ſide thereof: For the old Church ſtood on the Weſt ſide, in place where now ſtandeth the Parſonage Houſe, and therefore ſo much nearer to the Brook, even on the Bank.

Robert Chichly, Maior, in the Year 1428. the ſixth of Henry VI. gave to this Pariſh of Saint Stephen one plot of Ground, containing 208. Foot and a half in length, and ſixty ſix Foot in breadth, thereupon to build their new Church, and for their Churchyard. And in the ſeventh of Henry VI. the ſaid Robert (one of the Founders) laid the firſt Stone for himſelf, the ſecond for William Stondon, Maior, with whoſe Goods the Ground that the Church ſtandeth on, and the houſing, with the ground of the Churchyard, was bought by the ſaid Chichley for two hundred Marks from the Grocers, which had been letten before for twenty ſix Marks the Year. Robert Whittingham, Draper, laid the third Stone. Henry Barton then Maior, &c.

The ſaid Chichly gave more 100 l. to the ſaid Work, and bare the Charges of all the Timber Work on the Proceſſion way, and laid the Lead upon it of his own Coſt. He alſo gave all the Timber for the roofing of the two ſide Iles, and paid for the Carriage thereof.

This Church was finiſhed in the year 1439. The Breadth thereof is 67 Foot, and Length 125 Foot; the Churchyard 90 Foot in Length, and 37 in Breadth, and more. Robert Whittingham (made Knight of the Bath) in the year 1432 purchaſed the Patronage of this Church from John, Duke of Bedford, Uncle to Henry VI. and Edward IV. in the ſecond of his Reign, and gave it to Richard Lee, then Maior.

Repairs. R.

This Church within the time of twelve years paſt [that is, from 1633 backwards] hath had theſe many and coſtly Repairs. As firſt, in the year 1622. all the Chancel, and the two ſide Iles, as far as the Chancel, repaired; the Pulpit, Pews and Communion Table. The Charge of all this amounting to the Sum of 126 l. 15 s. 6 d.

GIFTS.

Gifts.

How it is with this Pariſh as to its charitable Endowments, may appear hence: That it hath an Income of about an 100 l. per ann. imployed in repairing and adorning the Church, and towards the Building an Houſe for the Miniſter. And the Remainder goeth to the Relief of the Poor: But by whom, and to what Uſes originally given, is unknown.

A Legacy was left in truſt to the Pariſh by one Dickenſon for charitable Uſes, to the Value of 20 l. per ann.

Parſonage.

Here alſo was a Parſonage Houſe before the great Fire: but burnt down; and rebuilt by Jerome Rawſtorne, upon a Leaſe of 40 years, commencing 1674. Ground Rent 17 l. There is kept a Map or Survey of the Dimenſions of the Ground.

Another Houſe was in Building ſome time ſince, for the Parſon, on a Piece of Ground adjoining to the Church; on which part of the Church ſtood before the Fire.

An Accident in Walbrook.

A Boy named Robert Fitz Paine, 20. H. III. fell from an Horſe in Walbrook Street by a Fright which Rob. de Donſtable put the Horſe into, on which the ſaid Robert rode. And within a Month after he died. For this the ſaid Robert appeared at the Tower before the Kings Juſtices that then ſat there upon the Pleas of the Crown; and was not ſuſpected to intend the Death of the other. Yet becauſe he affrighted the Horſe fooliſhly and ignorantly, it was judged an Accident: but he was committed to Goal for his Folly.]

Sir Rich. Baker's Houſe.

Lower down from this Pariſh Church, be divers fair Houſes, namely one, wherein of late Sir Richard Baker, a Knight of Kent, was lodged, and one wherein dwelled Mr. Thomas Gore, a Merchant famous for Hoſpitality.

The Poultry.

On the Weſt ſide of this Walbrook Street, over againſt the Stocks Market, is a part of the High Street, called the Poultry, on the South-ſide Weſt, till over againſt S. Mildreds Church, and the Scaldingwike, is of this Ward.

Buckles Bury.

Then down again Walbroke Street, ſome ſmall diſtance, is Buckles Bury, a Street ſo called of Buckle, that ſometime was Owner thereof; Part of which Street on both ſides, three or four Houſes, to the Courſe of the Brook, is of this Ward: and ſo down Walbrook ſtreet to the South Corner: From whence Weſt, downe Budge Row ſome ſmall diſtance to an Alley, and thorough that Alley South, by the Weſt end of S. John's Church upon Walbrook, by the South ſide and Eaſt end of the ſame, again to Walbrook Corner.

S. John upon Walbrook.

The Pariſh Church of S. JOHN upon Walbrook: Or, S. JOHN BAPTIST.

This Pariſh Church is called S. John upon Walbrook, becauſe the Weſt end thereof is on the very Bank of Walbrook, by Horſhoe Bridge, a Bridge over the Brook in Horſebridge Lane.

Horſhooe Bridge in Horſhooe-Bridgeſtreet.

This Church was alſo lately new builded: For about the Year 1412, licenſe was granted by the Maior and Commonalty, to the Parſon and Pariſh, for the enlarging thereof, with a Piece of Ground on the North Part of the Quire, one and twenty Foot in length, ſeventeen Foot in breadth, and three Inches; and on the South ſide of the Quire, one Foot of the common Soil.

This Church was rebuilt and beautified in the Year 1621.

MONUMENTS.

Monuments.

There be no Monuments in this Church of any account, only theſe:

William Combarton, Skinner, who gave Lands to that Church, was buried 1410.

John Stone, Taylor, one of the Sheriffs 1464, was likewiſe buried there.

J. S.

This Church burnt down by the great Fire, was not rebuilt, but remains now a Burying Place.

Parſonage.

No Parſonage Houſe, or Scite of a Parſonage Houſe; nor any Garden belonging to the Parſon, as it was given in at the Parochial Viſitation, 1693. Yet in the Parochial Viſitation 1636, there was a Parſonage Houſe.]

The Pariſh Church of S. MARY BOTHAW.

On the South ſide of Walbrook Ward, from Candlewick ſtreet, in the midway betwixt London Stone and Walbrook Corner, is a little Lane with a Turnpike in the midſt thereof, and in the ſame a proper Pariſh Church, called S. Mary Bothaw, or Boat-haw, by the Erbar. This Church being near unto Downegate, on the River of Thames, hath the Addition of Bothaw, or Boat-haw, of near adjoining to an Haw, or Yard, wherein (of old time) Boats were made, and landed from Downegate to be mended, as may be ſuppoſed: For other Reaſon I find none why it ſhould be ſo called.

St. Mary Bothaw.

This ſeems of old to be called alſo S. Mary de Bothache. Near which Church on the North was certain Land and a Stone Houſe, and other Houſes, belonging to the Priory of Chriſt Church Canterbury. The Prior Wibert (about An. 1167) and the Convent granted to Ernis and his Heirs, the Premiſes; paying 10 s. yearly, and giving on S. John Baptiſts Day, a Towel [Manutergium] worth 8 d. to the Keeper of his Houſe [Hoſtellario noſtro] and two Pitchers, worth ſix Pieces of Money, [duo Baccilia valentia nummos ſex] and a Saltſeller worth four, [& ſalarium 4 nummos valentem.]

MONUMENTS.

Within this Church and the ſmall Cloiſter adjoining, divers Noblemen and Perſons of Worſhip have been buried, as appeareth both by Arms in the Windows, the defaced Tombs, and Print of Plates torn up and carried away. There remain only of John Weſt, Eſq; buried in the Year 1408.

Perſons buried here.

Thomas Huntley, Eſq; 1539, but his Monument is defaced.

A. M.

Lancelot Bathurſt, &c.

Here lyeth the body of Lancelot Bathurſt, Citizen, Grocer, and choſen Alderman of this Honourable Citie: who deceaſed the 27. day of September, 1594. &c.

But the moſt memorable Monument of all other there, was that of Henry Fitz Alwine Draper, the firſt Lord Maior of London that ever was, and continued, by ſeveral Elections, in the Maioralty above 24 Years. His dwelling Houſe remaineth yet in the Pariſh, divided now into two or three Houſes. His Monument can be proved to be in that Church, as his Arms in the Glaſs Windows and Graveſtones do ſufficiently ſhew. Beſides, thoſe Houſes were his Gift to the Drapers, and they pay a Quit Rent in his Name yearly for ever. All which are ſufficient to teſtify, that he was not buried in the Priory of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate (now called The Dukes Place) as formerly hath been avouched by Mr. Stow; but that there his Body reſteth in undoubted Hope of a joyful Reſurrection. Such as make any doubt hereof may be further ſatisfied in the Drapers Hall.]

The firſt Ld. Maior Henry Fitz Alwyn had his Houſe in this Pariſh.

But all this is not Evidence enough againſt Stow's own Eyes: Who, living in the Times before the Diſſolution of that Priory, may be preſumed to have ſeen Fitz Alwine's Monument in that Church of the Priory, and ſo to have numbred

Stow vindicated concerning Alwine's Place of Burial. J. S.

numbred him among the reſt of the Perſons that had Monuments there, in that Part of his Survey, where he ſpeaks of this Priory in Aldgate Ward. Fitz Alwine might have his Armes in ſome of the Glaſs Windows of S. Mary Bothaw Church, being a Pariſhioner, and giving and glazing thoſe Windows; and his Coat of Armes might be upon ſome of the Graveſtones there, having ſome of his Children and Relations buried there. And it adds to the Probability that he was interred in that Priory, it being ſo uſual for Perſons of great Quality to be buried in ſuch religious Places, however expenſive it was, out of an Opinion then current, that it would turn to their Souls Benefit.]

In this Church was Queen Elizabeth's Monument, with this Inſcription.

R. ELIZABETH Queen of England, France, and Ireland, &c. Daughter to King HENRY VIII. and Grandchild to King HENRY VII. by ELIZABETH eldeſt Daughter to EDWARD IV. Having reſtored true Religion, reduced Coin to the juſt value, aſſiſted France and the Low-Countries, and overcome the Spaniſh invincible Navy, enriched all ENGLAND, and adminiſtred moſt prudently the Imperial State thereof 45 Years, in true Piety: In the 70. Year of her Age, in moſt happy and peaceable manner ſhe departed this Life; leaving her mortal Parts interred in the famous Church at Weſtminſter.

I have ſought a good Fight, I have finiſhed my Courſe.]

The Erber. The Erber [near this Church] is an ancient Place ſo called, but is not of Walbrook Ward: And therefore we paſs out of that Lane to Walbrook Corner, and then down, till we come over againſt the South Corner of St. John's Church upon Walbrook. And this is all that I can ſay of Walbrook Ward.

The preſent State of this Ward. And now we proceed to repreſent the modern State of this Walbrook Ward.

Places in this Ward. The Streets and Lanes in this Ward are Walbrook, as far as Bucklersbury on both ſides.

Bucklersbury, the Eaſt end on both ſides about eighty Foot.

Budge Row, the Eaſt end on both ſides for about ſeventy Foot.

Dowgate, the North end on the Weſt ſide as far as Cloak Lane, and on the Eaſt ſide as far as againſt Tallowchandler's Hall.

Canon Street, on both ſides as far as Green Lettice Lane on the South ſide, and to Abchurch Lane on the North ſide.

St. Swithen's Lane on both ſides the Way almoſt as far as Bearbinder Lane.

Bearbinder Lane the whole except about thirty five Foot at the Eaſt end.

Lombard Street about 175 Foot on both ſides of the Weſt end next the Stocks Market which this Ward alſo takes in.

Sherborn Lane, the South end on both ſides for about 120 Foot.

Buſh Lane from Canon Street Southwards on both ſides as far as Croſs Lane; which hath the North ſide in this Ward.

Suffolk Street, the Weſt ſide at the North end for about 85 Foot downwards.

Green Lettice Lane only the Weſt ſide.

Abchurch Lane, the Weſt ſide as far as the Church.

In all theſe Streets and Lanes are ſeveral Courts and Places of name which ſhall be taken notice of in the reſpective Places; of which in order.

Walbrook. Walbrook. This Street of Walbrook is well built and inhabited by Merchants, (among theſe Sir Samuel Moyer, Bart. of the Company of Mercers now deceaſed) and by Tradeſmen, eſpecially Furriers, for which it is of note. Bond Court. On the Eaſt ſide is Bond Court which is large and open, the Turning at the upper end having good Houſes, and Freeſtone Pavement, and the Entrance into this Court being broad for Coach or Cart. Bell Inn. On the Weſt ſide is Bell-Inn, which is but indifferent.

S. Stephens Walbrook Church. S. Stephen's Walbrook Church ſeated on the Eaſt ſide, and on the South ſide of the Stocks Market.

This Church was deſtroyed in the Fire of London. And ſince its rebuilding which is very ornamental, having a Cupulo, in or about the middle of it, to it the Pariſh of S. Bennet Sherehogg not rebuilt, is united.

Stocks Market. Up farther North is the Stocks Market: As to the preſent State of which it is converted to a quite contrary Uſe: For inſtead of Fleſh and Fiſh ſold there before the Fire, are now ſold Fruits, Roots, and Herbs; for which it is very conſiderable and much reſorted unto, being of note for having the choiceſt in their kind of all ſorts, ſurpaſſing all other Markets in London.

This Market is a large Tract of Ground, taking up not only all that which was the ancient Fleſh and Fiſh Markets, but alſo the Ground on which Woolchurch ſtood, and contains from North to South in length, through the midſt about 230 Foot, and in breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt in the midſt, about 108 Foot, beſide the waſte Ground on the Eaſt and Weſt ſides, which ſerve as a Street for Paſſage of People. On the Eaſt ſide is planted Rows of Trees very pleaſant (when grown to Perfection) to the Inhabitants, this ſide being much better than the Weſt. About the middle of this Row is an Entrance into a Court, in which is a good large Houſe, the Habitation of one Godfrey Woodward one of the Attorney's of the Sheriffs Court. Within the Bounds of this Market Place, and more towards the North ſide, are 22 Standing Stalls covered over for ſhelter of Fruit there ſold as well on Market Days as at other Times: The reſt of the Market Place is taken up by Gardiners and others, for the Sale of Fruits, Roots, Herbs and Flowers. But at the South Eaſt Corner there are two Ranges of Stalls for a few Butchers, under a Shelter with Racks, Blocks, Scales, &c.

Statue of K. Charles II. At the North end of this Market Place, by a Water Conduit Pipe, is erected a nobly great Statue of King Charles the Second on Horſeback, trampling on Slaves, ſtanding on a Pedeſtal with Dolphins cut in Niches, all of Freeſtone, and encompaſſed with handſome Iron Grates. This Statue was made and erected at the ſole Charge of Sir Robert Viner, Alderman, Knt. and Baronet, an honourable, worthy, and generous Magiſtrate of this City.

S. Mary Woolchurch. S. Mary Woolchurch before the Fire of London, was ſeated on ſome part of the Ground where the Stocks Market now is, and near unto Bearbinder Lane, but the ſaid Church ſince its burning in the Fire of London, is not rebuilt, and the Pariſh is united to S. Mary Woolnoth in Lombardſtreet.

Lombard-ſtreet. Out of the Stocks Market is an Entrance into Lombardſtreet, which is but narrow, untill it is paſt the Cardinal's Cap Alley: and then it widens and makes a good handſome Street, being alſo graced with very loſty and good Buildings, for the generality taken up by Goldſmiths. But there is but little of the Street in this Ward, except towards this End: the reſt being in Langborn Ward, is there treated of.

Bearbinder Lane.

Bearbinder Lane, a Place of no great account, as to Trade; it comes out of the Stocks Market, and falls into S. Swithens Lane, well inhabited by Merchants and others. Which Part is in Langborn Ward.

Brites Alley.

S. Swithens Lane, well inhabited by Merchants and others. This Lane comes out of Lombard ſtreet by S. Mary Woolnoth Church; and paſſing by Dove Court and Bearbinder Lane (both which have ſome ſmall part in this Ward, but the greateſt in Langborn Ward, have been there mentioned) and falls into Cannonſtreet by S. Swithens Church. In this Lane are theſe Places, Brites Alley, formerly called Horſhoe Alley, is both narrow and ſmall, having but one Houſe with a Paſſage into Sherborn Lane.

New Court.

New Court, a very handſome large Place, with an open Paſſage into it for Coach or Cart: Here are very good Buildings, with Inhabitants anſwerable; and at the upper end is a very good large Houſe, encloſed from the reſt by a handſome Pale.

Salters Hall.

Whiſtlers Court.

Salters Hall, a very good Building ſeated in a good Court, with a Freeſtone Pavement and good built Houſes: Adjoining to the ſaid Hall, is a long Preſbyterian Meeting houſe, handſomely fitted within, as to the Pews, &c. Out of this Court is a Paſſage into the backſide of S. Swithens Church, which falls into Canon ſtreet. In this Paſſage is Whiſtlers Court, which is pretty large, well built and inhabited, having a Freeſtone Pavement.

Oxford Court.

More towards Canonſtreet, is Oxford Court, which is pretty large and open, eſpecially the upper end, where are good Houſes. And in this Place anciently ſtood the Houſe of the Prior of Tortington in Suſſex, which afterwards fell to the Earls of Oxford, and in proceſs of Time from one to another, at length it was converted into Buildings as now it is, and yet retains the Name of Oxford Court.

Sherborn Lane.

Sherborn Lane begins at the Corner of Swithens Lane, by the Sign of the Cock againſt the back Gate of the Poſt Office, and with a turning Paſſage by S. Mary Abchurch, falls into Canon ſtreet.

Canonſtreet.

Canon ſtreet begins in the Weſt by the Corner of Dowgate Hill on the South, and Walbrook on the North, and runs Eaſtwards into Great Eaſtcheap, a Street well built, and inhabited by good Tradeſmen, and is a great Thoroughfare; but the Part in this Ward goeth but to Green Lettice Lane, which hath the Weſt ſide in this Ward, the Eaſt being in Candlewick Ward, where it is ſpoken of. In this Street is S. Swithens Church, ſeated on the Weſt ſide and at the South Eaſt Corner of S. Swithens Lane: It is in the Dioceſs of London, the Prior of Cottington was Patron. It was deſtroyed in the Fire of London, is rebuilt in a very handſome manner of Freeſtone, with a ſpired Steeple leaded, and hath a very fine Diall hanging over into the Street; and to this Church is united the Pariſh of S. Mary Bothaw: the Church whereof was burnt down and not rebuilt.

Londonſtone.

Over againſt S. Swithens Church is the famous old Stone called London Stone.

This Stone before the Fire of London, was much worn away, and as it were but a Stump remaining. But is now for the Preſervation of it caſed over with a new Stone handſomely wrought, cut hollow underneath ſo as the old Stone may be ſeen, the new one being over it, to ſhelter and defend the old venerable one.

Turnwheel Lane.

On the South ſide of this Street, and almoſt againſt S. Swithens Church, is Turnwheel Lane, which runs up to Downgate Hill, being a Place well inhabited.

S. Mary Bothaw.

The Pariſh Church of S. Mary Bothaw ſtood in theſe Parts, burnt in the great Fire, not rebuilt, but the Pariſh united to S. Swithens, as was ſaid.

BucklersBury.

Bucklers Bury falls into Walbrook, almoſt againſt S. Stephen's Walbrook Church. It is a Place well built and inhabited; particularly by Drugſters and Furriers. But in this Ward there is no great part, the moſt being in Cordwainers Ward, where it will be taken notice of.

S. John Baptiſt.

Near this Street more Southward, ſtood the Church of S. John Baptiſt, which being deſtroyed by the Fire, is now encloſed for a Churchyard, and the Pariſh united to S. Antholins.

Budge Row, Cloak Lane, Buſh Lane, Suffolk Lane, &c.

In this Ward theſe following Lanes have ſome ſmall part, the greateſt parts lying in other Wards, namely, Budge Row, Cloak Lane, in Vintry Ward, Buſh Lane and Suffolk ſtreet in Downgate Ward, and Green Lettice Lane in Langborn Ward.

For the Watch.

There are to watch at the ſeveral Places or Stands in this Ward, every Night one Conſtable, a Beadle, and twenty Watchmen.

Jury Men.

The Jury Men returned by the Wardmote Inqueſt for this Ward, are to ſerve in the ſeveral Courts holden at Guildhall, in the Month of October.]

DOWNEGATE Ward beginning at the South end of Walbrook Ward, overagainſt the Eaſt Corner of S. John's Church upon Walbrook, and deſcendeth on both the Sides to Downegate, on the Thames, and is ſo called, of that Down-going or deſcending thereunto: and of this Downgate the Ward taketh Name. This Ward turneth into Thamesſtreet Weſtward; ſome ten Houſes on a ſide, to the courſe of Walbrook, but Eaſt in Thamesſtreet (on both ſides) to Ebgate Lane, or Old Swan; and over againſt Ebgate the Land-ſide hath many Lanes turning up, as ſhall be ſhewed.

Conduit upon Downegate.

But firſt to begin with the High Street called Dowgate: At the upper end thereof is a fair Conduit of Thames Water, caſtellated, and made in the year 1568. at the Charge of the Citizens, and is called the Conduit upon Downegate. The Deſcent of this Street from the ſaid Conduit to the Water Gate, called Downegate, is ſuch, that in the year 1574. on the fourth of September in the Afternoon, there fell a Storm of Rain, where through the Chanels ſuddenly aroſe, and ran with ſuch a ſwift Courſe towards the common Shores, that a Lad of 18 years old, minding to have leapt over the Chanel, near unto the ſaid Conduit, was taken with the Stream, and carried from thence towards the Thames with ſuch a Violence, that no Man, with Staves, or otherwiſe, could ſtay him, till he came againſt a Cart Wheel that ſtood in the ſaid Water-gate, before which time he was drowned, and ſtark dead.

A Lad of 18 years old drowned in the Channel.

Tallow-Chandlers Hall.

On the Weſt ſide of this Street is the Tallow-Chandlers Hall, a proper Houſe. Which Company was incorporated in the ſecond year of Edward the fourth.

Copped Hall, now Skinners Hall.

Somewhat lower ſtandeth the Skinners Hall, a fair Houſe alſo, which was ſometime called Copped Hall by Downegate, in the Pariſh of Saint John upon Walbrook. In the 19th year of Edward the ſecond Ralph Cobham poſſeſſed it, with five Shops, &c.

The Company of Skinners.

This Company of Skinners in London was incorporate by Edward the third, in the firſt of his Reign: they had two Brotherhoods of Corpus Chriſti, viz. one at St. Mary Spittle, the other at St. Mary Bethlem, without Biſhopſgate. Richard the ſecond, in the 18th of his Reign, granted them to make their two Brotherhoods one, by the Name of the Fraternity of Corpus Chriſti of Skinners. Divers royal Perſons were named to be Founders, and Brethren of this Fraternity; to wit; Kings ſix, Dukes nine, Earls two; one Lord. Kings, Edward the third, Richard the ſecond, Henry the fourth, Henry the fifth; Henry the ſixth, and Edward the fourth.

Six Kings Brethren with the Skinners Company in London.

Their pompous Proceſſion.

This Fraternity had alſo once every year, on Corpus Chriſti Day, after Noon, a Proceſſion, which paſſed through the principal Streets of the City. Wherein was borne more than one hundred Torches of Wax (coſtly garniſhed) burning light, and above two hundred Clerks and Prieſts in Surpleſſes and Copes, ſinging. After the which were the Sheriffs Servants, the Clerks of the Compters, Chaplains for the Sheriffs, the Maiors Serjeants, the Councel of the City, the Maior and Aldermen in Scarlet, and then the Skinners in their beſt Liveries. Thus much to ſtop the Tongues of unthankful Men, ſuch as uſe to ask, Why have ye not noted this, or that, and give no Thanks for what is done?

Jeſus Commons.

Then lower down was there a College of Prieſts called Jeſus Commons, a Houſe well furniſhed with Braſs, Pewter, Napery, Plate, &c. beſides a fair Library well ſtored with Books. All which of old time were given to a Number of Prieſts that ſhould keep Commons there; and as one left this Place (by Death or otherwiſe) another ſhould be admitted into his room. But this Order within this thirty Years * being diſcontinued, the ſaid Houſe was diſſolved and turned to Tenements.

Innholders.

Down lower have ye Elbow Lane, and at the Corner thereof was one great Stone Houſe, called Old Hall: It is now taken down, and divers fair Houſes of Timber placed there. This was ſometime pertaining to William de pont le Arch, and by him given to the Priory of S. Mary Overy in Southwark, in the Reign of Henry the Firſt. In this Elbow Lane is the Innholders Hall, and other fair Houſes: This Lane runneth Weſt, and ſuddenly turneth South into Thames Street; and therefore (of that bending) is called Elbow Lane. On the Eaſt ſide of this Downegate Street is the great old Houſe before ſpoken of, called the Erbar, near to the Church of S. Mary Bothaw, Geffrey Scroope held it by the Gift of Edward the Third, in the fourteenth of his Reign. It belonged ſince to John Nevell, Lord of Raby, then to Richard Nevell, Earl of Warwick; Nevell Earl of Saliſbury, was lodged there, 1457, Then it came to George Duke of Clarence, and his Heires Males, by the Gift of Edward the Fourth, in the fourteenth Year of his Reign.

The ſeveral Poſſeſſors of the Erber. J. S.

But to give a fuller (and that an authentic) Account) of this ancient Royal Meſſuage. The higheſt that Stow could go was, that Edw. III. gave it to one of the honourable Family of the Scroopes. The laſt Poſſeſſor of that Name was William le Scroop, Knt. who lived in the Reign of Henry IV. He gave it for Term of Life to his Brother Rafe Earl of Weſtmoreland, who married Joan Daughter of the Duke of Lancaſter, who was his ſecond Wife: From whom deſcended Richard Earl of Warwick, who poſſeſſed that Houſe. And being ſlain at Barnet Field, after his Death, this was given to George Duke of Clarence, who married Iſabel Daughter of the ſaid Richard Earl of Warwick: Given to the ſaid Duke by Parliament, and to his Heirs, ſo long as there was Iſſue Male of the Marqueſs Montacute's Body living. And if it chanced the ſaid Iſſue Male to die, during the Life of the ſaid Duke, then the ſaid Duke to remain ſeized for Term of Life, ſaving the Right to all others than the Marqueſs and his Iſſue. Rafe Nevyl Earl of Weſtmerland dyed, ſeized thereof the 4th. of Henry VI. Joan his Wife the 19th Year of Richard Earl of Sarum [Son to the ſaid Earl of Dame Joan] the 38th. Year of the ſame King, and Richard Earl of Warwick [Son of the ſaid Richard Earl of Sarum] the 10th of Edward IV. and George Duke of Clarence [who married Iſabel a Daughter of Richard Earl of Warwick and Sarum] the 18th. of the ſame King. After his Death, Edward his Son was ſeized of it. After George Duke of Bedford [Son of John Nevyl, Marqueſs Montacute, Son of Richard Earl of Sarum aforeſaid] dyed without Iſſue Male, 1 Edward V. the Lands remaining in the Hands of Edward Son to the Duke of Clarence, till 15 Henry VII. at which Time he was attainted. And ſo the Lands came to the Crown, and there remained till 3 Henry VIII. At which Time he gave it to John Earl of Oxford, and the Heirs Male of his Body. And Anno 4to. the King gave the Reverſion to Sir Thomas Bulleyn, Knt. and the Heirs Male of his Body. Anno 5to. he reſtored by his Letters Patents, Margaret Daughter and Heir to George Duke of Clarence, and to all the Lands of Richard Earl of Sarum, who by colour of Reſtitution entred, and was attainted 31 Henry VIII. So the Lands came back to the Crown, and was given the 32d. of the ſame King, to Sir Philip Hoby, who the 36th. ſold it to one Doulphin a Draper, who Anno 1 Mariæ, ſold it to the Company of Drapers.

[*] It was held by King Richard III.

But notwithſtanding this Account, by ſome Lawyers and Hiſtorians in thoſe Days, it appears by the Rolls Ann. 6. Hen. 4. that there was a Surrender of this Meſſuage of th' Erber from Rafe Earl of Weſtmerland to the King, for the Uſe of John Darrel and Walter de Arkham. And Richard III. poſſeſs'd this Erber, called then, The King's Palace. And one Rauf Dowel, one of the Yeomen of the Crown, was Keeper of this Place to the ſaid King Richard, who made divers Reparations as well upon the ſaid Place, as other Houſes thereunto belonging; particularly a Brewhouſe called the Checker, belonging to the ſame, as appeareth by a Ledger Book of that King's, wherein the Accounts of the ſaid Rauf are ſaid to be examined by John Hewyk one of the King's Auditors: And that Orders were given to Lethington Bailiff of the Lordſhip of Clavering in Eſſex, to content him 14*l.* 18*s.* 3*d. ob.* remaining behind in Arrears due to him for the ſaid Reparations.]

Next to this great Houſe, is a Lane turning to Buſh Lane (of old time called Carter Lane, of Carts and Carr-men having Stables there) and now called Chequer Lane or Chequer Alley, of an Inn called the Chequer.

In Thames Street, on the Thames ſide Weſt from Downgate, is Greenwich Lane, of old time ſo called, and now Frier Lane, of ſuch a Sign there ſet up. In this Lane is the Joyners Hall, and other fair Houſes.

Joyners Hall.

Then is Grantham's Lane, ſo called of John Grantham, ſometime Maior and Owner thereof, whoſe Houſe was very large and ſtrong, builded of Stone, as appeareth by the Gates arched, yet remaining. Ralph Dodmer, firſt a Brewer, then a Mercer, Maior, 1529. dwelled there, and kept his Maioralty in that Houſe: It is now a Brewhouſe, as it was before.

Granthams Lane.

Then is Downgate, whereof is ſpoken in another Place. Eaſt from this Downgate is Coſin Lane, named of one William Coſin that dwelled there, in the 4th of Richard the Second, as divers his Predeceſſors, Father, Grandfather, &c. had done before him. William Coſin dwelling there, was one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1306, the 34th of Edward I. That Houſe ſtandeth at the South end of the Lane, having an old and artificial Conveyance of Thames Water into it, and is a Dye-houſe called Lombard's Meſſuage. Adjoyning to that Houſe, there was lately erected an Engine to convey Thames Water unto Downgate Conduit aforeſaid.

Next to this Lane on the Eaſt, is the Stelehouſe, or Steleyard (as they term it) a Place for Merchants of Almaine, that uſed to bring hither, as well Wheat, Rye, and other Grain, as Cables, Ropes, Maſts, Pitch, Tarr, Flax, Hemp, Linen Cloth, Wainſcots, Wax, Steel, and other profitable Merchandizes. Unto theſe Merchants, in the Year 1259, Henry the 3d. in the 44th. of his Reign, at the Requeſt of his Brother Richard Earl of Cornwall, King of Almaine, granted that all and ſingular the Merchants having a Houſe in the City of London, commonly called Guilda Aula Theutonicorum, ſhould be maintained and upholden through the whole Realm, by all ſuch Freedoms, and free Uſages or Liberties, as by the King and in his noble Progenitors Time, they had and enjoyed, &c. This Charter granted to the Teutonics, the King confirmed by this Letter directed to the Citizens of London, in theſe Words:

Edward the Firſt renewed and confirmed that Charter of Liberties granted by his Father. And in the 10th. Year of the ſame Edward, Henry Wales being Maior, a great Controverſie did ariſe between the ſaid Maior and the Merchants of the Haunce of Almaine, about the Reparations of Biſhopſgate, then likely to fall; for that the ſaid Merchants enjoyed divers Privileges, in reſpect of maintaining the ſaid Gate, which they now denyed to repair. For the appeaſing of which Controverſie, the King ſent his Writ to the Treaſurer, and Barons of his Exchequer, commanding that they ſhould make Inquiſition thereof: Before whom, the Merchants being called, when they were not able to diſcharge themſelves, ſith they enjoyed the Liberties to them granted for the ſame; a Precept was ſent to the Maior and Sheriffs, to deſtrain the ſaid Merchants to make the Reparations, namely, Gerard Marbod, Alderman of the Haunce, Ralph de Cuſſarde, a Citizen of Colen, Ludero de Denevar, a Burgeſs of Trivar, John of Aras, a Burgeſs of Trivon, Bartram of Hamburgh, Godeſtalke of Hundondale, a Burgeſs of Trivon, John de Dele, a Burgeſs of Munſtar, then remaining in the ſaid City of London, for themſelves, and all other Merchants of the Haunce: And ſo they granted 210 Marks ſterling to the Maior and Citizens, and undertook that they and their Succeſſors ſhould (from Time to Time) repair the ſaid Gate, and bear the third Part of the Charges in Money, and Men to defend it when need were.

Their Privileges. Merchants of the Haunce, of Almaine, licenſed to lay up their Corn in Garners, but to ſell it within 40 days after.

And for this Agreement, the ſaid Maior and Citizens granted to the ſaid Merchants their Liberties, which, till of late, they have enjoyed; as namely, amongſt other, that they might lay up their Grain, which they brought into this Realm, in Inns, and ſell it in their Garners, by the Space of forty Days after they had laid it up; except by the Maior and Citizens they were expreſſly forbidden, becauſe of Dearth, or other reaſonable Occaſions. Alſo they might have their Alderman, as they had been accuſtomed, foreſeen always, that he were of the City, and preſented to the Maior and Aldermen of the City, ſo oft as any ſhould be choſen, and ſhould take an Oath before them to maintain Juſtice in their Courts, and to behave themſelves in their Office according to Law, and as it ſtood with the Cuſtoms of the City.

A Conteſt of the Hance adjudged by the Barons. Lib. Horn. J. S.

This whole Matter between the City and the Merchants of the Haunce is thus related in an authentick Book in the Chamber of London, which I only tranſlate into Engliſh out of Latin.

An Agreement between the Citizens of London and the Teutonics. Ann. 10. Edw. Son of King Henry. Henry le Galeis Maior of London. Ann. 1282.

“THEN by reaſon of the decay of a certain Gate of the ſaid City, which was called Biſhopſgate, a Contention aroſe between the ſaid Maior and the Citizens of London on the one part, and the Merchants of the Haunce of the Almains then abiding in the ſaid City, on the other, upon the Reparation of the ſaid Gate, which threatned ruin. To the building and repair of which, the ſaid Merchants and others of the beforeſaid Haunce of the Parts of Almain reſorting to the ſame City, were obliged, for certain Liberties which the ſaid Merchants have in the ſaid City, and which they have long uſed, upon account of ſuch building and repairing; as the ſame Maior and Citizens aſſerted, &c. The ſaid Merchants denied it.

“In the mean time, the Contention depending, the King at the Suggeſtion of the ſaid Maior and Citizens, wrote to the Treaſurer and Barons of his Exchequer, that if they ſhould find the ſaid Merchants were bound to the repair of the ſaid Gate, they ſhould diſtrain upon them. At length the Parties, coming before the ſaid Treaſurer and Barons, when nothing was propounded on their Parts which might excuſe them from this Reparation; eſpecially when it appeared concerning the Liberty which they had in the ſaid City; and for this Cauſe, it was commanded by the ſame Treaſurer and Barons, that the Maior and Sheriffs ſhould diſtrain them to this Repair: The aforeſaid Merchants, viz. Gerard Marbodi, Alderman of the ſaid Haunce, Ludulphus de Cuſſa of the City of Colon, Luderus de Linnenare, a Burges of Trevir, Bertram of Hamburgh, Godeſchalc de Hudendale, Burger of Trevir, John de Dole, Burges of Munſter, then being in the ſame City; for themſelves and all other Merchants and their Fellows of the Haunce aforeſaid, whoſoever and whenſoever reſorting thither for the future, for the good of Peace, yielded and promiſed to the ſaid Maior and Citizens of London, to the repair of the ſaid Gate for the preſent, 240 Mark Sterling to be paid: And that then their Succeſſors Merchants of the Haunce, for all time hereafter, will repair it, as often as there ſhall be need: And in defence of the ſaid Gate, as often as there ſhall be need to keep it, ſhall bear the third part of the Cuſtody thereof, at their Coſt, and Men above; and the Maior and Citizens two parts of the ſaid Cuſtody below. And in Conſideration of this Peace, Fine and Concord, the Maior and Citizens have granted them their Liberties which they have hitherto reaſonably uſed; to have to them and their Succeſſors, the Merchants of the Haunce for ever.

“And moreover for the aforeſaid Reparation and Cuſtody, that they be quit for ever of Murage, [i. e. the Charge of repairing the City Walls] as much as in them is. And that they may houſe and ſell their Corn, which ſhall be brought in by them to be ſold, in their Houſes and Granaries for forty Days, for the time of their foreſaid houſing: Unleſs the ſaid houſing be expreſly forbidden by the Lord the King, or the Maior and Citizens, by reaſon of the Dearth of Corn, or ſome other neceſſary Matter.

“They granted alſo to them, that they might have their Alderman, as they had in former times: Yet ſo, that that Alderman be of the Freedom of the ſaid City: And as often as he ſhall be choſen of the ſaid Merchants, he be preſented to the Maior and Aldermen of the City, and take an Oath before them to do Right and Juſtice in all his Courts, and to behave himſelf in his Office, as he ought, and hath been accuſtomed, ſaving to the City its Right and Cuſtom.

“And the ſaid Merchants promiſed, that they and their Succeſſors, as often as there ſhould be need, would be diſtrained for Reparation and Cuſtody of the ſaid Gate, to be performed in the form aforeſaid by the ſame Merchants and Citizens. All theſe things the Parties aforeſaid yielded and promiſed faithfully to keep: And for the greater Security to be made upon theſe things by the Parties, together with the Seals appendent to this Writing between themſelves, have procured the Seal of the Illuſtrious Lord King of England to be hung to it, for perpetual Memory of the Matter aforeſaid. Dated at London in the Month of June the year aboveſaid.]

Act of Parliament forbidding Corn to be brought from beyond Seas.

Thus much for their Priviledges: Whereby it appeareth, that they were great Merchants of Corn, brought out of the Eaſt parts hither, inſomuch, that the Occupiers of Husbandry in this Land were enforced to complain of them, for bringing in ſuch abundance, when the Corn of this Realm was at an eaſie price. Whereupon it was ordained by Parliament, That no Perſon ſhould bring into any part of this Realm, by way of Merchandiſe, Wheat, Rye, or Barley, growing out of the ſaid Realm at any time, when the Quarter of Wheat exceeded not the price of 6 s. 8 d. Rye 4 s. the Quarter, and Barley 3 s. the Quarter, upon forfeiture the one half to the King, the other half to the Seizer thereof. Theſe Merchants of the Haunce had their Guildhall in Thames Street, in place aforeſaid, by the ſaid Coſin Lane. Their Hall is large, builded of Stone, with three arched Gates towards the Street, the the middlemoſt whereof is far bigger than the other, and is ſeldom opened, and the other two be mured up: The ſame is now called the Old Hall.

Richard Lions Houſe.

Windgooſe Lane.

Of later time, to wit, in the ſixth of Richard the Second, they hired one Houſe next adjoining to their old Hall, which ſometime belonged to Richard Lions, a famous Lapidary, one of the Sheriffs of Lond. in the 49. of Edward III. and in the fourth of Richard II. by the Rebels of Kent drawn out of that Houſe, and beheaded in Weſt Cheap. This alſo was a great Houſe, with a large Wharf on the Thames: And the way thereunto was called Windgooſe, or Wildgooſe Lane, which is now called Windgooſe Alley, for that the ſame Alley is (for the moſt part) builded on by the Stilyard Merchants.

The Engliſh begin to trade to the Eaſt Parts. The Dutch Hans offended thereat. Alderman Tench's Reaſons offer'd by the Eaſtland Merchants. Print. 1689. J. S.

About the time of King Henry IV. the Engliſh began to trade themſelves into the Eaſt Parts. At which the Eaſterlings, or Merchants of the Dutch Hauns, were ſo offended that they took ſeveral of their Ships and Goods, and offered them ſeveral other Injuries. Which occaſioned great Complaints and Differences between the ſaid King Henry IV. and Conradus de Junigen, then Maſter General of the Dutch Order in Pruſſia with the Hans Towns. And divers Embaſſies paſſed betwixt them on that Account. The reſult of which in ſhort was this, that the ſaid King Henry IV. finding by the ſaid Privileges granted to Foreigners, his own Subjects (to the great Prejudice of the Realm) very much crippled in their Trade, did revoke ſuch Parts of the Privileges of the aforeſaid Dutch Company, as were inconſiſtent with the carrying on of a Trade by the Natives of this Realm: And for the better Encouragement of his own Subjects, did in the 5th Year of his Reign, grant his firſt Charter to the Merchants trading into the Eaſt Land: Containing many great Privileges and Immunities, as by the ſaid Charter may appear. Which having a good Effect to the bringing of the Trade much more into the Hands of the Natives of this Realm, than was before, King Edward IV. for their more ample Encouragement, did in the ſecond Year of his Reign, grant another large Charter to the Merchants of England; eſpecially to thoſe reſiding in the Netherlands, with ſeveral additional Immunities and Privileges, as by the Charter at large may appear.

Charter to the Eaſtland Merchants.

Ruſſia Merchants.

In the firſt and ſecond of Philip and Mary, was granted the Charter to the Ruſſia Company. Afterwards confirmed by Act of Parliament in the eighth Year of Queen Elizabeth.

Until whoſe time, though the Trade of this Nation was driven much more by the Natives thereof, than had been formerly, yet had the Society of the Dutch Hans at the Steel Yard much the advantage of them by means of their well regulated Societies, and the Privileges they enjoyed. Inſomuch that almoſt the whole Trade was driven by them, to that degree that Queen Elizabeth her ſelf, when ſhe came to have a War was forced to buy the Hemp, Pitch, Tar, Powder, and other naval Proviſions, which ſhe wanted, of Foreigners: And that too, at their Rates. Nor was there any Stores of either in the Land, to ſupply her Occaſions on a ſudden, but what at great Rates ſhe prevailed with them to fetch for her even in time of War: Her own Subjects being then but very little Traders.

To remedy which ſhe fell upon the Conſideration, how ſhe might at home have a well grounded Dependence, to have thoſe neceſſary Commodities by her, that ſo ſhe might not want them, when ſhe moſt needed them. And after great Deliberation, no better Expedient could be found by the ſaid Queen and her Council, than by encouraging her own Subjects to be Merchants. Which ſhe did by erecting out of them ſeveral Societies of Merchants: As that of the Eaſt Land Company, and other Companies. By which means, and by cancelling many of the Privileges of the forementioned Dutch Hans Society, the Trade in general, by degrees came to be managed by the Natives of this Realm. And conſequently, the Profit of all thoſe Trades accrued to the Engliſh Nation. Trade in general and Engliſh Shipping was encreaſed; her own Cuſtoms vaſtly augmented, and what was at firſt the great End of all, obtained, viz. That ſhe had conſtantly lying at home, in the Hands of her own Subjects, all ſorts of naval Proviſions and Stores; which ſhe could make uſe of, as her Occaſions required them without any dependence on her Neighbours for the ſame.

And thus by means of the erecting the forementioned Societies, and preſerving and encouraging that of the Merchants Adventurers, was the Trade at firſt gained from Foreigners to the Natives of the Realm, to its ineſtimable Advantage.]

Then is one other great Houſe, which ſometime pertained to John Raynwell, Stockfiſhmonger, Maior, and it was by him given to the Maior and Communalty, to the end, that the Profits thereof ſhould be diſpoſed in Deeds of Piety: Which Houſe in the 15th of Edward the Fourth, was confirmed unto the ſaid Merchants in manner following, viz.

Patent.

It is ordained by our Soveraigne Lord and his Parliament, that the ſaid Merchants of Almaine, being of the Company called the Guildhall Theutonicorum, [or the Flemiſh Geld] that now be, or hereafter ſhall be, ſhall have, hold, and enjoy to them and their Succeſſors for ever, the ſaid place, called the Steele-houſe, yielding to the Maior and Commonalty an annual Rent of threeſcore and ten Pounds, three Shillings, four Pence, &c. Merchants of Colen, their Charter. Lib. Horn. J. S.

There were alſo Merchants of Colen trafficking here; who ſeem to be the Beginners of this Haunce Trade. Theſe formerly paid divers Duties and Cuſtoms to the Kings of this Land, and particularly 2 s. from their Guildhall. Which King Henry III. in the year 1235. took off by his Charter: which was to this Tenor:

“KNOW ye, that we have quite claimed “for us and our Heirs our beloved Citi-“zens of Colen, and their Merchandizes, of thoſe “two Shillings which they were wont to give “from their Guildhall, London, and of all Cu-“ſtoms and Demands which belong to us in “London and throughout our whole Land in “England. ### The Pariſh Church of ALHALLOWS the More, or the Great.

Church Lane. Alhallows the More.

Then is Church Lane, at the Weſt end of Alhallows Church, called Alhallows the More in Thamesſtreet, for a difference from Alhallows the Leſs in the ſame Street. It is alſo called Alhallows ad fœnum in the Roperie, becauſe Hay (that fœnum ſignifies) was ſold near thereunto, at Hay-Wharf, and Ropes of old time made or ſold in the high Street.

Hay Wharf Lane in the Pariſh of Alhallows the Great. Regiſtr. Lond.

This is a fair Church, with a large Cloiſter on the South ſide thereof, about their Churchyard, but fouly defaced and ruinated.

Repaired. R.

This Church, with much Coſt beſtowed on the Steeple, was in many Parts of it repaired, and throughout richly and worthily beautified, at the proper Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners in the Years of our Lord God 1627 and 1629.

The Monuments.

MONUMENTS.

The Church alſo hath had many fair Monuments, but now defaced: There remain in the Quire ſome Plates on Graveſtones, namely of William Lichfield, Doctor of Divinity, who deceaſed the year 1447. He was a great Student, and compiled many Books, both Moral and Divine, in Proſe and in Verſe; namely one, entituled, The Complaint of God unto ſinful Man. He made in his time 3083 Sermons; as appeared by his own hand-writing, and were found when he was dead.

Dr. Litchfield.

One other Plate there is of John Brickles, Draper, who deceaſed in the Year 1451. He was a great Benefactor to that Church, and gave by his Teſtament certain Tenements, to the Relief of the Poor.

Joan Bruyn, Wife of Richard Bruyn, de Eſlingham in the County of Kent, Eſq; was probably buried here. For by her Will dated in June 1462. ſhe bequeated her Body to be depoſited in the Church of Great Alhallows, London.]

Hay Wharf Lane.

At the Eaſt end of this Church goeth down a Lane, called Hay-Wharf Lane, now lately a great Brewhouſe, builded there by one Pot; Henry Campion, Eſq; a Beer Brewer, uſed it, and Abraham his Son ſince poſſeſſed it.

Woolſeys Lane.

Then was there one other Lane ſome time called Woolſeys Gate, now out of uſe. For the lower part thereof, upon the Bank of Thames, is builded by the late Earl of Shrewsbury, and the other end is builded on and ſtopped up by the Chamberlain of London. John Butler, Draper, one of the Sheriffs in the year 1420. dwelled there: He appointed his Houſe to be ſold, and the Price thereof to be given to the Poor: it was of Alhallows Pariſh the Leſs.

The Pariſh Church of ALHALLOWS the Leſs.

Alhallows the Leſs.

Then is there the ſaid Pariſh Church of Alhallows, called the Leſs; and by ſome, Alhallows on the Cellers, for it ſtandeth on Vaults. It is ſaid to be builded by Sir John Poultney, ſometimes Maior. The Steeple and Quire of this Church ſtand on an arched Gate, being the Entry to a great Houſe called Cold Harbrough: the Quire of late being fallen down, is now again at length, in the year 1594. by the Pariſhioners new builded.

Cold Harbrough.

Repaired. R.

This Church was repaired and beautified within and without, at the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners, in the year of our Lord 1616. In the year 1613. two fair Dormers were made on the South ſide of this Church to enlighten it, being before very dark: the one at the Coſt of Sir Thomas Glover Knt. the other at the Coſt of Mr. Thomas Jones, Gent.

In the Year 1633. a fair large Gallery was built on the North ſide of the Church: and within nine or ten years paſt, two other Galleries: Which both in their Coſt and Ends, (but eſpecially the laſt) much commend their religious Founders.

In this Church is alſo the Monument of Queen Elizabeth.]

Cold Harbour.

Touching Cold Harbrough, I find, that in the 13th of Edward II. Sir John Abel, Knt, demiſed or let unto Henry Stow, Draper, all that his capital Meſſuage, called the Cold Harbrough, in the Pariſh of All Saints ad fœnum, and all the Purtenances within the Gate, with the Key which Robert Hartford, Citizen, Son to William Hartford, had, and ought, and the foreſaid Robert paid for it the Rent of 33 s. the year. This Robert Hartford being owner thereof, as alſo of other Lands in Surrey; deceaſing without Iſſue Male, left two Daughters his Coheirs, to wit, Idonea, married to Sir Ralph Bigot, and Maud, married to Sir Stephen Coſenton, Knts. between whom the ſaid Houſe and Lands were parted. After the which John Bigot, Son to the ſaid Sir Ralph and Sir John Coſenton, did ſell their Moities of Cold Harbrough unto John Poultney, Son of Adam Poultney, the eighth of Edward III. This Sir John Poultney dwelling in this Houſe, and being four times Maior, the ſaid Houſe took the name of Poultney's Inn. Notwithſtanding, this Sir John Poultney, the 21ſt of Edward III. by his Charter gave and confirmed to Humfrey de Bohune, Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, his whole Tenement, called Cold Harbrough, with all the Tenements and Key adjoining, and Appurtenances ſometime pertaining to Robert de Hertford, on the way called Hay Wharf Lane, &c. for one Roſe at Midſummer, to him and his Heirs, for all Services, if the ſame were demanded. This Sir John Poultney deceaſed 1349. and left Iſſue, by Margaret his Wife, William Poultney, who dyed without Iſſue: And Margaret his Mother was married to Sir Nicholas Lovel, Knight, &c. Philip S. Clear gave two Meſſuages, pertaining to this Cold Harbrough, in the Ropery, towards the inlarging of the Church and Churchyard of All Saints, called the Leſs, in the 20th of Richard II.

Cold Harbour granted to the Heralds.

The Biſhop of Durham lived here.

In the year 1397. the 21ſt of Richard II. John Holland, Earl of Huntington, was lodged there, and Richard II. his Brother dined with him: It was then counted a right fair and ſtately Houſe. But in the next year following, I find, that Edmond, Earl of Cambridge had this Houſe; and was there lodged in the year 1398. notwithſtanding, the ſaid Houſe ſtill retained the name of Poultney's Inn, in the Reign of Henry VI. the 26th of his Reign, and not otherwiſe. It belonged ſince to H. Holland Duke of Exceſter, and he was lodged there in the year 1472. In the year 1485. Richard III. by his Letters Patents granted and gave to John Writh, alias Garter, principal King of Arms of Engliſhmen, and to the reſt of the King's Heralds and Purſevants of Arms, all that Meſſuage with the Appurtenances, called Cold Erber, in the Pariſh of All Saints the Leſs, in London, and their Succeſſors for ever. Dated at Weſtminſter the ſecond of March, Anno regni ſui primo, without Fine or Fee. How the ſaid Heralds departed therewith, I have not read, but in the Reign of Henry VIII. the Biſhop of Durham's Houſe, near Charing Croſs, being taken into the King's Hand, Cuthbert Tunſtal, Biſhop of Durham, was lodged there: Since the which time it hath belonged to the Earls of Shrewsbury, by Compoſition (as is ſuppoſed) from the ſaid Cuthbert Tunſtall. The laſt deceaſed Earl took it down, and in place thereof builded a great number of ſmall Tenements now letten out for great Rents, to People of all ſorts.

Cold Harbour comes to the Earl of Shrewſbury. J. S.

This great Houſe Biſhop Tonſtal enjoyed even to the laſt year of King Edward VI. that is, to the year 1553. When the Biſhop being under ſome Cloud, and depoſed from his Biſhoprick, they took from him this Houſe alſo; which the King granted to the Earl of Shrewsbury, with the Appurtenances to the ſaid Meſſuage belonging, together with ſix Houſes or Tenements in the Pariſh of St. Dunſtan's in the Eaſt. and divers other Lands in the County of York, to him and his Heirs, to the yearly value of 66 l. 16 s. 1 ob. The Teſt of the Patent was the 30th of June, the King dying but ſix or ſeven Days after. For the Duke of Northumberland, who now did all at Court, practiſed to gain as many of the Nobility as he could to his Purpoſe. And ſo this Gratification was made to the Earl of Shrewſbury, as were divers others of the Nobility in other Reſpects, gratified.]

What Title the Earls of Shrewsbury had in former times to Cold Harbour, I know not, but it appears by Letters I have ſeen (dated from thence) that that Houſe was inhabited by them, and their Servants long before, namely not far from the beginning of King Henry VIII. his Reign.]

The Dyers Hall.

Then is the Dyers Hall. Which Company was made a Brotherhood or Guild, in the fourth of Henry VI. and appointed to conſiſt of a Guardian or Warden, and a Communalty the 12th of Edward IV.

Bretaſke Lane claimed by the Dyers. R.

At a Common Council holden December 11. Anno 3. H. 8. a Bill was exhibited at this Court by the Warden of the Dyers Company: Whereby they claimed a Lane in the Ward of Downgate, called Bretaske Lane, to be their ſeveral Ground; For this a Search was made in the Books and Records of the City: By which it appeared, that the ſaid Lane was the common Lane of the City, and not ſeveral to them. And ſo they were anſwered by the Court.]

Ebgate Lane.

Then be there divers large Brewhouſes, and others, till you come to Ebgate Lane, where that Ward endeth in the Eaſt. On the North ſide of Thames Street be divers Lanes alſo. The firſt is at the South end of Elbow Lane before ſpoken of, Weſt from Downgate, over againſt Greenwich Lane: Then be divers fair Houſes for Merchants, and others all along that ſide.

The Manor of the Roſe.

The next Lane Eaſt from Downgate, is called Buſh Lane, which turneth up to Candlewick Street, and is of Downgate Ward. Next is Suffolk Lane, likewiſe turning up to Candlewick Street. In this Lane is one notable Grammar School, founded in the Year 1561. by the Maſter, Wardens and Aſſiſtants of the Merchant Taylors, in the Pariſh of St. Laurence Poultney; Richard Hills ſometime Maſter of that Company, having before given 500 l. toward the Purchaſe of an Houſe, called The Manor of the Roſe, ſometime belonging to the Duke of Buckingham, wherein the ſaid School is kept.

Poultney Lane.

Then is there one other Lane, which turneth up to S. Laurence Hill, and to the South Weſt Corner of St. Laurence Churchyard. Then another Lane, called Poultney Lane, that goeth up (of this Ward) to the South Eaſt Corner of St. Laurence Churchyard: And ſo down again, and to the Weſt Corner of St. Martin Orgar Lane.

A Lane ſtopt up, to be opened. R.

Concerning ſome one of theſe Lanes ſtopt up, there was an Order made; “That whereas certain private Perſons had wrongfully ſet up a Door at the end of      Lane in Downgate Ward, and had converted it to their private Uſe; it was ordered May 28. Anno Elibeth. 4to, that the City Chamberlain ſhould take down the Door, and leave the Lane common, like other Streets in the City.]

The preſent State of this Ward.

This for the Antiquities and ancient State of this Ward. Now for the Ward as it ſtands at preſent, ſince the great Fire.

Tallowchandlers Hall.

Dowgate Hill is of ſuch a great Deſcent towards Thames ſtreet, that in great and ſudden Rains, the Water here comes down from other Streets with that Swiftneſs, that it oftimes cauſeth a Flood in the lower Part. This Street is large and open, the Houſes well built and inhabited. On the Weſt ſide, near unto Budge Row, is the Churchyard of S. John Evangeliſt, where formerly the Church ſtood, not being rebuilt ſince the Great Fire of London burnt it down, and the Pariſh is united to Alhallows Breadſtreet. ### Containing a particular Inſpection into the Twelve Wards on the Weſt of WALBROOKE.

CHAP. I.

WARDS on the Weſt Side of WALBROOKE. And firſt of VINTRIE-Ward. Burdeaux Merchants. The Vintners great Merchants. St. Michael Paternoſter in the Royal. Whittington College. The Tower Royal. St. Thomas Apoſtles. St. Martins in the Vintrie. St. James Garlick Hith. Richard Lions, beheaded by Wat Tyler, his Monument. The preſent State of this Ward.

Vintrie Ward. Why ſo called. Merchants of Burdeaux.

NOW I am to ſpeak of the other Wards, 12 in number, all lying on the Weſt ſide of the courſe of Walbrooke. And firſt of the Vintry Ward, ſo called of Vintners, and of the Vinttrie, a part of the bank of the River of Thames, where the Merchants of Burdeaux, craned their Wines out of Lighters, and other Veſſels, and there landed and made ſale of them, within forty days after, until the twenty eighth of Edward the firſt. At which time the ſaid Merchants complained, that they could not ſell their Wines, paying Poundage, neither hire Houſes or Cellars to lay them in: and it was redreſſed by Vertue of the King's Writ, directed to the Maior and Sheriffs of London, dated at Carlaveroke, or Carlile. Since the which time, many fair and large houſes (with Vaults and Cellars for ſtowage of Wines, and lodging of Wines, and lodging of Burdeaux Merchants) have been builded, in place where beforetime were Cooks houſes. For Fitzſtephen, in the reign of Henry the ſecond, writeth, that upon the River ſide, between the Wine in Ships, and the Wine to be ſold in Taverns, was a common Cookery or Cooks Row, &c, as in another place I have ſet down. Whereby it appears, that in thoſe days, (and till of late time) every Man lived by his own profeſſed Trade, not any one interrupting another. The Cooks dreſſed Meat, and ſold no Wine; and the Taverner ſold Wine, and dreſſed no Meat for ſale, &c.

Every man lived by his ſeveral profeſſed trade.

Its Bounds.

This Ward beginneth in the Eaſt, at the Weſt end of Downegate Ward, as the water-courſe of Walbrooke parteth them, to wit, at Granthams lane, on the Thames ſide, and at Elbow lane, on the Land ſide: it runneth along in Thames ſtreet, Weſt, ſome three houſes beyond the Old Swan, a Brewhouſe on the Thames ſide, and on the Land ſide, ſome three houſes Weſt, beyond St. James at Garlickhithe.

In breadth, this Ward ſtretcheth from the Vintrie North, to the wall of the Weſt gate of the Tower-Royal: the other North part is of Cordwainer ſtreet Ward.

Horſhoe-bridge ſtreet.

Out of this Royal ſtreet by the South gate of Tower-Royal, runneth a ſmall ſtreet, Eaſt to St. Johns upon Walbrooke, which ſtreet is called Horſhoe-bridge, of ſuch a bridge ſometime over the brooke there, which is now vaulted over.

Knight-riders ſtreet.

Ormond Place.

Kerion lane.

Herber lane, or Brickles lane.

Then from the South gate Weſt, runneth one other ſtreet, called Knightriders ſtreet, by St. Thomas Apoſtles Church, on the North ſide, and Wringwren lane, by the ſaid Church, at the Weſt end thereof, and to the Eaſt end of the Trinity Church in the ſaid Knightriders ſtreet; where this Ward endeth on that South ſide the ſtreet. But on the North ſide, it runneth no farther than the corner againſt the new builded Tavern, and other houſes, in a plot of ground, where ſome time ſtood Ormond place. Yet have ye one other lane lower down in Royal ſtreet, ſtretching forth from over againſt St. Michael's Church, to and by the North ſide of St. James's Church by Garlickhithe. This is called Kerion lane: And thus much for the bounds of the Vintrie Ward. Now on the Thames ſide Weſt from Granthams lane, have ye Herber lane, or Brickles lane, ſo called of John Brickles, ſometime owner thereof.

Simpſons lane.

Three Cranes lane.

Painted Tavern lane.

Then is Simſons lane, of one Simpſon; or Emperours-head lane, of ſuch a ſign: then the Three Cranes lane, ſo called, not only of a ſign of three Cranes at a Tavern door, but rather of three ſtrong Cranes of Timber, placed on the Vintrie Wharf by the Thames ſide, to crane up Wines there, as is aforeſhewed. This Lane was of old time, to wit, the 9th. of Richard the ſecond, called the Painted Tavern lane, of the Tavern being painted.

The Vintry Record.

Then next over againſt St. Martin's Church, is a large houſe builded of Stone and Timber, with Vaults for the ſtowage of Wines, and is called the Vintrie. There dwelled John Giſers, Maior of London, and Conſtable of the Tower. And then was Henry Picard, Vintner Mayor. In this houſe Henry Picard feaſted four Kings in one day; as in my Summary I have ſhewed.

Vannars lane.

Then next is Vannars lane, ſo called of one Vannar that was owner thereof. It is now call'd Church lane, of the coming up from the Wharf to St. Martin's Church.

Broad lane.

Pariſh Clerks Hall.

Stodies lane.

Vintners Hall.

Alms-houſes of the Vintners.

Next is Brode lane, for that the ſame is broader for the paſſage of Carts from the Vintrie Wharf, than be the other lanes. At the North weſt corner of this lane is the Pariſh-Clerks Hall, lately by them purchaſed, ſince they loſt their old Hall in Biſhopsgate ſtreet. Next is Spittle lane, of old time ſo called; ſince, Stodies lane, of the owner thereof, named Stodie. Sir John Stodie, Vintner, Maior in the year 1357. gave it, with all the Quadrant wherein Vintners Hall now ſtandeth, with the Tenements round about, unto the Vintners. The Vintners builded for themſelves a fair Hall there, and alſo 13 Alms-houſes for 13 poor people, which are kept of charity rent-free.

Stodies Manour of the Vintrie firſt given to the Church. J. S.

This Place of Stody was called in old Records, The Manour of the Vintre. This Manour the ſaid Stody July the 3. 2. Edw. 3. gave and granted to one John Tuke, Parſon of that Pariſh Church; 'to have and to hold 'the ſaid Manour to him and his Succeſſors, 'to the Uſe and Behalf of the ſaid Church; 'the King's Licence thereof not had, nor obtained. By force of which Feoffment the ſaid John was ſeized thereof as of Fee, contrary to the Senſe of the Statute of Lands and Tenements to be put into Mortmains, had and provided. Of this there was an Inquiſition taken in 17 Edw. 4. before Sir Rauf Joſſelyn: and there was likewiſe a Trial in the Exchequer about it. But King Richard III. granted it to the Company of Vintners.]

The Vintners great Burdeaux Merchants.

Theſe Vintners in London were (of old time) called Merchant Vintners of Gaſcoyne, and ſo I read them in the Records of Edward II. the 11th year, and Edward III. the 9th year; they were as well Engliſh men, as ſtrangers born, beyond the Seas, but then Subjects to the Kings of England; great Burdeaux Merchants of Gaſcoyne and French Wines. Divers of them were Mayors of this City; namely, John Adrean Vintner, Reginald at Conduit, John Oxenford, Henry Picard, that feaſted the Kings of England, France, Scotland, and Cyprus: John Stodie, that gave Stodie's lane to the Vintners: the four laſt were Maiors in the Reign of Edward III. and yet Gaſcoyne Wines were then to be ſold at London, not above 4 pence, nor Rheniſh Wines above 6 pence the Gallon.

William More, Vintner, Maior in the Reign of Richard II.

Monopoly of Wines puniſhed.

I read of ſweet Wines, that in the 50th of Edward III. John Peachie,, Fiſhmonger, was accuſed, for that he procured a Licence for the only ſale of them in London: Which notwithſtanding he juſtified by Law, he was impriſoned and fined.

Cognizance taken of corrupting Wines.

More I read in the 6th of Hen. VI. the Lombards corrupting their ſweet Wines, when knowledge thereof came to John Rainwell, Maior of London, he (in divers places of the City) commanded the heads of the Butts and other Veſſels in the open Streets, to be broken, to the number of one hundred and fifty. So that the Liquor running forth, paſſed thorow the City like a ſtream of rain water, in the ſight of all the people; from whence there iſſued a moſt loathſome ſavour.

Malmſeys brought by the Longobards.

Malmſey ſpent in St. Andrew Underſhaft, for 1 year, 80 pints.

I read in the Reign of Henry VII. that no ſweet Wines were brought into this Realm, but Malmſies, by the Longobards, paying to the King for his Licence, 6 s. 8 d. of every Butt, beſides 12 d. for Bottle large. I remember, within this 54 years, Malmſey not to be ſold above 1 d. ob. the Pint. For proof whereof, it appeareth in the Church Book of St Andrew Underſhaft, that in the year 1547. I. G. and S. K. then Church-wardens, for 80 Pints of Malmſey, ſpent in the Church, after 1 penny halfpenny the Pint, paid at the years end for the ſame ten ſhillings.

No Sack drunk but Rumney.

More I remember, that no Sacks were ſold but Rumney, and that for Medicine more than for Drink: but now many kinds of Sacks are known and uſed. And ſo much for Wines.

The King's Sons ſupped in the Vintrie.

Henry Scogan.

For the Vintrie, to end therewith, I read, that in the Reign of Henry IV. the young Prince Henry, Thomas Duke of Clarence, John Duke of Bedford, and Humfrey Duke of Glo ceſter, the King's Sons, being at Supper amongſt the Merchants of London in the Vintrie, in the houſe of Lewes John; Henry Scogan ſent to them a Ballad beginning thus:

My Noble Sonnes,
and eke my Lords deare,
I your Father
called unworthily,
Send unto you
this Ballad following here,
Written with mine
owne hand full rudely:
Although it be,
that I not reverently
Have written to your
Eſtates, I you pray,

Mine uncunning
taketh benignely,
For Gods ſake,
and hearken what I ſay.

Then follow in like Metre 23 ſtaves, containing a perſwaſion from loſing of time fooliſhly, in luſt and vice, but to ſpend the ſame in Vertue and in Godlineſs; as ye may read in Geffry Chaucer his Works, lately printed. The ſucceſſors of thoſe Vintners and Wine-drawers, that retailed by the Pottle, Quart and Pint, were all incorporated by the Name of Wine-tunners, in the Reign of Edward III. and confirmed the 15th of Henry VI.

Chawcer, fol. 334, and 335.

Wine-tunners incorporated the 15 of Hen. 6.

[Having thus much, not without Travail and ſome Charges, noted for the Antiquity of theſe Vintners, about two years * ſince, or more, I repaired to the Common Hall of that Company, and there ſhewed, and read it in a Court of Aſſiſtance: requiring them, as being one of the Principal Companies in this City (of whom I meant therefore to write the more at large) if they knew any more, which might ſound to their Worſhip and Commendation, at their Leiſure to ſend it me, and I would joyn it to my former Collection. But I was anſwered by ſome that took upon them the Speech, that they were none of the Principal, but of the inferiour Companies, and ſo willing me to leave them, I departed; and never ſince heard from them, which hath ſomewhat diſcouraged me any further to travail amongſt the Companies, to learn ought at their hands. This Paragraph I thought fit to reſtore, being left out in the two laſt Editions.]

The Vintners Company diſcourage Stow.
* Viz. 1596.

The Vintners one of the 12 Companies.

The readieſt to ſpeak, not always the wiſeſt men.

J. S.

Next is Palmers lane, now called Anchor lane. The Plummers have their Hall there, but are Tenants to the Vintners.

Palmerslane, or Anchorlane.
Plummers Hall.

Then is Worceſter houſe, ſometimes belonging to the Earls of Worceſter, now divided into many Tenements. The Fruiterers have their Hall there.

Worceſter Houſe.
Fruiterer's Hall.

Then is the Old Swan, a great Brew-houſe. And this is all, on the Thames ſide, that I can note in this Ward.

Old Swan.

On the Land ſide, in the Royal ſtreet, is Pater noſter lane, I think of old time called Arches: for I read, that Robert de Suffolk gave to Walter Darford, his tenement with the appurtenance, in the Lane called Les Arches, in the pariſh of St. Michael de Pater noſter Church, between the wall of the Field called Wincheſter field, on the Eaſt, and the ſame Lane on the Weſt, &c. More, I read of a Stone Houſe, called Stoda de Winton, juxta Stodum bridge, which in that Lane was over Walbrooke water.

Pater noſter Lane.
L. S. Mary Overie.

The Pariſh Church of St. MICHAEL, called Pater noſter Church in the Royal.

Then is the fair Pariſh Church of St. Michael, called Pater noſter Church in the Royal. This Church was new builded, and made a College of St. Spirit, and St. Mary, founded by Richard Whittington, Mercer, four times Maior, for a Maſter, four Fellows, Maſters of Art, Clerks, Conducts, Choriſts, &c. and an Alms-houſe, called Gods houſe or Hoſpital, for thirteen poor Men. One of them to be Tutor, and to have 16 d. the week, the other twelve each of them to have 14 d. the week for ever, with other neceſſary proviſion, an Hutch with three Docks, a common Seal, &c.

S. Michael de Pater noſter, a College, one Alms-houſe or Hoſpital.]
Whittington's College.

Theſe (as the manner then was) were bound to pray for the good eſtate of Richard Whittington, and Alice his Wife, their Founders; and for Sir William Whittington, Knight, and Dame Joan his Wife; and for Hugh Fitzwaren, and Dame Molde his Wife, the Fathers and Mothers of the ſaid Richard Whittington, and Alice his Wife; for King Richard the II. and Thomas of Woodſtock, Duke of Gloceſter, ſpecial Lords and Promoters of the ſaid Whittington, &c. [It follows in the Wil, For Anne and Eleanor the Wives, of the ſaid King and Duke. Furthermore alſo for the good Heel and Staat of our aforeſaid Lord [King Henry VI. and Arch-biſhop. [Henry Chichely] that now be, and the Conſervators and Benefactors of the ſame Houſe, while they live, and for our good Staat, while we live, and for their Souls and ours, whan they and we be paſſed out of this World; and generally for them, to whom the ſaid Rich. Whytington and Alice were byhold to, in any manerwiſe while we live; and for all Chriſten Soules.]

R. Whittington. Son to Sir W. Whittington. Knight.

J. S.

The Licence for this foundation was granted by King Henry the IV. the eleventh of his Reign: and in the twelfth of the ſame King's Reign, the Maior and Commonalty of London, granted to Richard Whittington a vacant piece of ground, thereon to build his College in the Royal: all which was confirmed by Henry VI. the third of his Reign, to John Coventry, Jenkin Carpenter, and William Grove, Executors to Richard Whittington.

This foundation was again confirmed by Parliament, the tenth of Henry VI. and was ſuppreſſed by the Statute of Edward VI. The Alms-houſes, with the poor Men, do remain, and are paid by the Mercers.

There be extant in Cuſtody of the Mercers the Original Ordinances of Richard Whittington's Charity, made by his Executors, Coventre, Carpenter and Grove, fairly written. Where on the firſt Page is curiouſly allumined the ſaid Whittington lying on his Death-bed, a very lean conſumed meagre Body: and his three Executors and a Prieſt, and divers others ſtanding by his Bed ſide: Beginning thus:

We have founded alſo, after the Wille aboveſeid, a Houſe of Almes for xiii povere Folk ſucceſſively for evermore; to dwell and to be ſuſteined in the ſame Houſe. Which Houſe is ſituated and edified upon a certain Soyl that we bought therfore, late in the Pariſh of Seinte Mighel aboveſaid: that is to ſay, Bytweene the foreſaid Church and the Wall that cloſeth in the voyd place, behind the heigh Auter of the ſame Church in the Southſide, and our great Tenement, that was late the Houſe of the aforeſaid Richard Whyttington in the Northſide. And it ſtretcheth fro the dwelling place of the Maſter and the Preſtis of the College aboveſeid The which alſo we did late to be now added in the Eaſtſide unto a great voyd place of our Land. And in the more ful and clere foundation and Ordinaunce, and alſo ſtablyng of the foreſeid Almeshouſe for pouer men, the Myght of the Fadre, the Wyſdom of the Sonne, and the Goodneſs of the Holy Ghoſt, fyrſt of al ycalled unto our Help, we procede in this wyſe:

Richard Whittington thrice buried. This Richard Whittington was (in this Church) three times buried: firſt, by his Executors, under a fair Monument: then, in the Reign of Edward the VI. the Parſon of that Church, thinking ſome great Riches (as he ſaid) to be buried with him, cauſed his Monument to be broken, his Body to be ſpoiled of his Leaden ſheet; and again the ſecond time to be buried. And in the Reign of Queen Mary, the Pariſhioners were forced to take him up, to lap him in Lead, as afore, to bury him the third time, and to place his Monument, or the like, over him again, which remaineth, and ſo he reſted, till the great Fire of London violated his reſting place again.

John Heydon, Citizen, Mercer and Alderman gave per ann. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8.d. for a Weekly Lecture in this Church; to be paid by the the Company of Mercers. Which Lecture had been neglected for many years: and Complaint thereof being made to the Commiſſioners for Charitable Uſes, they paſſed a Decree in 1702. Importing that reading Prayers and Preaching a Sermon within this Church throughout the whole Year, wou'd fulfil the the Will of both Teſtators. Which Decree is enrolled in the Petty Bag Office: and a Copy of it tranſcribed in the Pariſh Book. This Lecture is, or was lately preached by Mr. Shute on Frydays afternoon at three of the Clock.

Church rebuilt.

This Church ruined in the great Fire was rebuilt and finiſhed in the year 1694.

The Font was given by Abraham Jordan.

S. Martins in the Vintree is layd to this Pariſh by Act of Parliament.]

Tower Royal builded about Henry I. as may be ſuppoſed. King Stephen was lodged there.

At the upper end of this Street, is the Tower Royal, whereof that ſtreet taketh name. This Tower and great place was ſo called, of pertaining to the Kings of this Realm: but by whom the ſame was builded, or of what Antiquity continued, I have not read more, than in the Reign of King Edward I. ſecond, fourth, and ſeventh years, it was the tenement of Simon Beawmes. Alſo, that in the 36th of Edward III. the ſame was called the Royal, in the Pariſh of Michael de Pater noſter: and that in the three and fortieth of his Reign, he gave it by the name of his Inne, called the Royal, in his City of London, in value twenty pounds by year, unto his Colledge of S. Stephen at Weſtminſter. Notwithſtanding, in the Reign of Richard II. it was called, The Queens Wardrobe, as appeareth by this that followeth:

Froſard.

The Queens Wardrobe.

The Lady Princeſs lodged in the *Tower Royal.

King Richard, having in Smithfield overcome and diſperſed the Rebels, he, his Lords and all his Company, entred the City of London, with great joy, and went to the Lady Princeſs his Mother, who was then lodged in the Tower-Royal, called the Queens Wardrope, where ſhe had remained three days and two nights, right ſore abaſhed. But when ſhe ſaw the King her Son, ſhe was greatly rejoyced and ſaid, Ah Son, what great ſorrow have I ſuffered for you this day! The King anſwered and ſaid; Certainly, Madam, I know it well, but now rejoyce, and thank God, for I have this day recovered mine heritage, and the Realm of England, which I had near-hand loſt.

This Tower Royal a Place of Defence.

This Tower ſeemeth to have been (at that time) of good defence, for when the Rebels had beſet the Tower of London, and got poſſeſſion thereof, taking from thence whom they liſted: as in my Annals I have ſhewed; the Princeſs being forced to flye came to this Tower Royal, where ſhe was lodged, and remained ſafe as ye have heard. And it may be alſo ſuppoſed, that the King himſelf was at that time lodged there. I read, that in the year 1386. Lyon King of Armony, being chaſed out of his Realm by the Tartarians, received innumerable gifts of the King and of his Nobles, the King then lying in the Royal. Where he alſo granted to the ſaid King of Armony, a Charter of a thouſand pounds by year during his Life. This for proof may ſuffice, that Kings of England have been lodgin in this Tower, though the ſame (of later time) hath been neglected, and turned into ſtabling for the Kings horſes, and now let out to divers Men, and divided into Tenemens.

King Richard lodged in the Tower Royal.

Afterwards the Kings Horſes here ſtabled.

The Duke of Norfolk lodged here. J. S.

This great Houſe, belonging antiently to the Kings of England, was inhabited by the firſt Duke of Norfolk, of the Family of the Howards; granted unto him by King Richard the Third. For ſo I find in an old Ledger Book of that Kings. Where it is ſaid, 'That 'the King granted unto John Duke of Norfolk, Meſſuagium cum Pertinenciis, voc. LE 'TOWER infra Paroch. Sancti Thomæ Lond. where we may obſerve, how this Meſſuage is ſaid to ſtand in S. Thomas Apoſtle, tho' Stow placeth it in S. Michaels.

Cutlers Hall.

In Horſe bridge-ſtreet is the Cutlers Hall, Richard de Wilehale, 1295. confirmed to Paul Butelar, this houſe and the edifices, in the pariſh of St. Michael Pater noſter Church, and S. Johns upon Walbrooke. Which ſome time Lawrence Giſors, and his Son Peter Giſors did poſſeſs, and afterwards Hugo de Hingham: and lyeth between the Tenement of the ſaid Richard towards the South, and the lane called Horſeſhoo bridge towards the North, and between the way called Pater noſter Church on the Weſt, and the courſe of Walbrooke on the Eaſt, paying yearly one Clove of Gilliflowers at Eaſter, and to the Prior and Convent of S. Mary Overy, 6*s.* This Houſe ſome time belonged to Simon Doleſly, Grocer, Maior in the year 1359. They of this Company were (of old time) three Arts, or ſorts of Workmen, to wit, the firſt were Smiths, Forgers of Blades, and therefore called Bladers, and divers of them proved wealthy Men, as namely, Walter Nele, Blader, one of the Sheriffs, the Twelfth of Edward III. deceaſed, 1352. and buried in S. James Garlicke hith. He left Lands to the mending of High-ways about London, between Newgate and Wicombe, Aldgate and Chelmsford, Biſhopſgate and Ware, Southwark and Rocheſter, &c. The ſecond were makers of Hafts, and otherwiſe garniſhers of Blades: the third ſort were Sheathmakers for Swords, Daggers and Knives. In the Tenth of Henry IV. certain Ordinances were made betwixt the Bladers, and other Cutlers, and in the fourth of Henry VI. they were all three Companies drawn into one Fraternity or Brotherhood, by the name of Cutlers.

Blades or Blade Smiths.

Sheathmakers.

Knightriders ſtreet.

Then is Knightriders ſtreet, ſo called (as is ſuppoſed) of Knights well armed and mounted at the Tower Royal, riding from thence thro' that ſtreet, Weſt to Creed lane, and ſo out at Ludgate, towards Smithfield; when they were there to Turney, Juſt, or otherwiſe to ſhew their activities before the King and States of the Realm.

In this Street is the Pariſh Church of S. Thomas the Apoſtle, by Wring-wren Lane, a proper Church [and in the years 1629. and 1630. well repaired, and finely garniſhed, at the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhoners.

The Charge of it amounting to near 300*l.*] But Monuments of antiquity, there be none left undefaced, except ſome Arms in the Windows, as alſo in the ſtone-work, which ſome ſuppoſe to be the Arms of John Barnes, Mercer, Maior of London, in the year 1371. a great builder thereof. Henry Cauſton, Merchant, was a Benefactor, and had a Chantry thereabout, 1396. Thomas Romain, Maior, 1310. had alſo a Chantry thereabout, 1379. Fitzwilliams alſo a Benefactor, had a Chantry there. More, Sir William Littlesbury, alias Horn, (for King Edward IV. ſo named him) becauſe he was a moſt excellent blower in a Horn. He was a Salter, and Merchant of the Staple, Maior of London in the year 1487. and was buried in this Church, having appointed (by his Teſtament) the Bells to be changed for four new Bells of good tune and ſound; but that was not performed: He gave 500 Marks towards the repairing of High-ways between London and Cambridge. His dwelling houſe, with a Garden, and appurtenances in the ſaid Pariſh, he deviſed to be ſold, and beſtowed in charitable actions, as his Executors would anſwer before God.

Sir Wil. Littlesbury, named Horn by K. Edward.

His houſe called the George in Bred-ſtreet he gave to the Salters, they to find a Prieſt in the ſaid Church, to have ſix pounds, thirteen ſhillings, four pence the year. To every Preacher at Pauls Croſs, and at the Spittle, four pence for ever; To the Priſoners of Newgate, Ludgate, Marſhalſea, and Kings Bench, in Victuals, ten ſhillings at Chriſtmas, and ten ſhillings at Eaſter for ever; which Legacies are not performed.

George in Breadſtreet given to the Salters upon conditions not performed.

William Shipton, William Champneis, and John de Burford, had Chantries there. John Martin, Butcher, one of the Sheriffs, was buried there 1533. Thoſe Monuments that be extant of theſe latter times be theſe following.

On the North ſide of the Chancel. A. M.

There lies buried near this Monument, Margaret, one of the daughters of the Lord Broke, Chief Baron of the Exchequer, in the Reign of King Henry VIII.: who lineally deſcended of the Houſe of Broke of in Cheſhire. Which ſaid Margaret was firſt married to William Whorwood, ſecond Son to John Whorwood of Compton in the County of Stafford, Eſq; which ſaid William dyed Attorney General to the ſaid King Henry VIII. After whoſe death, ſhe took to her ſecond Husband, William Sheldon of Beeley in the County of Worceſter, *Eſq; who alſo dyed, leaving her a Widow: and ſo ſhe continued many years after. Ringed Hall.

In this S. Thomas Apoſtles there was a Meſſe, perhaps ſometime the dwelling of the Earls of Cornwall, called Ringed Hall. For in the Reign of Edward III. a Place ſo called, with four Shops and two Gardens in this Pariſh was granted by Edmund Earl of Cornwal to the Abbot of Beaulieu near Oxford. And regranted, and a plea thereupon in the Huſtings, 2. R. 2.]

Ipres Inne.

William of Ipres.

King Stephen lodged in the Tower royal.

Then Weſt from the ſaid Church on the ſame ſide, was one great Meſſuage, ſometimes called Ipres Inne, of William of Ipres a Flemming, the firſt builder thereof. This William was called out of Flanders, with a number of Flemmings to the aid of King Stephen, againſt Maude the Empreſs, in the year 1138. and grew in favour with the ſaid King for his ſervice, ſo far, that he builded this his houſe near unto Tower-Royal, in the which Tower it ſeemeth the King was then lodged, as in the heart of the City, for his more ſafety.

Robert Earl of Glouceſter, Brother to the Empreſs, being taken, was committed to the cuſtody of this William, to be kept in the Caſtle of Rocheſter, till King Stephen was alſo taken, and then one was delivered in exchange for the other, and both ſet free: This William of Ipres gave Edredes Hith, now called Queens Hith, to the Prior and Canons of the holy Trinity in London: he founded the Abbey of Foxley in Kent, &c. In the firſt of Henry II. the ſaid William, with all the other Flemmings (fearing the indignation of the new King) departed the Land, but it ſeemeth that the ſaid William was ſhortly called back again, and reſtored both to the King's favour, and to his old poſſeſſions here, ſo that the name and family continued long after in this Realm, as may appear by this which followeth.

Edreds, now Queen Hithe.

In the year 1377. the 51 of Edward III. the Citizens of London minding to have deſtroyed John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaſter, and Henry Percy Marſhal, (for cauſes ſhewed in my Annals) ſought up and down, and could not find them: For they were that day to dine with John of Ipres at his Inne, which the Londoners wiſt not of, but thought the Duke and Marſhal had been at the Savoy, and therefore poſted thither. But one of the Dukes Knights ſeeing theſe things, came in great haſte to the place where the Duke was, and after that he had knocked, and could not be let in, he ſaid to Haveland the Porter, If thou love my Lord and thy life, open the Gate: with which words he got entry, and with great fear he tells the Duke, that without the gate were infinite numbers of armed Men, and unleſs he took great heed, that day would be his laſt: with which words the Duke leapt ſo haſtily from his Oyſters, that he hurt both his legs againſt the form: Wine was offered, but he could not drink for haſte, and ſo fled with his fellow Henry Percy out at a back gate, and entring upon the Thames, never ſtayed rowing, until they came to a houſe near the Manor of Kennington, where at that time the Princeſs lay, with Richard the young Prince, before whom he made his complaint, &c.

Kennington beſides Lambeth.

On the other ſide, I read of a Meſſuage, called Ringed hall: King Henry VIII. the 32. of his Reign, gave the ſame (with four Tenements adjoyning) unto Morgan Philip, alias Wolfe, in the Pariſh of St. Thomas Apoſtles in London, &c.

Over againſt Ipres Inne in Knight-riders ſtreet, at the corner towards St. James at Garlickhithe, was ſome time a great houſe builded of ſtone, and called Ormond place, for that it ſome time belonged to the Earls of Ormond. King Edward IV. in the fifth of his Reign, gave to Elizabeth his Wife, the Manor of Greenwich, with the Town and Park, in the County of Kent. He alſo gave this Tenement called Ormond place, with all the appurtenances to the ſame, ſituate in the Pariſh of S. Trinity in Knight-riders ſtreet in London. This houſe is now lately taken down, and divers fair Tenements are builded there, the corner houſe whereof is a Tavern.

Ormond place.

Then lower down in Royal ſtreet, is Kerion lane, of one Kerion, ſome time dwelling there. In this lane be divers fair houſes for Merchants; and amongſt others, is the Glaſiers Hall.

Here Edmund Chapman, cloſ'd in Clay, undoubtedly doth reſt,
Who to his Neighbours (while he liv'd)

Fine Pews within this Church he made,
 and with his Arms ſupport,
The Table and the Seats in Quire
 he ſet in comely ſort.
To Pris'ners and to Hoſpitals
 he living was a Friend,
And ever ſought the Innocent from Danger to defend.
Eſqu re-Joyner to our Queen
 he in his life time was,
And Yeoman of her Armory
 at Greenwich in like caſe.
Wherein he like a Servant juſt
 for duty duly done,
Unto himſelf of Prince and Peers
 The Love and Favour wonne.
Threeſcore ſeven years he lived here in Worſhip and good Name;
And left this Life, to live with Chriſt,
 to his eternal Fame.
His Saul the fourteenth day of May did from his Body fleet,
Which he with chearful Voice did yield to Chriſt his Saviour ſweet.
And on the eighteenth of that month
 by Computation juſt,
A thouſand five hundred eighty eight,
 his Body was laid in duſt.
But Body and Soul at laſt, be ſure, through Gods abundant Grace,
Shall riſe and knit again in one,
 and ſtand before his Face.
Where with his Saints elect, we hope,
 he ſhall receive a Crown,

And live for ever with ſweet Chriſt,
in Glory and Renown,
Thus, Friends, by this dear friend of ours
Let's learn to live and dy;
That after Death we may have Life, above the ſtarry Sky.

For it appeareth in the Records of Henry VI. the ninth of his Reign, that an Order was taken then for Cordwainers and Curriers in Corney ſtreet, and Sopers lane.

The Bounds of it. Budge row. Aetheling or Watbling ſtreet. The Red Lion.

This Ward beginneth in the Eaſt, on the Weſt ſide of Walbrooke, and runneth Weſt, thorow Budge row (a ſtreet ſo called of the Budg Furr, and of Skinners dwelling there:) then up by St. Anthonines Church thorow Aetheling (or Noble ſtreet) as Leyland termeth it, commonly called Wathling ſtreet, to the Red Lion, a place ſo called, of a great Lion of Timber placed there, at a gate entring to a large Court, wherein are divers fair and large Shops, well furniſhed with Broad-cloths, and other Draperies of all ſorts to be ſold: And this is the fartheſt Weſt part of this Ward.

On the South ſide of this ſtreet from Budge row, lyeth a lane turning down by the Weſt gate of the Tower Royal, and to the South end of the ſtone Wall beyond the ſaid gate; which is of this Ward, and is accounted a part of the Royal ſtreet.

Turnbaſe lane.

Againſt this Weſt gate of the Tower Royal, is one other Lane, that runneth Weſt to Cordwainer ſtreet, and this is called Turnbaſe lane: on the South ſide whereof is a piece of Wringwren lane, to the North weſt corner of St. Thomas Church the Apoſtle. Then again out of the High ſtreet called Watbeling, is one other ſtreet which runneth thwart the ſame; and this is Cordwainer ſtreet, whereof the whole Ward taketh name.

Cordwainers ſtreet.

This ſtreet beginneth by Weſt-Cheape, and St. Mary Bow Church is the head thereof on the weſt ſide, and it runneth down ſouth, thorow that part, which of latter time was called Hoſier lane, now Bow lane, and then by the weſt end of Aldermary Church, to the new-builded houſes, in place of Ormond houſe, and ſo to Garlick hill or hith, to St. James Church.

Hoſier lane in Cordwainers ſtreet.

The upper part of this ſtreet towards Cheape, was called Hoſier lane, of Hoſiers dwelling there, in the place of Shoomakers: but now thoſe Hoſiers being worn out by Men of other Trades, (as the Hoſiers had worn out the Shoomakers) the ſame is called Bow lane, of Bow Church.

Baſing lane.

On the weſt ſide of Cordwainer ſtreet, is Baſing lane, right over againſt Turnbaſe lane. This Baſing lane, weſt, to the back gate of the Red Lion in Watbeling ſtreet, is of this Cordwainer ſtreet Ward.

St. Sythes lane.

Now again on the north ſide of the high ſtreet, in Budge row, by the eaſt end of St. Anthonines Church, have ye St. Sithes lane, ſo called of S. Sithes Church, (which ſtandeth againſt the north end of that lane, and this place is wholly of Cordwainer ſtreet Ward. And alſo the ſouth ſide of Needlers lane, which reacheth from the north end of St. Sithes lane, weſt to Sopers lane: then ſomewhat weſt from St. Anthonines Church, is the ſouth end of Sopers lane, which took that name, not of making Sope there, as ſome have ſuppoſed, but of one Alleyne le Sopar, in the ninth of Edward II. I have not read of Sope-making in this City, till within this hundred years, that John Lambe, dwelling in Graſs-ſtreet, ſet up a boyling houſe. For this City (in former time) was ſerved of white Sope in hard cakes (called Caſtle Sope, and other) from beyond the Seas, and of gray Sope, ſpeckled with white, very ſweet and good, from Briſtow: ſold here for a penny the pound, and never above penny farthing, and black Sope for an half-penny the pound.

Needlers lane. Sopers lane. Sope-makers. how ancient. Gray Sope made in London, dearer than bought from Briſtow.

Pepperers of Sopers lane. J. S.

In this Sopers lane the Pepperers anciently dwelt, wealthy Tradeſmen, who dealt in pices and Druggs: Two of this Trade were divers times Maiors in the Reign of King Henry III. Viz. Andrew Bocherel and John de Giſorcio, or Giſors. In the Reign of King Edward II. Anno 1315. they came to be governed by Rules and Orders. Which are extant in one of the Books of the Chamber, under this Title, Ordinatio Piperarum de Sopers lane, beginning.

Ces ſount les Pointz que les bons gentz de Soperelane del meſtier des peverers, &c. i. e. Theſe are the Points which the good Men of Soperslane of the Myſtery of Pepperers, by the Aſſent of Sir Stephen de Abyndone, Maior of London, John de Giſorce, Nicolas de Farendone, John de Wengrave, Robert de Kelſbey, Will. le Leyre, &c. Aldermen; have made for the common Benefit of the whole people of the Land, &c.]

Then in Bow lane (as they now call it) is Gooſe lane, by Bow Church. William Eſſex, Mercer, had Tenements there, in the 26 of Edward III.

Gooſe lane.

Then from the South end of Bow lane, up Wathling ſtreet, till over againſt the Red Lion: And theſe be the bounds of Cordwainer ſtreet Ward.

On one leaf.

The Pariſh Church of St. MARY ALDERMARY.

S. Mary Aldermary.

Next on the South ſide of Budge row, by the Weſt corner thereof, and on the Eaſt ſide of Cordwainers ſtreet, is one other fair Church, called Aldermarie Church, becauſe the ſame was very old, and elder than any Church of S. Mary in the City; till of late years the foundation of a very fair new Church was laid there by Henry Keeble, Grocer, Maior.

Sir William Cravens Houſe and Shop. J. S.

In S. Anthonins Pariſh aforeſaid, Sir Will. Craven, the great and wealthy Alderman, (from whence the Lords of that Name deſcended) had his Shop (though his dwelling Houſe latewardly was in S. Andrew Underſhaft Pariſh.) Which Shop with the Houſe, he left to his Partners, Robert and John Parker. For ſo his Will ran: 'My Will and Mind is, that the ſaid J. P. 'and R. P. ſhal have and enjoy the Leaſe of 'my Houſe in the Pariſh of S. Antholins in 'London, which I hold of the Mercers Com'pany; and the full Uſe and Occupation of 'the Shop, Ware-houſes, Hall, Kitchin, Cham'bers, Parlours, and al other Rooms to the 'ſaid Meſe belonging, &c. for and during 'their natural Lives, &c. they keeping the 'ſaid Houſe in their own Poſſeſſion, paying 'the Mercers Rent every half year, maintain'ing the Houſe in neceſſary Repair, Paying 'the Parſons Duties, and other Ceſſements, &c. And what his Trade and Calling was (which he continued to his Death) may appear in his ſaid Will. Where ordering a Loan of ſome Mony, he willed it to be lent out of ſuch Mony or Stock as he had then going in Trade; or occupying in Woolen Cloth or Clothes. ]

Repaired. R.

Aldermary Church was repaired, richly and very worthily beautified at the Coſt and Charge of the Pariſh, in the year of our Lord, 1632.

John Edwards
Thomas Archer } Church-wardens.

But while we ſpeak of the Love and Liberality of the Living, we muſt not forget the Dead. Whoſe Bounties (though They be Duſt) are as freſh in this good Work, as theirs that have ſeen it finiſhed. And firſt, Mr. William Rodoway, one born and buried in this Pariſh, though from his Youth to his End, he lived and dyed in another, Viz. Michael Baſſiſhaw, at the time of his Death (which was in the year of our Lord 1626.) gave towards the rebuilding of the Steeple of this Church, then greatly decayed and periſhed, the Sum of 300 l. In the ſame year dyed in this Pariſh one Mr. Richard Pierſon, who towards the better and more beautiful building of this Steeple gave 200 Marks, with this Condition, that this Steeple thus to be built, ſhould follow its ancient Pattern, and go forward and be finiſhed, according to the foundation of it, laid 120 years ſince, by the Founder of this Church, Sir Henry Kibbel. Which within three years after was ſo finiſhed. The Coſt of it amounting to 1000 l. All which, except the Gifts of thoſe two worthy Benefactors, was raiſed by the Pariſh.]

Hen. Keeble.

Henry Keeble aforementioned, deceaſed, and was here buried in a Vault by him prepared, with a fair Monument raiſed over him on the North ſide of the Quire: now deſtroyed and gone, he gave by his Teſtament 1000 l. toward the building of that Church. And yet was not permitted a reſting Place for his Bones there.

His Monument appointed by his Son in Law, the L. Mountjoy. J. S.

This noble Benefactor ſeemed to have no Monument ſet over his Body for divers years, till the year 1534, or 1535. But William Blount Lord Mountjoy, who married Alice the ſaid Keebles Daughter, by his laſt Will dated October, 1534, ordered a Stone to be laid over him, upon this Conſideration, that there was no Stone upon him, and for that he had been a ſpecial Benefactor to the building of Aldermary Church, to the Value of 2000 l. and above: Which was a great Sum of Mony in thoſe Times.]

Thomas Romane, Maior, 1310. had a Chantry there.

Richard Chawcer Father to Geffrey the Poet, as may be ſuppoſed.

Richard Chawcer, Vintner, gave to that Church his Tenement and Tavern, with the appurtenances, in the Royal ſtreet, the corner of Kerion lane, and was there buried, 1348.

John Briton, Ralph Holland, Draper, one of the Sheriffs, deceaſed, 1452. William Taylor, Grocer, Maior, deceaſed, 1483. He diſcharged that Ward of Fifteens to be paid by the Poor. Thomas Hind, Mercer, buried in S. Anthonines, gave 10 Fodder of Lead to the covering of the middle Iſle of this Aldermary Church. Charles Blount, Lord Mountjoy, was buried there, about the year 1545. he made or glazed the Eaſt Window, as appeareth by his Arms: his Epitaph made by him in his life time thus:

L. Mountjoys Epitaph.

Willingly have I ſought;
and willingly have I found,
The fatal end that brought thither, as duty bound:
Diſcharged I am of that I ought,
To my Country by honeſt Wound,
My Soul departed Chriſt hath bought:
the end of man, is ground.

Keebles Bones diſpoſſeſs'd of his own Vault.

Sir William Laxton, Grocer, Maior, deceaſed 1556. was buried in the Vault, prepared by Henry Keeble, principal Founder of that Church for himſelf. But now his Bones are unkindly caſt out: his Monuments pulled down. And the Body of the ſaid Sir William Laxton, as alſo of Sir Thomas Lodge, Grocer, Maior, are laid in place, with Monuments over them for the Time, till another give Mony for their Place, and then away with them.

But Kebles Epitaph out lives his Monument. Which was as follows.

Here is fixt the Epitaph of
Sir Henry Kebyl, Knight,
Who was ſometime of London Maior,
a famous worthy wight,

A Bond of the Church-warden of this Pariſh.

This and divers other conſiderable Charities were given to this Pariſh; the Particulars whereof are not come to my Hand. For the ſecurity thereof, and for due and juſt Diſtribution of them, the Church-wardens formerly gave Bonds at their Entrance upon their Office. One of theſe Bonds I meet with given by John Huet Church-warden of S. Mary Aldermary in the year 1617. with two ſufficient Perſons bound with him, upon Penalty of 300l. which Bond ran as followeth:

The Pariſh Church of St. MARY BOW.

S. Mary Bow. Why ſo called.

At the upper end of Hoſiar Lane towards Weſt-Cheap, is the fair Pariſh Church of S. Mary Bow, called De Arcubus, of the Stone Arches or Bows on the Top of the Steeple, or Bel Tower thereof. Which Arching was as well on the old Steeple, as on the New. For no other Part of the Church ſeemeth to have been Arched at any time. Yet hath the ſaid Church never been known by any other Name than S. Mary Bow or le Bow. Neither is that Church ſo called of the Court there kept, but the ſaid Court taketh name of the Place wherein it is kept, and is called The Court of the Arches. But of what Antiquity or Continuation, I cannot declare.

New Mary Church, or S. Mary Bow in Weſt-Cheaping. Lib. Colcheſter.

This Church, in the Reign of William the Conquerour, being the firſt in this City builded on Arches of Stone, was therefore called new Mary Church, or St. Mary de Arcubus, or le Bow, in Weſt Cheaping. As Stratford Bridge, being the firſt builded (by Matilda, the Queen, Wife to Henry the Iſt) with Arches of Stone, was called Stratford le Bow; which Names to the ſaid Church and Bridge, remain till this Day. The Court of the Arches is kept in this Church, and taketh Name of the Place.

R.

The Chancel of this Church was raiſed, the Church new pewed, throughout repaired and beautified, in the Year of our Lord God, 1620.

William Parnel, } Church-wardens.
William Wallis,

Antiquitie of Bow Church.

This Church is of Cordwainer ſtreet Ward, and for divers Accidents happening there, hath been made more famous than any other Pariſh Church of the whole City, or Suburbs. Firſt we read, that in the Year 1090, and the third of William Rufus; by tempeſt of Wind, the Roof of the Church of St. Mary Bow, in Cheape, was overturned: wherewith ſome Perſons were ſlain; and four of the Rafters, of ſix and twenty Foot in length, with ſuch Violence were pitched in the Ground of the High ſtreet, that ſcantly four Foot of them remained above Ground. Which were fain to be cut even with the Ground, becauſe they could not be plucked out; for the City of London was not then paved, but a mooriſh Ground.

Roof of Bow Church overturned by Tempeſt.

Bow Steeple fortified.

In the Year 1196 William Fitz Oſbert, a ſeditious Traitor, took the Steeple of Bow, and fortified it with Ammunition and Victuals; but it was aſſaulted, and William, with his Complices, were taken (though not without Bloodſhed) for he was forced by Fire and Smoke to forſake the Church; and then being by the Judges condemned, he was by the Heels drawn to the Elmes in Smithfield, and there hanged with Nine of his Fellows. Where, becauſe his Favourers came not to deliver him, he forſook Mary's Son, (as he termed Chriſt our Saviour) and called upon the Devil to help and deliver him. Such was the end of this Deceiver, a Man of an evil Life, a ſecret Murtherer, a filthy Fornicator, a polluter of Concubines, and (amongſt other his deteſtable Facts) a falſe Accuſer of his elder Brother, who had (in his Youth) brought him up in Learning, and done many Things for his preferment.

A falſe Accuſer of his elder Brother, in the end was hanged.

Bow Steeple fell down.

In the Year 1271, a great part of the Steeple of Bow fell down, and ſlew many People, Men and Women. In the Year 1284, the 13th of Edward the Iſt, Laurence Ducket, Goldſmith, having grievouſly wounded one Ralph Crepin, in Weſt Cheape, fled into Bow Church; into the which, (in the Night time) entred certain evil Perſons, Friends unto the ſaid Ralph, and ſlew the ſaid Lawrence, lying in the Steeple, and then hanged him up; placing him ſo by the Window, as if he had hanged himſelf, and ſo was it found by inquiſition. For the which Fact, Lawrence Ducket being drawn by the Feet, was buried in a Ditch without the City. But ſhortly after (by relation of a Boy who lay with the ſaid Lawrence at the time of his Death, and had hid him there for fear) the truth of the matter was diſcloſed. For the which Cauſe, Jordan Goodcheape, Ralph Crepin, Gilbert Clarke, and Geffery Clarke, were attainted, and a certain Woman named Alice, that was chief cauſer of the ſaid Miſchief, was burned; and to the number of ſixteen Men, were drawn and hanged: Beſides others, that being richer, after long impriſonment, were hanged by the Purſe.

Bow Church interdicted.

The Church was interdicted, the Doors and Windows were ſtopped up with Thorns; but Lawrence was taken up, and honeſtly buried in the Church-yard.

A Churchyard given to this Church.

The Pariſh Church of St. Mary Bow, by means of incroachment, and building of Houſes without, wanting room in their Church-yard for burial of the dead, John Rotham, or Rodham, Citizen and Taylor, by his Teſtament, dated the Year 1465. gave to the Parſon and Churchwardens there, for ever, a certain Garden in Hoſier lane, to be a Church-yard: Which ſo continued near a hundred Years, but now is builded on, and is a private Man's Houſe. The old Steeple of this Church was by little and little re-edified, and new builded up, at the leaſt ſo much as was fallen down; many Men giving ſums of Money to the furtherance thereof. So that at length, to wit, in the Year 1469, it was ordained by a Common Council, that the Bow Bell ſhould be nightly rung at Nine of the Clock.

The Steeple of Bow.

Bow Bell to be rung nightly at Nine of the Clock.

Shortly after, John Dunne, * Mercer, by his Teſtament dated 1472. according to the Truſt of Reginald Longdon, gave to the Parſon and Churchwardens of St. Mary Bow, two Tenements, with the Appurtenances, ſince made into one, in Hoſier lane; then ſo called, to the maintenance of Bow Bell: The ſame to be rung as aforeſaid; and other Things to be obſerved, as by the Will appeareth.

* Doune, firſt Edit.

Maintenance of Bow Bell.

This Bell being uſually rung ſomewhat late, as ſeemed to the young Men, Apprentices, and others in Cheape, they made and ſet up a Rhime againſt the Clerk, as followeth.

A Rhime of Bow Bell.

Clarke of the Bow Bell,
with the yellow Lockes;
For thy late ringing,
thy Head ſhall have knockes.

Whereunto the Clerk replying, wrote:

Children of Cheape,
hold you all ſtill,
For you ſhall have the Bow Bell rung at your will.

The Curfew Bell rung here.

J. S. Old Book of Lond.

The Pariſh Clerk's Office, belonging to this Church, was to ring the Curfew Bell: As it was to be rung at three other Churches in London, at a pretty diſtance each from other. That ſo, at this Notice, all the Curfew Bells in other Pariſhes, might be rung in due ſeaſon: Viz. Berkin Church, St. Brides, and St. Giles's without Cripplegate. And if any Pariſh Clerk rung after the Curfew were rung at theſe Places, he was to be preſented by the Queſt of Ward-Mote in every Ward.]

The Steeple repaired.

Robert Harding, Goldſmith; one of the Sheriffs 1478, gave to the new Work of that Steeple, Forty Pound. John Haw, Mercer, ten Pound; Dr. Allen, four Pound; Thomas Baldry, four Pound; and others gave other Sums. So that the ſaid Work of the Steeple was finiſhed in the Year 1512. The Arches or Bows thereupon, with the Lanthorns, five in number; to wit, one at each corner, and one on the top, in the middle, upon the Arches, were alſo afterward finiſhed with Stone, brought from Cane in Normandy; delivered at the Cuſtomers Key, for four Shilling ſix Pence the Tun. William Copland, Taylor, the Kings Merchant; and Andrew Fuller, Mercer, being Churchwardens 1515, and 1516. It is ſaid, that this Copland gave the great Bell, which made the fifth in the Ring, and to be called the Bow or Arches on Bow Steeple.

Copland gave the great Bell.

the Bow Bell; and ſo to be uſed to be rung nightly at Nine of the Clock. I have alſo been informed, that this Bell was firſt rung as a knell, at the burial of the ſaid Copland. It ſeemeth, that the Lanthorns on the top of this Steeple, were meant to have been glazed, and Lights in them to have been placed Nightly in the Winter; whereby Travellers to the City might have the better ſight thereof, and not to miſs of their ways.

Grammar-ſchool in Bow Churchyard.

In this Pariſh, alſo, was a Grammar School, by commandment of King Henry the VIth; which School was (of old time) kept in an Houſe for that purpoſe, prepared in the Church-yard. But that School being decayed, as others about this City, the School-houſe was let out for Rent, in the Reign of Henry the VIIIth, for four Shilllings the Year; a Cellar belonging to the Parſonage, for two Shillings the Year; and two Vaults under the Church, for fifteen Shillings both.
